NO STRIKE! ORDER SENT TO UNIONS SENATE FOR 8-HOUR LAW

WILSON CITES PROMISES KEPT BY DEMOCRATS

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 3.—President Wilson today formally opened his campaign for reëlection with a speech accepting the Democratic nomination in which he characterized the Republican party as a "practical and moral failure," defended his Mexican and European policies, recited the legislative achievements of his administration, and declared for a "big America."

In his speech President Wilson was unsparing in his criticism of the Republican party as a party of "masterly inactivity and cunning resourcefulness in standing pat to resist change."

OLD LEADERS RULE G. O. P.

He said that the old leaders still select the Republican party's candidates, but he did not mention Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate, by name.

The president spoke from the veranda of his summer home to a crowd which filled 8,000 chairs and overflowed to the lawn.

Speaking in the open, his voice could be heard by only a small part of the crowd, but those who did hear him constantly interrupted him with applause. Once, when he said, "I neither seek the favor nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element amongst us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States," the crowd stood and cheered.

ENDING IS DRAMATIC.

The notification ceremony was brought to a dramatic close when more than a score of American flags attached to parachutes were fired into the air by mortars and unfolded over the president's head as the band played "America." Afterwards Mr. Wilson stood more than an hour on the veranda and shook hands with several thousand men, women, and children.

Senator James of Kentucky, chairman of the notification committee, introduced the president. When he declared that Mr. Wilson had kept America at peace, the crowd responded instantly and applauded several minutes.

"TRIED AND APPROVED."

Speaking of the St. Louis convention, Mr. James said it was "genuinely representative of the true spirit of America," and added:

"These representatives of the purest democracy in the world, after three and a half years of trial of your service to the people of the country, with a nation to choose from to fill the greatest office in the world, instinctively and enthusiastically turned to you. By this they not only registered their own will and desire, but also the will and wish of the people back home, whose trusted and honored spokesmen they were. With an enthusiasm, unanimity, and earnestness never surpassed in the political life of America, they have summoned you again to lead the hosts of peace, prosperity, and American righteousness."

Mr. James concluded by handing the president a copy of the St. Louis platform.

CALLS PLATFORM PLEDGE.

Reading slowly but distinctly from a printed copy of his speech and frequently looking up to emphasize particular points, Mr. Wilson spoke of the Democratic platform as a "definite pledge." Reviewing the achievements of the administration, he said: "Alike in the Democratic field and in the wide field of the commerce of the world, American business and life and industry have been set free to move as they never moved before."

He said: "We have provided for national defense upon a scale never before seriously proposed upon the responsibility of an entire political party."

Concluding his list of measures passed by congress in the last three years, the

CALL BALL GAMES IN FRANCE ON "ACCOUNT OF SHRAPNEL"

Yankee Sport Played Within Range of Crown Prince's Guns—"Bombardment Cards" for Rain Checks.

(By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, Sept. 2.—American ambulance, field section No. 8, under Austin Mason of Boston, claims the baseball championship of the Verdun salient, having defeated the other three ambulance sections in this sector and the Norton and Harjes ambulance units also.

"The French-American flyers often fly above, watching the game, but once in a while a German hovers over the diamond and must be driven away before he drops bombs and ruins the field," Mr. Mason writes. "The games always are within range of the crown prince's big guns. Sometimes the game is 'called' on account of shrapnel and 'bombardment cards' are issued for the spectators to return for a resumption of the game on another day.

"The chief trouble is that the French baseballs are worthless. We can't get American made baseballs and wish some patriotic fans or big league officials would send a box of used balls, bats, and old gloves."

WARRANT OUT FOR GIRL WHOSE AUTO HIT BOY.

Machine Driven by Daughter of John P. Willott Seriously Injures William Clarence Young.

While riding a "pushmobile," William Clarence Young, 6 years old, 3175 Hudson avenue, was seriously injured yesterday by an automobile driven by Miss Gertrude Willott, daughter of John P. Willott of 509 Melrose street, credit manager of Sprague, Warner & Co.

A warrant charging Miss Willott, who is 21 years old, with assault with a deadly weapon was obtained by the father of the injured boy later in the day before Judge Rafferty in the Sheffield avenue court.

According to Mr. Young, who was nearby, she was driving rapidly. Miss Willott went on in her car without stopping after the accident, Mr. Young asserts, although he called to her.

Shadow of 'Woman from Omaha' Over the Dines Wedding

Miss Charlotte Everett and Charles Ross Dines were married at the Everett home, on Cumnor road near Kenilworth avenue in Kenilworth, last night despite the $50,000 breach of promise suit filed against Prof. Dines by an old flame, Miss Edna Grove of Omaha. Mrs. Dines stated her point of view before the wedding.

"Any man has love affairs. The only trouble with most of them is that they are sufficiently indiscreet as to go too far. Why, if I wanted to start something, I could pick on a dozen men who have asked me to marry them and sue for myself."

And so they were married just the same.

Brilliant Throng at Nuptials.

There was a brilliant assemblage within the bride's home. The flower festooned parlor was packed with guests. There was another crowd hanging about the sidewalks before the house, waiting in hope that a sensation might develop.

In among the latter moved policemen, and several men that looked suspiciously like ununiformed guards, for every one connected with the marriage was just the least bit anxious. They feared nothing in particular, but just the same a feeling of suspense crept out among the watchers.

Watch for "Woman from Omaha."

The bride and groom came down the stairs and the Rev. J. W. Blake of the Unitarian church of Evanston began the service. A woman stepped out from the throng on the sidewalks to peer through a window.

"There she is. That's the woman from Omaha," was the first thought that swept through the clusters of people. A little knot swirled curiously about her, a policeman walked to her side, and she returned to her former position. She was not "the woman from Omaha," but the increased tension had in some way been carried to the guests inside. With the final words that mated the couple beyond any man's interference, a great sigh of relief from the house became audible far out on the walk.

The ceremony of the wedding was extremely simple. There were only three officials. Mrs. George J. Harris was the matron of honor. The ring was carried by a little sister of the bride, and Mr. Ross was accompanied by an old Northwestern university friend as best man.

Immediately thereafter the couple ate some supper and later posed for a picture. Then they drove off on the honeymoon that will carry them finally to Dartmouth college, where Mr. Dines will teach.

Girl Tells of Broken Troth.

But if there was happiness at Kenilworth, there was bitterness in Omaha. While the former mathematics professor of the University of Chicago stood at the altar with the girl who had been his pupil, Miss Grove in her western home was telling of her broken romance, and showing tender epistles written by the professor during a five years' friendship

"If Prof. Charles Ross Dines had acted fairly with me there would have been no breach of promise suit filed against him," said Miss Grove.

"We were engaged five years. I was faithful to him during that time and was looking forward to the time when we would have our own home. Then one day he wrote me a letter telling me that my dream of love was over. He said it was all for my good. He said he was not able to support a wife and

ZEPPELIN RAID ON LONDON; BIG CRAFT AFLAME

EUROPEAN WAR SUMMARY

Fleet of giant Zeppelins raids east coast of England and London. One is brought to earth in flames. List of casualties is unknown.

Martial law rules in Athens as Greek revolt grows; allied fleet seizes German ships in Piraeus; king reported gravely ill.

Roumanians win big victory over Austrians in five day battle near Orsova; Teutons retreat and evacuate six cities and towns in Transylvania.

LONDON, Sept. 3, 2 a. m.—A Zeppelin fleet, officially described by Gen. French as "larger than ever previously raided England," attacked the east counties and reached London shortly after midnight.

The attack resulted in a great air battle. One of the huge German dreadnaughts was brought down from a great height aflame, plunging earthward like a great comet.

The Zeppelins appeared off the east coast at about 11 p. m. It was their evident purpose to inflict great damage on London and the eastern counties.

Anti-aircraft guns immediately engaged the German air forces, but several Zeppelins succeeded in making their way over London. They dropped many bombs in widely separated parts of the city.

FIRST OF THREATENED RAIDS.

Because of the large number of Zeppelins engaged, it is believed the attack was the first of a series of great raids which the Germans announced several weeks ago had been planned to strike terror to London during the months of September and October. Whether any of the new 780 foot super-Zeppelins took part in the attack is not known at this hour.

They were met with a lively fire from anti-aircraft guns, however, and were picked up by searchlights as soon as they arrived above London.

The destruction of one of the raiding Zeppelins proved conclusively the improvement in the air defenses of London since the Zeppelin raids of a year ago.

OFFICIAL REPORT ON ATTACK.

"The attack was made by a larger number of airships than ever previously raided England. The eastern counties of London apparently were their objective. The attack on London was beaten off and one raider was brought down in flames.

Many bombs were dropped in widely separate localities, but no reports of casualties or damage have been received as yet.

BULGAR LEADER A SUICIDE?

Jostoff, Chief of Staff, Killed Self Over Delay in Warring on Roumania, Report.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Reports have been received in Amsterdam that Gen. Jostoff, chief of the Bulgarian general staff, committed suicide because of Bulgaria's delay in declaring war on Roumania, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from that city.

U. S. ARMY AVIATOR KILLED.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 2.—Captain Ralph McMillan, head of the aviation corps of the Nebraska national guard, was killed in a flight at St. Francis, Kas., according to private message received here tonight.

RAIL STRIKE "DEAD AS LAZARUS;" BROTHERHOOD CHIEF SAYS SO

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 2.—(Special.)—A. B. Garretson, the spokesman of the railroad brotherhood chairmen, made this statement at 9 o'clock tonight:

"We have issued orders for the recall of the strike. While the president has not signed the bill, we know what he will do, and we did not want to take any chances on being able to deliver the recall order tomorrow.

"With our recall order the strike is as dead as Lazarus. If the railroads should succeed in having the eight hour measure (just adopted) declared unconstitutional, we would proceed to a reconsideration of the entire case. We shall keep our faith with the president, with congress, and with the public.

"The world may rest assured that there will never be a strike on the vote which we counted a few weeks ago."

Asked for the text of the recall order, Mr. Garretson said:

"There are 640 texts. A different message went to each one of the 640 district chairmen of the four brotherhoods. Each one of those in turn will send out orders to his local chiefs. It is an endless chain scheme and we wanted to reach them all sure."

"WE ACCEPT UNDER PROTEST"

Statement on Behalf of the Railroads by Hale Holden, President of the Burlington, Who Was Spokesman for the Roads in the Conferences with President Wilson.

"THE railroads will accept under protest. Of course, we will take no arbitrary or hostile action. The only thing we are looking for at present is the convenience and welfare of the public.

"What action will be taken cannot be stated until our legal department can look into the constitutionality of the 8-hour law which congress enacted today. This act today is the result of the Clayton act, which exempted the laborer from the Sherman act. Congress today had to pay the price for passing such a law as that which freed the labor unions from the anti-trust act."

FORCE MUST NOT GOVERN: HUGHES

Questions Way the Democrats Handled Rail Strike; Cheered Wildly in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—When Charles E. Hughes stepped onto the platform in the coliseum to make his final speech of the day here tonight, he was greeted by a crowd that cheered him for twenty-one minutes.

A group of school girls draped in the national colors and carrying flags paraded through the aisles and the crowd went wild.

Finally the band again was called upon and brought the applause to an end. Mr. Hughes walked forward.

"It sounds to me like election night," he said, and the crowd roared.

Criticizes Strike Handling.

Earlier in the day Mr. Hughes, speaking at the Athletic club, aroused his hearers with one paragraph which was construed as a direct criticism of the Democratic administration in handling the railroad strike situation. He said:

"How shall these difficulties [industrial troubles] be met? In the first place they will not be met unless in every relation we maintain the supremacy of reason and justice and never surrender principle to force.

"I believe the American public is fair. I think we desire always to take counsel together with respect to what is just. The day has gone by when anything arbitrary should be maintained in this land. I like the expression, which is frequently used in the decision of the courts, that under our institutions there is no place on the part of any officer or on the part of any board, or on the part of any combination for the exercise of arbitrary power."

For Protection of Children.

In his Coliseum speech Mr. Hughes scored the Democrats for their boastfulness over the passage of the child labor bill.

"From the claims of our opponents," he said, "with respect to child labor legislation, you would suppose they had discovered children.

"I am for the protection of children," he said. "I was for it before the present administration was heard of.

"I want to read you what a governor of a state said to a legislature nine years ago. He said in 1907: 'I recommend to your careful consideration the important subject of child labor, laws for the protection of children in securing for them their rights through an elementary education, and in surrounding them with appropriate safeguards, making an especial appeal to human sentiment, and that nothing should be left undone to give them full effect.'

"That I said in the state of New York nine years ago.

"I am for the protection of our children."

VOTE 43 TO 28; WILSON TO SIGN MEASURE TODAY

Upper Chamber Defeats All Amendments Which Labor Opposed.

WILL USE FOUR PENS

President Wilson, who returns this morning from Washington, will sign the eight hour law with four pens and give one of the pens to each of the four railroad brotherhood chiefs. The details of the ceremony were arranged last night by Secretary of Labor Wilson.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—The threatened railroad strike has been definitely called off and the transportation tieup averted.

Instructions rescinding the strike orders to 400,000 members of the four great railway brotherhoods who had been under instructions to quit their work at 7 a. m. Monday, were wired from here tonight by the presidents of the four organizations to the 640 district heads scattered over the country.

These officials in turn are expected to pass the word along the line tonight and tomorrow, so that when Monday morning comes the trains will run just as if the nation had not passed through the greatest industrial crisis in its history.

VIEWS OF ALL SIDES.

Administration leaders tonight were loud in their acclaim of another triumph for the president.

Republicans asserted the action of congress never would have been necessary had there been a Roosevelt or a Cleveland in the White House. They assert that the president and congress have acted under the lash of unionism.

The men were jubilant over their victory in the fight to write an eight hour law on the statutes.

The railroad officials announced that the law means nothing, as the courts will decide later on without a question.

UNIONS ACT QUICKLY.

Action of the brotherhood officials in calling off the strike followed quickly on the United State senate's final vote approving the Adamson eight hour bill, which passed the house of representatives yesterday.

The vote by which the senate approved of the bill was 43 to 28. One Republican—La Follette—voted for it, and two Democrats only—Clarke and Hardwick—voted against it.

The new law establishes an eight hour day effective Jan. 1 next on all railroads subject to the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission; provides that the existing wages for ten hours' labor shall be paid for the new eight hour day; and creates a commission to investigate the cost of the new plan to the railroads.

The commission is to complete its work by Oct. 1, 1917, and pending its investigation all overtime is to be paid for by the railroads at a pro rata rate.

KEEP WORD WITH WILSON.

Earlier in the day the brotherhood leaders announced they would not recall the strike orders until President Wilson had signed the eight hour bill. In announcing their decision to recall them before his signature is affixed to it President Garretson of the conductors' organization said:

"We did not want to ball this thing up. The president has given us his word and we will take him at it. We know he will sign the bill and that it will become a law. We are just as glad there will be no strike as any persons in the country. It certainly is a great relief to feel the fight is over and won for the men."

"The enactment of this piece of legislation is a wonderful thing. It not only affects the brotherhoods and the best paid men who come under their jurisdiction, but it reaches far enough down the line to give the Negro railroad worker of the south his chance for his white ally."

From other sources it was learned the men feared the effect on the country of their apparent doubt that the president would keep his word. It was in order to correct or prevent such a bad impression they made the sudden change in their plans.

SIGNS 8 HOUR BILL TODAY.

The action of the brotherhood officials in rescinding the strike order was promptly communicated to President Wilson at his summer home at Shadow Lawn, N. J., where this afternoon he was notified of his renomination by the Democratic party.

The president earlier in the evening was advised that the senate had passed the Adamson bill, making certain there would not be a strike Monday morning and that it was awaiting him at the White House.

The four brotherhood heads were invited tonight to be present tomorrow morning when President Wilson signs the bill. The president will use four pens in affixing his signature, and each of the labor leaders will be given one of them as a souvenir. Secretary Wilson of the labor department went to the brotherhood men's hotel tonight and completed arrangements for the ceremony.

EPOCH MAKING DAY.

The senate surrendered to the brotherhood leaders and approved the Adamson measure after a day of debate that will go down in history as marking either the close or the beginning of an epoch in its industrial history.

Efforts to amend the bill were futile, the supreme effort to alter it being led by Senator Underwood, who sought to provide that the interstate commerce commission should have power to fix railroad wages and hours of service in the future. This amendment was defeated by a vote of 57 to 14.

An amendment by La Follette providing that nothing in the proposed law should be construed to repeal or modify the present law limiting continuous labor on railroads to sixteen hours was defeated, 44 to 26.

Fail to Amend Bill.

In addition to Senator Underwood, Senator Newlands and several of his colleagues fought hard to amend the bill. They insisted that congress should provide as President Wilson had urged some measure to prevent such a crisis ever from arising again.

They declared congress was showing the white feather, that it was afraid to go farther than merely to prevent the threatened catastrophe of the moment. Their proposal, they declared, would forever take the question of labor disputes out the strike danger zone. They fought vainly to the last against overwhelming odds.

Say Unions Used Lash.

Republican senators and a few of the Democrats declared unhesitatingly that congress was being coerced, dictated to, driven under the gun to the passage of the eight hour bill without any provision of a permanent character.

Senator Borah asserted that the railroad trainmen would not dare to order the strike if congress should abandon the bill and adopt a resolution merely to provide for a thorough consideration of the whole subject.

Senator Underwood declared the strike would be as dead on Monday morning if his amendment should be added to the eight hour bill as it would be without. Senator Newlands insisted that congress did not dare to do what President Wilson had dared to do, and enact legislation that would serve to stand as a permanent barrier against such threatened industrial disasters.

"Gold Brick" for Men.

Other senators, chiefly progressive Republicans, among them Cummins, Kenyon, and Norris, said that labor was getting a bad bargain, "a brassy gold brick," a "humbug," and that they were conceding to congress the right to legislate on the question of wages, a concession which, in their opinion, the 400,000 trainmen of the organizations affected would not approve if it should be put to them for a vote.

But champions of the Adamson bill said in reply that to amend the bill would mean that the strike would not be stopped. They recalled to the senate the declarations of the brotherhood leaders that nothing would serve to stay the strike except the passage. and approval of the bill giving them the eight hour day and the proposed investigation.

Reed Speaks for Brotherhoods.

Senator Reed, taking up cudgels for the brotherhoods, asserted that a quorum of the house was not in Washington; that it therefore would be impossible to pass the bill if amended in any particular in time to avert the strike on Monday, and congress would be blamed for the disaster if it were not stayed in accordance with the plan designed by house leaders.

This line of argument won the day and prevented the adoption of the Underwood and other amendments.

The majority of the senators admitted that they were afraid to change the dotting of an "i" or the crossing of a "t" in the house bill for fear it might serve to forestall what all desired, a prevention of the strike.

Lawmakers Breathe Easier.

Although the members of congress breathed easier when their task was done, the relief was not so much a demonstration of satisfaction over the legislation enacted as over the immediate results it accomplished.

It not only stopped the strike, but served to stay the soaring prices of food and necessaries of life which had been going rapidly upward for several days.

They also were jubilant that at last the way looked clear for adjournment of congress, but many members of both houses were convinced that with the reassembling in December the question would come up again, and that permanent legislation suggested by the president, along the line of compulsory arbitration, would be pressed.

In the meantime the joint subcommittee recently created by congress will get to work on problems of railroad legislation and prepare recommendations to be made as soon as possible in the session to come.

History of Rail Dispute.

The negotiations in which the agencies of the federal government were used to avert the strike began nearly a month ago when it became apparent that the railroads and the trainmen could not agree among themselves and the United States board of mediation and conciliation undertook to adjust the differences.

Several days of mediation by members of the board ended without a solution of the problem and the situation narrowed down to a point where the railroads were willing to arbitrate some of the men's demands, but the employés were not. Then came the invitation three weeks ago to both sides to come to Washington for conferences with the president.

At his first meeting with them President Wilson suggested as a basis of settlement the acceptance of the principle of the eight hour day by the railroads with pay at present rates—or for ten hours' work—and that other questions such as overtime pay be left to an investigating commission.

He put forward also the idea that the railroads might be recompensed for the additional financial burden by an increase in freight rates.

Roads Demand Arbitration.

This proposal was accepted by the employés, but the railroad executives, holding out for arbitration, took it under advisement, and the negotiations made but little progress for several days.

In the meantime the president summoned to Washington about forty more executive heads of railroads and when the matter reached its final stages there were more than sixty in Washington.

The railroad executives considered the president's plan of settlement for a week and then notified him they could not consider indorsement of the eight hour day with ten hours' pay. They offered a counter suggestion that a question of wages such as they considered this to be should be arbitrated, and that pending a decision by an arbitration board the railroads would keep a fund under supervision of the interstate commerce commission to pay the increased wage cost if the decision went against them and the eight hour day was approved.

The men would not agree to this and sent out their strike call.

Senate Debate on 8-Hour Law Closes Epoch in U. S. History

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—The first real test in the senate today on the labor legislation came on the amendment offered by Senator Underwood of Alabama to give the interstate commerce commission the right to fix wages and conditions of employment on railroads subject to its jurisdiction.

Mr. Underwood asserted that without his provision in the bill the latter meant nothing. The union leaders sent word into the senate chamber that with it in the measure it meant nothing to them.

Besides Senator Underwood, Senators Sherman of Illinois, Borah of Idaho, and Kenyon of Iowa assailed the methods employed by the brotherhood officials to get their demands legislated into law by congress without any investigation by congress as to their merits or their effects on the railroads and the general public.

Not Afraid of Labor.

"While I respect and believe in organized labor," Senator Borah said, "I am not afraid of it. I am not afraid of it because of my confidence in the great body of laboring men.

"It is my candid opinion that if congress had passed a resolution when the president passed this matter to congress, stating it was entering upon a consideration of the question and proposed to proceed until it worked out a solution fair to all, the men would have accepted the good faith of congress and called off or postponed their order to strike.

"Proceeding as we do now we have no facts whatsoever—we know nothing as to the ultimate effect on the public. And we are not even permitted to know the facts.

"Before I vote to increase freight rates in this country by increasing wages I want to know whether the men are entitled to the increase in wages, and whether, if they are, the railroads need an increase in freight rates to pay the bill.

"Mr. President, we senators are not permitted to know these facts. The brotherhood leaders, with their watches in their hands, insist we must pass this bill or bring calamity on the country. I say they are wrong. Even now, if we pass a resolution declaring our intentions to investigate this controversy and will not strike. will not to strike.

"But if we are up against a body of men who refuse to let us investigate and we are yielding to their demand, then I say the congress of the United States has met its great crisis, the spirit of its fathers has departed, and the halo which has hung over this chamber so long has dissolved."

Puts Onus on Unions.

Senator Borah said he wanted to warn the union laboring men of the country of the calamity they have brought on themselves by their methods in this case.

"They have conceded the right of congress to fix wages," he said. "That is a proposition which, if it were submitted to the 400,000 members of the brotherhoods, they would vote down almost unanimously.

"That is the first feature. Now let us assume for a moment that this bill which merely fixes wages really fixed hours of labor and created an eight hour day.

"If society has sanctioned, as President Wilson says it has, an eight hour day, on what theory can congress or the brotherhoods apply it to only 20 per cent of the men who operate the trains?

No Judgment by Congress.

"Congress is not exercising its judgment, its discretion, or its patriotism, because I cannot conceive that congress, in applying a great principle of humanity sanctioned by all humanity, would apply it only to 20 per cent of the men involved.

"Senators, we are here, proceeding in fear, with unbounded fear. There is no need for us to be in this fright. I repeat to you, if you will but pass a resolution declaring your intention to investigate this question deliberately, the strike will be as dead as if we pass the bill before us now."

Pomerene Defends Bill.

Senator Pomerene of Ohio, a member of the interstate commerce commission, challenged Senator Borah's statement. He asserted that unless congress yielded to the demands of the brotherhoods the strike would go on. Senator Pomerene said he felt his duty to the American people compelled him to yield, at whatever cost, in order to avert the calamity of a strike.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa, one of the Progressive Republican senators, asserted the bill was a sham and a fraud and the men who framed it knew it was. He decried the fear of the senate. Senator Kenyon's remarks indicated that most of the Republicans would oppose it.

Underwood Takes Floor.

When Senator Underwood got up to demand a vote on his amendment, referring wage and other disputes between the railroads and their employés to the interstate commerce commission, it was apparent the great test between the brotherhoods and the congress had arrived. Senator Underwood frankly admitted that the charge of the Republicans, that the bill meant nothing as it stood, was true.

"But insert this amendment," he said, "and it will mean something. All I have offered is a provision for a court of arbitration, where all sides may be heard.

"It is true that if the award of that court is satisfactory to the men it is compulsory so far as the railroads are concerned. But if it is not satisfactory to the men they are not compelled to accept it and may quit their jobs if they wish.

"But in quitting them they must face a great public opinion and the men recognize, as does every senator on this floor, that without the support of public opinion they dare not reject the award.

"Without this amendment the bill is a complete abandonment of the principle of arbitration in favor of hasty, rash legislation by congress.

"We are told this bill may satisfy the men today. But tomorrow, if we should render a verdict against them, would they be satisfied They have created a precedent in coming here and conceding congress has a right to fix wages and then demanding the fixing of a certain wage. But, I warn them here and now, congress and the public are not through with this matter."

Solution Not Fair to All.

Senator Underwood asserted that if congress was unwilling to stand up and meet the issue put forward by the men it was unworthy of its place in the people's affection and its individual members are unworthy of their places in it.

"There is a solution fair to all—to the employers, the employés, the shipping public," he said. "It is congress' business to find that solution."

Just as he closed Senator Underwood asserted that the strike had already been called off.

"When the bill passed the house last night," he said, "the order went forth from Washington to the brotherhood members throughout the country to wait on the action of the senate. There is no need for this undue haste."

There was some debate concerning the provisions of his amendment.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota raised the point it should cover all railway employés. Senator Underwood insisted it did.

"It is not confined then to the members of these brotherhoods who are here threatening congress?" asked Senator Nelson.

Sherman Flails Unions' Acts.

Senator Sherman arrived in Washington late last night, hastened to the senate floor, and in a few words denounced the administration for abandoning the principle of arbitration and yielding to the threats of the unions. The Illinois senator, when the senate convened today, resumed his attack.

"You say there has been no overt threat," he remarked. "I say my desk is full of threats of all kinds from the small union to the larger union, from the iron workers of Chicago and from Mississippi valley to all who have seen fit to communicate with me by message or otherwise. Here, for instance, is the language of one from the Aurora Trades and Labor assembly."

The senator paused, picked up a telegram from his desk, and read to the senate this message:

"Organized labor has its eyes on Washington. It demands a settlement of the railroad situation fair to all parties. It will not stand for compulsory arbitration or involuntary servitude in any form, either during or after investigation. Legislation giving the eight hour day without such conditions should be positive."

The message was signed by the Aurora Trades and Labor assemby, George B. Stafford and W. A. Searl, president and secretary, respectively.

Will Not Bow to Any One.

Senator Sherman told the senate that neither would he tolerate servitude, and he didn't intend to become the slave of a certain class in this country, whether it was the organized labor or the employers' class.

"I will not serve as a senator," he said, "in servitude from a portion of the American people. I will serve for all of them or not at all. I cannot be such a senator. I would rather be a dog and bay the moon, as the immortal dramatist has said.

"There are too many in this body and elsewhere today, Mr. President, baying the moon. They think Gompers is the man in the moon."

Taking up President Wilson's backdown from the program he submitted to congress only on Tuesday last, Senator Sherman said:

"Arbitration is abandoned, it is thrown to the four quarters of the earth at a time when a crisis presents itself, and the senate, in this time of crisis, when a deliberative solution ought to be the choice of all men, abandons deliberation."

Commerce Board Ignored.

The senator asked whether or not the Democratic party believed the time had come to abolish the interstate commerce commission.

"It is a deliberative body, but you refuse to let it deliberate on this question."

Again referring to the demands of the brotherhoods that congress legislate for their benefit, Senator Sherman said:

"If legislation has fallen to that low degree, if we can servilely abandon our duty, if American politics has reached the stage where a few govern and not the many, then we are most certainly rushing madly on to a sad state of decay."

Senator Sherman said he believed in an eight hour day in many occupations. "But I do not believe," he said, "in surrendering at this crisis, in these circumstances, to the demand of 400,000 men who are standing with stop watches in their hands and demanding instant legislation from congress.

"Mr. President, no man will get legislation by my vote with a stop watch held on my effort. I do not care who he is, whether he is in the combination of railway executives or in the combination of union leaders."

Stop Clock on Senate.

"I believe in arbitration, you believe in arbitration," said the senator, looking toward the Democratic side. "Still the stop clock is put upon us and arbitration is cast aside and immediate legislative action demanded to settle this question. And settle it how?

"I shall not criticize anybody. This question has long passed the point of partisan criticism. It is now a question of whether we shall live up to our duty, to the high standard of a parliamentary body enacting legislation after due deliberation, or whether we will ignominiously abandon that high function and refuse to create a tribunal that may in decency and in order decide upon the merits of the controversy between the railroads and their employés."

ROADS ACCEPT EIGHT HOUR ACT UNDER PROTEST

Holden Says They Will Make No Move to Bring on Another Crisis.

The railroads will accept the eight hour day under protest, but will not take action that will confront the country with another crisis, was the predominant prediction among transportation officials of Chicago last night when the news of the senate vote was flashed.

Hale Holden, president of the Burlington and the spokesman for the railroads throughout the Washington conferences, outlined the future policy of the railroads for THE TRIBUNE as follows:

"The railroads will take no immediate action and no single railroad will take any hasty steps in this matter. I am sure that I am speaking for all of them. We are not going to confront the country with another crisis.

Legal Staffs at Work.

"The plan is to accept the law under protest, pending the period of investigation by the president's commission or possibly a shorter time, if our lawyers so advise us. They are busy on it now, but have had to go slow because no one knew in just what form the legislation would go through congress.

"I regret that congress has had to make this humiliating surrender, and I believe that I am expressing the sentiment of my colleagues in regretting that congress did surrender," Mr. Holden continued, launching into a criticism of the administration program.

"The Burlington was ready for a strike. We issued our modifications in the embargoes Friday night, first, because we were sure that the legislation was going through, and in the second place, because we had found that enough of our employés would remain loyal to us to operate our full schedule from the first day of the walkout.

"But the railroads have no disposition to fight just for the sake of fighting and will accept the law under protest. As far as congress is concerned it got just what was coming to it. This slap in the face is nothing more or less than a natural result of the legislation giving the labor unions immunity from the restrictions imposed on other monopolies under the anti-trust laws. Congress said, in effect, when it passed the Clayton law, that labor could run wild and do what it pleased and that is what labor has been doing."

Ripley Wanted Test.

"I am sorry it has been called off," Mr. Ripley said. "The Adamson bill doesn't become effective until Jan. 1. Between now and then we can decide what to do."

Mr. Ripley was asked if his railroad planned an immediate test of the law in the courts.

"I can't say just when we will do anything," he replied, "but the law surely will be tested."

The two courses that confronted the railroads was either to accept the law, as they have done, pending the hearings or to go into the courts immediately and seek an injunction preventing it from being enforced. The latter course would probably have precipitated drastic action on the part of the labor unions, it was admitted.

Strike Expense Heavy.

An extraordinary situation, necessitating large expenditures by the railroads for men tentatively employed as strike breakers, exists as a result of the probable calling off of the strike, railway executives said.

These men had been contracted with and small sums paid down, as well as transportation fares advanced, it was stated. This money will be lost to the railroads when the strike is called off.

"The cost to the railroads of the threatened strike has already run very high," said one official. "We have been under extraordinary expense. The loss to the public cannot be estimated at this time, but shippers and travelers have suffered inconvenience and monetary loss. I understand that the western parks have been practically deserted as a result of the strike threat, and that many resort hotels have closed down."

No Freight Increase.

Behind the bland faces and the silence of the Chicago shippers who arrived from Washington during the day there was said to be one explanation why the Wilson program went through the house by such overwhelming majorities.

"You can say there will be no strike and no increase of freight rates, either," was the comment of one representative, with the stress on the latter part of the sentence. He did not, apparently, feel that his trip down to Washington had failed.

The coolness that had developed between the railroad forces and the shippers, it was learned in another quarter, resulted from a misunderstanding or a "deliberate selling out of the shippers" by the railroads.

Pact with Railroads.

It is understood that the shippers joined with the railroads early in the negotiations between the railroads and the brotherhoods, with the understanding that they would fight for arbitration of the differences. Later, when the railroad presidents appeared before President Wilson and he offered them an increase in freight rates to offset the costs of the eight hour day proposal, the executives accepted, or at least neglected to fight the suggestion strenuously enough. The shippers were as much amazed at this procedure, it is said, as President Wilson was when the railroads appeared before him last week with the information that the labor chiefs had sent out a strike order for Monday.

Shippers Are Alert.

Shippers indicated that the railroads would have to show conclusively that there is not enough slack money between earnings and expenditures to take care of the advances in labor costs before they will let a move to get higher freight rates pass unopposed.

Following the lead of the Burlington, the first Chicago road to lift its restrictions Friday night, the Chicago and Northwestern, the St. Paul, Rock Island, Monon, C. & E. I., Chicago Great Western, and the Illinois Central led off with cancellations of the original orders, and others followed.

Chicago's postal money order business was larger by $100,000 a day, as a result of the threatened strike, postoffice officials announced.

ADAMSON LAW, BY WHICH STRIKE WAS PREVENTED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 2.—(Special.)—The text of the Adamson eight hour law as amended and passed by both houses follows:

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled:

That beginning Jan. 1, 1917, eight hours shall in contracts for labor and service be deemed a day's work and the measure or standard of a day's work for the purpose of reckoning the compensation for services of all employés who are now or may hereafter be employed by any common carrier by railroad, except railroads independently owned and operated not exceeding 100 miles in length, electric street railroads, and electric interurban railroads, which is subject to the provisions of the act of Feb. 4, 1887, entitled "An Act to Regulate Commerce," as amended, and who are now or may hereafter be actually engaged in any capacity in the operation of trains used for the transportation of persons or property on railroads, except railroads independently owned and operated not exceeding 100 miles in length, electric street railroads, and electric interurban railroads, from any state or territory of the United States or the District of Columbia to any other state or territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, or from one place in a territory to another place in the same territory, or from any place in the United States to an adjacent foreign country, or from any place in the United States through a foreign country to any other place in the United States; provided that the above exceptions shall not apply to railroads though less than 100 miles in length whose principal business is leasing or furnishing terminal or transfer facilities to other railroads, or are themselves engaged in transfers of freight between railroads or between railroads and industrial plants.

Section 2. That the president shall appoint a commission of three, which shall observe the operation and effects of the institution of the eight hour standard work day as above defined, and the facts and conditions affecting the relations between such common carriers and employés during a period of not less than six months nor more than nine months, in the discretion of the commission, and within thirty days thereafter such commission shall report its findings to the president and congress; that each member of the commission created under the provisions of this act shall receive such compensation as may be fixed by the president. That the sum of $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and hereby is, appropriated out of any money in the United States treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the necessary and proper expenses incurred in connection with the work of such commission, including salaries, per diem, traveling expenses of members, and employés, and rent, furniture, office fixtures, and supplies, books, salaries, and other necessary expenses, the same to be approved by the chairman of said commission and audited by the proper accounting officers of the treasury.

Section 3. That pending the report of the commission herein provided for, and for a period of thirty days thereafter, the compensation of railway employés subject to this act for a standard eight hour work day shall not be reduced below the present standard day's wage, and for all necessary times in excess of eight hours such employés shall be paid at a rate not less than the pro rata rate for such standard eight hour work day.

Section 4. That any person violating any provision of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $100 and not more than $1,000, or imprisonment not to exceed one year, or both.

SAY 8 HOUR BILL MEANS BIG BOOST IN COST OF LIVING

Rail Executives to Ask Rate Raises and Court Review of Adamson Measure.

New York, Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Railroad executives in New York City generally predicted today that the first effect of the eight hour law passed this evening by the senate would be a marked increase in the cost of living.

Whether or not the law be eventually found constitutional, it was asserted that the railroads would abide by it until it had been passed upon by the Supreme court of the United States, and that in the meantime the public will foot the bill.

As outlined by A. J. Stone, vice president of the Erie, the "natural policy of the railroads will be to recoup their treasuries wherever they can."

Applications will be made to the interstate commerce commission and to the public service commissioner for permission to increase rates for passenger service, both the long distance and the commutation rates. There were some who predicted that such applications stood a good chance of being granted.

Preferred Fight to Finish.

Mr. Stone explained the attitude of the railroads generally as follows:

"We were ready for a strike and would have preferred a fight to a finish rather than to have seen this bill go into effect. We shall obey it until it is set aside by the United States Supreme court. The law has not settled anything.

"If the president's program had been carried out the difficulty would have been nearer a solution. But as it is, the part that favors the employés has been put through and the part that favors the railroads and the public has been deferred at least until another session of congress."

Blow to the Consumers.

President Howard Elliott of the New Haven summed up the situation, so far as the consumer is concerned, as follows:

"The step now being undertaken will increase the cost of living to every one, including the very men who have forced this issue, as well as to all other workingmen."

The general opinion expressed was that every commodity brought into New York City would be boosted in price.

W. H. Truesdale of the Lackawanna said:

"I think the measure is a disgrace to the country. The whole thing is a shameful surrender."

Fight for Men in Prospect.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Although the railroad executives in Washington are few and none of those who remained in for the death is talkative, they say enough to arouse the suspicion that when it comes time to enforce the new law the roads are going to do a little interpreting of their own.

"I have interpreted a great many wage scale agreements, but offhand I'm not going to try to interpret this eight hour bill," said Elisha Lee of the Pennsylvania, chairman of the managers' committee.

"There were fifty interpretations of it on the senate floor, and there's no reason why I should present a new one. Maybe the man who framed the bill really knows what it means."

The implication in Mr. Lee's remarks and those of other executives is that the brotherhoods may find that they have worked their hardest and possibly incurred a great deal of hostility and they have won a gold brick. They imply that the men may be forced to demand a court review of the interpretation put on the act by the railroads, thus delaying for some time the satisfaction of their demands.

PROGRESS OF FIGHT WHICH ENDED WITH VICTORY TO UNIONS

VICTORIOUS YEAR FOR UNION MEN, GOMPERS HOLDS

Points Progress for Shorter Workday — Praises Democratic Legislation.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, made public tonight a statement on "Labor's Achievements and Issues" for 1916, in which he characterized the year as a remarkable one in the progress of the labor movement, especially in the shortening of the working day and in general labor legislation.

"Labor day 1916, brings to the workers of America cheer and confidence in the trade union movement," the statement says.

"Taking the labor movement as a whole, there has been greater progress in securing the eight hour day or the shorter workday than in any other similar period of time. The shorter workday is something more than an economic demand. It is a demand for opportunity for rest, recuperation, and development; things which make life more than mechanical drudgery.

Important Legislation Won.

"The record of the legislative achievements of the labor movement since 1906, when the nonpartisan political party was inaugurated, is one of splendid victories. The two most important are the seamen's act and the labor sections of the Clayton antitrust law. The greatest thing in both of these acts is the advancement of human freedom. Section 6 of the Clayton act contains the most advanced concept of freedom, 'the labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce.'

"It is well to call attention to the big issue of the campaign which has a national as well as an international relation. The issue is the attitude of the political parties toward questions of humanity and human welfare. The party now in power has in its legislative achievements placed the highest valuation on human life and human attributes that has ever been declared and enacted by any political party in power.

Attacks Republican Party.

"The representatives of the American Federation of Labor went to the political parties and asked them to declare themselves on this principle. The answers that the political parties gave are in their platforms, where all may read. The Democratic party openly and favorably declared and emphasized its position. The Republican party took no notice of labor's request.'"

ROUMANIA WINS FIVE DAY BATTLE WITH AUSTRIANS

Teutons Retreat After Decisive Defeat Near Orsova—Six Towns Evacuated.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Roumanian troops have scored a decisive victory over the Austrians in the first pitched battle since Roumania entered the war. An official statement from the Austrian war office tonight admits an Austrian defeat near Orsova, the "iron gate" of Hungary, after five days of fierce fighting. The Austrians withdrew to the western bank of the Cerna river, the statement said, the Roumanians following slowly.

The extreme left wing of the Roumanian army drove forward to a heavy attack, the object being to roll up the Austrian right wing. If the Roumanian successes continue in this region the Austrians will be unable to make a stand on the Orsova-Dorna, Vatra line, but must evacuate all Transylvania.

Despite the arrival of 50,000 German reinforcements, the Austrians continue their steady retreat from eastern and central Transylvania.

Evacuation of Hermannstadt, former capital of Transylvania, and the town of Sepsi-St. Gyoergy, was officially admitted at Vienna today. The Roumanian war office announced the capture of six more Transylvanian towns and the taking of 1,800 prisoners.

Vienna Admits Defeat.

VIENNA, via London, Sept. 2.—Roumanian attacks on the Austrians in the important sector around Orsova have been successful. The Austrian official statement, issued today, announces that after five days of heavy fighting in this region Austrian troops were withdrawn to the west bank of the Cerna river.

An earlier official statement issued here told of the evacuation by Austrian troops of Hermannstadt, former capital of Transylvania, and of the town of Sepsi-St. Gyoergy before the Roumanian advance.

[Hermannstadt, a city of 35,000 inhabitants, lies twelve miles from the Roumanian frontier. It was a strong fortress city in the Turkish wars and was formerly the seat of an extensive trade with the east. The evacuation of Hermannstadt, together with the evacuation of Kronstadt a few days ago, indicates that the Roumanians have penetrated the famous Red Tower pass. The town of Sepsi-St. Gyoergy lies sixteen miles northwest of Kronstadt.]

Take Six Austrian Towns.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 2.—Roumanian troops have occupied the Transylvanian towns of Kronstadt, Tohanul, Czicznesig, Tzcserada, Mouta, and Pedegimva, it was officially announced today. Roumanian artillery is now dominating the Orsovo-Temesvar railway, the principal supply route for the Austrians near the Serbian frontier.

The Roumanians have taken 1,800 prisoners, including fifteen officers, and have captured 100 cars of war material at the depot at Gesimesh.

U. S. TELLS SPAIN ITS VIEW OF GERMAN ACTS IN FRANCE.

Sends King Alfonso's Minister Statement on French Protest Against Removing Citizens.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The Spanish minister of state has received a long and important dispatch from Washington regarding the French protest against the removal of residents of northern France from their homes by German military authorities, says a Herald dispatch from San Sebastian.

Withhold Announcement.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—Official announcement regarding the nature of the exchanges between the state department and the Spanish ambassador regarding the removal of the French civilian population of Lille and other towns by Germans, is withheld, but it is known that the subject was discussed about a fortnight ago between Secretary Lansing and Mr. Riano, the ambassador.

The state department already had received from the French embassy here a statement in the nature of a protest against the removal of the civilians, which, it was charged, was in direct violation of provisions of The Hague treaty.

The French government made no request for action by the United States.

RUSSIANS DEFEAT TURKS.

Drive Foes Out of Sultanabad in Persia, Washington Hears—Can Save Teheran.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—The Russians have driven the Turks out of Sultanabad, a city nearly 200 miles inside the Persian border, according to a dispatch received in official quarters here. It was said large Russian reinforcements recently sent into North Persia probably could check the Turkish advance on Teheran, the Persian capital, unless unexpectedly large Turkish detachments were sent up from the Bagdad army.

BOMB ENTRANCE TO SUEZ.

Port Said Attacked from Air, but London Reports "No Property Damage."

LONDON, Sept. 2.—A British official statement regarding the situation in Egypt says:

Hostile aeroplanes dropped bombs on Port Said at the entrance to the Suez canal on Friday. Twenty-five missiles were thrown. There were some casualties, but no property damage.

FRENCH FORCED TO GIVE GROUND

Germans Retake Trenches South of Estrees After Gain North of Somme.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The Germans reoccupied a few elements of trenches captured by the French south of Estrees on Aug. 31 in a violent counter attack south of the Somme last night, it was officially announced today.

The attack on the French lines followed by a few hours a similar counter attack on British positions north of the Somme, which resulted in a slight German gain. The purpose of these assaults, it is believed here, was to relieve some of the depression caused in Germany by the turn of events in the Balkans.

Paris Tells of Foe's Losses.

The Germans shelled French positions around Maurepas heavily and then attacked south of the Somme. Their losses were heavy, the war office said.

In the Champagne region the Russian contingent landed a few months ago again defeated the Germans, dispersing a German reconnaissance south of Tahure.

The Verdun sector was the scene of heavy fighting last night. Thiaumont and the region surrounding it came under heavy artillery fire and the Germans attacked the village of Fleury, but were repulsed. West of Pont-a-Mousson, southeast of Verdun, the Germans unsuccessfully attempted an attack near Fay-en-Haye, but were checked before they left their trenches.

Berlin Reports Gain.

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—The Germans last night recaptured a trench near Estrees which had previously been lost to the French, the war office announced today. Both north and south of the Somme lively fighting occurred.

DENIES BULGARIA WAVERS; WITH TEUTONS TO THE END.

Sofia's Minister to Austria Says His Country "Entertains No Fears Whatever."

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—A-Tochew, the Bulgarian minister to Austria-Hungary, interviewed by the Neue Freie Presse of Vienna, said:

"Newspapers in hostile countries publish insinuating reports that an impression is gained of vacillation on the part of Bulgaria. All these reports incite the greatest indignation and honest disgust in Bulgaria.

"I want to emphasize as strongly as possible that Bulgaria will stand on the side of the [Teuton] allies until the end of the war and beyond that time. Bulgaria entertains no fears whatever. She is conscious of what she is fighting for. Nothing can make Bulgaria's loyalty waver. Bulgaria has the fullest confidence in her allies, who have stood the test, and her allies fully confide in Bulgaria."

PONTIFF PROTESTS SEIZURE OF PALACE BY GOVERNMENT.

Makes Formal Complaint on Taking Over of Edifice Used by Austrian Envoy to Vatican.

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—Pope Benedict, according to the Vossische Zeitung, has formally protested against the seizure by the Italian government of the ancient palace of the Republic of Venice, the Palazzo di Venezia, in Rome. The palace was being used by the Austro-Hungarian ambassador accredited to the Holy See.

Austria-Hungary, the newspaper says, already has transmitted a protest through the Spanish embassy against the seizure, declaring that Italy by the convention of Aug. 24, 1866, recognized the inviolability of the palace, and pointing out that the seizure in addition infringes upon the right of the pontiff to maintain diplomatic relations with the foreign powers.

Replies to "L" Income Tax Suit.

The government yesterday filed its answer to the claim of Samuel Insull, Samuel McRoberts, and Henry A. Blair, as trustees of the Chicago Elevated Railways, in which they are trying to recover from the government an income tax of $7,000.

RUSSIANS RENEW GALICIAN DRIVE

Slavs Advancing on Halicz, South of Lemberg; Storm Carpathian Heights.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 2.—The new Russian offensive in Galicia has resulted in further advances in the direction of Lemberg, and further south, near the Hungarian frontier, the war office announced today. The announcement follows:

Southwest of Hoboly, thirty-eight miles northeast of Kovel on the Stokhod, the enemy resumed the offensive, but was repelled. In the direction of Vladimir-Volynski, near Sheltuvov and Koroytniza fierce fighting continues.

In the directions of Zlochoff, forty miles east of Lemberg, and of Halicz our troops, as the result of a battle, advanced and captured several positions. The enemy, who was compelled to retire westward, is offering stubborn resistance by counter attacks, but these have been repelled everywhere.

In the direction of Korosmezo, near the Hungarian frontier, we captured several heights south of Voromenka.

Austrian Official Statement.

VIENNA, Sept. 2.—The Austro-Hungarian war office today issued the following statement:

Front of Archduke Charles—The Russians began another attack in Bukowina and in East Galicia. In the Carpathians and near Stanislau the Russians everywhere were repulsed. North of the Dniester river, near the mouth of the Zlota Lipa, the enemy attacked on a front of fifteen miles. North of Mariampol and near Zvalov all attacks failed. Near Horozanka civilians were pushed behind the town. Near Zoorov a strong Russian attack was halted by our counter attack after a limited local success.

Front of Prince Leopold of Bavaria—Col. Gen. Boehm-Ermolli frustrated a Russian advance near Brepelniki. The enemy entered isolated places of our lines, but was repulsed by a counter attack of German forces. Two Russian officers and 407 men were taken prisoners. Southwest of Kaizovka a hostile advance failed.

Berlin Admits Slav Successes.

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—Advancing on an eighteen mile front against the important railway town of Halicz, the Russians have occupied the village of Horozanka, ten miles northwest of Halicz, in a resumption of their Galician offensive.

The object of the new Russian drive apparently is to prevent the diversion of Austro-German troops to the Roumanian frontier.

FLIER GETS RADIO MESSAGE FROM SPEEDING AEROPLANE.

Wireless Expert in California Claims Feat Is First Accomplished in U. S., if Not in World.

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 2.—What is declared to be an important advance in the field of aeronautical radiotelegraphy was achieved here today when a wireless message was sent from one aeroplane in flight to another.

Capt. C. C. Culver, attached to the United States signal corps training school at North Island, in an army machine, received the message which was transmitted a distance of several miles from another machine.

According to Capt. Culver, this is the first time on record in this country and perhaps in the world, that a wireless message has been received by one aeroplane from another while both machines were in flight.

INFECTION SOURCE UNKNOWN

The death of David Rosenbaum, 18 years old, in Alexian Brothers' hospital has given the doctor there a mystery. H died of blood poisoning, but they were unable to ascertain what caused it.

The boy, who lived at 2258 Greenview avenue, complained Aug. 2 that his left leg was swollen and sore. He was taken to the hospital the same day.

Physicians said they failed to find any wound, cut, or bruise on the leg.

CENSOR BORDER HEALTH REPORT

Dr. Darlington Back After Inspecting Army, but Baker Gets Statement.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Dr. Thomas Darlington, former health commissioner of New York, who was sent to the border by the Civic federation to report on the health of the militia, has returned to the north and is to make his formal report to the war department. So much was announced today by Secretary Baker.

But there was a good deal that was not announced. One matter of importance was that Dr. Darlington reached Washington not "today," as stated in the formal statement of Mr. Baker, but yesterday. The date of the statement was changed from Sept. 1 to Sept. 2.

Something to Be Hidden?

The assumption is that announcement of Dr. Darlington's return from the border was purposely delayed in order to prevent premature publication of his observations. Although sent with the approval of the war department, one of the conditions was the health expert's report would be submitted to the war department before publication.

One report was forwarded from the border several weeks ago and the department made public certain passages of it. By a strange coincidence the only parts published were those which praised the condition of the troops and housing. Pressed for explanation of why the unfavorable sections of the report were not also made public, the department said that Dr. Darlington was not a military man and might not be a competent judge of conditions in a military camp—where the conditions were not such that the administration wished them made public.

Many Features Commended.

"There are many features of the work which are highly commended," said Secretary Baker in his delayed-delivery statement of today. "Suggestions are made looking to an immediate simplification of the mechanics of army supplies."

What Mr. Baker refers to as the "mechanics" of army supplies is believed to have to do with the army management which allowed the guardsmen to be sent to the border in the rainy season without any equipment for combating the weather. The statement continues:

"Extended critical studies of the various features of the situation were made and will be embodied in a carefully drawn official report in writing. The report will be constructive in character."

An Expurgated Document.

The last part of the statement suggests that the "official report," which will be submitted to Secretary Baker before it is made public, will be free from the "destructive criticism" of Dr. Darlington's preliminary report. The administration is confident that the document which finally is approved by the secretary of war will be of the sort that never will do any harm, particularly during a campaign for reëlection.

SERRANO HEADS MEXICAN WAR OFFICE FOR A TIME.

Assumes Charge in Absence of Obregon, Who "Takes Rest"—Shakeup in Government?

Mexico City, Sept. 2.—Gen. Francisco Serrano has assumed charge of the war office in the absence of Gen. Obregon. Gen. Pablo Gonzales arrived here last night and it is rumored today that his appearance has something to do with the expected changes in the Carranza government.

It is officially announced that Gen. Obregon needs a "complete rest." He has changed his plans and instead of going to the state of Jalisco probably will go to Tehuacan, Puebla, to a mineral springs.

Strange Woman Found Dead.

A woman who roomed at the home of Mrs. Frances Voegel, 1444 Lill avenue, known only by the name of Annie, about 50 years old, was found dead in bed yesterday. Mrs. Voegel said the woman came to her home a month ago and was given a room. The body was taken to Mariki's undertaking rooms at 1506 Fullerton avenue.

GREEK REVOLT GROWS; TROOPS GOVERN ATHENS

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The revolution in Greece is spreading rapidly throughout Thessaly and Epirus, said a Rome dispatch today. Martial law has been proclaimed at Athens and Piræus, the dispatch said.

A dispatch from Saloniki dated Friday says a committee of national defense has been proclaimed as the provisional government of Macedonia. The committee has addressed an appeal to the public urging the population to join the allies in the defense of Macedonia. The Eleventh army division, the police, and the Liberal party have united their forces.

An Athens dispatch says the newspapers of that city publish a manifesto by Gen. Lapatsetis appealing to the Greeks to enroll as volunteers in an army which will protect Greece from its enemies.

The condition of King Constantine, who is ill, is reported serious.

Transports at Piraeus.

Anglo-French troops are believed to have been landed at Piræus with the intention of marching five miles northeast to Athens and garrisoning the Greek capital.

No report of an actual landing has thus far been received, but two dispatches from Athens today reported the arrival of thirty allied warships and a fleet of transports off Piraeus harbor, and London newspapers declared this undoubtedly meant that the allies had decided to put an end to pro-German intrigues at Athens.

German residents of Athens already are reported to have fled from the Greek capital. An Athens dispatch reported that great excitement was caused in political circles by the appearance of the warships.

Greece to Be Friendly.

After an audience lasting two hours on Thursday with King Constantine, which gave rise to persistent rumors, Premier Zaimis, according to a dispatch filed at Athens yesterday, said that Greece maintained her policy of friendly neutrality toward the entente powers while awaiting events.

The committee appointed at the proentente massmeeting in Athens last Sunday to present to King Constantine resolutions warning him not to interfere in the political situation and urging military preparations for possible intervention in the war, was received on Friday by Premier Zaimis, who gave assurances that the questions which were the subject of their representations would be cleared up.

Doubt King Has Quit.

The foreign office today still lacked confirmation of reports of King Constantine's abdication, and was without further advices regarding the progress of the revolution in northern Greece.

The beginning of an Italian offensive in southern Albania, officially announced at Rome, convinced military critics today that the allies' grand offensive in the Balkans is about to begin. The landing of troops at Piraeus indicates the determination of the allies to settle all problems in Greece quickly before marching northward against the Germans and Bulgarians.

Fight on Six Fronts.

With Italy attacking in Albania, the allies are now exerting pressure on the central powers on six fronts. The Italian movement in Albania will force the retirement of the Bulgars from northwestern Greece if it is carried eastward successfully until it threatens the Bulgarian flank.

That the Roumanian declaration of war has caused a radical change in Bulgaria's plan of strategy is reported in dispatches from Saloniki. Since Roumania entered the war the Bulgars have made no attempt to push farther southward into Greece, contenting themselves with fortifying the lines already seized.

WILSON "PLAYED POLITICS," CANADIAN TRAINMAN SAYS.

James Murdock, High Brotherhood Official, Charges President Manipulated Situation to Get Votes.

In the opinion of an "outsider looking in" President Woodrow Wilson has "played politics" from the beginning to the end of the controversy between the railroads and their employés. James Murdock, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and a Canadian subject, is the outsider. Wilson, he says, has taken advantage of the hour and manipulated the threatened railroad strike so as to do the most good for himself in the election.

"And when I say this I am not criticising or blaming him for it," Murdock said last night. "When I say that every move the president has made was planned months ago I am as sure of it as I am that I am living. He has proven himself a great politician and he has handled the strike in the way he thought would swing him the most votes.

"Why, the eight hour day and the demand for time and a half for overtime would have either been a reality or a dead issue before now if he had not called us to Washington when he did. The brotherhoods made every effort possible to leave New York before he issued that request, which was practically an order.

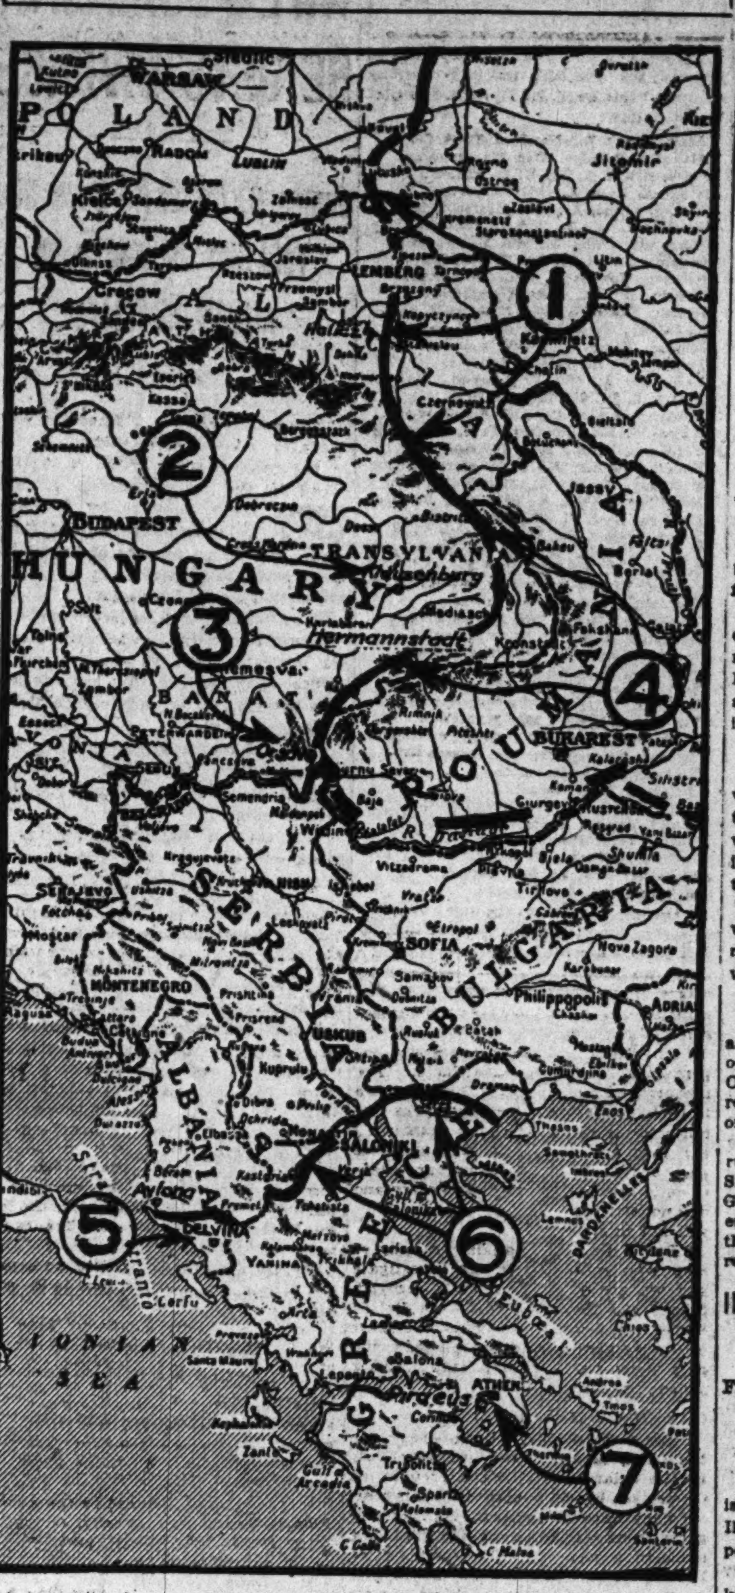
"While we were being stalled along in New York the railroads were preparing to fight us. We knew that every day of delay would lengthen by weeks the threatened strike. Yes, the president played politics. Acting practically alone, he accomplished the passage of this eight hour bill."

LOST LOVE; SUES AGED SWAIN

Miss Antonia Jacoba, 60, of Grand Haven, Mich., Asks $10,000 of Joseph Strohe, 75.

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 2.—Alleging breach of promise, Miss Antonia Jacoba, 60 years old, has started suit against Joseph Strohe, who is 75. Miss Jacoba wants $10,000.

WAR MOVES IN BALKANS



1—Petrograd reports new Russian offensive begun in Bukowina, in eastern Galicia, against Lemberg, and to the southeast of Koval. Russians claim to have made progress, while Vienna reports all attacks repulsed.

2—The Hague reports that according to Berlin dispatches 50,000 German troops have arrived at Clausenburg to assist Austro-Hungarians to check Roumanian invasion.

3—Reports from Bucharest and Vienna indicate heavy engagement developing in region of Orsova and the Iron Gate. Vienna admits retirement of Teutons across Danube and Bucharest reports advance.

4—Roumanian troops continue advance into Transylvania, capturing capital city of Hermannstadt and other towns.

5—Italians operating south of Avlona in clash with Austro-Bulgarian forces, reported from Rome as beginning of new offensive.

6—Allied front at Saloniki.

ILLINOIS TROOP TRAINS DELAYED

First Brigade Held Back on Way to St. Louis—Destination in Doubt.

BY SIDNEY WILLIS.

Sedalia, Mo., Sept. 2.—En route with First brigade.—New orders received by the crew of the first troop train probably forecast a change in destination of the Illinois men returning from the border. The running time has been changed to put the section into St. Louis at daybreak tomorrow, where further orders will be ready. We will not proceed from St. Louis until the new orders are in Brig. Gen. D. Jack Foster's hands.

None of the officers will hazard an opinion as to the significance of the change in plans. The trainmen's orders emanate direct from Washington and are to run the Illinois troops into St. Louis twelve hours behind the schedule.

It is considered improbable the men will be ordered to Fort Sheridan, although the first orders name that post as the destination and a subsequent communication from Washington brought the amendment in favor of Springfield.

The second and third sections of the First regiment are not more than five hours behind.

Springfield Expects Troops.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 2.—The First regiment Illinois national guard, and F battery are expected to arrive here from the border tomorrow. Camp Lincoln is in readiness to receive the troops, although no tents are up, as the regiments will bring their own tents.

There is speculation here as to how long the troops will remain before being demobilized. Neither Col. Richings J. Shand, acting adjutant general, nor Maj. C. H. McNeil, United States army, who is here from the department headquarters in Chicago, had any advices as to how long the regiments would be quartered here.

Second Regiment in Texas.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 2.—The Second regiment of the First Illinois brigade will not get away from here today because of failure of rolling stock to arrive, it was announced at Fort Sam Houston. It was said that the First Missouri infantry was leaving Laredo.

Harrison Street Bridge Closed.

Because of the replacing of sole plates on the Harrison street bridge, street cars using that span will be rerouted over the Van Buren street bridge between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m today, the Chicago Surface Lines announced.

VILLA IS COMING, PERSHING WARNS ARMY IN MEXICO

Bandit Said to Be Approaching El Valle with Force of 1,000 Followers.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Gen. Pershing, at Columbus, today sent instructions to the American field headquarters in Mexico to guard against the possibility of surprise attacks by the forces under Villa.

At the military district headquarters of Brig. Gen. Bell it was announced tonight all available information indicated Francisco Villa has at least 1,000 men and is heading north toward the American lines in Mexico.

Villa Nears U. S. Base.

Villa was today reported by Gen Trevino, commanding at Chihuahua City, to be moving along the Mexico Northwestern railroad west of Chihuahua, going northwest toward the Galeana district.

His movements should bring him within a day or two to Madeira, fifty miles southwest of the American advance post at El Valle.

Revolts Against Carranza.

Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 2.—Serious revolts against the Carranza government have occurred in Sinaloa, Jalisco, Durango, Oaxaca, and Tepic, according to reports received here today from the interior of Sonora by Americans.

The reports corroborated previous rumors that Mazatland [largest city of Sinaloa, had been taken by force under Gen. Carrasco, a former Carranza leader, and added that Culiacan, capital of the state, had fallen into the hands of rebels.

ILLINOIS CAVALRYMAN IS SHOT IN THE MOUTH.

Fred Lippert, Chicago, Second Member of First Regiment Accidentally Hurt in a Week.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 2.—Ill fortune is following the members of the First Illinois cavalry serving on the military police force.

Serg. Matt Barry of the force was kicked and badly injured by a horse early in the week. Today Provost Serg. Fred Lippert was accidentally shot in the mouth by a pistol in the hands of Military Policeman Edgar Bryan of the regular cavalry, losing a row of teeth. The bullet lodged in the back of the right ear and surgeons at the district hospital are preparing to operate to remove the projectile.

The accident was caused by a shot fired accidentally in the arrest of a fugitive Mexican. Lippert's wife is with him. He is an employé of the Chicago Telephone company.

PROSECUTION OF SILVERS MAY BE LEFT TO CLYNE

U. S. Attorney Will Not Question Family in View of Possible Prosecution.

That the prosecution of Adolph Silver and his brother Max, in the event the latter is captured, may be left to the federal government was the intimation of both State's Attorney Hoyne and District Attorney Clyne yesterday. Mr. Clyne said that in view of the possible prosecution of the Silvers he would not talk further with members of the family.

Mr. Clyne and Mr. Hoyne held a conference on the matter in the morning and another one in the evening. With Mr. Hoyne, the district attorney visited Charles S. Jackson, brother-in-law of Max Silver, who is being held virtually a prisoner in a hotel.

Knew Failure Was Coming.

Mr. Clyne refused to discuss the talk he had with Jackson. He admitted, however, that Jackson knew that the bank failure was expected weeks before the crash came.

Assistant State's Attorney A. E. Arkin and Mr. Hoyne held a conference and two detectives were called in and sent to some city not far from Chicago.

Mr. Hoyne admitted the two men had been sent out on a new trail of Max Silver, and stated he expects to hear news of the capture of Max Silver any hour.

May Be Short of Funds.

Max Silver, declared Mr. Hoyne, is not believed to have enough funds to leave the country. Adolph Silver was questioned again yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Arkin.

Mrs. Adolph Silver visited the office of Julius Moses, who withdrew as counsel for Silver on the day the private banker surrendered. Mr. Moses was not in his office and Mrs. Silver left. Benjamin Bachrach, attorney for Adolph, will not discuss the case until the result of the receiver's examination of the books of the bank have been made known.

SEE GOOD IN FAILURE.

"The Silver bank failure has done an immense amount of harm," Attorney Joseph H. Nicolai, 72 West Adams street, told THE TRIBUNE yesterday. "But I believe that that harm will result in a still greater amount of good. It has aroused public feeling to such an extent that I believe the legislature can now be forced to pass laws regulating the conduct of private banks.

"I have been interested in the subject for a good many years. Four years ago, when I was attorney for the Italian consulate here, I undertook to find out what could be done to safeguard immigrants from irresponsible or dishonest bankers. Miss Grace Abbott, director of the Immigrants' Protective league, worked with me, and together we evolved what we consider an adequate protective law.

Private Banks Necessary.

"In the first place, the private banks are a necessity to the immigrant. We cannot eliminate them entirely without causing a great hardship and expense to their depositors, who then would have to spend time and money in going out of their way to deal with other banks through an interpreter.

"Also we cannot make the regulations too irksome without injuring the private banks in the southern part of the state, which are necessary to the farmers.

"As things are now, an absconding private banker is only liable under civil suit unless we can prove that he failed to forward money intrusted to him for the purpose. There is an easy remedy for this in making the act of 'absconding' a criminal offense instead of a mere failure to fulfill a contract.

"This would act as a preventive, while if, in addition, the private banks were forced to file bonds with the state to protect their deposits, the suffering caused by each 'failure' would also be eliminated.

Remedies for the Evils.

"I think the following requirements, worked out by Miss Abbott, would stop the evil:

"The requirement of a license or certificate of authority before engaging in the business of transmitting money to foreign countries; such license to be issued by the proper state authorities, and showing the location of the proposed business.

"The requirement of the deposit of money or securities and a bond by all applicants for such license, the bond to be conditional upon the faithful transmission or return of all money received by the license for that purpose. The amount of the bond may be regulated according to the liabilities of the bank.

"The requirement that money received for transmission be sent within five days after its receipt.

"A provision placing the initial burden of proof with regard to the transmission of money upon the licensee.

"The requirement that books of record as prescribed by the proper state authority be kept by the licensee, subject to periodical inspection.

"I have talked with members of the Private Bankers' association about these proposed requirements. None of them who were at all trustworthy had much objection to them."

LETTERS REVEAL WIFE'S DUAL LIFE; HE GETS DIVORCE

James G. Cronkrite Says She Told Him She Had Loved Affinity for Years.

Tobogganing on Olympus were drudgery on snowshoes when likened to the prose dactyls of W. E. Taube found in the correspondence of Mrs. Marjorie Dean Cronkite by her husband, James G. Cronkite, 4043 Sheridan road. The lilting phrases of Taube became evidence yesterday in a divorce action that brought a decree.

Mr. Cronkite, who is secretary and treasurer of the Chicago Vacuum Cleaning company, said he found, from a perusal of the letters, that his wife had been carrying on her affair with Taube for several years.

"And she confessed it," Cronkite told Judge Smith. "She said, 'Well, as long as the cat is out of the bag, I may as well admit it.'

"She said she hadn't expected to be found out, but she was perfectly willing to say she preferred the other man and loved him more than me."

Testimony of Friend.

B. E. Harris, general sales manager for the American Can company in the adding machine department, testified of endeavoring to effect a reconciliation between Mr. and Mrs. Cronkite as follows:

"I called upon Mrs. Cronkite to offer my services as a friend to see if a reconciliation could not be effected. I talked to her, and she finally admitted her relations with this Mr. Taube had been improper and that she loved him far better than she did her husband. She told me that this man and she had registered at the Hotel McAlpine in New York city as man and wife—that he had had improper relations with her on May 23."

"My Dear Marjorie."

The following letters were read into the evidence:

"My dear Marjorie: And now evening comes on dear, and the shadows are curtains that have shut out the two beautiful days in our hearts, and the dreams and the lasting fragrance of memories of you.

"It seems that when your touch is on my arm such balm of mind and perfect happiness exists, and I always leave on my visits as though I had been in a trance and keep trying to refresh my memory to see if it's only been a dream, or if it's all real. Our meal and chat at the Congress—now don't you really say we were happy as kiddies and the movies and the drive all so hearts that throb in sympathy in love, and just a slight pepper of jealousy, not genuine, merely love interest for each other, that's all.

"So, yes, we understand each other, and our phone calls just little whispers of aching hearts longing for each other, and so interested in each other's every move and action, our sweet farewell only a bon voyage.

Fond Touch of Lips.

"Our fond embrace and touch of lips. And that, too, shows our hearts are still very warm. And now, my love, I thank you for the few—yes, it seemed but a few—hours we spent together, and Oh how thankful I feel to God for his safe keeping of my darling girl! And your health looks so good and you were more like yourself than I have seen you for some time.

"I guess it is the rest up of quiet life and nerves rested. I do so want you to pack up your bag and make this trip west with me and take pot luck as it may be. Some day you will do this, won't you, love? And when that day comes we will have tested each other to a point that very few have, and we shall be entitled to a respite.

His Lonely Supper.

"And now, sweetheart, I have been to supper, and a lonely one it was, too. And then back to the library car with cigars.

"As I trotted down the steps to the street today my whole frame trembled, dear, with fond love for you, and as I turned and saw you wave, God protect you—once—twice—and then as I was ready to take the car you were hidden from sight. Have we not much to be thankful for, dear, for our consciences, for our untiring devotion—love is young as ever—and we can positively count on each other through thick and thin, and our watchful waiting seems to be as second nature now.

"We don't seem to grow uneasy or forget our devotion or what we mean to each other, and we can positively say we are for each other, poorer or richer, older or younger—no matter what tricks time should put on us or over us—our hearts will be as young as the day we met, even though care should wither our faces and time our frames.

"Lo, These Many Years."

"We will be always waiting with outstretched arms—waiting, ever waiting, to clasp each other and say, 'Let us spend the balance of our lives in keeping each other happy, for we have waited patiently, lo! these many years. My heart, arms, body, and soul are waiting your coming. And no matter when the time allotted comes, you will find me your shelter, your protector, your loved sweetheart. Yes, always—for love may show some on the surface, but the heart has been and is full of you always and will always remain so.

"'You know, when a glass is full of water you can't put more in it. There is no room, and you can only fill it by pouring it out. And so it is with my heart. It is full of you, and no one—no, nothing—can be put into it, for you fill it all, and if any one would try it would just run over and still stay full with praises for you and God's helping hand to be as you know I would always want you to be.'" Held on Serious Charge.

George Walton, 35 years old, who says he is a barber and lives at West Forty-eighth and South Green streets, was held to the grand jury on bonds of $5,000 when he was arraigned before Judge Gemmill in the Hyde Park court yesterday afternoon on a serious charge.

'THIRD DEGREE' YARN FIZZLES

Choir Boy Says Police Didn't Touch Him, but Had Him Frightened.

ECHO OF THEFT IN PEW.

After causing a thorough investigation by Capt. William Cudmore of the Rogers Park police station into charges he was beaten by Detective Sergt. Howe, Robbie O'Donnell, the 17 year old choir boy of St. Ignatius' church, admitted the charges were unfounded.

O'Donnell was thought by the police to have taken a purse containing $500 from a pew in the church. He was summoned to the station on a pretext and subjected to a fire of questions for more than two hours in a room alone with Sergt. Howe.

After examination the boy was seriously ill, and it was reported that Howe had beaten him during the course of the questioning. But yesterday O'Donnell explained.

"I guess I have been going to the movies too often," he told a TRIBUNE reporter. "I knew I was going to get what they call 'the third degree,' and I was scared. Howe did not lay his hands on me except to push me into the room. But he stood right over me when he was questioning me.

"I thought that he was going to hit me at any time, just like they do in the movies. I have a weak heart, and it got to beating so hard that I was sick and fell back in my chair.

"Then I saw all the other policemen marching in to get their pay. I thought that they were all coming in to take a turn at making me say I stole the purse. That was worse than anything."

After the boy was released he was helped to the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Katherine O'Donnell, 6710 Sheridan road, and a physician was called. Mrs O'Donnell was indignant.

"I don't care whether they hit him or not," she said. "They almost killed him. Robbie has a weak heart, and any fright may send him off. That 'third degree' system should be stopped."

GAIRDNER BACK IN PULPIT; ANNA'S HUSBAND "ROUSTED"

Thomas McCarty, "Mystery Girl's" Spouse, Ordered Out of Detroit While Wife Stays in Jail.

While today the Rev. R. H. Fortescue Gairdner resumes with the forgiveness of his congregation his pulpit in St. Martin's church of Austin, Thomas P. McCarty will be walking wearily away from Detroit.

McCarty is the husband of the girl known as "Anna Stearns," for whose plight in being arrested for the theft of a silver mesh bag Dr. Gairdner achieved much undesirable mention in the newspapers. Dr. Gairdner tried to put in a good word for Anna, but it caused him only trouble.

McCarty tried to bail his wife out of the Detroit jail yesterday, but instead he was arrested under the loitering ordinance and told to leave the city. The cards of many lawyers in his pockets caused speculation until he explained they were given to him in St. Louis, where he was a doorkeeper at the Democratic convention. So he waved a kiss to Anna through the bars and was gone. St. Martin's vestrymen announced yesterday there is an end to the Gairdner investigation and the minister is forgiven.

CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET MAKES GOOD ITS PROMISE

When the Chevrolet Motor Company first offered its Model "FOUR-NINETY" Touring Car to automobile dealers and the public at the New York Show in January, 1915, with electric lights and starter, at the then sensational price of $550, the management stated frankly that the name "FOUR NINETY" really meant something and that, whenever the company's manufacturing facilities and production justified it, the price on this car, electrically equipped, should be $490.

Since the above date, the Chevrolet Company has completed the best motor plant in this country; has built and equipped an up-to-the-minute axle plant; has acquired a complete transmission plant, and has in operation seven large assembling plants. The Chevrolet Company has now reached a volume of production which enables it to make good its original promise.

We are pleased to advise that the 1917 contracts, which are now going out to Chevrolet dealers, present the Model "FOUR-NINETY" to the public at $490, fully equipped, with a standard, two-unit electric lighting and starting system built into the car.

THIS MAKES THE MODEL "FOUR-NINETY" THE LOWEST PRICED ELECTRICALLY LIGHTED AND STARTED AUTOMOBILE IN THE MARKET TODAY.

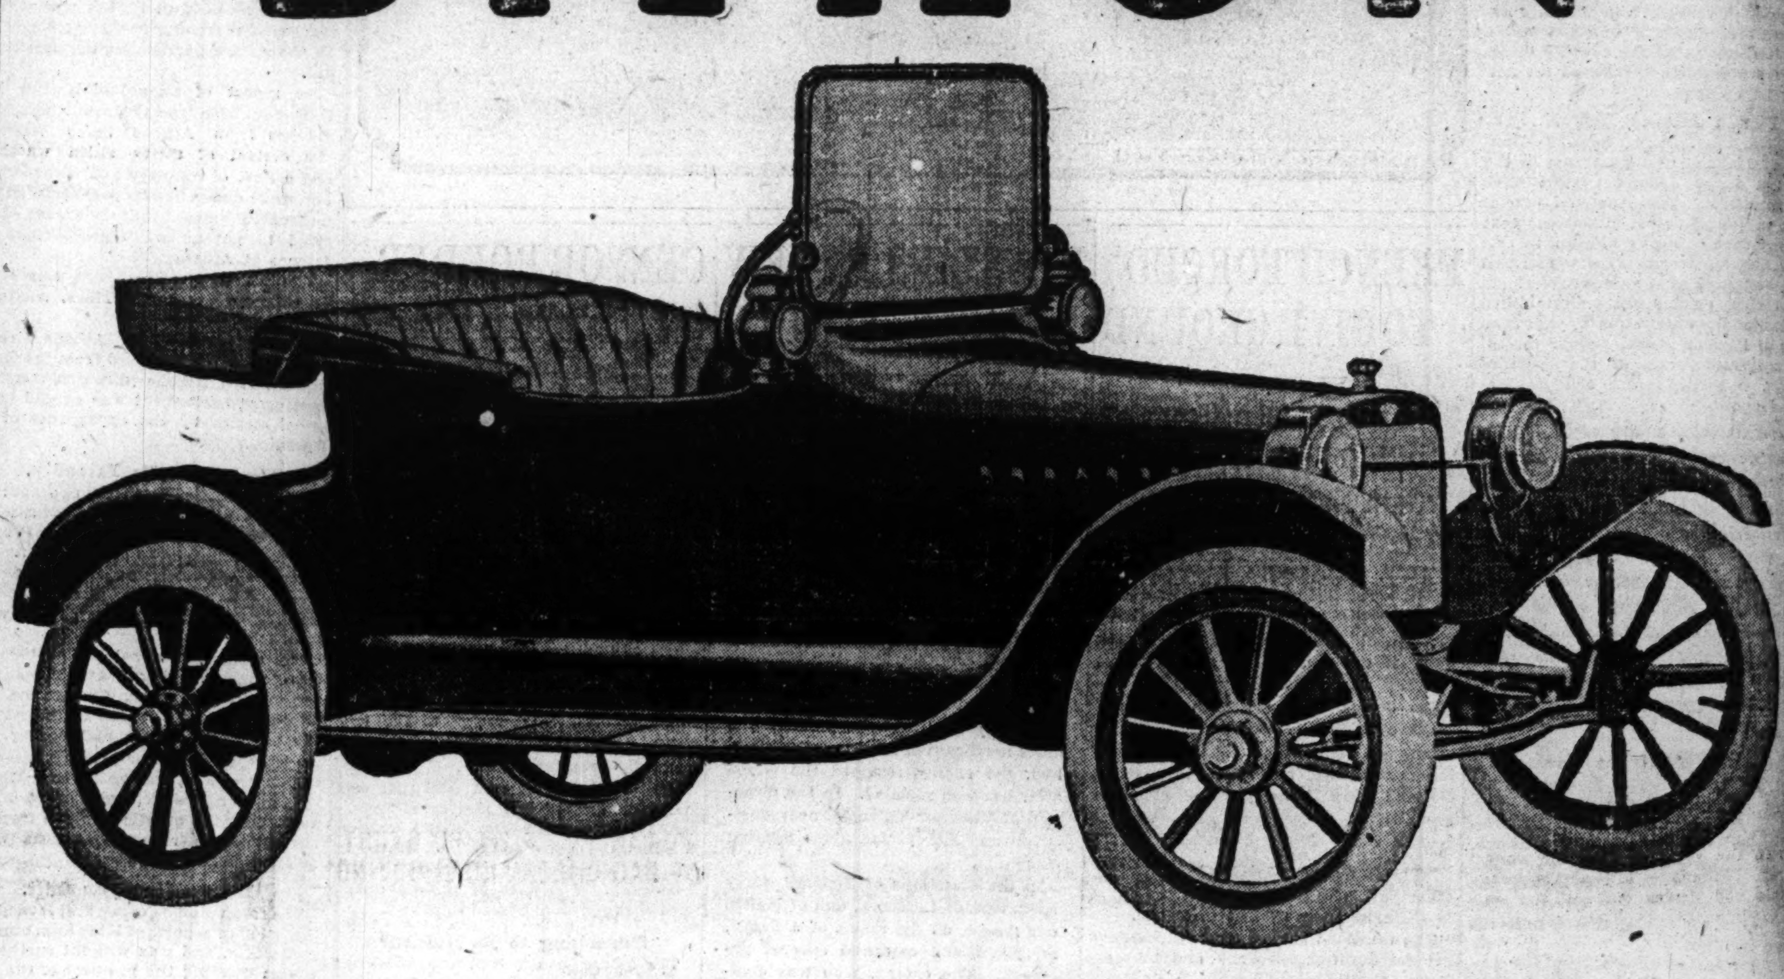
SAXON



Lowest-priced car in the world with these modern features

HIGH SPEED SAXON MOTOR. This is a 4-cylinder, L-head, high speed Continental motor, built to Saxon specifications and design by the Continental Motor Company—the world's most famous makers of automobile motors.

The 4 cylinders are cast en bloc; crank case integral; 2¾ in. bore x 4 in. stroke. It is possessed of unusual power, smoothness, quietness, flexibility, operative economy, and coolness under all conditions. Friction and vibration have been practically eliminated; and this motor develops far more power from a gallon of gasoline than was formerly within the ability of the larger motors of the costly cars.

It will idle down to a walking pace, and pull steadily along without a murmur from the motor. And so great is its flexibility that it will leap to racing speed in less than 30 seconds.

The records this motor has set up in economy are unequaled by any other automobile. It averages 30 miles to a gallon of gasoline, and 125 miles to a quart of oil. Its three-year record of top-quality service, under every condition of road and weather, to thousands and thousands of owners in all parts of the country, is proof positive of its rugged strength and stability.

It will take you everywhere that you want to go.

THREE SPEED TRANSMISSION. Saxon Roadster is the lowest-priced car in the world that has a three-speed sliding gear transmission. This is one of the many features that prove the up-to-dateness of Saxon Roadster. Among high quality cars it is the only type of transmission used. Its advantages are three-fold. On hills it enables you to get far more speed on less power. It gives 25% swifter acceleration. And it protects the motor from over-heating and over-working because the proper speed can be maintained under all road conditions. A car which has not three-speed transmission simply cannot compare with the Saxon Roadster in flexibility and efficiency.

TIMKEN AXLES. To the motor wise there is no need for elaboration on this feature. Timken axles are conceded to be the finest axles manufactured. Throughout the chassis are the famous Hyatt Quiet bearings—another costly car attraction.

STREAMLINE BODY. In smartness and attractiveness of appearance Saxon Roadster is absolutely unrivaled. Its streamline design is another piece of evidence which establishes the superiority of Saxon Roadster in the low-priced field.

HONEYCOMB RADIATOR. This honeycomb radiator assures you that your Saxon will always keep cool. You can pull for mile after mile through heavy sand, on low, without the water in your radiator coming to a boil.

ROADABILITY. Though light in weight, Saxon Roadster is so ably designed, so strongly constructed, and so well balanced, that it clings closely to the road—even over the roughest spots—or in going at a high rate of speed. This marked roadability of the Saxon also makes it "handle" most easily.

ATWATER-KENT IGNITION SYSTEM. This ignition system is regarded as one of the best and most efficient systems on the market. The highest-priced cars can have no better. It has been proved the best type of ignition for a small, high-speed motor.

EASY RIDING. Saxon Roadster is the easiest riding, most comfortable, low-priced roadster in the world. The long, resilient springs are made of the best quality vanadium steel. The spring suspension is of the cantilever design—the most approved type known. The seat is 40 inches wide, and there's plenty of leg room.

ECONOMY. Saxon Roadster is the most economical car in the world. In addition to the fact that it gets 30 miles from every gallon of gasoline, and 125 miles from every quart of oil, it is also the cheapest to keep up from the standpoint of repair and replacement expense. The records on cost of repair parts for all Saxon Roadsters in use during the past three years show that the average cost per car during that time is less than $10.

Just repeat that to yourself—less than $10 per car for repair parts during more than two years' service. Think what that proves as to the quality of Saxon Roadster construction. Think what it proves as to the ability of Saxon Roadster to stand up under the hardest kind of service.

Another feature of Saxon Roadster economy is its easiness on tires. In the first place, tires for this car cost but $9.50 each, and this is a big saving when compared with the cost of tires on other low-priced roadsters. In the next place, because Saxon Roadster is so well designed and balanced and of such light weight, a set of tires commonly lasts 6,000 miles or more.

And you'll come to the same conclusion that thousands and thousands of other buyers have reached—that Saxon Roadster is the lowest-priced, absolutely modern car in the world.

The price of Saxon Roadster is $395 f. o. b. Detroit. For $50 additional, we will supply an electric starting and lighting system.

CENSUS SHOWS MORE GIRLS AT WORK THAN BOYS

Women seem to be taking up the work of the world. An industrial census of 6,000 employers to learn conditions of children in industries has been completed by W. L. Bodine, superintendent of compulsory education. It was made public yesterday by Jacob M. Loeb, president of the board of education.

The census indicates there are more girls at work than boys. In every classification, except that of office boy, girls are in the lead. A girl can't be an office boy. Out of 70,439 boys and girls under 21 years old recorded in the report, there were 37,249 girls working and 33,190 boys.

How They Classify by Ages.

The preponderance of girls begins at the age of 16 years. The report dealt with more than half the minors between the ages of 14 and 16 who are at work. There were 4,475 boys to 3,135 girls. Between the ages of 16 and 18, however, the girls lead with 11,561 to 11,204 boys. There were 23,553 girls at work between the ages of 18 and 21 and 17,511 boys.

Enumerators who made the regular minor population school census made the industrial census. It shows some boys over the age of 14 years work for $1.50 and $2 a week. In general, office boys and workers between the ages of 14 and 16 years were paid from $3 to $4 a week. In a few instances, they were paid salaries of $8 and $10 a week. Between 16 and 18, the wage scale was from $3 to $13.50. There were a few exceptions at $14 and $15.

There were some between the ages of 18 and 21 who were working for $3 a week, and a considerable number working for $3.50 to $5. The average was from $10 to $12, however, and some salaries went as high as $20 a week.

Views of the Schools.

About 3,500 of the 6,000 employers consider the public schools as efficient. There were 364 who do not think the schools are efficient and the rest were noncommittal. The greatest number of complaints on poor work came because of poor writing, bad spelling, and arithmetic.

Some employers voiced their sentiments against college men. They said they prefer high school graduates to college graduates. Some firms demand a high school education for clerks they employ.

Several groups of children were traced to their homes. It was found that many did not have to work at so early an age. The large majority of more than 3,500 whose home conditions were investigated, came from fair homes. Nearly 10 per cent came from "good homes," and less than 20 per cent came from "poor and insanitary homes."

"Often the vacation rush for work," the report reads, "lowers the wage schedule and drives out children who need employment. Children who might easily be going to school are working for $3 a week."

Of the group investigated there were 2,871 "necessarily employed." The number intending to return to school was 624. There were fifteen physically deficient and five mentally deficient.

Classes of Employment.

Of 2,960 children between 14 and 16 their kinds of employment was as follows:

Factories	1,120	Stores	468
Offices	742	Miscellaneous	630

The average wage received is as follows:

22	$1 to $2.00	281	6.00
35	2.50	52	6.50
118	3.00	64	7.00
165	3.50	28	8.00
315	4.00	7	8.50
356	4.50	10	9.00
719	5.00	2	9.50
371	5.50	3	10.00

"White Collar" Jobs Sought.

"Too many young men," reads the report, "permit social pride to lead them to clerical labor or 'white collar' jobs with small pay, in preference to overalls or the garb of mechanicians, to technical or skilled labor that leads to a higher wage standard. It was the opinion of many employers that the average youth scorns to begin at the bottom and work up.

"They have an ambition to begin at the top, or as near the top as possible, with the result that many swiftly slide down to the bottom because they lacked technical knowledge and personal experience in all branches of the business."

Many with Little Schooling.

Many minors go to work with little schooling. The grade classification of minors between 14 and 16 years who have secured work certificates during the last year is as follows:

Third grade	146	Seventh	2,893
Fourth	513	Eighth	5,549
Fifth	1,217	Ninth	1,113
Sixth	2,196

There were 1,815 children who secured certificates the day they went to work without waiting to finish their grade.

YOUTHS HELD FOR THEFT OF CAR THEY WRECKED.

Said They Owned Auto Which Overturned and Caught Fire, but License Shows Otherwise.

Thomas Tracy, 17 years old, and Michael Murphy, 22 years old, who narrowly escaped injury Friday morning when a stolen automobile in which they were riding oveturned and caught fire, were locked up at the Thirty-fifth street station yesterday, suspected of stealing the car.

The automobile is owned by Paul Schubert, 2511 South State street, and was stolen several days ago.

It was severely damaged.

GIRL FALLS IN SKYLIGHT.

Netting Gives Way as Child Peers Into Space in Her Home.

Mildred Fox, 15 years old, 721 North Clark street, fell twelve feet down a skylight space yesterday in the building where she lives. Her skull was fractured. She was taken to the county hospital. She was standing on a chair peering down into the shaft. When she leaned against the protecting netting it gave way.

LOVE LAUGHS AT LAWYERS

Prof. Charles Ross Dines Married His Pupil, Charlotte Everett, Last Night, in Spite of Another Pupil's Suit.

WEDS AS GIRL BARES LETTER

$30,000 Breach of Promise Suit Forgotten at Society Nuptials.

that he would not be able to do so for years in the future; that his salary as a teacher was just sufficient to support himself, and thus he broke our engagement.

"Then I found he was to marry another girl. I have nothing to say against her, however. She is marrying the man I would have married.

"I loved Prof. Dines. We were students together at Northwestern university. I was never a pupil of his. Our love grew gradually and was not a sudden passion upon the part of either.

"When I came west Prof. Dines continued teaching. I took up elocution and had saved a little money looking forward to the time when we would set up housekeeping. We corresponded regularly, very regularly. I have a box full of his letters. In practically every one he spoke of the time when we would be together in our home. He wrote me just as any other man in love would write his sweetheart.

"Tonight he marries another girl. I wish him happiness."

Shows One Letter.

Miss Grove said the following letter is the last she received from Prof. Dines. It bears the date April 8, 1915, and reads:

> My Dear: Needless to say I was surprised and yet glad to see the letter in the familiar handwriting, as I had thought after the way I had acted you would care to have nothing to do with me. I know that I owe you an explanation, and, if such a thing could help in the matter which touches us both so deeply, an apology; but I acted as I thought right under the circumstances.
>
> I will begin by saying that in it all I acted more with the thought of what was best for you than of anything else. I had kept you waiting for five long years, years which seemed longer to me than to you, I am sure, yet happy years in the anticipation of the outcome. Imagine, then, the sad blasting of my hopes when I found that with it all this outcome was seemingly as far in the distance as ever.

Found Salary Too Small.

> I found, to speak quite plainly, that the salary which I should receive as teacher for some years was barely enough to keep myself on, without prospects of saving anything. How foolish, then, for me to attempt anything further than this. And what was the fair thing for me to do to you? If I told you of it I was sure you would laugh at me and, in the generosity of your nature, tell me that this made no difference, whereas I knew that it would wreck our happiness for all time.
>
> And so I thought the best thing to do was just to break everything off, as you know I had thought of doing before. I knew it would be hard for us both, but better, much better, than the other way. And I have been living here with the thought of real happiness placed far in the distant future, if at all.

Asks for Forgiveness.

> I hope you will forgive me and try to see my side of it a little in thinking of you. As to any favors you may ask of me, I think you know that anything I can do that you want me to do I shall be glad to do. I am sorry that I cannot come out to Omaha as you suggest and I can't see that much good could come of it except a renewal of the heartaches that I felt when I treated you as I did.
>
> Thank you for writing me as you did. Please, Dickie, try to think as well of me as you can, and believe me ever, most sincerely yours,
>

WOMAN STOPS STREET FIGHT

Leaps from Car When Two Policemen Refuse to Interfere.

Mrs. A. Spellman of 2728 West Congress street did something that two Chicago policemen refused to do. Jumping from a Halsted street car after midnight yesterday at Maxwell street, she rushed up to where a group of men were each trying to take a kick at a man lying on the sidewalk.

"Get away from there," she ordered. And the men obeyed.

The fight was witnessed by a police sergeant and by a policeman on the street car. The latter told Mrs. Spellman he was off duty and was going home. The sergeant standing on the corner sagely advised a visit to the Maxwell street police station in the morning and a warrant for assault.

Made Political Speech.

The man who was rescued by Mrs. Spellman is David Heller, 1214 Blue Island avenue. Heller had just finished a speech at the meeting at the headquarters of the reunited Republican club of the Twentieth ward, located at 803 West Twelfth street. While walking home from the meeting with his brother Sam a group of men met them and started to tell the speaker of the evening that he mustn't say such nasty things again about Harry B. Miller, running for state's attorney. Heller replied that this was a free country. He was knocked down.

Heller and his brother and Max Gold stein, 557 West Twelfth place, who also accompanied them, all declare that the fight was started by Louis Krakow, Mayor Thompson's Maxwell street marketmaster. Krakow, they said, was the leader of the gang that "jumped" Heller. They took out an assault warrant for his arrest in the Maxwell street court. Krakow retaliated by swearing out similar warrants for the Hellers. The case will be heard on Tuesday.

She Wasn't Afraid.

After she had safely placed the men on a street car Mrs. Spellman proceeded home. A TRIBUNE reporter called her up.

"I am a citizen and when that policeman told me he was too tired to get off the car I felt that it was my duty to do so," she laughed over the phone. "Those men obeyed every word I spoke to them. They were afraid of me. There was another tired policeman standing there on the corner. I do not know whether he saw the fight or not. He told the men that it would be safe for them to get on the car, but made no move to help them, so I had to do that.

"From my experience last night I think that women would make better police than men do. I am sure that women could preserve better order and peace than men. There should be more policewomen."

"Have you ambitions in that direction?" she was asked.

"Yes, I intend to enter the next examination they hold for policewomen. I am just the right build for that job and I think I could hold it down successfully."

ATTORNEY CULVER A KICKER.

Morrison Lawyer Arrested for Attack on Smallish Newspaper Camera Man.

Frank E. Culver, attorney for Edward W. Morrison, was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging assault and battery.

The complainant is James Northmore, a photographer for the Chicago Herald. Culver was released on bonds of $500.

Northmore had been assigned to get pictures of the principals in the Morrison case. The photographer was waiting outside the federal building and as the witnesses came out, accompanied by Culver, the photographer raised his camera.

The camera and possibly the stature of the photographer, who is young and diminutive, attracted the attention of the attorney, who rushed at Northmore and without warning kicked the camera from his hand.

ROOKETTES FIND THREE MILE HIKE RATHER WEARING

Three of Them Retire to Places at Dinner Already Prepared.

Lake Geneva, Wis., Sept. 2.—It took the women of the second encampment one hour to finish their three mile hike this afternoon. The only smiles were on the faces of Ensign C. F. Martin and Radio Electrician Sullivan of the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Everybody, however, said she had a perfectly beautiful walk. Gen. Eleanor Countiss said she had a lovely time and dropped into a chair in the Countiss yacht waiting at the Lake Geneva pier to take the rookies back to camp.

Somewhere in Wisconsin, via Messenger to Lake Geneva.—Mrs. Tracy Drake, Mrs. Edward F. Swift, and Mrs. Henry Huntington have dropped out of the three mile hike to the town of Lake Geneva. They began the march a little to the rear of the lines. Two or three times they were obliged to double step it. They forded a spring with little difficulty, but finally gave up the trip at a convenient distance from the Swift residence after they had completed a mile, charitably speaking.

For Strategic Purposes.

Then the courier to Ensign C. F. Martin who led the rookies in their first hike, brought word the society women had decided they wished to take dinner together informally this evening.

The hike was maintained at the rate the army men move in long distance marching and had been arranged to follow the shore along the old footpath used by the Indians, who made Wisconsin woolly not so very many years ago. The other officers stood it bravely. Gen. Eleanor Countiss was in the lead, although Honorary Commandant Jeanette Moffett and Col. Mrs. Ira Couch worked up to the front of the column before the first half of the march was finished.

Just a Bit Weary.

Capt. Elizabeth Chapin had flushed cheeks and a wan gray in her usually sparkling blue eyes and Private Mrs. Charles T. Yerkes looked a trifle tired before the march was two-thirds over. They jauntily announced, however, that they were having the time of their lives.

Capt. Chapin had been one of the rookies in the swimming class this afternoon when the girls braved the chilliest kind of a breeze and stayed in the water for some time, although it, too, might have been more comfortable.

WOMAN TELLS WEIRD STORY OF BAD CHECK AND SHOOTING

Mrs. Blanche Seeds Informs Judge She Wounded Man and He Continues Case for Inquiry.

Mrs. Blanche Seeds, 18 years old, 2939 West Twenty-ninth street, told the police yesterday that she shot a man, whose name she declined to divulge. She said he was responsible for the breaking up of her home. Irene, 6 month old daughter of Mrs. Seeds, is in the county hospital. Her husband left her, she said, following the trouble. Another man, whose name she also refused to reveal, she said caused her to pass a bogus check on William King, a grocer, at Forty-seventh street and Emerald avenue. She repeated her story to Judge Courtney in the stockyards court.

"I met this man on Aug. 10," she told Sergt. John J. Farrell. "I did not know him. He flirted and made an appointment with me for the next day. After I met him a few times I asked him for some money. He said he didn't have any, but he showed me a check. He said it was forged and that I should pass it and he would give [illegible] half of the proceeds. I went in the store and tendered the check, which was accepted. When I emerged the man had gone."

Ten persons, six of them children, were bitten by dogs yesterday. The victims: Melvin Boch, 6 years old, 46 West One Hundred and Fourteenth street. George Farris, 7 years old, 2934 West North avenue. Ida Rosenzweig, 7 years old, 6752 South Halsted street. Henry Steinberg, 8 years old, 1086 West Monroe street. Sigmund Schmidt, 9 years old, 4424 Cullom avenue. Bernard Olson, 11 years old, 720 North Lotus street. Edward Leske, 7005 South Halsted street. Sidney Kohn, 5043 Forest avenue. H. H. Hoyland, 5555 South Green street. Thomas Pappas, 129 West Forty-fifth street.

AMULET THIEF JAILED AGAIN.

Man Convicted of Stealing U. of C. Treasure Sentenced for Another Theft.

John C. Hartzell was sentenced to an indeterminate term of from one to twenty years by Judge Thompson yesterday for the theft of jewelry valued at $200 from the residence of Leo E. Rapp, 5209 Winthrop avenue, June 25. He pleaded guilty. Hartzell gained publicity a few years ago when he was arrested and convicted for stealing a golden amulet from the University of Chicago.

MRS. SARAH SMITH TO WED.

Former Yale Fullback Gets License to Marry Wealthy Chicago Widow.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 2.—A marriage license was issued at the courthouse here today to Ralston Wilbur, former fullback on the Yale college football team and at present engaged as a salesman of implements, and Mrs. Sarah E. Smith, a widow of Chicago, reported to be one of the biggest stockholders in the Hecla mine.

NAB BRIDE FOR SHIELDING CHUM

Wife of Chicago Dentist Accused of Shielding Friend Now Under Indictment.

OTHER GIRL BRIDE, TOO

Two brides of a few months, who, less than a year ago were Delta Theta Tau sorority chums, were arrested yesterday —one for theft and the other for a devotion to her friend that kept her from "telling."

One is Mrs. Charles R. McFarland, 537 Belmont avenue. Last March she became the bride of a young dentist. The other is Mrs. Herman Simon, who was married on Aug. 16 in Detroit. Mrs. Simon is accused of shoplifting. Mrs. McFarland is accused of having shielded her friend.

As girls they met in boarding school and became firm friends. When they returned to their homes in Indianapolis Mrs. Simon, who then was Ella Carroll, confessed to her friend, who then was Mary Heath, that she had committed an offense that later became the basis of indictments for shoplifting. The amount was $400. She said she must go away, and she did.

Miss Heath come to Chicago on a visit. She met Dr. McFarland and they were married.

Mrs. McFarland had not told even her husband of the misfortune of her friend. Yesterday a detective called at their home. Mrs. McFarland was arrested. Then she broke her silence and told her husband. Dr. McFarland took steps to see that Mrs. Simon answers the charges. In the meantime the two friends are being held awaiting advices from Indianapolis.

HOYNE DEMANDS OPERATIONS FOR CHRONIC INSANE

Cites Slaying of Pettit's Bride as Emphasizing Need of Sterilization.

Sterilization of the hopelessly insane was advocated by State's Attorney Hoyne yesterday as a result of the murder of Katherine Keiser Pettit by her husband, J. Maurice Pettit.

Mr. Hoyne placed Pettit in the same category of defectives as Russell Pethick, who murdered Mrs. Coppersmith and her child; Roswell Smith, who killed little Hazel Weinstein; Richard Ivens, hanged for the murder of Mrs. Hollister, and others who have committed murders of a similar type in Chicago.

Every one of these men whose crimes rank among the most atrocious in the city's history was regarded by his family and friends as a "harmless defective." They are classified under the head of sadists by experts in sexual psychopathy. Jack the Ripper is the arch type of the class.

No Trace of Slayer.

No trace of Pettit was found by the police during the day. After pawning the diamond ring he had stolen from his bride's finger after slashing her throat with a razor, he disappeared. Chief of Detectives Charles J. Larkin believes he has escaped from the city.

"The need is urgent in Illinois," said State's Attorney Hoyne, "for a statute making the sterilization of the hopelessly insane compulsory. Mowever, competent doctors should determine whether the person is hopelessly insane. This should apply to women as well as men. If such a law were passed, I believe crimes of this nature would greatly diminish.

"The community is always in danger from such persons as Pettit. Housewives, mothers, and babies are not safe from these fiends. Whenever a crime of this kind is committed the relatives in a majority of cases say they believed the subject to be merely a harmless defective, never dreaming the person would be guilty of such a crime. It's the same old story that is told every time after such a crime has been committed."

Insane Only at Times.

"Pettit may have been a defective of a certain kind," said Chief of Detectives Larkin, "but I do not believe him insane, except at times, and momentarily. His murder of his wife was unpremeditated. He killed her with her brother's razor. If he had planned the crime he would have taken some weapon to the apartment."

ASSERTS GENIUS HUSBAND HURLED HIS LOVING CUP

Mrs. Breuer Also Charges "My Boy" Author Boasted of His "Conquests" to Her.

Mildred Breuer is married to a "genius." For a long time she felt flattered to be pointed out at cafés as the wife of Ernest Breuer, the debonair composer of "My Boy," "That Irish Tango," and other popular numbers.

Now, however, in her bill for divorce, she complains that Breuer was continually informing her "of his great popularity" with women, who, having the great fortune to meet him, immediately fell in love, "to his great annoyance and discomfiture."

Then, too, she could no longer tolerate Ernest because when they strolled through different sections of the city "he would point out houses to his wife, stating that 'there lives so and so, who is crazy about me'; that he was out with her and had a lovely time."

Mrs. Breuer avers her husband has been guilty of improper conduct.

Breuer told his wife, the bill states, "that being overburdened with work in his profession as a singer and writer of songs, he was obliged to visit one of the springs or health resorts to recuperate. He would depart then, and leave his wife with barely sufficient means."

The Standard of Value and Quality

We Invite All Chicago

Don't fail to see the mammoth scenic spectacle, "The Climb of Mount Hood" which is being exhibited in our show room window to-day and every evening during the coming week.

Bring all the family—especially "the kiddies." It will be as much of a treat for them as the circus.

This is undoubtedly the most unique window display that has ever been offered in the United States, and will prove the talk of Chicago. It depicts with amazing fidelity the recent record-breaking climb of Mount Hood, Oregon, by a Paige Fairfield "Six-46."

This climb, as you probably know, was the most remarkable event in motordom during 1916. With a large field of competitors, the Fairfield was the first car of the year to reach Government Camp, where it was awarded the Pridemore Silver Trophy. This is a grueling climb in itself—the classic event of the Northwest.

But that is not all of the story by any means.

Despite the dire warnings of everyone at the Camp, that same Paige then turned its nose toward the clouds and battered its way to an elevation of 9,500 feet above sea level—more than a quarter of a mile beyond the timber line—three miles further up Mount Hood than any motor car had ever climbed before.

There never was a more terrific battle in the annals of mountain climbing. At times the Fairfield was completely sheathed in ice; and when it finally came to a halt, that stout-hearted champion was resting on a 60 per cent grade.

So don't forget to come and see this window display. Come to-day if you can, but, if not, make your visit early in the week.

WILSON POINTS PROMISES KEPT BY DEMOCRATS

president declared: "This extraordinary recital must sound like a platform, a list of sanguine promises, but it is not. It is a record of promises made four years ago and now actually redeemed in constructive legislation."

MAKES BID TO PROGRESSIVES.

The president made a bid for the Progressive vote by saying that "we have in four years come very near to carrying out the platform of the Progressive party as well as our own, for we are also progressives."

Further along, rebuking foreign born Americans who are not loyal to the United States, he said: "I am the candidate of a party, but I am above all things else an American citizen."

When Mr. Wilson declared that the revolution in Mexico is right, and that so long as its leaders represent, however imperfectly, a struggle for freedom, he is ready to serve their ends, the crowd applauded. Applause also greeted his declaration that America must do its part in laying the foundation for world peace.

DEFENDS FOREIGN POLICY.

The policy of the United States in dealing with violations of the rights of Americans as a result of the European war, the president outlined thus: "That property rights can be vindicated by claims for damage when the war is over, and no modern nation can decline to arbitrate such claims, but the fundamental rights of humanity cannot be."

The audience which listened to the president's address of acceptance was made up largely of residents of New Jersey coast towns, but included Democratic leaders from every section of the country and delegations from New York, Pennsylvania, and other nearby states.

Wilson Family in Audience.

Directly in front of the speaker's stand sat Mrs. Wilson, the president's wife, dressed from head to foot in white, with diamonds sparkling at her throat.

Not a bit of color showed in her becoming costume, even the flowers in her belt were pure white.

With her were Margaret Wilson, the president's daughter, also in white, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, Miss Lucy and Mary Smith of New Orleans, and the military and naval aids of the president, Col. W. W. Harts and Capt. Robert Berry.

Directly to the left sat Vice President Thomas R. Marshall with his wife and a party of friends, while close behind were grouped the members of the cabinet and other notables.

Cabinet Members Present.

Secretary Lansing, Secretary Houston, Secretary McAdoo, and Postmaster General Burleson represented the cabinet and virtually all the members of the notification committee, the Democratic national committee, the Democratic campaign committee, and the associate campaign committee of Progressives also was present.

Long Branch and West End were decorated in red, white, and blue for the occasion and the crowds which attended the ceremony were in festival mood. Mr. Wilson himself was seldom without a smile throughout the day. Prior to his speech he entertained at lunch, but tonight he remained at Shadow Lawn with members of his family and his closest advisers until time came to depart for Washington.

The president will arrive in Washington early tomorrow and after a stay of three hours will leave for Hodgenville, Ky., to deliver a Lincoln speech on Monday. He will return to Washington Tuesday afternoon.

'WEASEL WORDS' ORIGINATED BY MAINE GUIDE, SAYS T. R.

Tells How at Dinner with Woodsman's Brother, Who Likens Wilson to "Green Fir Log."

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Theodore Roosevelt has disclosed the genesis of the expression "weasel words," applied to President Wilson's expression. He was taking dinner with Bill Sewall, Maine guide and woodsman, and recalled it was Bill's brother Dave who put the idea of "weasel words" in his head.

It was up on Mount Katahdin, and it was thirty-seven years ago. Dave, who was guiding Roosevelt, described the slippery character of a man he knew.

"He can take a word and weasel it around and suck the meat out of it like a weasel sucks an egg," said Dave. Roosevelt said he never had forgotten the expression. When he sought for a phrase to fit Wilson's case the homely characterization of the Maine woodsman recurred to him.

"He's pretty slippery,' commented Bill Sewall when Roosevelt had told the story; "he'll work out of hitch like a green fir log."

Bill was referring to Mr. Wilson, of course.

M'ADOO SAYS HE DEFERS TO M'CORMICK AS "BOSS."

President's Son-in-Law Denies a Charge He Is Trying to Run the Wilson Campaign.

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 2.—Secretary McAdoo today denied charges of some Democrats that he is trying to "boss" the Wilson campaign.

"I wish to take this opportunity," McAdoo said, laughing, while grasping Vance McCormick with one hand and a newspaper man with the other, "to publicly acknowledge that McCormick is the boss. What he says goes."

Man Missing Forty Years.

Police were asked to search for a man who has been missing forty years. He is Edward Crane O'Brien, 65 years old. Mrs. John Gillespie, his daughter, came here from New York to make the request. When 25 years old he worked in the Chicago stockyards.

WILSON, IN ACCEPTANCE SPEECH, DEFENDS HIS POLICIES; CITES LEGISLATIVE RECORD

"I cannot accept the leadership and responsibility which the national Democratic committee has again in such generous fashion asked me to accept without first expressing my profound gratitude to the party for the trust it reposes in me after four years of fiery trial in the midst of affairs of unprecedented difficulty and the keen sense of added responsibility with which this honor fills (I had almost said burdens) me as I think of the great issues of national life and policy involved in the present and immediate future conduct of our government.

Whole Time to Nation.

"I shall seek, as I have always sought, to justify the extraordinary confidence thus reposed in me by striving to purge my heart and purpose of every personal and of every misleading party motive and devoting every energy I have to the service of the nation as a whole, praying that I may continue to have the counsel and support of all forward looking men at every turn of the difficult business.

"For I do not doubt that the people of the United States will wish the Democratic party to continue in control of the government. They are not in the habit of rejecting those who have actually served them for those who are making doubtful and conjectural promises of service. Least of all are they likely to substitute those who promised to render them particular services and proved false to that promise for those who have actually rendered those very services.

Tells of Kept Promises.

"Boasting is always an empty business, which pleases nobody but the boaster, and I have no disposition to boast of what the Democratic party has accomplished. It has merely done its duty. It has merely fulfilled its explicit promises.

"But there can be no violation of good taste in calling attention to the manner in which those promises have been carried out or in adverting to the interesting fact that many of the things accomplished were what the opposition party had again and again promised to do but had left undone. Indeed that is manifestly part of the business of this year of reckoning and assessment.

"There is no means of judging the future except by assessing the past. Constructive action must be weighed against destructive comment and reaction. The Democrats either have or have not understood the varied interests of the country. The test is contained in the record.

"What is that record? What were the Democrats called into power to do? What things had long waited to be done and how did the Democrats do them? It is a record of extraordinary length and variety, rich in elements of many kinds, but consistent in principle throughout and susceptible of brief recital.

Says Failures Unseated G. O. P.

"The Republican party was put out of power because of failure, practical failure and moral failure; because it had served special interests and not the country at large; because under the leadership of its preferred and established guides, of those who still make its choices, it had lost touch with the thoughts and the needs of the nation and was living in a past age and under a fixed illusion, the illusion of greatness.

"It had framed tariff laws based upon a fear of foreign trade, a fundamental doubt as to American skill, enterprise, and capacity, and a very tender regard for the profitable privileges of those who had gained control of domestic markets and domestic credits, and yet had enacted anti-trust laws which hampered the very things they meant to foster, which were stiff and inelastic, and in part unintelligible.

"It had permitted the country throughout the long period of its control to stagger from one financial crisis to another under the operation of a national banking law of its own framing which made stringency and panic certain and the control of the larger business operations of the country by the bankers of a few reserve centers inevitable; had made as if it meant to reform the law, but had faint heartedly failed in the attempt, because is could not bring itself to do the one thing necessary to make the reform genuine and effectual, namely, break up the control of small groups of bankers.

Big Boon to Farmers.

"It had been oblivious, or indifferent, to the fact that the farmers, upon whom the country depends for its food and in the last analysis for its prosperity, were without standing in the matter of commercial credit, without the protection of standards in their market transactions, and without systematic knowledge of the markets themselves; that the laborers of the country, the great army of men who man the industries it was professing to father and promote, carried their labor as a mere commodity to market, were subject to restraint by novel and drastic process in the courts, were without assurance of compensation for industrial accidents, without federal assistance in accommodating labor disputes, and without national aid or advice in finding the places and the industries in which their labor was most needed.

"The country had no national system of road construction and development. Little intelligent attention was paid to the army, and not enough to the navy. The other republics of America distrusted us, because they found that we first thought of the profits of American investors and only as an afterthought of impartial justice and helpful friendship. Its policy was provincial in all things; its purposes were out of harmony with the temper and purpose of the people and the timely development of the nation's interests.

More Freedom for Commerce.

"So things stood when the Democratic party came into power. How do they stand now? Alike in the domestic field and in the wide field of the commerce of the world, American business and life and industry have been set free to move as they never moved before.

"The tariff has been revised, not on the principle of repelling foreign trade, but upon the principle of encouraging it, upon something like a footing of equality with our own in respect of the terms of competition and a tariff board has been created whose function it will be to keep the relations of American with foreign business and industry under constant observation, for the guidance alike of our business men and of our congress. American energies are now directed towards the markets of the world.

"The laws against trusts have been clarified by definition, with a view to making it plain that they were not directed against big business but only against unfair business and the pretense of competition where there was none; and a trade commission has been created with powers of guidance and accommodation which have relieved business men of unfounded fears and set them upon the road of hopeful and confident enterprise.

Currency Made Elastic.

"By the federal reserve act the supply of currency at the disposal of active business has been rendered elastic, taking its volume not from a fixed body of investment securities but from the liquid assets of daily trade; and these assets are assessed and accepted not by a distant group of bankers in control of unavailable reserves, but by bankers at the many centers of local exchange who are in touch with local conditions everywhere.

"Effective measures have been taken for the re-creation of an American merchant marine and the revival of the American carrying trade indispensable to our emancipation from the control which foreigners have so long exercised over the opportunities, the routes, and the methods of our commerce with other countries.

"The interstate commerce commission is about to be reorganized to enable it to perform its great and important functions more promptly and more efficiently. We have created, extended, and improved the service of the parcels post.

Says G. O. P. Lacks Initiative.

"So much we have done for business. What other party has understood the task so well or executed it so intelligently and energetically? What other party has attempted it at all? The Republican leaders, apparently, know of no means of assisting business but "protection." How to stimulate it and put it upon a new footing of energy and enterprise they have not suggested.

"For the farmers of the country we have virtually created commercial credit by means of the federal reserve act and the rural credits act. They now have the standing of other business men in the money market. We have successfully regulated speculation in "futures" and established standards in the marketing of grains. By an intelligent warehouse act we have assisted to make the standard crops available as never before both for systematic marketing and as a security for loans from the banks.

"We have greatly added to the work of neighborhood demonstration on the farm itself of improved methods of cultivation, and, through the intelligent extension of the functions of the department of agriculture, have made it possible for the farmer to learn systematically where his best markets are and how to get at them.

Employes No Longer "Slaves."

"The workingmen of America have been given a veritable emancipation, by the legal recognition of a man's labor as part of his life, and not a mere marketable commodity; by exempting labor organizations from processes of the courts which treated their members like fractional parts of mobs and not like accessible and responsible individuals; by releasing our seamen from involuntary servitude; by making adequate provision for compensation for industrial accidents; by providing suitable machinery for mediation and conciliation in industrial disputes, and by puttng the federal department of labor at the disposal of the workingman when in search of work.

"We have effected the emancipation of the children of the country by releasing them from hurtful labor.

"We have instituted a system of national aid in the building of high roads such as the country has been feeling after for a century.

"We have sought to equalize taxation by means of an equitable income tax.

"We have taken the steps that ought to have been taken at the outset to open up the resources of Alaska.

"We have provided for national defense upon a scale never before seriously proposed upon the responsibility of an entire political party.

"We have driven the tariff lobby from cover and obliged it to substitute solid argument for private influence.

All Promises Redeemed.

"This extraordinary recital must sound like a platform, a list of sanguine promises, but it is not. It is a record of promises made four years ago and now actually redeemed in constructive legislation.

"These things must profoundly disturb the thoughts and confound the plans of those who have made themselves believe that the Democratic party neither understood nor was ready to assist the business of the country in the great enterprises which it is its evident and inevitable destiny to undertake and carry through.

"The breaking up of the lobby must especially disconcert them, for it was through the lobby that they sought and were sure they had found the heart of things. The game of privilege can be played successfully by no other means.

Progressive in Campaign.

"This record must equally astonish those who feared that the Democratic party had not opened its heart to comprehend the demands of social justice. We have in four years come very near to carrying out the platform of the Progressive party as well as our own; for we also are progressives.

"There is one circumstance connected with this program which ought to be very plainly stated. It was resisted at every step by the interests which the Republican party had catered to and fostered at the expense of the country, and these same interests are now earnestly praying for a reaction which will save their privileges—for the restoration of their sworn friends to power before it is too late to recover what they have lost.

"They fought with particular desperation and infinite resourcefulness the reform of the banking and currency system, knowing that to be the citadel of their control; and most anxiously are they hoping and planning for the amendment of the federal reserve act by the concentration of control in a single bank, which the old familiar group of bankers can keep under their eye and direction.

Savior of Business Men.

"But while the 'big men' who used to write the tariffs and command the assistance of the treasury have been hostile—all but a few with vision—the average business man knows that he has been delivered, and that the fear that was once every day in his heart, that the men who controlled credit and directed enterprise from the committee rooms of congress would crush him, is there no more, and will not return, unless the party that consulted only the 'big men' should return to power, the party of masterly inactivity and cunning resourcefulness in standing pat to resist change.

"The Republican party is just the party that cannot meet the new conditions of a new age. It does not know the way and it does not wish new conditions. It tried to break away from the old leaders and could not. They still select its candidates and dictate its policy, still resist change, still hanker after the old conditions, still know no methods of encouraging business but the old methods.

"When it changes its leaders and it purposes and brings its ideas up to date it will have the right to ask the American people to give it power again; but not until then. A new age, an age of revolutionary change, needs new purposes and new ideas.

Defends Foreign Policies.

"In foreign affairs we have been guided by principles clearly conceived and consistently lived up to. Perhaps they have not been fully comprehended, because they have hitherto governed international affairs only in theory, not in practice. They are simple, obvious, easily stated, and fundamental to American ideals.

"We have been neutral not only because it was the fixed and traditional policy of the United States to stand aloof from the politics of Europe and because we had had no part either of action or of policy in the influences which brought on the present war, but also because it was manifestly our duty to prevent, if it were possible, the indefinite extension of the fires of hate and desolation kindled by that terrible conflict and seek to serve mankind by reserving our strength and our resources for the anxious and difficult days of restoration and healing which must follow, when peace will have to build its house anew.

"The rights of our own citizens of course became involved; that was inevitable. Where they did this was our guiding principle: that property rights can be vindicated by claims for damages, and no modern nation can decline to arbitrate such claims; but the fundamental rights of humanity cannot be. The loss of life is irreparable. Neither can direct violations of a nation's sovereignty await vindication in suits for damages.

Becomes Quarrel of U. S.

"The nation that violates these essential rights must expect to be checked and called to account by direct challenge and resistance. It at once makes the quarrel in part our own.

"These are plain principles and we have never lost sight of them or departed from them, whatever the stress or the perplexity of circumstance or the provocation to hasty resentment. The record is clear and consistent throughout and stands distinct and definite for any one to judge who wishes to know the truth about it.

"The seas were not broad enough to keep the infection of the conflict out of our own politics. The passions and intrigues of certain active groups and combinations of men amongst us who were born under foreign flags, injected the poison of disloyalty into our own most critical affairs, laid violent hands upon many of our industries, and subjected us to the shame of divisions of sentiment and purpose in which America was contemned and forgotten.

"It is part of the business of this year of reckoning and settlement to speak plainly and act with unmistakable purpose in rebuke of these things, in order that they may be forever hereafter impossible.

"I am the candidate of a party, but I am above all things else an American citizen. I neither seek the favor nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element amongst us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States.

Discusses Mexican Trouble.

"While Europe was at war our own continent, one of our own neighbors, was shaken by revolution. In that matter, too, principle was plain and it was imperative that we should live up to it if we were to deserve the trust of any real partisan of the right as free men see it.

"Our recent pursuit of bandits into Mexican territory was no violation of that principle. We ventured to enter Mexican territory only because there were no military forces in Mexico that could protect our border from hostile attack and our own people from violence, and we have committed there no single act of hostility or interference even with the sovereign authority of the republic of Mexico herself.

"It was a plain case of violation of our own sovereignty which could not wait to be vindicated by damages and for which there was no other remedy. The authorities of Mexico were powerless to prevent it.

Admits Wrongs to Americans.

"Many serious wrongs against the property, many irreparable wrongs against the persons of Americans have been committed within the territory of Mexico herself during this confused revolution, wrongs which could not be effectually checked so long as there was no constituted power in Mexico which was in a position to check them. We could not act directly in that matter ourselves without denying Mexicans the right to any revolution at all which disturbed us and making the emancipation of her own people await our own interest and convenience.

"For it is their emancipation that they are seeking—blindly, it may be, and as yet ineffectually, but with profound and passionate purpose and within their unquestionable right, apply what true American principle you will—any principle that an American would publicly avow.

"The people of Mexico have not been suffered to own their own country or direct their own institutions. Outsiders, men out of other nations and with interests too often alien to their own, have dictated what their privileges and opportunities should be and who should control their land, their lives, and their resources—some of them Americans pressing for things they could never have got in their own country.

Will Curb the Selfish.

"The Mexican people are entitled to attempt their liberty from such influences, and so long as I have anything to do with the action of our great government I shall do everything in my power to prevent any one standing in their way. I know that this is hard for some persons to understand, but it is not hard for the plain people of the United States to understand.

"It is hard doctrine only for those who wish to get something for themselves out of Mexico. There are men, and noble women, too, not a few, of our own people, thank God! whose fortunes are invested in great properties in Mexico who yet see the case with true vision and assess its issues with true American feeling. The rest can be left for the present out of the reckoning until this enslaved people has had its day of struggle towards the light.

"I have heard no one who was free from such influences propose interference by the United States with the internal affairs of Mexico. Certainly no friend of the Mexican people has proposed it.

Always Tried to Be Fair.

"The people of the United States are capable of great sympathies and a noble pity in dealing with problems of this kind. As their spokesman and representative, I have tried to act in the spirit they would wish me to show.

"The people of Mexico are striving for the rights that are fundamental to life and happiness—15,000,000 oppressed men, overburdened women, and pitiful children in virtual bondage in their own home of fertile lands and inexhaustible treasure!

"Some of the leaders of the revolution may often have been mistaken and violent and selfish, but the revolution itself was inevitable and is right. The unspeakable Huerta betrayed the very comrades he served, traitorously overthrew the government of which he was a trusted part, impudently spoke for the very forces that had driven his people to the rebellion with which he had pretended to sympathize.

"The men who overcame him and drove him out represent at least the fierce passion of reconstruction which lies at the very heart of liberty, and so long as they represent, however imperfectly, such a struggle for deliverance, I am ready to serve their ends when I can.

Always Foe of Traitor.

"So long as the power of recognition rests with me the government of the United States will refuse to extend the hand of welcome to any one who obtains power in a sister republic by treachery and violence. No permanency can be given the affairs of any republic by a title based upon intrigue and assassination.

"I declared that to be the policy of this administration within three weeks after I assumed the presidency. I here again vow it. I am more interested in the fortunes of oppressed men and pitiful women and children than in any property rights whatever. Mistakes I have no doubt made in this perplexing business, but not in purpose or object.

"More is involved than the immediate destinies of Mexico and the relations of the United States with a distressed and distracted people. All America looks on. Test is now being made of us whether we be sincere lovers of popular liberty or not and are indeed to be trusted to respect national sovereignty among our weaker neighbors.

"We have undertaken these many years to play big brother to the republics of this hemisphere. This is the day of our test whether we mean, or have ever meant, to play that part for our own benefit wholly or also for theirs. Upon the outcome of that test (its outcome in their minds, not in ours) depends every relationship of the United States with Latin America, whether in politics or in commerce and enterprise.

Grave Tasks in Store.

"These are great issues and lie at the heart of the gravest tasks of the future, tasks both economic and political and very intimately inwrought with many of the most vital of the new issues of the politics of the world. The republics of America have in the last three years been drawing together in a new spirit of accommodation, mutual understanding, and cordial coöperation. Much of the politics of the world in the years to come will depend upon their relationships with one another. It is a barren and provincial statesmanship that loses sight of such things!

"The future, the immediate future, will bring us squarely face to face with many great and exacting problems which will search us through and through whether we be able and ready to play the part in the world that we mean to play.

"It will not bring us into their presence slowly, gently, with ceremonious introduction, but suddenly and at once, the moment the war in Europe is over. They will be new problems, most of them; many will be old problems in a new setting and with new elements which we have never dealt with or reckoned the force and meaning of before.

Predicts a Busy Future.

"It is not a future to be afraid of. It is, rather, a future to stimulate and excite us to the display of the best powers that are in us. We may enter it with confidence when we are sure that we understand it—and we have provided ourselves already with the means of understanding it.

"Look first at what it will be necessary that the nations of the world should do to make the days to come tolerable and fit to live and work in; and then look at our part in what is to follow and our own duty of preparation. For we must be prepared both in resources and in policy.

"There must be a just and settled peace and we here in America must contribute the full force of our enthusiasm and of our authority as a nation to the organization of that peace upon worldwide foundations that cannot easily be shaken.

"No nation should be forced to take sides in any quarrel in which its own honor and integrity and the fortunes of its own people are not involved; but no nation can any longer remain neutral as against any willful disturbance of the peace of the world.

Must Unite for Peace.

"The effects of the war can no longer be confined to the areas of battle. No nation stands wholly apart in interest when the life and interests of all nations are thrown into confusion and peril. If hopeful and generous enterprise is to be renewed, if the healing and the helpful arts of life are indeed to be revived when peace comes again, a new atmosphere of justice and friendship must be generated by means the world has never tried before.

"The nations of the world must unite in joint guarantees that whatever is done to disturb the whole world's life must first be tested in the court of the whole world's opinion before it is attempted.

"These are the new foundations the world must build for itself, and we must play our part in the reconstruction, generously and without too much thought of our separate interests. We must make ourselves ready to play it intelligently, vigorously, and well.

"One of the contributions we must make to the world's peace is this: We must see to it that the people in our insular possessions are treated in their own lands as we would treat them here, and make the rule of the United States mean the same thing everywhere—the same justice, the same consideration for the essential rights of men.

Provide for Trade Needs.

"Besides contributing our ungrudging moral and practical support to the establishment of peace throughout the world, we must actively and intelligently prepare ourselves to do our full service in the trade and industry which are to sustain and develop the life of the nations in the days to come.

"We have already been provident in this great matter and supplied ourselves with the instrumentalities of prompt adjustment. We have created, in the federal trade commission, a means of inquiry and of accommodation in the field of commerce which ought both to coördinate the enterprises of our traders and manufacturers and to remove the barriers of misunderstanding and of a too technical interpretation of the law.

"In the new tariff commission we have added another instrumentality of observation and adjustment which promises to be immediately serviceable.

"The trade commission substitutes counsel and accommodation for the harsher processes of legal restraint, and the tariff commission ought to substitute facts for prejudices and theories. Our exporters have for some time had the advantage of working in the new light thrown upon foreign markets and opportunities of trade by the intelligent inquiries and activities of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce which the Democratic congress so wisely created in 1912. The tariff commission completes the machinery by which we shall be enabled to open up our legislative policy to the facts as they develop.

U. S. Must Be Leader.

"We can no longer indulge our traditional provincialism. We are to play a leading part in the world drama whether we wish it or not. We shall lend, not borrow; act for ourselves, not imitate or follow; organize and initiate, not peep about merely to see where we may get in.

"We have already formulated and agreed upon a policy of law which will explicitly remove the ban now supposed to rest upon coöperation amongst our exporters in seeking and securing their proper place in the markets of the world. The field will be free, the instrumentalities at hand.

"It will only remain for the masters of enterprise amongst us to act in energetic concert and for the government of the United States to insist upon the maintenance throughout the world of those conditions of fairness and of even handed justice in the commercial dealings of the nations with one another upon which, after all, in the last analysis, the peace and ordered life of the world must ultimately depend.

"At home also we must see to it that the men who plan and develop and direct our business enterprises shall enjoy definite and settled conditions of law, a policy accommodated to the freest progress. We have set the just and necessary limits.

"We have put all kinds of unfair competition under the ban and penalty of the law. We have barred monopoly. These fatal and ugly things being excluded, we must now quicken action and facilitate enterprise by every just means within our choice. There will be peace in the business world, and, with peace revived, confidence and life.

Should Develop Resources.

"We ought both to husband and to develop our natural resources, our mines, our forests, our water power. I wish we could have made more progress than we have made in this vital matter, and I call once more, with the deepest earnestness and solicitude, upon the advocates of a careful and provident conservation, on the one hand, and the advocates of a free and inviting field for private capital, on the other, to get together in a spirit of genuine accommodation and agreement and set this great policy forward at once.

"We must hearten and quicken the spirit and efficiency of labor throughout our whole industrial system by everywhere and in all occupations doing justice to the laborer, not only by paying a living wage, but also by making all the conditions that surround labor what they ought to be. And we want more than justice. We must safeguard life and promote health and safety in every occupation in which they are threatened or imperiled. That is more than justice, and better, because it is humanity and economy.

"We must coördinate the railway systems of the country for national use, and must facilitate and promote their development with a view to that coördination and to their better adaptation as a whole to the life and trade and defense of the nation. The life and industry of the country can be free and unhampered only if these arteries are open, efficient, and complete.

"Thus shall we stand ready to meet the future as circumstance and international policy effect their unfolding, whether the changes come slowly or come fast and without preface.

Stands by Platform.

I have not spoken explicitly, gentlemen, of the platform adopted at St. Louis; but it has been implicit in all that I have said. I have sought to interpret its spirit and meaning. The people of the United States do not need to be assured now that that platform is a definite pledge, a practical program. We have proved to them that our promises are made to be kept.

We hold very definite ideals. We believe that the energy and initiative of our people have been too narrowly coached and superintended; that they should be set free, as we have set them free, to disperse themselves throughout the nation; that they should not be concentrated in the hands of a few powerful guides and guardians, as our opponents have again and again, in effect if not in purpose, sought to concentrate them.

"We believe, moreover—who that looks about him now with comprehending eye can fail to believe?—that the day of Little Americanism, with its narrow horizons, when methods of 'protection' and industrial nursing were the chief study of our provincial statesmen, are past and gone and that the day of enterprise has at last dawned for the United States, whose field is the wide world.

Hopes for United America.

"We hope to see the stimulus of that new day draw all America, the republics of both continents, on to a new life and energy and initiative in the great affairs of peace.

"We are Americans for Big America, and rejoice to look forward to the days in which America shall strive to stir the world without irritating it or drawing it on to new antagonisms, when the nations with which we deal shall at last come to see upon what deep foundations of humanity and justice our passion for peace rests, and when all mankind shall look upon our great people with a new sentiment of admiration, friendly rivalry, and real affection, as upon a people who, though keen to succeed, seek always to be at once generous and just and to whom humanity is dearer than profit or selfish power.

"Upon this record and in the faith of this purpose we go to the country."

Eight Cylinder Cadillac No Change in Price $2080 f. o. b. factory

Unchanged in design but a better Cadillac

Basic principles of design have not been changed in this new Cadillac. There is no one feature in which you can note a radical change.

For Cadillac design has proved itself beyond the need of change so far ahead as man can see. But Cadillac processes of refinement have produced a far better car.

Cadillac driving ease has been accentuated by an even more responsive motor; by easier steering. Cadillac riding comfort, always remarkable, has reached a stage even we had not thought possible.

Softer, deeper cushions of a new double-type construction — rebound snubbers—the longer wheel base—improved balance—lower-hung body —all these together give a riding effect unlike anything you have ever experienced.

Twelve stunning body styles

The art of body-making as exemplified in these new Cadillac types has reached a new standard of achievement. Prepare to see something different, refreshing.

In style they are the most advanced; they are destined to be the fashion pace setters for some time to come. In comfort they offer a new sensation which comparison cannot express in words.

Those who have ridden in the new Cadillac can say but one thing, "It rides unlike any other car. It just rests you so. It has such soft cushions, such wonderful upholstery."

As for workmanship and finish you will see the evdience of real quality down to the minutest detail of the distinctive appointments.

The Touring Car and Brougham are here now. Other styles will arrive this week. Write or phone for literature illustrating and describing these new types of bodies and the refinements in the Cadillac chassis.

SHERMAN COMES OUT FOR LOWDEN IN OPEN LETTER

Hull and Smith Assert Move Is Part of "Peoria Combine" Arrangement.

Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman declared himself yesterday for the nomination for governor of Frank O. Lowden. His declaration came by way of an open letter that the Illinois senator had given to Orville F. Berry, the Illinois member of the notification committee, at the Fairbanks notification ceremonies at Indianapolis on Thursday.

The Lowden managers gave out the Sherman letter yesterday. It was one of the important bits of strategy marking the opening of the final week of the primary campaign that is getting hotter with every minute.

Effect of the Sherman statement was discounted in the camps of Col. Lowden's two opponents, Senator Hull and Col. Smith, both of whom have been insisting all through the campaign that a state slate had been framed at the Peoria convention last spring, to which Senator Sherman was a party, headed by the name of Col. Lowden for governor.

Sherman's Statement.

This is Senator Sherman's statement:

"Frank O. Lowden has conducted his campaign for the nomination as Republican candidate for governor in a temperate and dignified manner.

"His campaign has revived and strengthened Republicanism in Illinois and has been singularly free from personalities. He has urged his proper claims for the nomination by presenting them without cause for offense to others, or reflecting upon the motives or qualifications of others.

Striving for Harmony.

"The Republicans of Illinois and the country are striving to unite and build up; to attract all by their coöperation with each other to support and strengthen our party. Mr. Lowden has refrained from creating factional strife, and represents no faction of the party, and will leave us the better for his primary campaign.

"He is abundantly qualified to discharge the duties of governor, and brings with him a proper appreciation of the relation of the executive to the other departments of state government.

"His Republicanism and his fitness appeal to me. I favor his nomination. He will bring votes to the ticket and prove a most powerful source of strength in the November election. I am supporting him because I believe his nomination will be in the interest of the whole Republican party."

Hull Renews Attacks.

Senator Hull in his speeches through the country towns yesterday and at Chicago Heights, Harvey, and Blue Island reiterated his attacks upon Col. Lowden's corporation connections. He will make his first downtown speech at the Garrick theater Tuesday noon.

Roy O. West, his campaign manager, said that the prospects are altogether favorable to Senator Hull's nomination; that Col. Smith has been eliminated, and that Col. Lowden's downstate strength is rapidly disappearing.

How West Views It.

Mr. West's statement follows:

"The important development of the week's campaign has been the tremendous gains made by Senator Hull and the collapse of the Lowden and Smith campaigns. Mr. Lowden's political affiliation with the Thompson-Lundin organization and the activity of certain great business interests of the state in his behalf are proving a serious embarrassment to his candidacy. The voters realize also that Smith has no chance of winning.

"In Cook county during the week a great wave of sentiment in favor of Senator Hull has developed, while Lowden and Smith have slipped back rapidly."

Ames' Claims for Smith.

Col. Smith was in Peoria making fourteen speeches. His campaign manager, John C. Ames, after analyzing the primary vote as he figures it will be cast, added this forecast:

"Every one who remembers the 1912 primary remembers these two facts: With the vote split six ways among the anti-faction candidates, one of the two machine men—Deneen or Small—was bound to win; the vote cast for any antimachine candidate was simply a protest vote, the expression by the individual voters of their opposition to machines and factionalism.

"Col. Smith will get all that protest vote and more. He has positive strength. The vote for Col. Smith this year will be a vote of faith. Few who voted against a machine or faction candidate four years ago will vote for one this year.

"Look at the figures any way you please and you will see Col. Smith is bound to win, and our reports confirm the logic of the figures. This is an antimachine, anti-faction year. Witness the success of Gov. Hughes in the national convention."

Miss June Keith

Persistence in carving out a stage career for herself has at last promised a reward to Miss June Keith.

Miss Keith [that's a stage name] is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith of Hubbard Woods. After her graduation from Smith college she decided that she wanted to be an actress and went about it alone and in the time honored fashion, playing in obscure stock companies and making daily rounds of the managers' offices whenever she was in New York.

Once she apepared on Broadway as an understudy, but only once. The rest was discouraging. Now, however, the long fight is won and Miss Keith is to appear this fall in a play of her own, "The Right Little Girl," by Mrs. Charles Doremus and Leonidas Westervelt.

LEWIS TO LEAVE SENATE IN 1919, CHICAGO HEARS

Report Credited to Senator Makes Him a Candidate for Mayor Thompson's Job.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis is to retire from the United States senate in 1919, at the expiration of his present term. His present intention is to decline to be a candidate for renomination at the Democratic state primaries of 1918 and to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor of Chicago in the spring of 1919.

This is the confidential information that has reached Chicago friends of Senator Lewis in connection with the present primary campaign and is credited with inspiration from Senator Lewis himself. Gossip gives several reasons.

Sullivan to Have Candidate.

It is a foregone conclusion that the regular Democratic organization, headed by Roger C. Sullivan, will have a candidate for the senatorship, whether Senator Lewis is a candidate or whether he isn't.

The identity of this candidate is as yet not disclosed. It might be Mr. Sullivan himself, or it might be Robert M. Sweitzer, who carried the Sullivan colors in the mayoralty contest of 1911. In any event the 1918 senatorship, by common consent, in both parties, will go to a Chicago candidate, and if there is any one political fact settled it is that the Sullivan regulars will not stand for Senator Lewis' renomination.

Why Lewis Wants Place.

Why Senator Lewis aspires to the mayor's chair is explained by the repeated statements that have been made from the stump in mayoralty campaigns that the mayor of Chicago, in opportunity and authority, is second in importance only to the president of the United States, and certainly superior in point of power to the vice president.

MUST PROVE HER CHARGE.

Medical College Head to Demand Mrs. Kent Be Forced to Explain "Attack."

Dr. John D. MacKeller, secretary of the Jenner Medical college, said yesterday that he will demand that Mrs. Frankie Kent of 1316 Randolph street prove her charge made to the police that a student in the college attempted to attack her while in the college operating room.

"This story is absolutely without foundation," said Dr. MacKellar. "It is most injurious to the good name of our school that such false charges should be made."

NORTHUP BARES PERIL TO TICKET

Asserts Hoyne Delays Action on "Lid" Expose to Hit Miller, if He Wins.

In his speeches last night, John E. Northup, Republican candidate for state's attorney, laid special emphasis upon a situation which he insists would inevitably arise from the nomination of the Thompson-Lundin candidate for state's attorney.

He said:

"Charges of graft and collusion on the part of city hall supporters in the Sunday closing and opening of saloons and in revoking and restoring saloon licenses were submitted more than a month ago, with a mass of evidence in support thereof, to the state's attorney.

State's Attorney Holds Off.

"The state's attorney at once informed the public through the press that he would conduct an investigation of the charges and evidence thus submitted to determine whether informations should be filed or grand jury action instituted thereon. However, the state's attorney stated that he would not announce his determination on the matter for several weeks, or until after the primary election Sept. 13.

"By withholding his broadside until it shall be determined whether Mayor Thompson's candidate or myself is to be his Republican opponent, the state's attorney can fire it with the most destructive effect.

Where It Will Do Most Good.

"If Mr. Miller, with his city hall support and backing, should become the Republican nominee, the state's attorney knows that his blast will strike the city hall and its candidate with the withering effect of a poisoned war cloud. He realizes that his best chance of firing so destructive a blast at the Republican party in the campaign after the primaries depends on the nomination of the Thompson-Lundin-city hall candidate.

"The state's attorney also realizes that after the primary a grand jury attack upon the city hall supporters will, as a campaign eye opener, bring home to every voter the true significance of the slogan, 'The city hall must have the state's attorney at any price.'"

TRIBUTE TO HARRY MONROE.

Memorial Service for Mission Man Who Brought Billy Sunday Into Church Work.

A memorial service in memory of Harry Monroe, late assistant superintendent of the Pacific Garden Mission, will be held in the Moody tabernacle, North avenue and Clark street, on the night of Sunday, Sept. 17. It is the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the mission. About 500 letters of invitation have been sent to all the rescue mission workers and evangelists in the United States. Billy Sunday and Mel Trotter are two of the distinguished men Mr. Monroe brought into church work. Mr. Trotter has already signified his intention of being present.

LOSES LIFE, SAVES BABY, WHEN HORSE RUNS AWAY.

New Jersey Mother Hurls Self Underneath Child When Thrown from Carriage.

New York, Sept. 2.—So that her baby might live, Mrs. Elsie Mills, 19 years old, died yesterday at Upper Preakness, N. J.

While riding in a carriage, flies maddened the horse and it ran away. On a turn of the road the carriage was overturned.

Mrs. Mills, with the baby in her arms, was thrown out. Before she struck the ground she twisted her body about so that the child, clasped tightly to her breast, was uppermost. Her skull was fractured, but the little one was unhurt, and was laughing and crowing when rescuers came.

Says He's Tired; Ends Life.

"I'm tired. I'm going to take a rest," Fred French of 855 North Francisco avenue told his wife, Elizabeth, when he returned from work yesterday. He retired. Mrs. French smelled gas later. She found him dead in bed.

TOMIE ROELLE, COME HOME! LITTLE SISTERS NEED YOU.

One Writes Letter to City Clerk Urging Him to Find Long Lost Brother.

If Tomie Roelle is found, a scattered family will be reunited. This is the gist of a letter received yesterday by City Clerk John Siman. The letter:

"Please do us a favor and try to help us to find out brother, Tomie Roelle, he is 27 years old and if you please look in the directory for I know that he votes. My sister, Josephin and sister Katie and my brother, Johnie and Tomie were all put in the Orphans home after our mother died. They were put there when they were small so we lost track of one another. I lokated my sister, Josephin and brother Johnie so if you please help us try and find our brother Tomie Roelle everything will be all right. I am his sister Mary Roelle."

The letter also asks that any information regarding Roelle be forwarded to Mrs. A. F. Gagle, 1632 Fifth avenue, Chicago Heights. There is no Thomas Roelle in the directory.

CHICAGO CHAUFFEUR HELD WITHOUT CAUSE FOR THEFT.

Syracuse Police "Sweat" Driver Who Was Bringing S. E. Cornell's Car Home to Chicago.

Walter Kubli, chauffeur for J. E. Cornell of the Hyde Park hotel, knows how it feels to be arrested for automobile stealing. Mr. Cornell's family had been automobiling in the east, but decided to return by train. Kubli was instructed to drive the car home.

In Syracuse Kubli was arrested for stealing the car. He was held incommunicado for twenty-four hours and "sweated" by the police every fifteen minutes. Even though he showed his bankbooks and other vouchers, he was held until Mr. Cornell telegraphed for his release.

Finally he was given his freedom, but he had lost twenty-four hours and an automobile robe that somehow was "lost" while the police were busily interrogating Kubli.

CREDIT MEN ADOPT RULES FOR ARBITRATION BUREAU.

Declare New Body Will Dispose of Disputes in Fraction of Time Now Needed by Courts.

Rules and regulations governing the operation of the bureau of commercial arbitration of the Chicago Association of Credit Men were issued at a meeting of the association's arbitration committee in the Hotel La Salle yesterday.

The purpose of the arbitration bureau, according to the statement of the committee, declares:

"The need for commercial arbitration has forced itself upon business men of Chicago by long delays, tremendous expense, and unsatisfactory issue in commercial disputes tried in courts of law, owing to unfamiliarity of judges, juries, and attorneys with questions of fact involved in such cases. Courts thrash over for months questions of fact which expert arbitrators might decide more satisfactorily in hours."

The organization and purpose of the bureau has the support of Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court.

WILSON FOREIGN POLICIES FLAYED BY M'CORMICK

G. O. P. Candidate for Congress Goes to Maine After Stinging Attack on President.

Before starting for Maine, where he is to speak for the Republican candidates in the smashing finish that comes this week in the state campaign there, Medill McCormick issued a statement presenting the strategical crisis that is involved, together with his conception of the national political situation.

Mr. McCormick expects to return to Illinois next Monday to complete his own campaign for one of the Republican nominations for congressman at large.

Here Is His Statement.

His statement follows:

"I leave today in answer to the call of the Republican national headquarters in New York to speak in Maine during the week preceding the election of a governor and two senators there on Sept. 11. There is a hard fight in Maine, as indeed there is everywhere. Therefore, I have felt it my duty to answer the call of the national committee and to leave my candidacy in the hands of the voters in the September primary.

"The national campaign is beginning to take form. The adroit and unprincipled opportunism, the conscienceless and clever inconsistency which has marked the president's course in Washington, as it marked his attitude toward public questions before, must be an actual issue of the campaign. It is as notable in the conduct of his foreign affairs as in his attitude toward domestic legislation.

Assails Mexican Policy.

"He could not recognize the bloody Huerta, but, blind to the sanguinary stains on the hands of Villa and Carranza, he first accorded them equal recognition. When Villa accepted our invitation to conference and Carranza disdainfully and contemptuously rejected it, he recognized Carranza.

"The Democratic text book published Friday says that Mr. Wilson is actuated by 'the firm conviction that all nations—both the weak and the powerful—have the inviolable right to control their internal affairs.' Under a Democratic administration this dogma applies to the Indian republic of Mexico, but does not apply to the Negro republic of Haiti, where there was actual warfare when the government of the United States seized control of the government of Haiti. Today there is no government in Haiti except that administered under the direction of the armed forces of the United States.

"During twelve months a dozen ineffective notes have been dispatched to the government of his Britanic majesty. His majesty's government has received them with amiable contempt and continues uninterrupted in the course laid down for itself in the blockade of American freights and in the seizure of the United States mails.

Didn't Mean It.

"Twenty notes were dispatched to Germany during the same period. It was a month after the first Americans had been drowned by submarine that the German embassy gave notice that ships would be torpedoed by submarines without regard to the rights of Americans. It was on May 7 that six score were drowned in the Lusitania. It was on May 10 that the president said that we were 'too proud to fight,' although on May 13 he added that the United States will 'omit no word or action to preserve the rights of American citizens upon the high seas,' while on May 17 Mr. Bryan told the Austrian ambassador that the president did not mean what the note of May 13 said.

"It will be noted that it was Feb. 10, preceding the violation of international law by Great Britain and by Germany that the president sent his peremptory notice to one and his 'strict accountability' note to the other. The American notes to the German and British governments had no more significance than the notes to the Mexican banditti. We were unarmed and although we were not too proud to catch votes we were 'to proud to fight.'

"We were not only unarmed, but nearly a year ago the president denounced the demand for military preparation as nervousness and excitement. We have been kept out of war, not by the ineptitude and indecision of the administration, but by the weakness of ravaged Mexico and by the death grapple in which the peoples of Europe hold one another."

NUTSHELL POLITICS

Jottings on National, State, and City Candidates and Events

Miss Harriet E. Vittum, appointed to have charge of organizing women for the western Republican campaign headquarters, has resigned as civic director of the Women's City club, to give her entire time to the work.

Former residents of New York state, of which there are said to be 115,000 in Chicago, are being organized to support the candidacy of Thomas M. Sullivan, Democrat, for president of the sanitary district.

Everett Jennings, chief counsel for the public utilities commission, is back from a speaking trip as a Democratic candidate for congressman at large. He says he is confident he will be nominated.

Felix A. Norden, Republican candidate for assessor, has issued a statement directing attention to the necessity of getting out a big vote for the tax amendment in November.

William F. Moran claims he is the only candidate who can break the slate for one of the Democratic nominations for sanitary district trustee.

The regular Democratic organizations of the Twenty-eighth and Thirty-fourth wards have indorsed Gov. Dunne for renomination and Secretary of State Lewis G. Stevenson to succeed himself.

Gov. Dunne and Senator James Hamilton Lewis will be the speakers at "Governor's day" at Riverview park, on Sept. 9.

Ald. Willis O. Nance, Republican candidate for sanitary district trustee, says: "I led the fight in the city council for the ordinance which gave Chicago a pure milk supply. As sanitary district trustee, I shall actively strive to bring about conditions that will insure Chicago's drinking water supply. The contamination of a community's water source by sewage is nothing short of criminal. There is no excuse for such a condition if modern methods of sewage disposal are adopted and faithfully carried out."

Republican candidates for governor and for attorney general have been invited to address Republican women at the Hamilton club Tuesday afternoon. All candidates for offices for which women may vote have been asked to a massmeeting at Hotel Sherman Friday evening. Both meetings are called by the Republican Women's association.

Charles A. Williams, Republican candidate for the board of review, has sent out a booklet in which the key line is "help put the ax in tax."

Howard Jayne of Monmouth, Republican candidate for secretary of state, has opened Chicago headquarters at the Brevoort. "I have got the downstate easy. All I need now is Chicago," he said.

The Scandinavian Republican federation has indorsed Lowden for governor.

Everett A. Harding, Republican candidate for sanitary district trustee, sends out word that he never has been on the city pay roll and is not connected with the city hall faction.

At a meeting of the state central committee of the Illinois Women's Democratic league yesterday Philip J. McKenna was indorsed for president of the sanitary board. Other candidates indorsed were Henry P. Bergen and Peter Bartzen for the county board, Frank Kowaleski and Leopold Pfaelzer for assessors, and Thomas J. Webb for the board of review.

HEALTH CHIEF WARNS DOCTORS TO BE CAREFUL.

Robertson Instructs Physicians on Examination of Children for School Certificates.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, commissioner of health, yesterday talked to 154 health department physicians regarding their duties in making examinations of school children, who are required under a rule of the board of education to obtain health certificates.

"Above all things," he said, "I want to impress upon you the value of cleanliness. Don't let me catch any one of you examining the nose or throat of a child with unsterilized instruments."

There will be a special corps of teachers to assist in examining children on Tuesday. Every child who does not come with a certificate will be examined by school physicians, and as there is not even one physician to every six schools, it is expected the work will take several days.

Acting Superintendent Charles D. Lowry issued an appeal to parents to secure certificates before school opens, where possible.

One new case of infantile paralysis, that of an adult 24 years old, living on Indiana avenue, was reported during the day. Three cases were declared terminated at the county hospital, making the total number in the city eighty-seven, two less than the day before.

KILLED RIDING TO WORK.

B. J. Kenny, a Blacksmith, Was Riding Motorcycle Which Hit Wagon.

Bartley J. Kenny, 21 years old, of 7130 Woodlawn avenue, a blacksmith, was fatally hurt yesterday when a motorcycle on which he was riding to work collided with an automobile at East Seventy-seventh street and Cottage Grove avenue.

LILY TANG, MISSIONARY TO CHINESE, IS BURIED.

Miss Lily C. Tang, a Chinese teacher and mission worker, was buried yesterday from the Chinese Evangelical church at 225 West Twenty-second street. Interment was in Rosehill.

Miss Tang was 31 years old and the daughter of a Chinese minister who conducts a mission in Portland, Ore. She was a graduate of Wheaton college, where she was an honor student in English, and of the Methodist Training school in Chicago. For several years she taught in her father's mission and was well known on the Pacific coast for her uplift work among her own people.

She was a friend of Mrs. Helen Gould Shepherd, who for years helped Chinese girl students in the United States.

BRINTON STIRS UP DEMOCRATS' GOVERNOR RACE

Dunne's Rival Puts Some Life Into the Campaign When He Hits Chicago.

The Democratic state campaign took a sudden spurt yesterday, when William B. Brinton of Dixon arrived in Chicago with a declaration of war against Gov. Dunne and started to round up the regular Democratic organization in Cook county in his own behalf.

Gov. Dunne had caught wind of Mr. Brinton's downstate activities, and Thursday had stirred up the lethargy that had existed among his Chicago friends.

The Sullivan organization has made no formal indorsement on the governorship, and it is doubtful if it will. There is little doubt, however, that a majority of the ward committeemen will be for Brinton.

The governor's managers say that they are not worried over the outburst of Brinton activity, but orders have gone out to get out every available Dunne vote at the primaries. The third candidate, James Traynor, is a negligible quantity. One plank of his platform is that he will annex Canada if nominated and elected.

Brinton Gives Out Statement.

Mr. Brinton, from headquarters at Hotel Sherman, issued this statement yesterday:

"Prospects for my nomination could not be more encouraging. I have been in the strongest Democratic territory of the state during the last week, and the assurances of support I have received are most flattering.

"It is going to be another Democratic year if we take advantage of our possibilities, and I find the live men of the party thoroughly awake to the situation.

"What support will I have in Cook county? That remains to be seen. I have a good many friends in Cook county and I have confidence in the intelligence and judgment of Cook county Democrats.

"Regardless of all other considerations my candidacy as a real business man and as a downstate man, who is squarely in favor of home rule for Chicago, should appeal to the good judgment of Chicago and Cook county Democrats. The people do the nominating these days and they can be trusted."

O'Hara vs. Huttmann.

For lieutenant governor the Democratic contest is between the present lieutenant governor, Barratt O'Hara, and Henry W. Huttmann, both of Chicago. The Sullivan organization is with Mr. Huttmann, who is a former member of the Chicago board of education. Lieut. Gov. O'Hara has made an independent campaign against heavy odds.

Secretary of State Lewis G. Stevenson, who was appointed by Gov. Dunne to fill the unexpired term of Harry Woods, deceased, encounters organization opposition from Barth P. Collins, who is secretary to Dennis J. Egan, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners.

For state auditor, the present auditor, James J. Brady, is a candidate for renomination, backed substantially by the Sullivan regulars. The most formidable candidate against him, it appears, is David J. Carroll of Oak Park, a young Democrat who carries excellent recommendations and has made a live campaign. Albert J. Flynn of Chicago has been out over the state considerably. Other candidates are John P. Callaghan, Emmett Cavanaugh, and M. W. Collett, all of Chicago.

In the Treasurer's Race.

The contest for the nomination for state treasurer is confined to two candidates. Arthur W. Charles, who has been chairman of the Democratic state committee for two terms, a newspaper proprietor at Carmi, is the candidate backed by the regulars and most of the downstate press. Against him is John Downey, former Chicago alderman and secretary of the anti-Sullivan organization within the Democratic party.

For attorney general, the present attorney general, Patrick J. Lucey of Streator, has no opposition for renomination.

William Elza Williams of Pittsfield, one of the two congressmen at large, who defeated J. McCann Davis at the 1910 election, is a candidate for renomination. The regular organization is back of Congressman Williams and Joseph O. Kostner.

SULLIVAN WARNS AGAINST "SURE THING" BELIEF

Sees Democratic Victory, but Points Out It Will Take Hard Work.

Roger C. Sullivan, just back from the east where he has been for the last month, comes home with the warning to the Democratic faithful that overconfidence and a widespread belief that Wilson is a sure thing for reëlection are to be feared by the Democratic party.

In an interview covering his diagnosis of the present national situation, Mr. Sullivan says:

"The only thing that the Democrats have to fear this year is overconfidence. The sentiment for Wilson is increasing every day. A few more attacks upon him like the one made by Roosevelt will make it unanimous.

"This does not mean that there is not hard work for the Democrats to do, however. They must not get the idea that they can win without an effort. Nothing worth while was ever obtained without work and work is needed this year as well as at other times. The work that has to be done is to present the issues squarely to the voters. When this is done we have nothing to fear.

"While I have been absent from Illinois I believe I know enough about the general conditions here to venture a prediction that it will be found in the Democratic column this year. That prediction is based on the knowledge that the people of Illinois are for the things for which President Wilson stands. It is indorsed by the men who are on the spot and who know more about the changes that have taken place recently than I do."

Mr. Sullivan gave an unqualified indorsement to the ticket indorsed by the managing committee of the Democratic party of Cook county. He is to be the chief speaker at the ratification meeting and county conuvention to be held by the regular Democratic organization of Cook county at the First Infantry armory beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Expansion! It's big production that has *de*creased Packard cost —and *in*creased Packard worth

Fifty—fifty a day now—as against fifteen a day before the Twin-six was created—before Packard's crowning achievement in motors was launched upon an eager market.

Three-fold—and more—the increase has been—a direct gain to the man who buys a Packard.

Tripled production enables us to buy materials to greater advantage—to use more ingenious special machinery, labor-saving methods and manufacturing systems. And it enables us to charge against each car a smaller part of a relatively smaller "overhead"—for both the making and the selling.

That's why Packard quality has gone up as Packard costs have come down.

The new Model is here.

To produce this refined, "glorified," better Packard, it was necessary to enlarge our organization to include 13,000 American workers—to double our factory space and increase its efficiency—to build up an engineering staff twice as large as that of any other maker.

And that staff has further developed the Twin-six—has created a motor which gets utmost mileage from even low-grade gasolines.

Big—and better—production has enabled us to deliver the most efficient, the most economical, the most luxurious Packard ever built, at a price as significant in automobile history as the Twin-six motor itself—open cars—$2,865 and $3,265—f. o. b. Detroit.

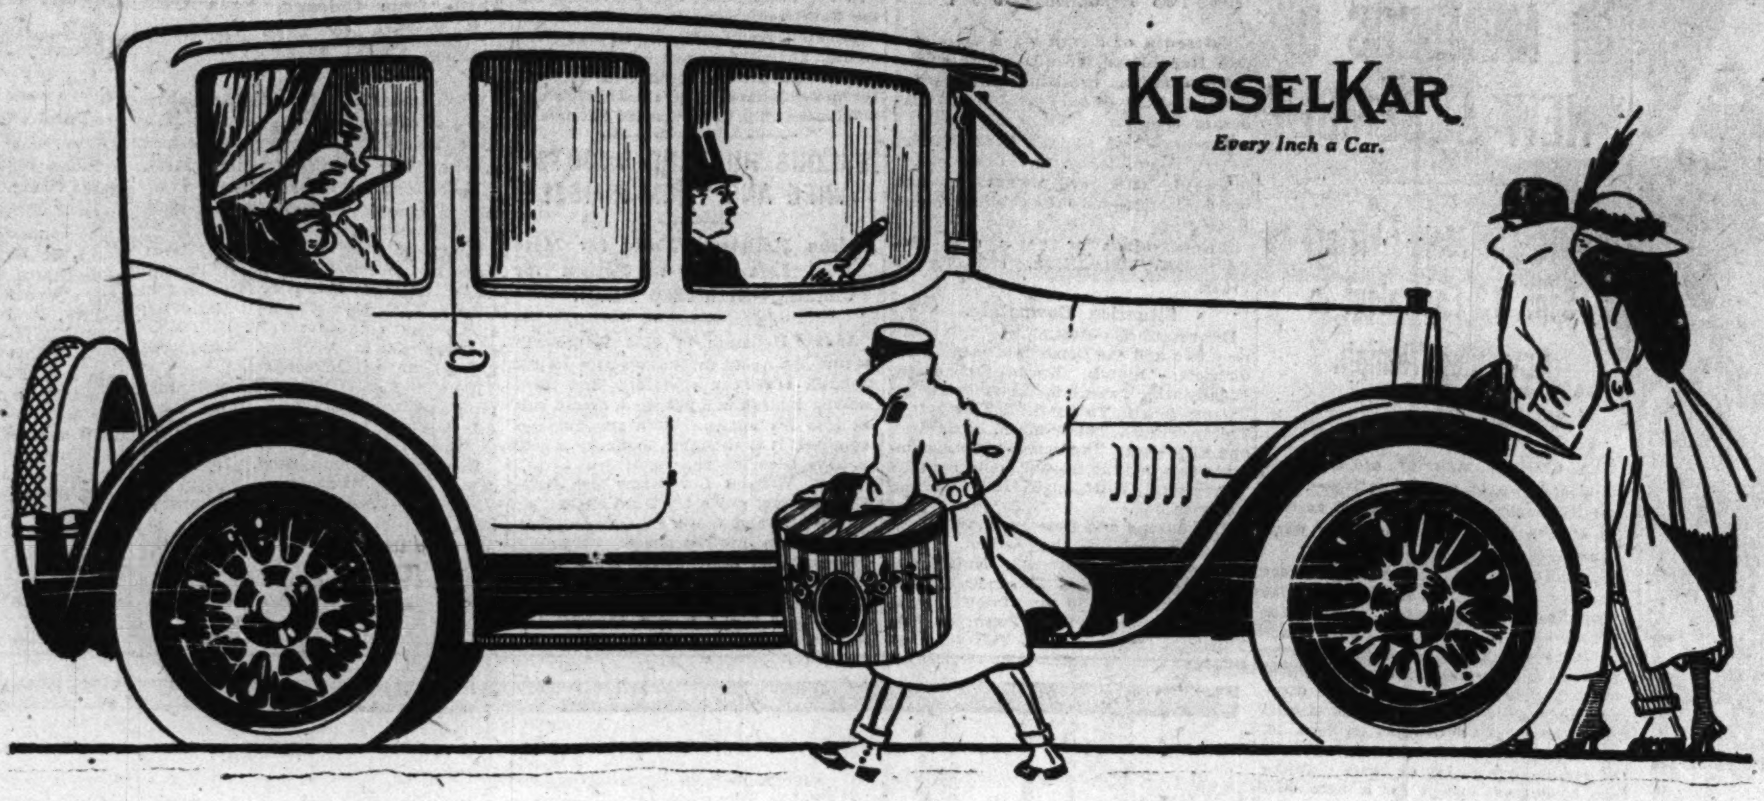
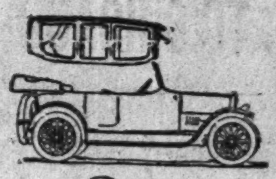
The
ALL-YEAR
Car

A Kissel idea that made the ownership of two cars unnecessary.

A "convertible" that does not sacrifice appearance either in its open or closed form.

ALL-YEAR Sedan or Coupe on Hundred Point chassis, $1520; ALL-YEAR Town Car, $1850.





The
ALL-YEAR
Car

To fully enjoy fair weather touring you must not have a roof on your car.

The ALL-YEAR Car is a sightly and complete open car for summer and a closed coach for winter—the two-in-one, Kissel's original idea.

Kissel's ALL-YEAR Touring Sedan

It's the Hundred Point Six in Winter Garb
The idea that changed the motoring habits of a nation

Take a good look at this car—come in tomorrow morning and see it—inspect it—test the deep cushioned seats—close the door and experience its refinement and exclusiveness, that custom-made atmosphere you associate with the expensive limousines and permanently enclosed coaches.

It is Kissel's original "two-in-one" idea —the weather-proof car that insures 365 days of motoring. It is the highest development of the ALL-YEAR idea—so far superior to any of the other so-called convertible cars that one inspection will prove it is the only car you would care to own.

Here you have a wide-open, big, roomy touring car for the spring and summer months, with no roof to obstruct the view while touring. You don't want a car that has a permanent cover over it. The object of touring is to see the country through which you are passing. With your ALL-YEAR Car you can do this.

And in the winter your summer car is quickly changed into a luxurious, exclusive, closed coach. The ALL-YEAR Top fits in—not on—to the body unit, a smooth, graceful blending of the two units that loses nothing in its appearance when made ready for the winter months. No slip-shod work, no overlapping of the sides, no makeshift appearance, no rattling of bolts and bars. The ALL-YEAR Car rides and looks like one piece of coach making.

Your ALL-YEAR Car will appeal to your pride of possession. It is a car that fits into every occasion—theatre, grand opera, the club, formal or informal events, while shopping or calling—every occasion for which the most expensive limousines are made. Your ALL-YEAR Car possesses in every essential the requirements which good taste dictates and social prestige demands.

Now is the time—winter's only a few months away—don't take a chance with an unknown, unreliable, unsightly, demountable or convertible car—don't risk your money in automobile dividends that can not materialize, but come in tomorrow and let us explain its Hundred Quality Features. Bring your wife and daughter with you. They will appreciate the exclusive and refined characteristics of the ALL-YEAR Car. Inspect this ALL-YEAR Sedan, remembering that it is mounted on Kissel's famous HUNDRED POINT SIX, the car that set a new standard of automobile value. You won't be able to get away from the fact that here is the millennium in automobile satisfaction. And we are making immediate deliveries.

Kissel's Ultimatum to the Automobile World

Here is the car that will last you for some time—the car that will be up to date next year and the year after and so on during its life. No changing models every year when you own a Hundred Point Six—the car of a Hundred Quality Features.

You don't want a skimpy car, for, remember, the amount of motor comfort and satisfaction you will get depends on the amount that is built into your car.

You want the best car your money will buy. Listen—when a manufacturer puts 100% value in his car you can safely take it for granted that you can not go wrong in buying that car.

So come in tomorrow and see this famous Hundred Point Six—the car that caused a stampede among careful car buyers 48 hours after it was first announced.

Here you find concentrated power from its famous Kissel-built engine that is making new mileage records on a gallon of gas.

Here you have the SIX of quietest operation, unusual simplicity and accessibility.

It is the object of envy among those hasty car buyers who did not inspect it before buying.

Hundred Point Six

THE HUNDRED POINT SIX IN SUMMER GARB

Here it is—full-blooded and powerful—the car whose very looks are an irresistible invitation to become familiar with your country's highways and byways—a car whose appearance is that of a thoroughbred and in whose performance the most critical mechanicians find nothing lacking.

The New Standard in Car Value at its Price

Its exclusive and artistic lines, its individual comforts and refinements convey that impression of good taste in motor car judgment that promotes a deep respect for the owner. It adds the finishing touch to complete enjoyment of life. Its performance reflects the car buyer's knowledge in motor car values.

In all the outdoor recreation centers where motor cars are the predominating means of transportation, the Hundred Point Six is creating unusual interest among those car owners who long ago lost the novelty of their first car.

In town and country where society gathers it is the car that fits into every and any event.

In automobile circles, where a man is judged by the car he owns, the Hundred Point Six has upset the predictions of engineers.

Owners whose car is their pet hobby are getting new delights and thrills in its performance.

Mechanicians have had their professional interest aroused in its unusual under-the-surface details, its next-to-the-road parts.

The enthusiasm of chauffeurs is unlimited, due to its driving simplicity, ease of operation and uninterrupted roadability.

Come in and see this car. Let us explain its Hundred Quality Features—many of them exclusive—all of them ear-marks of superiority. Compare them with other cars, the way hundreds of satisfied owners did. Everywhere this car has passed the telling test of close comparison.

G. O. P. ENTRIES IN STATE RACES TURN TO CHICAGO

Contest for Attorney General Is Almost as Hot as Governor Fight.

The closing week of the primary campaign will see the Republican contests for the nominations for minor offices on the state ticket just a shade less in interest than the three cornered fight for the governorship.

Every one of the candidates is now in Chicago, making a last attack upon the voters of Cook county. Each of them yesterday put himself down as a sure winner.

For the nomination of attorney general the spectacular campaigns being made by the five candidates who are in the running are not less interesting than the gubernatorial struggle.

George H. Wilson, the Quincy candidate, who has the unalloyed support of the Anti-Saloon league, established headquarters at the Hamilton club and gave out this statement: "I expect to come up to Cook county with a large plurality and to get a most substantial and satisfactory vote in Chicago."

Patten Indorses Brundage.

Edward J. Brundage's strong card yesterday was the production of an indorsement of his candidacy by James A. Patten of Evanston, who heads a committee of business men who are in the open for Brundage for attorney general. Others to sign the indorsement with Mr. Patten are Mayor Harry Pearson of Evanston, Rufus Dawes, E. N. Beard, and Carroll Shaffer.

Senator Richard J. Barr, in summarizing the campaign, said that he had received downstate assurances that warrant him in predicting a formidable plurality for himself downstate. "I believe that my vote in Chicago will be of proportions surprising to some of my friends. I have no doubt of my own nomination."

Walter M. Provine of Taylorville, at his Hotel La Salle headquarters, thought that the strength of Mr. Wilson downstate has been exaggerated. "I will be the winner," he said.

Fayette S. Munro, who is known as the "Fergus suit" man, has been lambasting his opponents [illegible] and left downstate. He announces himself as an independent candidate and says that he has 3,000 independent volunteers who will work for him primary day.

Treasurer Fight Hot.

The contest between Len Small and George E. Keys for state treasurer has taken on interesting proportions and the row for secretary of state is getting too intricate for the old time politicians to follow, as between Louis L. Emmerson, Howard Jayne, Albert Erickson, and Walter B. Weston. Charles F. White says that he himself will be nominated by 100,000.

The fight for state auditor is badly mixed. The leading candidates are Andrew Russel, present state treasurer; Homer J. Tice, Julius Johnson, William H. Crum, and Harry L. Heer.

General political opinion concedes the two nominations for congressmen at large to Medill McCormick and Congressman B. M. Chiperfield.

Arrested for Unpaid Taxi Bill.

James [Jeannie] O'Connor was arrested yesterday on complaint of Peter Bruxer, an employe of the American Auto and Taxi company, 1810 Wells street, who said O'Connor refused to pay a bill of $6.25.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS OPEN ENCAMPMENT TODAY.

Fifteen Hundred Coming as Delegates to Thirteenth Annual Session.

Fifteen hundred delegates to the thirteenth annual encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans will assemble in Chicago today for the national convention of the order. At the same time 500 wives and daughters will arrive for the meeting of the women's auxiliary.

The meeting will be formally opened tonight by a reception that the women will give to the officers of both organizations at the Hotel La Salle. There Mrs. Jessie Booth Perry, president of the auxiliary, will unfurl the association's battle flags that went through the Cuban, Philippine, and Boxer campaigns.

The first session of the encampment will take place tomorrow morning at the First Regiment armory, when addresses of welcome will be delivered by Gov. Edward F. Dunne and Mayor Thompson. In the afternoon there will be a parade of the veterans from the armory down Michigan avenue to Randolph street, under the lead of Grand Marshal Gen. James E. Stuart. The marchers will be escorted by divisions from the Great Lakes Naval Training station and naval reserves under Capt. Edward Evers.

At 4:30 the parade will halt at the Congress and face the lake while a salvo of American flags will be fired in the air from gigantic bombs and the band will play "The Star Spargle'l Banner."

Preparedness will be the chief convention theme.

City Pier Concert Tomorrow.

The Chicago band, of which William Weil is conductor, will play at the municipal pier tomorrow afternoon at 4. A program of eight numbers, including patriotic and other popular airs, and a number of operatic selections has been arranged.

PRIMARY ELECTS 81 MEMBERS OF NEW ASSEMBLY

Peculiar Law Makes Victory on Sept. 13 Equivalent to November Triumph.

An absolute majority of the new Illinois house of representatives—81 of the 153 members—will be elected actually at the direct primaries one week from Wednesday.

By the peculiar workings of the direct primary law, authorizing senatorial committees in each district to stipulate the number of candidates to be nominated by each party under the minority plan of representation, the candidates nominated in twenty-seven of the fifty-one districts will be as good as elected after the votes are counted on Sept. 13.

The November elections will be merely perfunctory as far as these districts are concerned, except for a bare outside chance for a Socialist or an independent to slip by, and there are no independent candidates in the field thus far.

Ten in Chicago.

Ten of these districts where by law the election is framed up in advance are in Chicago. Seventeen are downstate. In one other Cook county district, where three candidates are to be nominated officially by the Democrats, and in three downstate districts, where the Democratic senatorial committees failed to file the necessary certificates with the secretary of state, and where three will be nominated, practically the same situation applies.

By manipulation of the primary law, hooked up with the time worn "one-two-three" system of electing legislators, at the November election there will be just 173 candidates nominated by the Republican and Democratic parties for 153 places.

Power of Committee.

Moreover, at the Sept. 13 primaries each party will elect three members of its senatorial committee in each district. This committee in 1918 will stipulate the number of candidates to be nominated, just as has been done this time.

Practical politicians understand that at next week's primaries the state is choosing, in substance, not only the house of representatives for the fiftieth general assembly but for the fifty-first as well, the only thing not decided being the personnel of the candidates. In nearly every district there is no contest for senatorial committeemen, no fight and nothing in the way of a campaign in progress.

This condition explains in part the high degree of bitterness that is marking the closing days of the legislative primary campaign in Chicago particularly, where the nominations will be equivalent to elections.

These Chicago Districts Affected.

The Chicago districts affected are these, the figures showing the number of candidates to be nominated by each party, as stipulated by the senatorial committees which have just finished filing their certificates with Secretary of State Stevenson at Springfield:

First or First ward district—Two Republicans, one Democrat.

Fourth or stockyards district—One Republican, two Democrats.

Fifth or University of Chicago district—Two Republicans, one Democrat.

Ninth or southwest side district, now represented by Speaker Shanahan—One Republican, two Democrats.

Thirteenth or South Chicago district—Two Republicans, one Democrat.

Twenty-third or Oak Park district—Two Republicans, one Democrat.

Twenty-fifth or Twenty-seventh ward district—Two Republicans, one Democrat.

Twenty-ninth or north side district—One Republican, two Democrats.

Situation Downstate.

Downstate the Republicans will nominate two and the Democrats one in these districts: Eighth, Tenth, Fourteenth, Eighteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-second; Twenty-fourth, Thirty-third, Thirty-fifth, Thirty-seventh, Thirty-ninth, Forty-first, and Fifty-first. The Democrats will nominate two and the Republicans one in the Thirty-sixth, Thirty-eighth, Fortieth and Forty-second.

Republicans and Democrats will nominate two each in the Second, Third, Sixth, Seventh, Eleventh, Nineteenth, Twenty-seventh, and Thirty-first, all in Cook county, and in the Twelfth, Sixteenth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-eighth, Thirtieth, Thirty-second, Thirty-fourth, Forty-third, Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, and Forty-seventh downstate. The Democrats have one candidate filed, however, in the Twenty-eighth.

In the Twenty-first district, embracing the Fourteenth ward, the Democrats will nominate three candidates. In the Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, and Fiftieth, downstate, the senatorial committees made no recommendations. The Republicans will nominate two in each of these districts.

JEALOUS HUSBAND SHOOTS WIFE AND THEN HIMSELF.

Andras Hellstern Waits for Mate Who Left Him to Return for Clothing—Both May Die.

Andras Hellstern of 4734 Wentworth avenue, an Austrian, shot his wife, Helen, through the head yesterday and then, locking himself in a bedroom, fired a bullet into his mouth. Both are mortally wounded, it is thought. Jealousy is said to have been the motive.

Sergt. William Lovell saw Mrs. Hellstern stagger down the front stairs.

"My husband shot me," she screamed.

Lovell ran into the house. Finding a bedroom door locked, he pounded on it. Presently he heard a shot within. Breaking down the door he found Hellstern.

Two days ago, it is said, the wife left Hellstern

CANDIDATES FOR WEST POINT INCLUDE SEVEN ILLINOISANS

Three from Chicago, Four from Downstate to Take Examinations—125 on List.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—The war department today announced a list of 125 candidates for West Point, who are intending to take the March, 1917, examinations for entrance to the academy in June of next year. Among them are the following:

Illinois—William P. Gisek, 3319 West Twenty-sixth street, Chicago; William M. Losby, Chicago; Ernest S. Mueller, 2142 Lincoln Park west, Chicago; Herbert J. Riess Pontiac; Harold W. Hill, Winchester; Edwin V. Kerr, Metropolis; Loren L. Sheffield, Greenfield.

Indiana—Paul H. Cassell, Bloomington; Ivan Friedman, Jasper.

Minesota—Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis.

The lists are not yet closed. The department also announces that on Oct. 17 will start the examinations for all classes of candidates for commissions as second lieutenants. It is understood there are many applicants among the enlisted men.

SHERIDAN ROAD SECTION IN LAKE FOREST FINISHED

Roadway Will Be Opened to Public This Week—Fronts Handsome Country Estates.

Every week brings new evidence of the successful efforts of the Sheridan Road Improvement association in completing Sheridan road in Illinois. This week marks the opening of a part of the road in Lake Forest.

The completed section fronts some of the most beautiful country estates in Lake Forest, among which are those of Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, E. L. Ryerson, and W. M. Burton.

With Wilmette and Kenilworth building their pavements and New Trier township and Winnetka about to let contracts, there remains only that strip in Hubbard Woods and Glencoe to be built permanently, when Sheridan road will be an uninterrupted permanent driveway from University place, in Evanston, to the north limits of Lake Forest.

Wants Soldier Man Back.

Mrs. Bessie Johnson of 2906 Federal street has grown tired of trying to be the sole provider for the family while her husband is "fighting" with the Eighth infantry in San Antonio. As a last resort she went to District Attorney Clyne to ask him to use his influence to win her husband's release.

WONDERS CROWD REGION DRAINED BY YUKON RIVER

Traveler Passes Through Immense Flats and Lands of Gigantic Cliffs.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

(Copyright: 1916. By Frank G. Carpenter.)

FORT YUKON, Alaska.—The Yukon river rises in the headwaters of the Lewes and the Pelly, within a short walk of the Pacific ocean, and it flows from here perhaps 1,300 miles more before it pours out over the wide flats of the tundra into Bering sea.

In this region the stream is from ten to twenty miles wide, and the channel winds sluggishly in and out among islands of all shapes and sizes. The waters are like glass, putty colored during the daytime, and with all the hues of the rainbow as the sun rises and sets. At midnight the Yukon becomes a sheet of molten gold.

The Yukon flats is an area almost as large as the state of South Carolina, lying between the two ranges of mountains which border the territory at the north and the south. The Yukon passes through the flats in a course of 200 miles, and that in a network of waterways.

Yukon Is Earth Builder.

Everywhere you look you see the Yukon at its work of earth building. Sand bars rise in a season, and islands are created with the floods of one spring. Other islands are swept away. There are no rocks anywhere. The bed of the river is silt, and the silt goes down to great depths.

Here in the flats we seem to be on the roof of the world. The river stretches on and on as though it would drop into space, and the low wooded banks seem fences over which, if one climbed, he would fall into nothingness. Standing on the bridge of the steamer you can almost look over the trees.

It is said that outside Fort Yukon there are only three men living, at intervals of forty or fifty miles apart, on the whole course of the river. These men are wood choppers and hunters. They sell wood to the steamers. The captain asked one of them the other day the price of his wood. The man replied: "Dave Drollette has been telling around the neighborhood that I have been selling wood at $5 a cord, but it ain't so." The humor of this lies in the word "neighborhood." The man's nearest neighbor is forty miles off and Dave Drollette lives 100 miles up the river.

Paradise for Tourists.

The day will soon come when the Yukon will be one of the tourist routes of the world. A company is now being organized to put up great hotels at Skagway, Dawson, Seward, and Fairbanks, and to turn our European travel to this part of the world.

CALICO BLUFFS

In coming down the upper Yukon you steam by mountains that rise to the clouds, you pass by rocks that look like castles, and wind your way among hills blanketed with pink flowers that remind you of the heather clad hills of old Scotland. Just inside the international boundary I saw two gigantic rocks on opposite sides of the river. The formations were such that one had the almost perfect face of a man, whereas the profile of the other was that of a woman. The rocks are known as "the Old Man" and "the Old Woman."

A little farther down stream is a place where the Yukon cuts its way through cliffs that rise like a mighty wall, almost straight up from the water, to a height greater than that of the Washington monument. The cliffs are formed of strata of a dozen different colors—white, gold, black, brown, green, and red—and they rise and fall like the stripes of a waving flag.

Animals Abound in Region.

Leaving the bluffs, we struck a patch of green forest and frightened two moose that had come to the river to drink. We saw a lynx swimming the river and a mile further on passed a fishing wheel which, turned by the current, was scooping up pink salmon and throwing them into a wooden box at the end. Behind the wheel on the shore were the tents of the Indians, who were thus laying in their food for the winter.

The Yukon is comparatively narrow at the international boundary. Its width varies from 1,200 to 1,300 feet. The river widens as it leaves the boundary, and it keeps on its winding way through the hills for 200 or 300 miles, until it reaches Circle, where the great inland sea has its beginning.

The first section of the river is wonderfully beautiful. Just now the country is as green as any part of the United States. Thick bushes line the shores and evergreens, spruce, and pines twenty or thirty feet high rise behind them. The woods climb the hills; cover them with a mass of dark green in which, here and there, are open spaces that look like pastures and give the whole country a parklike appearance. Now and then you see great beds of flowers.

Flags Float Above Roofs.

Crossing the boundary into Alaska, the first settlement is an Indian village, above which, on a pole erected beside a log church, floats the American flag. Nearby may be seen the black mast of the wireless station, the first outpost of the signal corps of our army, whose telegraph system covers the greater part of the territory; and still farther on is Eagle, the first American town on the Yukon.

Every cabin has a tall flagstaff attached to its roof, and from the Yukon I counted a dozen American flags floating in the breeze.

The Eagle of today is a has been. It is like the deserted mining camps of the west which were abandoned when the gold had played out. It was once known as Eagle City. It had hundreds of inhabitants and all the wild life that came from the successful gold diggings nearby. It still has about 100 one story log cabins, but half of them are deserted and some are falling to ruins. It has a two story hotel, a two story log customhouse, and a trading station that belongs to the Northern Commercial company. There is an Episcopal missionary who lives at the western end of the town.

Gardens in Dooryards.

Many of the cabins have gardens about them in which are large crops of potatoes and carrots. The streets are grass grown, and grass and flowers grow luxuriantly on the dirt roofs of the cabins.

The town pump is one of the features of Eagle. It stands over a well and is worked by a windmill. There is a tall white tower beside the windmill, and a drinking place at the front. Eagle has a first class saloon, but it has no public school. I asked one of the women why this was. She replied: "The only revenue the town has is the $1,000 license paid by the saloon, and it takes all of that to keep up the town pump."

Leaving Eagle, our next stop was at Circle, another half-deserted village living on the memories of its past. It sprang up in 1892, when gold was discovered on Birch creek nearby, and a little later it had a population of 1,000 miners. Then the gold began to play out and the most of the men left in the stampede to the Klondike.

Fort Yukon a Mining Center.

Fort Yukon is just inside the Arctic circle, and is the most northerly point on the Yukon river, and tourists will be brought here over the White Pass route in the future to see the midnight sun.

Fort Yukon has been of great importance as a mining center. It is better known as a fur trading station. The Hudson Bay company used to come here to buy furs, and boatloads are now brought down the Porcupine river by the Indians and other fur traders.

Every one in Alaska has heard of Dan Cadzo. He is one of the biggest traders of the far north. Cadzo is content to live almost all alone in the wilds. His home is 200 miles from the nearest white settlement. It is about 150 miles south of the Arctic ocean, a little farther from Fort McPherson on a branch of the Mackenzie, and 225 miles from Fort Yukon. Nevertheless, he likes it. He said to me today: "I am mighty glad to get back from outside. I am tired of the crowd, and I want to be where it is quiet again."

Comfort in the Wilderness.

I asked him to tell me about his home in the wilderness. He replied:

"It is about sixteen by forty, with wings at the side. It is made of logs and lined with the best beaver board. We have double windows and our wood stoves keep us as hot as toast notwithstanding the thermometer sometimes goes down to 70 degrees below zero. I have one of the best cellars of the far north."

"Tell me something about your store."

"It is just over the boundary in Canada, and I take my goods there in my own steamer up the Porcupine river. The most of the freight on this ship belongs to me. My stock is worth about $20,000. I use it to trade with the Indians, Eskimo and white trappers who hunt there for furs. We have the best of goods and get high prices."

"What prices, for instance?"

"Sugar and rice cost 25 cents a pound and bacon and lard 50 cents. A fifty pound sack of flour brings $8 and tea is $1 a pound. We get cash for the goods and pay cash for furs."

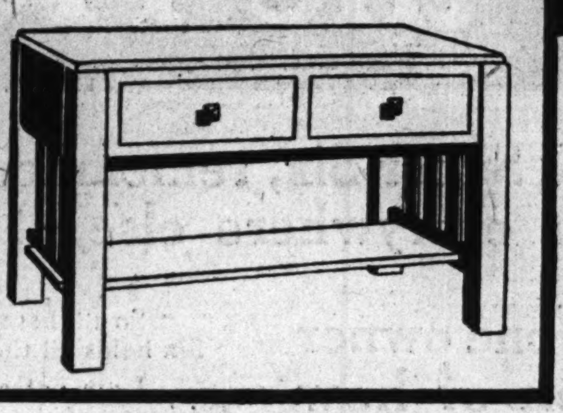
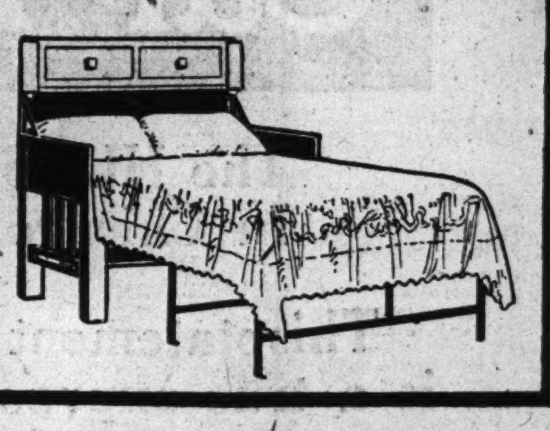
"AT LAST"

Ta-Bed
"The Table that goes to Bed"





SAY THOUSANDS

Since the days of the old-fashioned folding beds, inventors have been groping for something which would be out of the way by day and serve the purpose of a bed by night. Many ingenious devices have resulted and been tried. But now comes the TA-BED. And thousands are saying, "At last."

A Piece of Furniture—Not a Device

The TA-BED is not a contrivance to conceal the fact of a bed. It is an artistic library table, complete in every detail, made in dozens of styles after designs furnished by a master of the craft, suitable for any scheme of furnishing, an artistic contribution to any room. Cunningly concealed in the drawer space of the table is a completely made bed, springs, mattress, pillow and all bedding, that automatically unfolds into a smooth, comfortable, roomy bed.

The Problem of the Unexpected Guest

So here is the final solution of the problem of the unexpected guest. You need not sacrifice space for a "guest room," nor be denied the pleasure of giving hospitality to your friends. You have to have a table in your room. The TA-BED supplies this need. But three twists of the wrist transform this artistic, useful table into a bed that you need have no hesitancy in offering to your most fastidious guest.

The Problem of Insufficient Room

If you are crowded at home, here is your relief. The TA-BED gives you two rooms for one. Without any sacrifice of either room. It makes a cozy living room, family den, or sitting room complete when used as a table.

You never think of it as a bed. You read by it, sew by it, write on it, and keep your books and magazines on the shelf underneath it.

At night, when opened as a bed, it takes up only two-thirds more space than as a table and does not put you to any fuss or inconvenience as it opens up completely made and ready to sleep in. So the TA-BED will save you the discomforts of being crowded and save you the need of hunting a house with another room and paying extra rent, or adding on another room to the house where you now live. And it will save you all this expense for much less than the rent of the extra room or the cost of such an addition.

Clean—Hygienic

There is no upholstery about the TA-BED. Every corner is accessible. Neither dust, dirt, germs nor vermin can gather. Opened or closed the bedding is always 21 inches from the floor, the usual bed height. When closed a thorough and complete ventilation of the bedding is provided for.

Hunt One Out Tomorrow

Join the thousands who are saying, "At last." Become one of the fortunate homemakers who have found escape from crowded conditions and higher rent. Nothing is so convenient for the porch as a TA-BED. A dealer in your town can supply you. If you do not find your town listed below, write us at once. Do not let any one persuade you not to investigate the TA-BED. You owe it to yourself. We will send you descriptive matter and see that you get a chance to buy a TA-BED.

Do Not Accept a Substitute. No Other Form of Concealed Bed Will Give You Such Two-Fold Service. We Fill Orders Promptly.

Chicago's Largest Selling Fine Car Is the HUDSON Super-Six

The HUDSON Super-Six, remember, is only a few months old. It came out this year. In Chicago, as everywhere else, it now outsells any other car listing above $1100

This statement by one owner is a true expression of how every owner feels about his Hudson Super-Six. Is it any wonder Hudson leads?

I like to hear others say what their cars will do. The better their cars, the better my Hudson. For the Hudson Super-Six has excelled them all, in all sorts of performances.

One boasts of his car's power. But no other car ever got 76 horsepower from a motor of the size of the Super-Six.

One shows me his quick acceleration. But the Hudson Super-Six holds the records on that.

One tells of his hill-climbs, often on high gear. But the Hudson Super-Six won the world's greatest hill-climb against twenty rivals—the climb to the top of Pike's Peak.

They recite the distances they cover in a day. But a stock Super-Six, in 24 hours, ran 1,819 miles—as far as from Chicago to New York and back. That's half again farther than any stock car ever went in that time before.

They tell of speed. But a Super-Six stock motor has pulled a car at the rate of 102 miles per hour.

So all these claims are music to my ears when my Super-Six holds all the records.

I am not a fast driver. But I arrive before the fast drivers, ofttimes, because I keep my speed. Upgrade or downgrade, bad roads or good roads—it makes no difference to the Super-Six. And I gain at stops and slow-downs, for the Super-Six instantly regains its speed.

The power of the Super-Six—76 horsepower—is more than this light car needs. But whatever I call on the Hudson to do is done without effort or strain. And I know that is good for the motor.

Why I chose a Super-Six.

And I have learned this: Whatever excels all things is bound to supersede them.

The greatest sensations, when outdone, lose their vogue and prestige. And when I buy a high-grade car I don't want it second rate.

When the Super-Six proved its supremacy—again and again, in official tests—I knew it would be the top place car. Not at once, perhaps. Men are slow to accept a new ruler in Motordom. But I knew that next season would find the Hudson the recognized leading car. That because the Super-Six patents forbid all imitation.

It came sooner than I thought. The Hudson today is the largest selling fine car in the world.

Then I considered these facts:

This added efficiency—80 per cent—comes through reducing vibration and friction almost to extinction. Friction is what wears a motor. So I saw—as the tests have proved—that this invention would double a motor's life.

And then I was impressed by what every Hudson owner for years back has said about Geyler and his service.

Even before the Super-Six was announced, I had been convinced that Geyler was a dealer I could rely on just as I rely on the merchandise I buy at Field's.

From my earlier experiences I knew how much that meant.

Then from Hudson owners in other cities I learned that there, too, Hudson was represented by the Geyler type of dealer. So what more was there to consider? I was convinced that a car that had done what the Super-Six has done, and that not just here, but in practically every important center, was represented by such institutions as Geyler has, must hold the greatest attraction for the buyer.

I don't see how any man who knows can arrive at any different conclusions. When a man buys a fine car, why not the finest, why not of a top place dealer, when he gets it at the Hudson price?

VAST TRACTION SURVEY OF CITY NEARING AN END

Experts Will Oppose Big Subway System, Man Close to Work Predicts.

MERGER OF "L" FAVORED.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Subways? Extensions of the elevated roads? More cross town street car lines? More seats and fewer straphangers? Universal transfers on surface and elevated lines?

The answers to those questions should interest everybody in Chicago. They will be answered in the forthcoming report of the city traction and subway commission. That body is composed of William Barclay Parsons and Robert Ridgeway, eminent engineers of New York, and Bion J. Arnold of Chicago. Each of them is paid $30,000, or $90,000 in all. Other expenses of the commission will amount to $160,000 more.

Prepare Report This Week.

The three engineers meet this week in Chicago to prepare their report. It will be presented to the city council before Nov. 1. Investigators have been at work since February gathering the material on which the report is based. More than 200 men have been in the field at one time. All the data have been collected. A force of clerks and engineers are now assembling and analyzing them.

So complete an investigation of local transportation conditions has never before been made. Thousands of passengers have been traced from their homes to their destinations. The number traveling on each cross town line has been counted. Where the traffic originates and the various directions of its flow has been determined on the different lines.

It will be possible to show graphically on maps along what channels or streets the bulk of the traffic flows, just where the various contributaries enter the main stream and how large each of them is.

Factory Districts Charted.

A special investigation has been made of each district in which large manufacturing industries are located. Where the employés work and just how they get to and from their work has been charted. The growth of the city in various directions has been studied.

Population maps of the whole city have been prepared. Existing traction facilities by which one can travel from the thickly populated section to each of the others have been indicated graphically.

At the same time, with the proposed merger of surface and elevated lines in view, a valuation of the property of the elevated roads has been made. A separate valuation of the real estate owned by the elevated lines has been under way. Two previous valuations, one of $53,000,000—made by city representatives—and another of some $90,000,000—submitted by engineers employed by the elevated lines—are already on record.

Likely Ready This Week.

This vast mass of material, now being whipped into final shape, has been gone over in the rough by the members of the present commission. Its chairman, William Barclay Parsons, was in Chicago recently and gave instructions for hastening the final revision and condensation of the data. It is expected that it will be ready for the commission this week.

So thorough has been the survey and so eminent is the reputation of the engineers, whose report will be based on it that their recommendations will doubtless have great weight. The mere fact that the report will cost $250,000 makes it impressive.

Since the report has not yet been written—no matter what conclusions the individual members of the commission may have reached—it is, of course, impossible to say what recommendations it will make.

One Man's Prediction.

One man, who has been familiar with the work of the commission from the start, ventures the following predictions:

It will report against the construction of a citywide or comprehensive system of subways. Subway construction is vastly more expensive than any other system of transportation. It is difficult to provide proper ventilation in subways. In a city like Chicago, built on flat ground and covering a vast amount of territory, subways are not needed.

It is somewhat doubtful to what extent subways under the loop district and several congested west side streets will be recommended. The eastern members of the commission are understood to be strongly opposed to any subways, if it is possible to figure out any other way of getting traffic in and out of the loop.

$18,000,000 in Traction Fund.

The city of Chicago now has more than $18,000,000 in its traction fund, available for subway construction. By the time subways could be completed under the loop and in one or two streets on the west side, this city fund would reach nearly $25,000,000. That would be almost enough to pay for the work.

The existing surface and elevated lines would be required to pay a considerable rental for the use of the proposed municipally owned subway. They are not anxious to have anything done which will thus add to their operating expenses.

In the end, however, I think the commission will find it necessary to recommend at least one north and south subway under the downtown district and another from the west side with a downtown loop, which will enable trains to get back west in the same way. What else they may urge in this direction is quite uncertain.

Merger of "L" and Surface.

They will recommend the consolidation of the elevated and surface lines under one management, with one fare, and universal transfers. Considerable extensions of the elevated lines will be urged. The plan will be for the elevated trains to be used exclusively for express traffic, making comparatively few stops until they have reached a considerable distance from the loop district. The surface lines are to be used entirely for local or short haul traffic and as feeders for the elevated express service. There will be a considerable number of recommendations for the building of new surface lines, particularly of new cross town lines, by which people may more conveniently reach the elevated.

ALD. NANCE GETS PRAISE.

Head of Hay Fever Prevention Society Indorses Ragweed Campaign.

Ald. Willis O. Nance, in a letter which he received yesterday, was complimented for his "activity in hay fever prevention in Chicago." The alderman has been conducting a council campaign against the ragweed, the cause of hay fever. The letter was signed by Dr. W. Scheppegrell, president of the National Society for the Prevention of Hay Fever.

ARTIST PAYS VICE CASE FINE

Costs Him $50 When Accused of Trying to Put Woman in a Dive.

Alexander Lewis, artist in the Steinway building, who was found guilty under the Kate Adams law by Judge Kearns on Thursday, paid his fine of $50 yesterday. A woman operative of the Committee of Fifteen testified Lewis had attempted to induce her to live in a disorderly house.

AVOID A FORMAL WEDDING.

John J. Nugent and Mary Adams of Chicago Elope to Oak Park.

John J. Nugent and Miss Mary Adams of Austin slipped away yesterday to Oak Park and were married by Justice of the Peace A. J. Kendall. They were to have been married today at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Adams of 330 North Laramie avenue.

WIFE IN ENGLAND SOUGHT BIBBS

Police Found Him Last Year, but Deserted Wife Did Not Ask Arrest.

Disclosures yesterday in the records of the detective bureau shed much light on the heretofore concealed domestic past of Thomas Bibbs, treasurer of the Victor Chemical company, who is being held on charges of embezzling more than $70,000 of the company's funds.

Detectives unearthed a letter from Mrs. Georgia Bibbs, Wolverhampton, Staffordshire, England, dated Jan. 4, 1915, in which she asks the police to find her husband, who, she says, deserted her and their three children in 1901. She says she wrote to the police of Chicago shortly after he deserted her, but received no reply.

On Jan. 29, 1915, the police, answering her missive of Jan. 4, notified her that they found her husband working here. His arrest was not caused at that time.

Granted a Continuance.

Bibbs was granted a continuance until Sept. 12 by Judge Goodnow.

"I'd like to have ten days in which to settle a few matters," he calmly requested of Judge Goodnow. He was not represented by counsel. His attorney, he said, is James Todd, with offices at 108 South La Salle street.

After the continuance was allowed him he posed for photographs in the corridor outside the courtroom.

James Todd, attorney for Bibbs, said yesterday:

"This prosecution of Bibbs is an absolute violation of a written agreement he had with the chemical company. They agreed that if he would turn over all his property to them they would not prosecute. They accepted the $50,000 or more that he gave them."

How He Got Money.

"Bibbs," Attorney Kelly explained to the court, "had various means of getting the money. One was to issue duplicate checks. The stubs in the checkbook would be O. K. as far as the checks were concerned, but he issued others with duplicate numbers. It was pretty hard to check up on him. Another method of his was to have an express money order issued ostensibly to pay debts presumably contracted by the firm, and the money would be forwarded and deposited in his name at a bank in Florida."

Bibbs is 43 years old. He lives at 404 East Forty-second street.

SMALL FIRE AT HENRICI'S.

Guests at Dinner Hour Startled When Smoke Pours Into Main Dining Room.

Diners in Henrici's restaurant, 68-70 West Randolph street, yesterday were given a thrill when smoke filled the place. A grease flue leading from the kitchen had taken fire. Manager E. R. Burdette, with several assistants, hastily went among the guests, assuring them there was no danger, and none left.

ONION KING WEDS MRS. SPRINGER AS A SURPRISE

Widow of Late Warren Springer, Noted for Philanthropic Plans.

FORTUNE IS $3,000,000.

Mrs. Marguerite Springer, who is the widow of the late Warren Springer and who gained note for the number of benefactions she has announced, was married yesterday to Col. Edward Oliver, the Indiana and Wisconsin "onion king."

The wedding took place at Unity church in Warren avenue. It was a surprise wedding and an extremely quiet one. The Rev. Fred V. Hawley conducted the ceremony. He is an old friend of Col. Oliver. The only witnesses were the daughters of the bride and groom, Mrs. Edwin D. Keith of Chicago and Miss Julia Oliver of Waupun.

Both Have White Hair.

Col. and Mrs. Oliver were an impressive looking couple. They are nearly the same age. Both have snow white hair. Col. Oliver is a big man, most of whose life has been spent in the open air. He is not so well known in Chicago, although he has spent a good deal of time in Chicago during the last few months.

It was known only to the family of the two that they were to be married. The date has been uncertain. In fact, it was only on Friday that it was determined definitely that the wedding would take place yesterday.

It was the delay in getting the residence of Col. and Mrs. Oliver ready that caused a number of postponements of the wedding. They will live at 1306 Astor street, the old home of James L. Houghteling.

Bought Her Land.

The bride and groom have not known each other for a long time. Col. Oliver recently purchased the farm of Mrs. Springer in Indiana. It was near some of his own land there, and he wanted more room for onions. Practically all of the big hotels in the country use his choice varieties.

After the wedding Col. and Mrs. Springer held a quiet dinner at their home. In the evening they went visiting. Mrs. Springer-Oliver took her handsome husband around to her friends on the north side and surprised them.

"It was an extremely quiet wedding," she said. "We are going to remain in Chicago for our honeymoon. Our daughters will be with us and we shall love to remain right here."

Warren Springer died in February, 1912. Immediately thereafter his widow exhibited great anxiety for the whereabouts of William Springer, the son, and offered a reward for information leading to the discovery of William.

Well Known to Public.

November, 1901—Announced $10,000 for art institute site.

May, 1909—Announced $1,000 home for consumptives in the mountains.

February, 1912—Offered $5 for information about William Springer.

March, 1914—Sued by Architect J. D. York for $10,000 for failure of colony plans.

June, 1915—Sued by C. A. Murphy for $50,000 in "mystery case."

July, 1915—Narrowly escapes bandits in Mexico.

December, 1915—Announces purchase of Muncie Normal institute for $143,000.

December, 1915—Burglars loot her apartment.

Said to Have $3,000,000.

Col. Oliver is reputed to possess an estate valued at $3,000,000 or more. He is said to be a monarch of onion growers, in the cultivation of which fragrant vegetable he is declared to devote many acres of Indiana and Wisconsin land.

Mrs. Springer-Oliver has continued in the management of her late husband's real estate business, having offices in Canal street.

THREE LIVES IN DANGER WHEN YAWL HITS BAR.

Yachtsmen, Running Ahead of Gale, Miss Waukegan Harbor and Are Forced to Swim Ashore.

Three Chicagoans, members of the Lincoln Park Yacht club, had narrow escapes when the yawl Windward was shipwrecked off Waukegan at 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

When the boat was driven on a sandbar before a violent gale they escaped by swimming ashore. They landed on a beach and kindled a fire of driftwood, dried their clothes, and kept warm until the dawn revealed their craft being pounded to pieces by heavy seas.

The shipwrecked mariners are:

FREDERICK HURTIENNE, 29 years old, 1834 Wilson avenue, skipper.

The trio sailed from Lincoln park two weeks ago bound for a vacation voyage among Michigan resorts. They left Macatawa at sundown Friday for Chicago.

When the gale struck them they headed for the lights of Waukegan. They missed the entrance to the harbor in the darkness and ran to the north of the breakwater.

DOG SHOW TO HELP BABIES

Pride of Suburban Kennels Exhibited Under Auspices of Hinsdale Club.

Mrs. Margaret Reardon—"Wilna of Titinia."

Ruth Brinkman—"Ootah."

Aristocrats of dogdom came together yesterday at the second annual show of the Hinsdale Kennel club. The show was given for the benefit of the Hinsdale Infant Welfare auxiliary of the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago.

Among the dogs exhibited was Wilna of Tatiana, a Russian wolf hound, the property of Miss Margaret Reardon, and Ootah, who made a hit by being posed in the company of little Miss Ruth Brinkmann.

'BILLY' SKIDMORE LOSES LICENSE

Sullivanite at 1958 Lake Street Deprived of Right to Operate.

"Billy" Skidmore's saloon at 1958 Lake street was closed yesterday by Mayor Thompson, who revoked the license on the recommendation of Chief of Police Healey. The police report said detectives found six men drinking in the restaurant in the rear of the saloon on Sunday three weeks ago. Two of the men, it was asserted, were drinking a well known brand of bottle beer.

The license for the saloon is in the name of William Hayes, but Skidmore is said to own the place. It is listed in the telephone directory under the name of William R. Skidmore. Skidmore is a friend of Roger Sullivan and has been chief assistant sergeant at arms at several Democratic national conventions.

Three Other Revocations.

Three other saloon license revocations and one restoration were announced at the mayor's office. Although official information was withheld, it was learned that "Dick" Considine, Democratic politician and saloonkeeper at 2757 West Madison street, has obtained the restoration of his license, revoked three weeks ago for "habitual" violation of the Sunday closing law. John J. [Boss] McLaughlin is reported to have been instrumental in getting Considine's license back.

In the past it has been Mayor Thompson's custom to make public at once all restorations of saloon licenses. Recently, however, a policy of suppression has been put into effect with reference to Sunday closing violators who are allowed to reopen.

The one restoration announced during the day had nothing to do with selling drinks on Sunday. The man who received his license back was Samuel D. Seidman, whose saloon at 138 South Halsted street was closed July 10 because of an attempted assault on an assistant morals inspector.

Other Revocations Made.

The revocations made by the mayor, aside from Skidmore's saloon, were:

Simon J. Riordan, 1034 West Sixty-ninth street, charged with calling Patrolman John J. Ruddy of the Englewood station a vile name on Aug. 28 because he had reported Riordan's saloon for selling drinks the previous Sunday. Ruddy arrested Riordan, and, according to the police, was attacked by "ruffians" from the saloon.

Christ Nogalich, 2365 Clybourn avenue, characterized by Acting Lieut. Sauer of the Fortieth precinct as "not a fit person to operate a saloon." fined $50 and costs Aug. 17 for running a disorderly house.

MAGAZINE DEBTS $160,000; AVAILABLE ASSETS $1,300.

Home and Country Bankrupt—Trustee Urges Action Against Bonus Stockholders.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Federal Trustee in Bankruptcy Paul V. Connelly, in the case against the magazine known as Home and Country, also called the "Successor of the magazine known as Little Men and Women," and the Home and Country Publishing company, located in the Lincoln Inn building here, today at a meeting of creditors announced that the total assets of the company have yielded so far only $1,300, though owned by 2,200 stockholders.

Most of the stockholders are working women in various cities, Pittsburgh and Chicago leading the number of stockholders interested by a most sensational advertising campaign mostly by telegraph.

Trustee Connelly stated that the pressing liabilities so far listsed amounted to $160,000. The trustee further gave it as his opinion that immediate legal proceedings should be brought against those stockholders who have received bonus stock. There are altogether 2,200 stockholders whose holdings are said to be nearly $500,000, a large part of the same being unpaid, though the notes for the payment of the same are held usually by banks

M'KINLEY'S MINISTER TO AUSTRIA NEARING DEATH.

Addison C. Harris, President of Indianapolis Bar, Cannot Live, Doctors Report.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 2.—Addison C. Harris, minister to Austria in McKinley's administration, was rapidly sinking this afternoon. His doctors said he could not live more than a few hours. He is president of the Indianapolis bar and is 75 years old. He recently suffered a stroke of paralysis.

JUST LIKE FAIRY TO BOY.

Mrs. E. J. Fleming, Won by Youth Caught in Bad Company, Helps Him from Cell.

Frank Klecka, 13 years old, 2243 West Twenty-fourth street, a boy with a police record, was arrested yesterday when found loitering in the Wilson avenue district. With him was Emile Mroula, 14 years old, 2002 North Ashland avenue. The Klecka boy said he was selling a bicycle to his companion. Later it was discovered that Ned Fleming son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Fleming, living in Malden place, had lost his bicycle. Mr. and Mrs. Fleming visited the Town Hall police station and she was so impressed by the appearance of the Mroula boy that she gave him money and obtained his release. The Klecka boy was held and will be sent to the Juvenile home.

BILL'S WIFE GOES IN FOR POLITICS; LANDS IN COURT

KISSES DIDN'T FOOL HIM.

William G. Thompson of 8040 Escanaba avenue, a city fireman connected with engine company No. 72, at Seventy-ninth street and Burnham avenue, hasn't lived forty-two years for nothing. Bill—that's what they call him—has specialized in woman nature during the four years of his married life. He thinks he knows women.

Bill has a wife, Mrs. Catherine Thompson, who is regarded as one of the handsomest women in South Chicago. She is 26 years old. That she is as clever as she is pretty is proved by her success in politics. She won fame as an orator in the last mayoralty election when she took the stump for Mayor Thompson.

Bill works nights. Every morning when he went home his wife would throw her arms about his neck and kiss him. But that didn't fool Bill. For several weeks he had been suspicious that his wife was drifting away from him. He didn't know why it was, but he could feel the chasm widening. She had met a lot of rich men in her political work, and he was only a rough fireman.

Big Bunch of Roses.

Once Bill found a big bunch of roses on the parlor table. His wife said she had bought them at the florist's for 30 cents, and weren't they pretty? But Bill thought to himself those roses looked more like $8 than 30 cents.

Then one of his neighbors—of course it was a woman—met him on his way to the engine house and said, "O, Mr. Thompson, what a beautiful automobile you have and how your wife does seem to enjoy it!"

Now Bill had no machine, and he thought his wife always rode in a street car. Bill made up his mind right there.

Last Tuesday his annual two weeks' vacation began. He told his wife he proposed to enjoy it in New York. She seemed delighted. That would be just the thing. He needed something like that. She wanted him to go and he must be sure to wrtie to her every day.

Disguised as Tramp.

So Tuesday morning, with grips neatly packed, Bill kissed his wife good-by and started off down the street. But he got no nearer New York than the engine house. There he laid aside the fine clothes in which his wife expected him to cut a swath on Broadway and disguised himself as a tramp. Then he took up his stand on a corner near his home and just loafed around.

Late in the afternoon his wife tripped from her home dolled up in her finery. She stopped the tramp on the corner.

"Could you tell me where I take the car for Hammond?" she asked.

Bill—it was indeed our hero, as the dime novels would say—gave her the directions. He knew if his own wife had failed to recognize him he must be pretty well disguised.

At 4 o'clock in the morning a large touring car with headlights flaring came chugging into Escanaba avenue and drew up in front of Bill's home. Out stepped Mrs. Thompson and Charles W. Waterson, 7646 Luella avenue, an insurance adjuster. When they had disappeared inside, Bill crawled out from his hiding place beneath the front porch. He waited half an hour. Then he quietly unlocked the door and went inside.

Tells It to Judge.

Bill told Judge Gemmill in the South Chicago Municipal court yesterday that he had caught Mr. Waterson and Mrs. Thompson in extreme negligee and had used his home telephone to call the patrol wagon.

Mrs. Thompson and Mr. Waterson were charged with disorderly conduct. When they were arraigned Mrs. Thompson demanded a jury trial, and her case will be heard on Sept. 14. Judge Gemmill dismissed Mr. Waterson.

"This man was invited to Mrs. Thompson's home and under those circumstances is not to be criticized for going there. He cannot be held guilty on any charge."

Mr. Waterson said he had met Mrs. Thompson for the first time at the Beach Inn in Hammond. He had asked to see her home in his automobile, he said, and she had invited him in. Mr. Waterson is married.

MRS. LEVY SPENDS THE DAY DENYING SHE PASSED AWAY.

All of Which Concerns Two Levy Families—One with Something to Do Beside Answering Phone.

Deadly parallels have brought about many grievous errors, but none so uncanny as that surrounding the name of Levy.

Yesterday the following death notice was published:

LEVY—Celia, widow of the late L. H. Levy, mother of Herbert and Ariel, at her residence, 204 East Forty-eighth street.

Yesterday condolences were distributed between the homes of two Levys. But particularly surprising were those directed to the home of Mrs. Celia Levy, who lives at 6220 Eberhart avenue. Mrs. Levy was compelled to deny with great vigor before the day was over that she had passed away.

Her name is the same as that of the late Mrs. Levy. She, similarly, is the widow of L. H. Levy. Also she had a son of the name of Herbert. Her other son is called Harold, and there the coincidence closes. O. Engel, the celebrated fish magnate, who lives at the Levy residence in Eberhart avenue, was compelled to explain yesterday to numerous friends the cause of the error.

IRON FACTORIES OF LIEGE BUSY IN SPITE OF WAR

Vast Cockerill Plant Loses Much of Armor Trade; Still Employs 4,500 Men.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

[War Correspondent of The Tribune.]

LIEGE, Belgium, Aug. 8.—In the morning Liege lay under its workaday mantle of smoke—a Pittsburgh plus beauty, you might say, or "Pluto's own metropolis," as some one has called Sheffield. "Liege rests on volcanoes," said Victor Hugo, and the Belgian De Wiart calls it "la cité ardente."

I stood a long time on the heights watching the tremendous picture—white plumes of smoke bending above a sulphurous haze that made the nostrils smart. silvery patches of the Meuse, black church towers, the wide springing span of ancient bridges, and the girdle of green hills set with vast pyramids of mine siftings.

There was many a homely touch in the picture—squat steamers chugging up the Meuse fram Namur; children in long capes hurrying to school; old wooden shoes hung by the heel against cottage walls for flower pots, the toe being planted with flowering vines; beautiful white haired priests who responded with grave courtesy to the salutations of German officers, and idlers who draped themselves languidly over the iron rails encircling the view places on the heights and nibbled meditatively at long spears of grass.

Arms Makers Out of Work.

Inevitably there are idlers in Liege. Its arms industry goes back to the middle ages and its output in rifles for the first decade of this century was 25,000,000. It is self-understood that the war has killed the arms industry.

What are the thousands of artisans formerly employed in that industry doing now? The answer as to a vast number of them is, nothing. But the mining, iron and steel and zinc, lead and silver smelting industries of the Liege region have been restored to remarkable activity. The entire Belgian mining industry is being conducted by Belgians for Belgians under a general and reasonably flexible German control.

This control, as numerous Belgian mine directors testified, works out practically as assistance instead of control—assistance in marketing the product and in getting oil and explosives into the country.

Germans Aid Mine Operators.

A German mining engineer is in charge of every group of shafts and is in constant touch with the Belgian operators. He goes about the mines in waterproof garments and boots and has a more exact and sympathetic understanding of the problems and grievances of the men than many Belgian operators ever had. Some of them were emphatically of the old school of employers. They worked the mines for quick profits and had no prejudice against antiquated machinery.

I visited one mine on the outskirts of Liege where the hoisting engine was said to be forty years old. "We have none like it in Germany now," a German officer, who is also a mining engineer, told me.

The general policy of Belgian and French operators has too often been to force a property into paying high dividends within the first two or three years of operation, while the German policy is to put the greater part of the profits of the early years into extension of the equipment.

Cockerill Works Still Busy.

The most heartening manifestation of the industrial restoration of Liege was the Cockerill works in the industrial suburb of Seraing. These are world famous. Their history forms one of the most heroic chapters in the epic of modern industry. The stories of Pullman, Carnegie, and Krupp are not more wonderful. In peace time the Cockerill works employed from 10,000 to 11,000 men, including the thousand or so working in the firm's shipyards at Hoboken, near Antwerp.

Under German superintendence they now employ 4,500 men in the works at Seraing, and that is a good record of resumption when it is considered that the Cockerills' enormous output of artillery is now discontinued. The direct management of the establishment is Belgian and all its profits go to Belgians. Only the general oversight is German.

Begun by Englishman.

John Cockerill was the son of an Englishman who emigrated to Belgium in the latter part of the eighteenth century. He possessed an extraordinary genius for industrial organization—what the Germans, who respect his memory, call "ein aussergewöhnliches industrielles organisationstalent."

In 1807, in partnership with his brother James he took over a machine shop founded by his father in Liege, and from it his subsequent enormous interests developed. In 1816 he and James founded the works at Seraing. In 1825 James transferred his interest in the business to William I. of the Netherlands and for five years John had a king for partner. Then he bought out the king.

John Cockerill never ceased to grow. Not only was he always receptive to new ideas, but he sought them. He played an important part in the development of the steamship. The first rails which were laid on the continent of Europe were rolled in the Seraing works and here the first locomotive on the continent was built.

Powers Never Abused.

He was the founder not only of a colossal business, but of a school of engineers whose perseverance and talents have given discoveries of great value to the industrial world.

He was almost the first of the great captains of industry, as we understand the phrase, and, unlike some of his puissant successors in our time, he never abused his powers. He died in Warsaw in 1840.

In a quiet exhibition hall of the rambling structure, which for a hundred years has served as the grand entrance to the Cockerill plant and has housed its archives and library, but which in the eighteenth century was the summer palace of the prince bishops of Liege, there is a statue of John Cockerill and on the pedestal are the words

PERE DES OUVRIERS.

Roar of Factory Fills Air.

In the sunny courtyard outside a fountain was playing and the falling water made a pleasant sound. Around the basin of the fountain bronze figures of workmen stood sentinel. From the 270 acres of shops and yards stretching along the Meuse the roar and crash of the Cockerill fires and hammers and the rumble of the Cockerill cranes filled the air.

Dead three-quarters of a century, John Cockerill seemed still to pervade the place. With half of Europe trying to tear the other half to pieces, his work was going on. The invader ruled in his shops, but the invader had acknowledged the work to be as important as the war and was helping in it, and so the work went on.

On the enameled walls of the spotless engine rooms flashed the cock of the Cockerill arms and the words of the family motto, "Courage to the last," and with German sentries standing guard at the approaches of his works old John Cockerill was still the victor.

Makers of Armor Plate.

In times of peace the Cockerill product included great quantities of armor plate and heavy artillery. Now it is confined almost wholly to locomotives, machine parts, and structural steel, though in one hall I did follow for some minutes the construction of an armored fortification tower which is to be delivered to the Norwegian government. In another they were building ship machinery for Holland.

Many of the machines which are doing this work came from Germany before the war. One of the extensive activities of the works in peace time was the building of engines for the Congo Steamship company.

One of the productions of the establishments in Cockerill's time which is familiar to everybody, either through a visit to the Lion Mound or through pictures, is the twenty-eight ton Lion of Waterloo. Cockerill cast it from captured French cannon, but the French army marching to Antwerp in 1832 got a revenge which satisfied it by cutting off part of the lion's tail.

Plant Being Enlarged.

A great part of the present output of the Cockerill plant goes to the Scandinavian countries, to Holland, to the Dutch colonies, and to Switzerland. Some of it is sold in Belgium. Although the plant is by no means in full operation, work on the enlargement of it, which was begun before the war, has been resumed during the last year and is now approaching completion.

The most notable result of this activity is an immense new hall for the compressed steel forges and pits. The woodwork and glasswork of this structure are nearly finished, and they have given employment to hundreds of men.

Completion of the structure has been encouraged and hurried on by the Germans in accordance with the policy which underlies all their industrial control in Belgium, a policy summed up in words I often heard from their lips—"The important things to give work."

Use Furnace Gas for Power.

Even under the handicaps of wartime operation the Cockerill works can teach our country an important lesson. Throughout the works enormous engines are run by the gas thrown off by the furnaces. I was told at Seraing that at Gary there is an appalling waste of this fuel, only 10 per cent of it being used because there are no buyers for the rest.

When I was asked why this was so Dr. R. S. MacElwee, an economist from the faculty of Columbia university, said that it was partly because our people did not realize their opportunity and partly because the facilities for distribution had not been developed.

"There is enough of the stuff," he added, "to run four or five states." In Seraing all of this refuse gas is used, and in the Rhineland the power created by it is carried at least seventy miles from the plants and provides, among other things, free electric lighting for the employés.

WATCHING RARE BLOOM

Plant That Flowers Every Twenty Years "Snapped" by Camera in Hands of Watcher.

Miss Lillian Ryrholm and A Night Blooming Cereus

For many years Mrs. Buge Schroll cared for her "night blooming cereus" and watched for the flower. The cereus is a cactus which puts forth a beautiful bloom during the night once every twenty years. Finally, at 10 o'clock last night, her vigil was rewarded. At 12 o'clock the flower had faded, and the plant resumed a stagnant existence after its wild debauch. Lincoln park is said to possess the only other cereus plant in Chicago, but the one in the park has never bloomed. Miss Lillian Ryrholm, who is holding the flower, had not yet entered the world when the plant last bloomed.

10,000 ELKS SEE CORNER STONE OF NEW LODGE LAID

Parade Through Loop to Washington Street and Fifth Avenue.

A magnificent float, decorated in red and white, with the stars and stripes and the emblems of the Loyal Order of Elks streaming from it, led the Elk parade as it wound through the loop from the Grand Pacific hotel to the new lodge at Washington street and Fifth avenue. The corner stone of the new building was laid yesterday. Four girls, Miss Helen Rightor, Miss Helen Schillenger, Miss Mary Tabor, and Miss Pearl Hopp, rode on the barge.

Preceding the float was Johnny Hand's band, and behind it marched 10,000 Elks wearing Palm Beach suits and white hats.

New Orleans Man Serves.

The corner stone was laid by Edward Rightor of New Orleans, the grand exalted ruler of the order. A silver trowel, presented for the occasion by lodge No. 4, was used

Gov. Dunne congratulated the Elks on their prosperity.

"I am neither Elk nor Moose," he said, "but when I entered politics I joined the Ancient Order of Goats, along with Mayor Thompson and the rest of them."

Mayor Is Playful.

Mayor Thompson said: "This new building shows what Chicago Elks can do; it blazes the trail for Elks in every other city. The building committee was so efficient that instead of laying the corner stone on the ground it had to be laid on the roof."

Charles Beecher Lahan was master of ceremonies. Judge Jacob Hopkins also spoke. A dinner at the Hotel Sherman followed the exercises.

O'HARA BOYS NOT RELATED.

Boy Auto Thief Killed in Accident Not Cousin of Youthful Gunman.

Friends of Patrick O'Hara of 1645 Kedzie avenue, who was killed last Sunday night after he had stolen an automobile wish to have the report denied that the boy is a cousin of Howard O'Hara, who was arrested after shooting a policeman.

"Patrick was a good boy," said Margaret E. O'Brien of 1125 Webster avenue, "a very good worker, as his employer will state, and only did what thousands of other boys of 18 would do—steal a ride."

GAIRDNER IN PULPIT TODAY.

Rector Involved by "Mystery Girl," Reassured, Resumes Work in His Parish.

His heart lightened by a message from the vestrymen that there will be no further investigation, the Rev. R. H. Fortesque Gairdner, who recently underwent much anguish because of his connection with the arrest of Anna Stearns, "the mystery girl," in Detroit, will preach his return sermon in St. Martin's pulpit today in Austin.

Vollmer Will Speak.

Former Congressman Henry Vollmer of Iowa will be the principal speaker at the annual demonstration and picnic of the German-Irish Alliance of America, according to a tentative program arranged at a meeting of the picnic committee. The picnic will be held at Brand's park next Saturday.

Common Stock (Par Value $10)	700,000	400,000

Ben-Hur Motor Company has no indebtedness, bonded or otherwise.

We challenge any man to show us a single corporation that is organized on as clean-cut and unselfish lines as Ben-Hur Motor Company.

The stock offered is that of an entirely new organization, not a reorganization or rehabilitation of a company unsuccessful in other fields.

The shares you buy represent the original issue of genuine treasury stock--not increased capitalization, not the promotion stock of some officer or other person who wishes to unload.

None of this stock has been issued for other than cash, and not a single share has been or will be sold below par. There is 100 cents of actual, tangible assets back of every dollar of this Preferred Stock.

All of the proceeds of the sale of this stock go into the treasury. There is no promotion stock, and no brokers or promoters or investment houses are connected in any way with this enterprise.

There is no inside ring. When you buy Ben-Hur Motor Stock you participate in the benefits on the same ground floor basis as any of the original incorporators.

With its sound financial basis, its thorough organization, its able management, its comprehensive, thoroughly perfected plans, its hign quality car, and its broad, undeveloped market, Ben-Hur Motor Co. has every possible factor necessary to duplicate or excel the success of any motor car company in the industry today.

We feel confident that Ben-Hur Motor offers an unparalled opportunity, and we are staking our reputation and our own money on that conviction. However, we make no definite promises or guarantees. We want you to understand and appreciate that Ben-Hur Motor Stock does not carry the assurance of secured earnings of a government bond—that the future of Ben-Hur Motor Company is speculative as all business—and even life itself—is speculative.

Therefore, we will accept no subscription until the prospective stockholder, after thorough investigation, has fully satisfied himself that the claims we make are not only reasonable but feasible.

Also, we will accept no subscription from any person who can ill afford it, and is therefore obliged to make unwarranted personal sacrifices.

Should any such be on our books now, we will freely and gladly cancel their subscriptions and refund the purchase price.

We want only men and women in a position to invest money without hardship to themselves or their families, who earnestly wish to become identified with a soundly financed, well established, thoroughly organized company, possessing all the reasonable chances for unusual success in an unusually successful industry.

The reservation coupon carries with it no obligation to subscribe. It merely serves to protect you against the possibility of all the stock being sold before you have had an opportunity to investigate and decide.

Fill out and mail this reservation coupon now, and we will immediately send you full information, including full detailed statement of all company affairs.

In all cases we reserve the right to give preference to such reservations as, in our judgment, will best contribute to the interests of the company.

GREECE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD HAS FEUD OF QUEENS

Consort Sophia on Side of Germany and Olga in Favor of Russia in Present War.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

[Copyright: 1916: By the Brentwood Co.]

We have been hearing so much about the masterful Queen Sophia of Greece and of the manner in which for two years she has been exercising her powerful influence upon her husband to defy the wishes of his people in connection with the present war that it seems to be forgotten that there is another queen of Greece, Olga by name, who celebrates tomorrow her 65th birthday.

She will celebrate it not at Athens but at Petrograd, where she has been residing for the last eighteen months or more, refusing to sanction by her presence in Greece the hostile attitude of her son, King "Tino" and of her German daughter-in-law, towards Russia and the latter's allies.

Queen Olga is a Russian by birth, a daughter of the late Grand Duke Constantine Nicholaivitch, the sailor brother of Alexander II., and probably the most gifted and liberal minded prince of the house of Romanoff.

Olga Favors Russia.

Queen Olga believes that Greece owes everything to Russia. The latter was largely responsible for the success of the war of independence of Greece, and constantly stood between her and Turkey. In 1863, when Prince William of Denmark was elected king of Greece, under the name of George I., Russia joined England and France in undertaking to pay to him and to his successors on the Hellenic throne an annual sum of $80,000 by way of civil list, owing to the poverty stricken condition of the Athens treasury. Even to this day King Constantine draws the major portion of his official income from the governments of Russia, France, and Great Britain. When, in 1895, Greece, having insisted upon embarking herself upon a war with Turkey, in the face of the protests of Russia, France, and England, was ignominiously routed by the sultan's troops, Czar Nicholas came to the rescue and stayed the victorious advance of the Ottoman army when actually within sight of Athens.

Cemented by Marriage Ties.

Until King Constantine's marriage, the reigning house and the people of Greece always looked upon Russia as their protector and as the bulwark upon which they could always rely against the Turks, and the relations between the courts of Athens and of Petrograd were of the most intimate character. This was not only due to the fact of Queen Olga's being a Romanoff, but also because the Russian empress, Marie Feodorovna, was a sister of King George of Greece, the ties being further cemented through the marriage of Queen Olga's two daughters to the Russian Grand Dukes Paul and George and of her son, Prince Nicholas, to the Grand Duchess Helen Vladimirovna.

Sophia Works for Germany.

But before Queen Sophia had been established long at Athens as crown princess she set to work to endeavor to diminish the predominant Muscovite influence in Greece and to substitute in its stead that of the land of her birth—namely: Prussia. She devoted all her energies to the Germanizing of the Hellenic court, government, and nation. This naturally brought her into antagonism with her mother-in-law, Queen Olga, and with her husband's brothers and sisters. As Crown Princess Sophia grew surer of her position, she became more aggressive, and it was largely owing to her tactics that the army rose in revolt about eight years ago and compelled King George, under threat of deposition, to deprive the crown prince of the chief command of the army and of all his other military dignities, and to banish him, along with his wife, from Greece. It was M. Venizelos who, when summoned later on by the people and by the army to assume something akin to a dictatorship, caused Crown Prince Constantine to be recalled to Greece, and it was Venizelos, too, who helped Constantine, first as crown prince and then as king, to play a military rôle in the two Balkan wars. Yet today there is no one in Greece whom Queen Sophia hates with such bitter intensity as Venizelos, and at her door is laid the responsibility for the king's action in twice during the last eighteen months depriving Venizelos of the premiership when he was the the head of overwhelmnig parliamentary majorities.

Supplanted on the Throne.

The antagonism between Queen Olga and her German daughter-in-law, initiated by the latter, became more and more pronounced as time went by. It was sufficient for Queen Olga to espouse any cause for Sophia to combat it. When King George, who throughout the last twelve years of his reign had been busy keeping the crown princess in check, was laid low by the hand of an assassin and she became queen consort of Greece she assumed a degree of arbitrariness bordering on tyranny. It is not astonishing, under the circumstances, that Queen Olga should have found the situation in Greece quite intolerable. She was no longer queen consort, and as such the first lady in the land, but merely the queen dowager, subject to the commands and to the will of her eldest son, the king, who was completely under the sway of her German daughter-in-law. That is why she left, and her departure for Russia constitutes an additional grievance which the Greeks have against Sophia.

If Queen Sophia leaves Greece, as now appears probable, she will be remembered by the people of Athens, through the gift which she bestowed upon them, of a model slaughterhouse bearing her name. She had been shocked by the methods of killing cattle and sheep, and by the insanitary condition of the quarters devoted to this form of industry. So she made a study of all the different kinds of abattoirs, even sending to the United States, and having decided upon the one that appeared to her the most up to date, caused it to be constructed and properly equipped at Athens and then presented it to the city government.

Queen Olga enjoys the unique distinction of being the only woman who holds the rank of admiral. For many years she has figured as such on the roster of the imperial Russian navy.

TUBERCULOSIS DEATH RATE FOR CHICAGO DROPPING.

City Health Records Show Decrease of Fatalities for Scourge—Highest Known in 1915.

The tuberculosis death rate in Chicago is dropping, according to the records of the city health department. The figures:

1915, to Sept. 1	2,920
1916, to Sept. 1	2,670

Last year during the twelve months 4,169 persons succumbed to the ravages of the plague. This was the highest death rate ever recorded in Chicago. The figures for August show that 321 persons died last year and 272 this year, a decrease of forty-nine.

The city anti-tuberculosis organization has been under a "new management" since the death of Theodore Bernard Sachs last March.

"The organization may accomplish more under a new management," said Health Commissioner John Dill Robertson.

THIS MAN NEEDS CASH TO BUY HIMSELF LEGS.

Oscar Nelson Requires $30 as First Payment, After Which He Can Pay in Installments.

"I feel fit to run a race," said Oscar Nelson yesterday at the St. Elizabeth's hospital, and then added hopelessly, "but I have no legs."

Several months ago Nelson had a slight accident, which through inattention finally resulted in the amputation of both his legs. At the hospital he was given treatment free. His wife, much as she would like to help her husband, has all she can do to support herself and their boy. Thirty dollars is needed to buy the legs; the rest can be paid on installment after he starts working.

ATTORNEY C. G. ECKHART DIES OF HEART DISEASE.

Charles G. Eckhart, for many years a leading Illinois Republican and attorney, died yesterday in the Palmer house of heart failure. He had been ill for the last two years.

Mr. Eckhart stood high in Republican councils and was offered many positions of distinction, though he uniformly declined them. He was born in New Orleans in 1845 and was graduated from West Point in 1867. He removed to Tuscola, Ill., in 1879 and was admitted to the bar of Illinois in 1880.

He was a member of the board of pardons from 1905 until 1913 under Gov. Deneen. He was offered a place on the Supreme bench of the United States by President Taft, but declined. The body has been shipped to Tuscola and the funeral will be today from the residence of A. W. Wallis in Tuscola.

EDWIN KINDER died at his home, 1505 Ashland avenue, Evanston, yesterday. He was 95 years old. Mr. Kinder was for forty-five years a resident of the suburb. He was born in Yorkshire, England, and came to this country seventy years ago. Two daughters, Mrs. C. A. Kraft and Mrs. George Iredale, and son, George H. Kinder, all residing in Evanston, survive him. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence. Burial will be at Rosehill.

WILLIAM B. KENT, 1422 West Congress street, died at his residence last Friday. He was born in Chicago in 1682, his late father was west town assessor for many years. He graduated from St. Ignatius college in 1900 and has been with the Chicago Telephone company since. He was a member of council 301, Knights of Columbus. Members of that council will met at his late residence for memorial service tomorrow evening.

FRANCIS A. REND, 804 Tower court, died of heart failure in Greenwich, Conn. last Friday. He was the son of the late W. P. Rend, who had a large coal business in Chicago. He was born in 1885, and graduated from the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale university in 1907. He was a member of his father's coal company. The funeral will be this afternoon at 3 at Holy Name cathedral; the burial at Calvary.

Old Man Falls to Death.

John Johnson, 71 years old, 5652 Normal avenue, fell from a rear second story porch of his home and was instantly killed yesterday. He left his bed and walked out on the porch about 2 o'clock in the morning.

MRS. PETERSON GETS INVALID'S CHAIR AND CASH

Open Handed Chicago Rushes to the Relief of Helpless Woman.

Mrs. Hulda Peterson has her invalid's chair. It was taken to her yesterday afternoon. She was immediately lifted into it and taken out into the sunshine of the little porch before her home at 1738 Newport avenue. She was brought close to the flowers which relatives had placed in boxes just outside the room in which she lay confined. She was happy.

It has been four years since Mrs. Peterson has moved. Four years ago she was the active, happy center of a household. Her husband was forging ahead. Her son, Irvin, then 10 years old, was going to school. Her daughter, Bernice, aged 5, was hindering and helping in the housework.

Stricken by Scourge.

Then Mrs. Peterson was brought down with infantile paralysis. She came through the sickness with her life, but the muscles of legs, back, and one arm were useless. Her family labored to make the room wehre she lay motionless a place of happiness.

Two years ago her husband died. The little stock of money dwindled. Irvin and Bernice were sent to the German Evangelical Lutheran Orphan asylum in Addison, Ill., and almost never were allowed to come back and visit their mother.

Charles Krieman, an uncle of Mrs. Peterson, took her into the little house on Newport avenue. But he and his wife, too, were poor and could do little except give her food and shelter. Mr. Krieman is 77 years old and makes his living by sweeping streets for the city.

Gets Taste of Happiness.

Then a little time ago a neighbor let the bedridden woman take a wheel chair. Neighbors helped the feeble Kriemans lift her out into the sunlight. She was wheeled about among the flowers of the little garden Charley Krieman had built underneath her window, and she was able to watch a little of the children's play about the streets.

But the owner of the chair also was short of money. The chair had to be sold. Its price was $25. Mrs. Peterson saw even this last pleasure slipping beyond her, and she went back to looking out of her bedroom window.

"Tribune" Publishes Appeal.

On Thursday THE TRIBUNE published the story of the chair and asked for contributions from its readers with which to buy it. The story was short—only 144 words and it appeared on page 13—but it brought forth a generous response. Before night more than $43 had come in. Friday THE TRIBUNE published an acknowledgment and said more than sufficient money to buy the chair had already been received. However, every mail yesterday brought in further donations. The total is $124. Mrs. Peterson has a new wheel chair, not the old one that she borrowed, and a check for the balance has been mailed to her.

These Donate Money.

These receipts are acknowledged:

$10.00—Mary K. Haskell.

7.50—A. S. A.

5.00—R. M. Bell, Mrs. L. Casler, Emma Simpson, Jeannette Brown, "Anonymous," A. S. Loucr, Cahill Supply company.

3.00—James W. Burnet, K. D.

1.00—Fred Kellum, N. G. B., E. F. McCormick, F. C. Schultz, Mrs. Carrie Cunningham, O. F. Paisley, Musa Gilbert, H. P. C., L. L., J. H. Bradshaw, Ida Oster, Mrs. Herbert Smith, "Office Girl of Gary Hotel."

"Thank You."

Mrs. Peterson asked THE TRIBUNE to publish the following statement:

"I cannot write to thank TRIBUNE readers myself. I wish that I could say it to each one of you: Thank you. I am going to bring back my children with the rest of the money. Some time they will push me around in my chair. 'Thank you.'"

After the chair had been purchased this letter was received from Mrs. L. Hartman, 4357 Greenwood avenue:

"Have noticed in TRIBUNE that an invalid chair is wanted for Mrs. H. Peterson, 1738 Newport avenue. I have here an invalid rolling chair which I will be happy to donate if you will send for same."

OBITUARY.

M'CORMICK PAYS HONOR TO LATE WILLIAM H. JONES.

Cyrus H. McCormick, president of the International Harvester company, yesterday gave out the following statement concerning William H. Jones, vice president of the company, who died at Pasadena, Cal., on Sept. 1:

"The passing of William H. Jones take from the implement trade of America one of the old guard, of the rugged, valorous, picturesque pioneers who made American harvester machinery known and used throughout the world. It takes from the harvester establishment one of its founders, one of its original five vice president, and one of the vital factors in its upbuilding.

"All his success he had won with his own strong hands and brain and will and his tireless industry. He had come as a boy from a farm in Wales to a farm in Wisconsin; he had learned at first hand the farmers' needs and he learned personally how to make and to sell the machines that met these needs.

"From farm hand to farm machinery salesman, from salesman to agent, to superintendent of agents, to the organizer and director of a successful manufacturing company, was the road he traveled between 1866 and 1881. It was not an easy road; twenty hours a day, it is told of him, was not too long to work when he was selling mowers and reapers up and down Wisconsin in the '60s.

"To the formation of the harvester company Mr. Jones brought the Plano works, one of the five principal plants of the consolidation. He brought also to its counsels rare foresight and insight as to machines and men, the inspiration that attends breadth of vision and largeness of faith, high courage, and a masterful will. With these went a kindliness and a sympathy that made him as well loved as he was widely acquainted among the thousands whom he chose to regard and deal with more as fellow workers than subordinates."

SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER DIES AT PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 2.—Samuel W. Pennypacker, former governor of Pennsylvania, died today of uræmic poisoning at his home at Schwenksville, Pa. He was 73 years old.

Gov. Pennypacker for many years had been a foremost figure in Pennsylvania affairs. Before the notable contest in the Republican party in 1903 which resulted in his election as governor, he had served for many years as a judge in Philadelphia.

For the last four years he had been a member of the state public service commission.

Gov. Pennypacker wrote many books on legal and historical subjects. He was president of the Historical society of Pennsylvania and a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania.

CAROLINE VAN ARNAM HIGGINS, one of Chicago's pioneers, died at the home of relatives here Friday, at the age of 85 years. She came to Chicago in July, 1839, with her parents, from Buffalo, N. Y. She was the mother of David Higgins, the dramatist, and M. O. Higgins, also a writer and lawyer, and the widow of Milton O. Higgins, adjutant at Camp Douglas in 1862. She took and read THE TRIBUNE from its first issue to the day of her death.

OWN THIS 40-ACRE FARM HOME

MAKE $1,000 TO $3,000 A YEAR FROM CROPS

OWN a 40-acre Farm and be independent. Here is your opportunity. The owner of a 4,000 acre farm has just arranged to lay it out in one hundred 40-acre Farm Homes, erect on each one a new and attractive Bungalow, Barn, Water Supply and Fence with good woven wire, as shown in photograph.

You can grow all kinds of crops, such as Irish and Sweet Potatoes, Cabbage, Beans, Onions, Tomatoes, Melons, Cantaloupes, Garden Truck of all kinds, Corn, Oats and Hay, Strawberries, Peaches, Grapes, Figs and other Fruits, and quickly market all crops.

Located only about 24 to 36 hours from all the best markets of the country. A Marketing Department is now in operation, taking care of crops from another section adjoining. All you have to do is grow the crops and a big community like this can get the top prices. Over 9 months of growing season.

You can grow from $1,000 to $3,000 in crops a year and be independent. These 100 40-acre Farms will all be taken by people from Chicago and vicinity, and will be known as the "Chicago Community." Let us tell you all about this Chicago Community now being formed. Only 100 families can get in, for this takes all the farms. Our terms are very liberal. We require only $500 for first payment. Call at our office and see Photographs, and let the owner tell you all about these farms, and see if you do not want to own one of them. If unable to call, write for free information.

MARMON CHICAGO COMPANY

BEFORE YOU BUY A CAR
Get the Vital Facts From 300 Chicago Owners of the
MARMON 34

THE distinguished appearance of this long, low car, and its many scientific advances made it the leading attraction of the 1916 season. Now—for 1917—the Marmon 34 remains unchanged because the year's experience has revealed no important points where this Luxury Car could be improved. 1100 pounds lighter than cars of equal size and power, it has sold more rapidly than its makers could produce it.

It has won and held a popularity throughout the year that, we believe, has never been equaled. It was driven from New York to San Francisco, 3476 miles, in 5 days 18½ hours—the fastest time ever made across the continent by a motor car.

Here—in Chicago and vicinity—are 300 Marmon 34 owners who have bought this car since January last.

Many, just back from tours through the Berkshires and the Rockies—as far east as Maine and as far west as California—these owners know the comforts of riding in the Marmon 34, and how easily this car is handled. They know how it holds the road when touring at high speeds over country pikes.

They know how easily it runs up mountain roads—how smoothly, how securely, for miles and miles.

WE REFER YOU TO THESE OWNERS

Talk with them. Ask them what riding qualities they find due to the Marmon's 136-inch wheelbase, the compound cantilever springs, and the perfect balance of sprung weight (above the springs) and unsprung weight (below the springs).

Ask them about the saving in tires, gasoline and upkeep as the direct result of the Marmon Scientific Construction and the extensive use of aluminum in the body, motor and other parts.

You will find many, we believe, who have not had to pay the least attention to lubrication all summer. For the Marmon's oilless bearings and system of motor lubrication require only four grease cups on the entire car. Some cars have as many as fifty grease cups.

This Luxury Car rests its case with the men and women who own it. The fact that most Marmons are sold to their friends is significant. Before you buy a car, at least see the Marmon and scan the list of Chicago owners. Then ask those of your own acquaintance for the reasons why the Marmon 34 is unsurpassed.

MAKING HISTORY.

For the first time in its history the congress of the United States has enacted a law under duress.

No amount of sophistry should be allowed to hide that sinister fact from the intelligence and the conscience of the American people. The men who yielded to this coercion or for one reason or another abetted it—and these include the president of the United States—will attempt to obscure it. The American people, realizing that here is an issue rising above any partisan or immediate interest, will not let themselves be so deceived.

The president on Tuesday, Aug. 29, laid before congress five proposals for immediate legislation, the chief of which called for "the establishment of an eight hour day as the legal basis alike of work and of wages in the employment of all railway employés who are actually engaged in the work of operating trains in interstate transportation."

On Friday, Sept. 1, or less than four days after its presentation, the house of representatives passed a measure framed in accordance with this proposal.

One day later the senate followed the scurrying footsteps of the house.

It took congress fully eight months to pass bills to enlarge the army and navy of the United States in the face of a demonstrated need. What hypocrisy to pretend that the enactment of the eight hour bill five days after its proposal was anything but a surrender to the strike ultimatum of the brotherhood leaders!

The American people cannot be deceived as to this situation. It is devoutly to be hoped they will not deceive themselves as to its full significance. The precipitate action of congress is only the culmination of events the meaning of which ought not to be shirked by any American capable of appreciating the principles of free government or his own stake in orderly progress.

The roots of the present situation are underground. Only in the inner councils of organized labor and in the inner councils of the administration are they to be found. We know, however, that the representative who introduced the eight hour bill, Mr. Adamson of Georgia, in July assured the house there would be no strike, and we know that within a few hours after the first interview of the brotherhood leaders with the president Mr. Wilson proposed to the railroad representatives that the eight hour day without punitive overtime be conceded without arbitration and shortly after made his public statement in support of the eight hour day.

Mr. Wilson has acted throughout as a partisan, not as a representative of all interests involved. The political advantage of such a rôle at this time is very clear and the vote in congress emphasizes this aspect of the situation. But this makes it all the more imperative that the American people shall now study the issues involved and come to a clear judgment upon the course taken by their representatives so that the election of Nov. 7 shall put upon it a considered approval or an effective disapproval. We are inclined to accept accomplished facts and gamble with consequences. We cannot afford to do this with respect to these issues.

The question whether the brotherhoods shall receive a 20 per cent increase in wages has been determined in the affirmative first by the president and second by congress without investigation.

The appeal of the railroads for arbitration has been refused and the refusal condoned and rewarded by the president and congress.

The cost of transportation has been increased by many millions without inquiry or deliberation upon the propriety of the increase or decision as to the adjustment of the burden among those who must bear it. The interests of the investor, of the shipper, and of the consumer have been given no observable consideration up to this stage of the proceeding.

Not only has arbitration been thus thrust aside, but under threat of an immediate calamity to the nation congress has with a haste unprecedented in such legislation embodied in law a theory of wage estimate which if applied throughout the country as this law applies it to the trainmen's wages would shake the economic organization of the nation and produce results which most certainly were not given due consideration in the four or five days employed by congress in consideration of the act.

Finally it is for the American people to consider what the inevitable consequences must be in politics and in industry of a triumphant process of compulsion assisted by the president of the United States during a campaign for reëlection and consummated by congress under threat of the paralysis of a public service and the precipitation of heavy losses, even loss of life, upon the innocent public.

THE NEW DANGER.

As soon as peace is established in Europe the United States will face new conditions. No one can estimate precisely what they will be. The only certainty is that they will be abnormal.

Conditions are abnormal now, but it is the fortunate circumstance of this republic that the abnormality is not destructive to the United States. War has meant protection of home industries and demand for home products. Peace will mean a destruction of the protection.

Abnormal conditions will continue, but they will become threatening. The European alliances have perfected their plans for a trade war to follow the war of arms. No matter how people may speculate as to conditions which will be established as soon as peace has returned, the certainty is that conditions will be without precedent.

European nations will have great debts and demoralized industries. The peoples now at war have been organized as they never were organized before. Collectivism is a war necessity. Rehabilitation of nations will be a peace necessity. It will require a continuance of the close, centrally directed organizations now employed in war.

The nations will not flounder back to industrial and financial stability through the efforts of individuals. The state itself will direct and control the effort. Factories converted to war purposes will be again reorganized for trade purposes. As soon as industry can be organized on a peace basis the effort will be to substitute a stream of goods for the stream of money which has been leaving Europe.

This unorganized nation must meet the trade attack of two great alliances of nations highly organized. The United States will need organization and protection. War put money in the American's possession. Peace will make an attempt to take it away. The Republican policy is the one correctly formulated to offer organization and protection.

We do not believe that the protection of national industries and trade and the protection of American prosperity can be left, with good judgment, to a party which in policy and practice is opposed to the doctrines which must be applied. The Democracy believes in decentralization and in free trade within the restrictions of revenue requirements. It announces that a tariff for protection is unconstitutional as well as economically unsound. It is not fitted, because of these theories, to organize a national resistance to attacks upon American prosperity.

It would be unwise to give an administration which does not believe in the necessary policies the task of meeting an emergency by applying them. That an emergency will be present is unquestioned. That protective policies will be needed is unquestioned. That the Democratic party does not believe in protective policies and centralization is unquestioned. How then can it be wisely questioned that it will be unsafe to meet a certain emergency under an administration admittedly opposed to the policies admittedly needed?

FOR AN ADEQUATE REGULAR ARMY.

The Mexican situation has demonstrated the necessity for enlarging the regular army. The demonstration was so striking that even congress was impressed and as a result some legislation was obtained.

Unfortunately this legislation does not materially affect the present situation, which is preposterous and should be corrected so far as possible now, not five years hence.

We have on or near the border some ninety-five or a hundred thousand citizen soldiers.

They are there, we are told by the war department, because they are needed to prevent invasion. We are not at war with Mexico. On the contrary we are giving what government Mexico has all the support it has. We are not at war. The president has declared we are not to intervene. The service of the national guard is therefore to prevent raids of bandits, guerrillas, and revolting chieftains.

This is not a service for which the national guard was created and maintained. It is exactly the service for which we support a regular professional force of troops.

But with our traditional indifference to defense we have failed to provide a sufficient force.

The result in this emergency is that we have had to call out the national guard to supplement the regular force and help accomplish what that force should be made large enough to do itself. This has involved great injustice to the individual and disturbance of business relations. Men with families to support, men with businesses to carry on, men in civil positions of responsibility have been sent to do police duty belonging to a professional army. Private individuals and companies are voluntarily taxing themselves to help maintain this citizen army in the work for which it was not intended, making up the wage required to meet the obligations of the soldiers' normal civilian life, supplying them with many necessities of an efficient equipment, even including in some cases arms.

The situation is fundamentally wrong and congress should face it squarely. Passing laws and making appropriations will not meet it.

The first thing to admit is that our regular army is not large enough for its present or prospective duties.

The second that it is inefficient and unjust to require the national guard to do regular army service a moment longer than it is absolutely necessary.

The third is that the prospects of a restoration of order in northern Mexico are not bright and that the regular army should be increased, not in five year increments, as the army law just passed provides, but as rapidly as recruiting can be stimulated by proper legislation to induce enlistment.

No one knows what the disposition of the guard is to be, except, perhaps, the war department. The mustering out of the college contingents and of men having dependents, in face of the fact that recruiting has stopped while the guard is far below required strength, suggests that a protracted stay is not planned. But, whatever the time or process of demobilization may be, the need of an expeditious enlargement of the regular army has been fully demonstrated and congress should not delay action, even though it involve the amendment of an act passed within a few weeks.

The necessity for such an increase is made the more clear and inevitable by the fact that the use of the guard in the Mexican border emergency has in all probability ordained the gradual disappearance of the guard. The increase to 440,000 provided by the new law cannot be hoped for. On the contrary, it is probable that recruiting will be more difficult than in the past and the guards' present numbers will dwindle.

In such case an adequate regular army should be provided without delay.

LIMITS OF PHYSICAL TRAINING.

[From the Medical Record.]

The tendency toward physical training, as well as its specialized form, military training, does not aim so much at the increase of the actual physical power as at the increase of the reserve power. The former, no matter how small, is usually sufficient to maintain ordinary bodily needs.

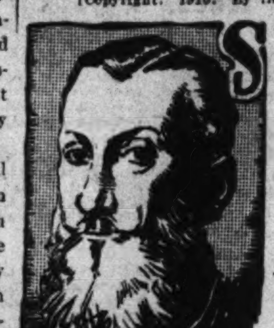
But the ordinary muscular force is wholly inadequate to sustain any unusual demands of the body, whether from disease or otherwise, and against which the body must be prepared. The laity speak of the increase of reserve force as a "hardening" process. Under this conception it is believed that any hardship or discomfort increases the body reserve, and that the more suffering and hardship the better.

The more comfort and ease under which one lives, the less reserve force there is developed—because not needed—and the "softer" they become. Hardening is exercise of the wholesome kind against resistance. It must, however, be done with an eye on the actual powers of the body, from the standpoint of endurance. The amount of fatigue must never rise beyond a point where the fatigue products can be easily absorbed and the body recuperate.

Otherwise, whatever increase of power there is will be actual and needed to drive a less easily running human engine. There may be increased muscular power, but it will be bound—"muscle bound"—to the actual needs of the body.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1916: By the Brentwood Company.]



SIR HORACE RUMBOLD, who has just been appointed by King George to be his minister plenipotentiary in Switzerland, is half American. For his mother, the first wife of the late Sir Horace Rumbold, was Miss Caroline Harrington, daughter of George Harrington of Washington, D. C., sometime United States envoy at Berne.

The present Sir Horace is married to a daughter of the late Sir Edmund Fane, who was British minister at Copenhagen. He shoots well, plays golf, polo, and tennis, and has been accorded special allowances by the foreign office for his mastery of the Persian and Japanese languages.

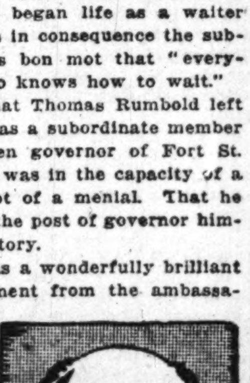
He is related to some of the greatest houses of the continental aristocracy of Europe, including those of De la Rochefoucauld and of Polignac in France and the Princes of Lobanoff in Russia. Indeed, the late Sir Horace Rumbold, who was British ambassador at Vienna, after having been born in Calcutta was educated in Paris under the care of his aunt, the Duchesse de Polignac.

Sir Horace is also connected with many families in the United States, through his mother, Miss Harrington of Washington, and through the marriages of his cousins, Henry and Cumberland Rumbold, with Baltimorean women, and of Annie Rumbold with Ernest K. Richardson of Philadelphia.

Sir Horace is descended from Thomas Rumbold, who was with King Charles I. as one of his cavaliers at the battle of Naseby, and from William Rumbold, who was controller of the great wardrobe of Charles II. Another ancestor of Sir Horace was a gentleman of the privy chamber under James I., while the founder of the family was a certain Robert Rumbold, who, according to contemporary judicial records still in existence, was in litigation with Alured of Lincoln in 1194, concerning lands in the shires of Essex and of Herts.

In view of this ancestry no credence need be accorded to the spiteful gossip of Horace Walpole, who insisted that Sir Thomas Rumbold, the first baronet of the line and one of the typical nabobs in London society toward the end of the eighteenth century, began life as a waiter at White's club and was in consequence the subject of George Selwyn's bon mot that "everything comes to him who knows how to wait."

It is perfectly true that Thomas Rumbold left London at an early age as a subordinate member of the suite of the then governor of Fort St. George in India. But it was in the capacity of a gentleman cadet and not of a menial. That he ultimately succeeded to the post of governor himself is a matter of history.



Sir Horace's father was a wonderfully brilliant man and on his retirement from the ambassadorship at Vienna published his "Reminiscences," which were most interesting. But they caused some consternation at the foreign office by reason of their caustic wit and unpalatable truths. This led Lord Lansdowne, who was then secretary of state for foreign affairs, to establish a rule to the effect that members of the diplomatic service "must not, without the express sanction of the secretary of state, publish accounts of their experiences in the countries in which they are, or have been, officially employed."

Lord Lansdowne emphasized the fact that this rule applied not only to the members of the diplomatic service in actual employment but also to those on the retired list.

The late Sir Horace's promotion to an embassy was delayed for a number of years by a curious piece of feminine intrigue on the part of a royal governess. While minister at The Hague no less than five of his juniors were promoted over his head to embassies. Resenting what he regarded as a gross piece of injustice, he set to work in 1894 to make cautious inquiries in London, with the object of discovering the reason for the treatment to which he had been subjected.

Ultimately he learned that a story had been circulated at court in England and at the foreign office to the effect that he had had a violent altercation with one of the royal chamberlains at some court function at The Hague and had nearly come to blows. Assuming the story to be true, it was naturally considered that a diplomat possessed of so little control of his temper was unfitted for the rôle of ambassador.

The only foundation that there was for this tale, according to Sir Horace, was that some years previously he had on one occasion left the railroad station at Amsterdam and had given up his ticket when he was told by his footman that Lady Rumbold and his youngest boy had come to meet him. He tried to reënter the platform to find them, but was roughly seized by a ticket collector, who, when he shook him off, insulted him.

The Dutch minister of foreign affairs apologized to Sir Horace for the rudeness of the man, who would have been dismissed from the service but for the envoy's intervention in his behalf.

Sir Horace relates in his "Reminiscences of a Diplomatist" that the distortion of this story and the transformation of the ticket collector into one of the chamberlains of the court was a piece of petty vengeance on the part of Queen Wilhelmina's English governess, Miss Winter, who resented having been kept by accident out of her usual seat in the English church at The Hague at the memorial service for King George's elder brother, the Duke of Clarence, organized by the British legation at his death.

Sir Horace thereupon brought the matter to the notice of the Queen Mother Emma, at that time regent of Holland, who was indignant at what she described as a gross fabrication and not only caused the Dutch envoy in London to explain matters at the foreign office, but likewise wrote personally to Queen Victoria to set Sir Horace right in the eyes of his sovereign.

Almost immediately afterwards he was promoted to be ambassador at Vienna.

PRESERVING HEALTH IN SCHOOLS.

DURING the month of September millions of children will be gathered together, grouped into school classes and launched on another year of school life. For two or three months these children have lived in the open air. For the next nine they will spend five or six hours a day in the rather close confinement of the schoolroom. As education is compulsory, some of these children will be forced, against the wills of their parents, and more of them against their own wills, to stay in school and take what comes.

The vacation season is the season of health for school children. The summer time baby sickness and death rates are high, but for the children over 3 years of age the sickness rates and death rates of June, July, and August are far the lowest of the year. Right after school opens the rates from diphtheria jump up. The rates from measles, scarlet fever, and other forms of contagion start up in September and climb steadily until February. The malaria rate increases. Children who have not had a cold all summer get sick with common colds. As the children come into the schools they are rosy, pink cheeked, bright eyed, and firm muscled. They will go down each month, until March will find a large proportion of them pale, flabby, and suffering frequently from headaches.

Some part of this is inevitable. It is a part of the price which must be paid for education. School inspection will prevent some part of this loss. The more efficient the inspection is the more of these preventable conditions will be prevented. Inefficient inspection will not help very much.

Cornell gives the following specific objects of school inspection:

1. The detection and correction of physical defects.
2. The detection and exclusion of cases of parasitic and contagious disease.
3. The maintenance of good hygienic conditions in the schools.
4. The diagnosis and treatment of cases of mental deficiency.
5. The correlation of medicine and pedagogy to produce the maximum of efficiency in the school system consistent with the preservation of health.

The importance of these objects is not in the order named. Nor must we think that we cannot start on No. 4 or No. 5 until No. 1 has been launched. The best place to begin is in the maintenance of good hygienic conditions in the schoolrooms. The cubic feet of air space in the schoolroom, the amount of air space and floor space per pupil, the temperature of the air, and the humidity can be observed and calculated by the students themselves. They constitute proper exercises for students in arithmetic. The height of the desks and the posture of the children can be observed and commented upon by students in physiology. Laboratory students can calculate air interchange, analyze air, examine water, milk, and foods generally. The school laboratories of town or village should do a portion of the work of the health departments. They make it possible for the health departments of townships to have laboratory facilities.

Probably the second place to start on this fivefold program is in the department of physical training. The school gymnasiums and physical training department are often criticised as not having enough of a health viewpoint. Too frequently there is no gymnasium or the gymnasium work consists of a set of mechanical exercises, mechanically carried out in a stuffy room. It is asserted that the only salvation of children in such schools is the unsupervised, natural, competitive play of the recess periods.

The reason for suggesting this as the second part of a program is that the improvements suggested do not necessarily require any more machinery than the schools now have. Somehow the instructors must get the health point of view rather better than they now have it. The practices of personal hygiene should be incorporated in the course of instruction. Correctional exercises for those pupils who, by reason of posture, or the results of disease and defects, are in need of such should be incorporated in the curriculum.

The remaining items in the Cornell program call for some additional machinery.

What is commonly meant by school inspection is the inspection of the children by physicians as a means of controlling contagion and of curing such parasitic conditions as lice and itch and the diagnosis and cure of physical defects.

In nearly all cases medical inspection starts during an epidemic as one of the measures for its control. Ten years ago closing the schools as a means of controlling epidemics was the prevailing policy. At the present time this is recognized as bad policy, except in the case of infantile paralysis. The accepted policy now is to keep the schools open during epidemics and to prevent the spread of contagion among the children by physicians and nurses.

In rural districts and in the smaller cities the teacher can handle the situation in ordinary times if she will keep a register showing the contagion history of each child and a contagion day book in which she will register all absences from school, all sickness of the pupils, in their families, and in the school district so far as she can discover them. Where this plan is followed, as soon as a case of contagion appears in the district, a council of family physicians, health officials, and school officials meet to plan a campaign. In many instances a nurse, or a physician and nurse, is temporarily employed.

In larger places it is good judgment to maintain an inspection service throughout the school year. If both physician and nurse cannot be employed and one must be eliminated it is better to eliminate the physician and to employ the nurse.

The growth of medical inspection has been phenomenal. Statistics showing the prevalence of medical inspection in 1914 are so incomplete as to be worthless for 1916. This means that the advantage of inspection is commending itself to the sober judgment. It is good judgment from both the financial and the health standpoint. In the face of an epidemic it is more economical to employ an inspector and a nurse than it is to close down the school plant and permit salaries to run on without any return for them.

Most careful epidemiologic studies have proven that it is wrong from the public health standpoint to close the schools as a means of controlling contagion. Children are the natural agencies for the spread of diphtheria, scarlet fever, smallpox, measles, and other forms of contagion. The schools are the natural places for their spread. School inspectors and school nurses minimize these dangers.

The examination for parasitic diseases is in reality a measure to promote attendance at school. When children with itch or lice are told to stay away from school until the parasites on them are killed they usually take advantage of the excuse to stay out of school.

The detection and correction of physical defects will be adopted only by the larger cities, at least during the next few years. In time, however, even rural districts will see the advantage of this form of inspection.

DIABETES.

M. H. S. writes: "1. Have just heard that there is a new treatment for diabetes which effects a cure within a few days. Is such a thing possible? 2. Is there any cure besides dieting?

"3. Will you please tell me what a person threatened with diabetes should eat, and what let alone, in order to avoid having said disease?

"4. Is it necessary to go on a rigid diet—gluten bread, etc., or is it permissible to eat something sweet, just occasionally? If gluten bread is not necessary, which of the other breads are best—contain the least starch?

"5. Is it safe to eat fresh fruits, if so, does that include cantaloupe and watermelon? A test has shown the urine to contain sugar. After doing without sweets entirely for six days, also all starchy foods except bread (and potatoes and corn once) there is still a trace of sugar, and a specific gravity of 1,030. 6. It should be 1,020, should it not?

"7. Could this be only a temporary condition, or does it necessarily mean diabetes? The water here is very hard and is considered by some of the physicians to be hard on the kidneys. Many people cannot drink it on that account. 8. Could such water cause the specific gravity of the urine to be too high?

"9. Is it true that the excessive use of sugar is the sole cause of diabetes? If not, what does cause it? 10. Also does this disease affect the eyes, and in what way?"

REPLY.

1. The starvation treatment cures many cases, but not in a few days.
2 and 8. No.
3. Get a copy of Hill's "Starvation Treatment of Diabetes" and follow it, under the direction of your physician.
4. Yes. None of the other breads are best or even good.
5. Fruit sugar is not harmful in diabetes, but do not eat fruits except under special permission.
6. Yes.
7. It means diabetes.
9. No. It may be caused by disease of the brain or pancreas.
10. In some cases diabetes causes degeneration in some of the essential structures of the eyes.

From time to time we publish lists of foods for diabetics.

BETTER STAY HOME.

Discouraged writes: "My fever runs up as high as 104 during the day; have lost in weight; have night sweats, although I have a good appetite. One physician pronounced it tuberculosis in third stage; another in primary stage. Both agree that I should leave the city for more favorable climate. One advises me to go south for the winter, the other to go to Colorado immediately. Now what am I to do? I cannot follow instructions of both. As they are both specialists in lung diseases, it seems strange that they should disagree so.

By going away I will not receive the care that I am receiving now. Therefore, don't you think that remaining here with the best of care would be the best for me? Can a tubercular patient having it in the third degree hope to entirely recover? Can you suggest where I could purchase a dietary suitable for my condition?"

REPLY.

I think you had better stay here. Go to a hospital or sanitarium if you can. Purchase Hawes' "Consumption." It will give you diet and tell you how to care for yourself.

CHILD STUTTERS.

Mrs. N. E. S. writes: "I am very much worried over one of my children. I have twin babies, boy and girl, 2½ years old. They have always been very healthy and are plump babies, weighing 34 pounds each, but about two weeks ago the little boy began stuttering and is getting worse. I have tried stopping his talk when he begins to stutter, but am afraid it isn't doing any good. Please tell me how to overcome this, or is it a nervous disease just beginning to show on him? As I said before, he is well and the picture of health. I thought by taking hold of this in its early stage I might be able to overcome it."

REPLY.

You are right. You can cure your boy now. After the habit has been thoroughly established cure is difficult. When he stammers check him quietly, gently, and firmly. Have him repeat what he was saying slowly and calmly. When he succeeds praise him and reward him more substantially as occasion warrants. Teach him to be calm and poised about everything. Have him learn and recite simple rhymes. Tell him stories and have him repeat them to you slowly. Do not ridicule him, scold him, or punish him. Allow no one else to ridicule him.

Bluemel, who has written the best book on the subject in English, says that an intelligent mother can usually accomplish all that is possible for a stammering child if, instead of waiting for him to outgrow the difficulty, she will undertake to combat the impediment.

BROKEN HIP.

J. W. C. writes: "About eleven months ago I fell and broke my hip. It was supposed at the time that it was only out of joint. Splints were used. When the time came the splints were removed. It was then found that the hip was broken. Hence I have worked continually, but have succeeded in being able to stand only by holding to something, and I am still trying. Now is it too late to bring it to walking condition?"

REPLY.

I assume that your fracture is what is known as an intra-capsular fracture. If so, in course of time, without any treatment, you will be able to walk on a smooth surface without a cane. When walking out you will need a cane or crutch. An X-ray examination might show conditions that can be remedied by operation.

SEVENTY-THIRD STREET SUBWAY.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—[To the Friend of the People.]—More than a year ago in the process of elevating the Western Indiana tracks a subway was dug at Seventy-third street leading into Hamilton Park. For the last six months the work has been in such a condition that the foot passage could have been improved at any time, yet for all that period we citizens who use that passage have been compelled to wade through soft sand and dust. A little water sprinkled on the passage daily would relieve the condition. I. M.

Regarding condition of subway in Seventy-third street under the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana Railroad company our inspector reports that grade stakes have been set in connection with the construction of curb and sidewalk in said subway and that the actual work of construction began on Aug. 28.
A. W. MILLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—[To the Friend of the People.]—In 1917 I expect to take out my naturalization papers. The first ones I already possess. Please inform me where I could prepare for the required examination. A. W.

There are numerous public school buildings in the city of Chicago in which evening classes are conducted for the instruction of aliens applying for naturalization. As soon as the public schools are opened for the fall term you may ascertain the places where evening schools are conducted by making inquiry of any school principal in your neighborhood or by requesting the office of the superintendent of schools to advise you.
MERTON A. STURGES,
Chief Naturalization Examiner.

PUBLIC COMFORT STATIONS.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Permit me to ask what is being done regarding the lack of comfort stations for public use in Chicago? A. R.

The matter is before the city council in regard to a bond issue for public comfort stations in all congested areas in the city. Up to the present time there has been no definite action taken.
JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

LOCATING A JUNK SHOP.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please let me know what the law is with regard to locating junk shops? Can a junk dealer locate wherever he wants to, or is the location of a junk shop forbidden in a residence district? J. E. T.

Our ordinance merely provides that such yards shall not be located within 400 feet of any church, hospital, or school. Perhaps a protest from the neighboring householders would prevent the issuing of the license. See your alderman.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MUZZLING OF DOGS.

Chicago, Aug. 25, 1916.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Does the city ordinance compel the owner of a dog to have him muzzled when the dog is kept in a yard to which there is no access? MRS. A. B.

No, but the owner is subject to penalty if the dog attempts to bite or snap at any person.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ASSUMED NAMES.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a man change his last name from Jones to Johnson without resorting to law? Is a marriage contracted under an assumed last name legal? MRS. W.

1. Yes, but his name does not become Johnson until he makes the change with intent that his name shall be Johnson.

2. Applicants for license are required to swear to their names, ages, etc. By swearing falsely one would run some risk. If there were no other impediment, we are of the opinion that such a marriage would be valid.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INSURANCE COMMISSION REBATES.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there a law covering the rebating of sales commissions to purchasers by agents selling life insurance? What is the penalty? F. S. G.

The statute provides: "No life insurance company shall make or permit any distinction, nor shall its agents pay or allow to any person insured any special rebate or premium." The penalty is $500 to $1,000.

PROHIBITION IN DENVER.

Blue Island, Aug. 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A few weeks ago the Chicago Brewers' association used considerable space in the advertising parts of the dailies seeking to call attention to prohibition's failure in Denver.

Here are the brewers' figures: Intoxication arrests in Denver for first half of 1915, 136; intoxication arrests in Denver for first half of 1916, 568.

Suspicious of these claims, I wrote to the chief of police of the Colorado capital asking for the facts. This is his response verbatim:

Department of Safety, Bureau of Police.
Denver, Colo., Aug. 22d, 1916.

E. W. Stahl, 123 Vermont-st., Blue Island, Ill.—Dear Sir: Replying to yours of the 12th inst., relative to the number of arrests for drunkenness in Denver since the state of Colorado went dry, will say that our records show the following results:

Arrests in Denver for drunk first half 1915 1,342
Arrests in Denver for drunk first half 1916 530

We have no data for the number of arrests in the state as a whole. Yours truly,
H. ARMSTRONG, Chief of Police.

Just now they are holding up dry cities other than Denver as examples of prohibition's fiasco. As I read their alleged statistics I remember how the falsity of their assertions was by Chief Armstrong so perfectly demonstrated in the case of Denver. E. W. STAHL.

THE GOOD COMRADE.

Dubuque, Ia., Aug. 29.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—An interesting light is thrown upon the spirit of the German people in war time by the song which has come to be the favorite of the soldiers on the field of battle. This, by the way, is not Lissauer's "Hymn of Hate," which had a wider currency outside of Germany than within, but Uhland's "The Good Comrade." We are fortunate in having an excellent English translation by Dean Farrar.

I had a loving comrade,
  My glory and my pride;
Amid the war drums sounding,
While heart and pulse were bounding,
  He never left my side.

Swift, swift the bullet whizzes;
  On whom shall fall the blow?
Ah, me! my heart bereaving,
Its fiery passage clearing,
  The bullet laid him low.

His hand he faintly stretched me,
  But ah! I might not stay!
No time for sighs or weeping;
God take thee in his keeping,
  Farewell, dear lad, for aye.

Even the soldier is human. His songs, his last thoughts are of comradeship, God and immortality.

OUR SECTIONALISM.

Chicago, Aug 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your editorials on sectionalism are enough to disgust any fair minded individual. Their lack of Americanism, however, appeals to the so-called citizen who has only lived here a few years and thinks he should run the country.

It would be well for you to suggest that such names as Washington, Randolph, Madison, Monroe, and Jackson be substituted for names of others not originating in your detested south. Would it not be fair to state as a supplement to the editorial in today's paper that Mr. Chamberlain was born in the south?

Chicago, Aug. 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—At the risk of being lined up with the ignoramus class, referred to in the editorial this morning, concerning the record of the Republican party on the navy, etc., I must say that the writer was 'way off in his statements and conclusions.

When the civil war closed we had a fine navy of wooden ships and a few monitors of the Erikson style, but during the twenty-four years of Republican administration the bulk of the navy was laid up in the different navy yards as a lot of old hulks, and it was the Cleveland administration that commenced the naval resurrection. I would call your attention to the report of Admiral Porter made at the request of a Democratic congress. The report showed that there was virtually no navy.

Congress went to work after the criminal state of affairs had been exposed and under the administration of Secretary Whitney and navy officers the real foundation of the navy we have today was more than laid during a Democratic administration.

As to Mexico. President Taft politely handed Mr. Wilson the bag, saying: "See what you can do with the muss." Property had been destroyed. Murders committed. What there was of the army Taft had planted down there. If Wilson two years ago in the presence of our trouble with Germany and Mexico had called troops the whole Republican press would have called him down for attempting to plunge the country into war. Such bunk only makes votes for Wilson.

CLERK VERSUS FIREMAN.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The clerks size up the average fireman as a fellow with a weak mind and strong back, and the fellow who wrote the article in your issue of the 17th should not be noticed, as evidently his brain has slipped below his belt from overexertion.

However, there are a number of clerks likely ready to fill engine cabs when the time comes and give some of these strong back guys a chance to come in and take places at the rating, routing, billing, and accounts desks and also yard clerk jobs.

Firing will be easy then—are you on? Women, of course, can do railroad clerical work after training for that purpose, and they can also write a fireman's letters without training.

PURIFYING THE WATER.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—There has been much complaint and much eye, ear, and intestinal trouble due to pollution of the water at the bathing beaches, and it seems certain that some of this pollution must reach the water supply intakes. This could be remedied, on the north shore at least, at no great expense, by placing a number of small intakes near the shore.

For Diversey beach these could be connected to the Fullerton avenue flusher, and for the Clarendon and Wilson beaches to the Lawrence avenue sewer, and thus an appreciable percentage would be pumped over to the north branch.

PLAYING SAFE

By Robert Herrick

WHEN Italy, after nine months of agonizing doubts, resolved to venture all and join the allies against her former partners, it was generally expected that her cousins, the Roumanians, would do likewise—if not then, shortly. Take Jonesku and other Roumanian statesmen, as Venizelos in Greece, saw their country's salvation, morally and materially, in taking the great risk, for risk it was at that dark hour of the allies' when Russia was being forced back from Hungary through the Carpathian passes, yielding Galicia, and the ill starred Dardanelles expedition was devouring men and ships without appreciable accomplishment. But the councils of more cautious statesmen prevailed, and Roumania decided to stand pat. Again, a few months later, there was renewed agitation in the Roumanian capital, and rumors of friction between Bulgaria and Roumania became common.

When the Bulgars joined the Teutons in their raid through Serbia it was supposed a sufficient stimulus to national fears had been given to push Roumania into the camp of the allies. The wheat crop was held back, and Berlin apparently became alarmed. But the Germans were beating the empty handed Russian troops through Poland, and again Roumania decided to play safe. German diplomats arranged a mutually advantageous trade deal with the little Balkan state, and it was believed that Roumania was finally safely sewed up in the net of the central powers. But Roumania finally jumped.

Greece is another good example of national playing safe. And the result is that she finds herself in the humiliating position of being the involuntary host to two contending armies and that she will get nothing but humiliation from the great peace. For the wisest policy for states, as for individuals, is not always to play safe.

* *

WE, too, have played safe in regard to the European war. Under the wavering Wilson diplomacy we have managed thus far not to get "involved," maintained our national honor by firing broadsides of protests at both belligerents. "We would have peace with honor if possible, but peace with Germany at any price!" And we, too, are likely to find ourselves in a humiliating, possibly dangerous, position at the conclusion of the war, when Europe settles down to counting the cost and paying the bills. Whatever alignment of national forces and interests may result, whatever trade alliances are arranged, one thing is clear enough, and that is none of the contestants will consider either our feelings or our interests.

The allies know that they have paid in hard cash for what they have had from us; and the Germans feel that we did our best, indirectly, to keep them from victory, while we served our own selfish interests in security. That Wilson battlecry of freedom, "I kept you out of war!" may sound differently to our ears when we find ourselves also kept out of the benefits of the new world to come into being, when we begin to realize how cordially we are disliked as a nation by pretty much all the peoples of the earth, in spite of all our—private—generosities, all our solemn—public—protestations of good will. "You played safe!" will be the universal contemptuous sneer. "Well, you have had your reward!"

* *

THERE are examples of nations who have disdained to play safe. Belgium had her opportunity to play safe when Germany demanded free access to the exposed flank of France. Belgium didn't. Today she is a ruined, devastated country, her people either living on charity at home or wanderers over the earth. To the shortsighted philosophy of the prudent that might seem in itself a sufficient answer to the question whether it is always best to play safe. Yet the one fixed point in the consciences of all her allies is the complete restoration of Belgium to her own people.

Peace without that being done is simply inconceivable. Germany knows it, and the nemesis of Belgium may well prove her ruin. And the one tremendous moral fact of the whole colossal war is the abhorrence Germany has won by her conduct towards a brave little people who did not play safe. Belgium will go down into eternity as the martyr among nations because she dared not to play safe. For all that, Belgian men, women, and children are suffering for daring not to play safe. Belgium will forever be honored and perhaps may even endure more securely because of this supreme act of courage.

WHEN nations play safe they may be wise or shortsighted; they have a certain sort of excuse. But when the individual plays safe before a great crisis there is in the heart of every aspiring human being a sensation of contempt, tolerant and unexpressed perhaps, but none the less potent. Our hearts glow when men and women are large enough to grasp courageously their personal risks, scorn the prudent policy of playing safe. And when we see a man or woman fail to become what he or she might become had the spirit prompted to danger and sacrifice we are sad.

Especially is this true of men in public life. Mr. Wilson plays safe when he accepts the railroad brotherhoods' impudent refusal to arbitrate their demands and puts up the onus of the great strike to the railroad managers. Capital is unpopular; labor is popular and has the votes. Mr. Wilson played safe when he allowed the submarine negotiations to drag on, instead of handing the German ambassador his passports the morning after the Lusitania was torpedoed.

Mr. Hughes plays safe, in an amiable and stupid manner, when he carefully avoids giving offense to any element of the voters by confining himself to irrelevancies or minor details, when he talks about the benefits of a high tariff and the desirability of good civil service, instead of telling us what he would do with Germany should she begin her submarine tactics once more, what he would do with German conspirators in our country, what his attitude is on American isolation, etc. The platitude is safe; the generality is safe—at least the politicians think so.

Both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Hughes are politicians, and as politician Mr. Wilson is much clever than Mr. Hughes and has obvious advantages of position. We have a greater politician than either—Roosevelt—great enough to disdain to play safe. The most powerful personal popularity of our day has been due in large part to his contempt for the prudence of the little man; his fearless, reckless disdain of personal consequences. He knows that before great issues the unsafest thing of all is to play safe.

* *

IT is not so much of the shortsightedness of national policy or political shifts in playing safe, however, that I wish to speak. It is the moral and mental aspect of the thing itself where it hits you and me. What is the quality of soul exhibited by those who temperamentally and habitually play safe? First, cowardice. They had rather a smaller accomplishment safely won than the risk of great ventures. Four per cent is good enough for them. They pride themselves on the meanness of their vision—on their content with what they cannot possibly lose.

And, second, the foundation of playing safe lies in a lack of real conviction about anything except personal safety. Nothing seems of sufficient worth or sufficiently sure of attainment to risk largely for it. The players safe in private life, no matter what their worldly position may be, are small souled, little folk; they rarely come to want; they industriously feather their own nests; they come in before it rains and have an eye cocked for possible clouds. They are never large losers and seldom large winners. They make a virtue of contentment. For safety seems to them the paramount consideration in a stormy world. Their supreme ideal is safety—it is cheap at any price, at any compromise of old convictions. They are our conservatives, our reactionaries, our "safe" citizens.

But are they safe, I wonder? In a world where so much still has to be left to chance, it is not always safe to play safe. Conviction and courage would seem about the safest moral equipment human beings can have at this crisis of affairs. Conviction and courage rally supporters in a marvelous fashion, for the majority of mankind admire them, even if they have them not. How many lives have been ruined by playing safe! The girls who marry "wisely," the young men who fret on throughout life in uncongenial work because they lack courage to leave a safe salary for the stormier fate of an unsalaried existence, the middle aged men and women who have endured dishonor and sorrow rather than take the risks involved in putting themselves in a true position towards life—all these are preparing for themselves a sad and empty old age, unmellowed by the glow of effort, of daring, of aspiration. They have played safe all their lives, and their reward will be to sit safely by the fireside until death comes to take them away.

What an awful world it would be where all men and women should play safe, should avoid every possible risk, every sacrifice, every dubious issue, all desperate causes and heroic stands—a world in which the unconquered spirit was unknown and the readiness to give all and lose all rather than lose the soul of life! God defend us from living in such a world—the politicians' world!

Roumania Redivivus.

By John T. Bramhall.

"THE Roumanian is very obstinate in character and does not let himself be easily persuaded," says the wife of an Austrian officer of Roumanian cavalry. "He does nothing without reflection, and often he reflects so long that the time for action has passed. This slowness has become proverbial, for the Saxon says, 'God grant me the enlightenment which the Roumanian always gets too late.' Frankness is not regarded as a virtue, and the Roumanian language has no word which directly expresses this quality. What is commonly understood by military enthusiasm is wanting in the Roumanian, for he is too ignorant to perceive the advantage of letting himself be shot in the service of a foreign master, for a cause of which he understands nothing and cares less."

This summary of the Roumanian character will go a long way to explain the procrastination of these song loving shepherds and farmers on the southern slopes of the Transylvanian Alps in espousing the cause of the allies. They want to be certain before they do so, that they will get back the filched provinces of Bessarabia from Russia and Bukovina from Austria-Hungary.

"It is a fine country," said a Hungarian Saxon, "but there are dreadfully many Roumanians," and this expresses the sentiments of Hungarians on the north and Turks on the south. A popular legend of Transylvania tells how, when the Lord sent the Hungarian angel Gabor (Gabriel) to Paradise to banish Adam and Eve, the erring pair so regaled the angel with good fare (even as Milton relates) that he had not the heart to fulfill his mission.

Then the Wallachian (Roumanian) angel Florian was sent down to carry out the sentence, but Adam asked roughly for his warrant and Florian turned back, abashed. Then the German archangel, Michael, was given the writ of eviction. Hospitality and sternness were alike of no avail. "Verboten, heraus bringen!" And out they went.

The Russians have been accused of a blind superstition, but the Roumanian is said to exceed him in his ignorant pantheism. The idea is strongly rooted in the Roumanian mind that they alone are Christians and that consequently no one can be a Christian without also being a Roumanian, and this seems to imply that there was a time when the two words were identical for them, and that, surrounded for long by pagans with whom they could hold no sort of community, they lacked all knowledge of other existing Christian races.

What would appear to be Pharisaism is merely a historical survival. After the conquest of Dacia by the Romans in the early part of the second century, A. D., that province, with the plateau of Transylvania, "the land beyond the forest" became the stronghold and base of the Roman dominion in those parts. On almost all sides the new territory of Rome was surrounded by barbarians. To defend the new province against them Trajan founded military stations in the mountain country, and around them Roman influence spread out beyond the area of the actual province.

After the conquest of Dacia Roman influence and civilization covered like a blanket both shores of the Danube, less potent of course in proportion to distance, but for one very good reason the Romanization was more complete here than anywhere else on the eastern front. Romans had settled there before the conquest, for Dacia was the California of those days of scarcity of gold, and Trajan himself brought here colonists from every part of his immense empire.

Still more colonists came of their own private initiative, attracted by the lure of gold or through the trading instinct. Roman kultur was introduced into the Carpathians and in a short time the Dacians who still remained after the conquest accepted the Roman rule and Roman citizenship. Roman towns arose, Roman roads were built, and Roman camps enforced peace. The flying dragon of Dacia was preserved on the Daco-Roman arms, together with the bent sword, easily distinguishable on the coins from the short, straight sword of the Roman.

For a century and a half Dacia was part and parcel of the Roman empire, quite long enough for the Romanization of a province which attracted such crowds of settlers. But it was not an area of uninterrupted tranquillity. There were others who wanted a place in the sun. Trajan's successor was disgusted with the constant struggle he had to maintain to hold Dacia. In fact, Hadrian seems to have been too proud to fight. In fact, he wanted to "scuttle." But there were some among his counsellors who believed that the eagles "should stay put," and according to a writer of the time, "it would be a great pity to leave so many Roman citizens helpless against the barbarians."

So the Philippine bill of A. D. 120 did not pass. It came up again a century and a half later under Aurelian, and the order went forth for Romans to get out of Dacia. "Rome," said Guillelmus Brianus, "should exploit no lands that any other people wanted." But what were the peaceful Daco-Roman provincials to do, with the Roman arm withdrawn? To wait serenely to be overcome and plundered by the wild invader?

Some gathered up their movable wealth and trekked to safer regions of the empire. As for the poor, their homesteads were destroyed, their tilled land ravaged, and they could only seek safety with their cattle and sheep in the mountain valleys, where such names as Caucasus Mons (Mount Cocan) and Muntele Christianitor (the mountain of the Christians) preserve the tradition of their wanderings.

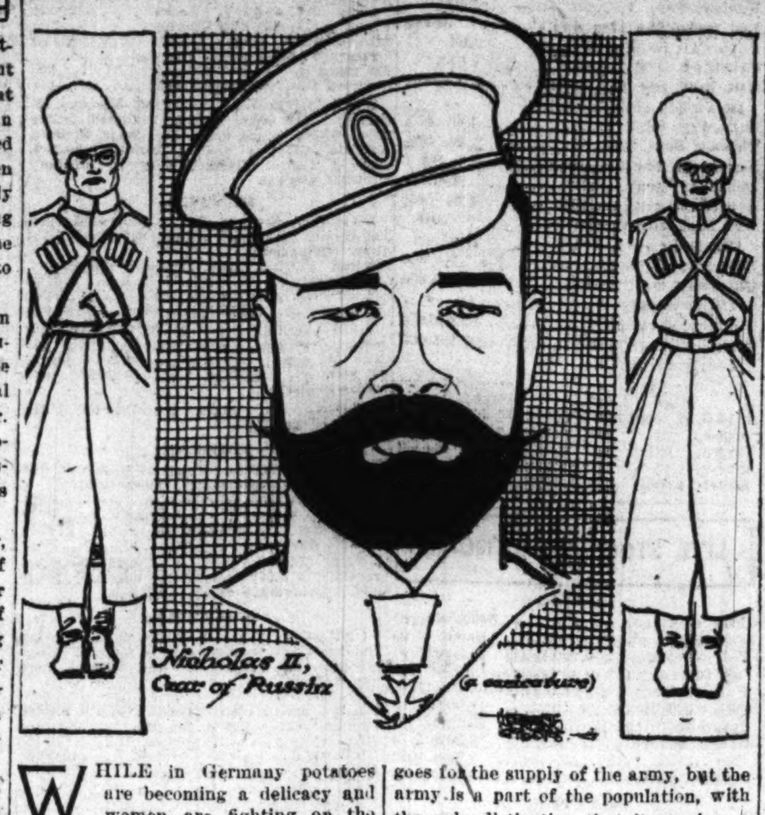
The Roumanian says no more "Christian," but "Crestin." And here are Trajan's table, Trajan's prairie, and Trajan's walls. The common word "troian," for the snowdrift suggests the wonderful wall built by the great emperor, and the Milky Way is called by the Roumanians "Calea lui Trajan," or "Trajan's road." For thirty generations or more the Roumanians led the pastoral life, each handing down to the next a fainter and fainter memory of the grandeur that was Rome, and each burying along with itself something more of the Roman civilization.

The two principalities of Valachia on the north of the Danube and Moldavia, stretching up into the eastern Carpathians, united to form the modern Roumania, and Prince Carol became King Charles in 1881. His nephew, Ferdinand of Hohenzollern, an Austrian princeling, succeeded him in 1914.

Roumania has her Alsace and Lorraine in Russian Bessarabia and Hungarian Bukowina and Translyvania, and her "aspirations" extend to the whole Danube valley east of the Iron Gates up to the slopes of the Hamus, or Balkan range. The power that controls the Danube threatens Vienna and is likely, with the help of the allies, to break the chain that binds Turkey to Germany and to open the gates of the Dardanelles.

OPULENT RUSSIA

By Alexander S. Kaun



Nicholas II, Czar of Russia

(a caricature)

WHILE in Germany potatoes are becoming a delicacy and women are fighting on the streets of Charlottenburg and Düsseldorf for a place in the butter line; while at Warsaw horse meat has become a dainty meal of the privileged, whereas the less well to do lick their fingers after a dish of dog chops—Russia, in spite of the terrible strain and stress she has gone through during the last two years, appears to be better fed and provided than ever. Moreover, with a few insignificant exceptions, nearly all the classes of the population in Russia proper are showing symptoms of increasing wealth and well being.

One comes to this conclusion after reading over reports and essays written by most cautious and scholarly Russian economists who cannot be accused of twisting facts and figures for patriotic reasons, the less so since as a rule they belong to the opposition and their writings appear in organs hostile to the government. Let us cast a glance at the state of some classes of the Russian society at present.

First, as to the peasantry, the backbone of the population. From various parts of the empire are coming reports concerning the improved material position of the peasants and the heightened standard of their living. They have a surplus of bread, use considerably more than before such commodities as meat, eggs, dairy products; in spite of the raised prices they buy in unprecedented quantities cloth, leather, etc.

As to the manufacturers, it is needless to say that with the exceptions of distillers and brewers all the rest are passing through a golden period, receiving enormous profits from fiscal orders as well as from private consumers. The same may be said about the merchants, for whom the rising conjuncture brings if not a golden at least a paper rain of money. The increased income of the manufacturers and the merchants is one of the main reasons for the mad luxury and extravagance manifested at present in big Russian centers.

In regard to the conditions of the workingmen the reports are contradictory. All agree as to the increase of their earnings; but some suggest that they have increased in a smaller proportion than the prices on commodities. V. E. Den, a careful observer and economist, asserts in the Russkaia Nysl that for numerous categories of the labor class the wages have increased absolutely—i. e.: that in spite of the high cost of living they are in position to live in more comfort than before.

The difficulty of the land owners in obtaining laborers and beasts of burden is compensated through the influx of war captives who perform field labor and also through the higher market prices for agricultural products.

Thus the general picture appears rather favorable: If not all, then nearly all classes have become richer and can better satisfy their needs. A few strata of the population present a dissonance in this picture. Among them are those who live on a definite, unchangeable income, such as clerks in governmental and public institutions, rentiers, or those who receive pension. In some cases the governmental officials receive extra pay during the war time; the others can easily increase their income in view of the present demand for labor.

What are the causes of this paradoxal phenomenon that the Russian people as a whole grow not poorer but richer in spite of the great war, which requires an enormous strain of all forces and resources and disturbs the normal course of the economical life?

One reason may be found in the stupendous amount of money that has come into circulation since the beginning of the war. Of the 30,000,000 rubles that are spent daily on the war by Russia the larger part remains in the country for the remuneration of those who supply the army with all its necessaries. The money flows in wide torrents over the entire country, increasing the incomes of millions of men who are in position not only to satisfy their needs but also to swell the banks with their savings. Hence the unprecedented fact that the ministry of finance has been able to place on the internal market a series of consecutive loans for billions of rubles—a fact that would appear improbable a few years ago.

Yet this reason would not be sufficient in itself. Wealth consists not of money but of "necessary, useful, and pleasant commodities" which serve for the satisfaction of human needs. Has the amount of such commodities increased in Russia parallel to the increase in the amount of money? In products of such primary importance as bread, eggs, butter, sugar, flax, and hemp the export has almost ceased and they are consumed at home. True, a considerable part of those products goes for the supply of the army, but the army is a part of the population, with the only distinction that it requires a higher consumption per person.

At the same time it is noteworthy that the imports have decreased in a far lesser degree than the exports. The Russian balance of trade, which has been constantly favorable for years, has become greatly unfavorable since the outbreak of the war; in 1915 the passivity of the balance reached 600,000,000 rubles. Although this phenomenon has undoubtedly its detrimental sides, it has its favorable aspect in respect to the amount of commodities in the country.

Another reason for the sufficiency of Russia's resources is the enormous amount of her reserved supplies, which are at present being utilized. For instance, the temporary cessation of the import of foreign coal, together with the conquest of the Dombrovo coal region by Germany, have not affected industry to a great extent, but merely caused the more intense utilization of Russia's immense forests for fuel purposes. The destruction of the native forests is undoubtedly a calamity, but it is an indispensable compromise in time of war. One must add another resource for the increase of national efficiency in Russia—a more economical use of consumed commodities. With the rise of prices, the dearth in certain commodities (as metal), and more intense use of others (as wood), the population has become more frugal and less wasteful.

How about the lack of labor power and its resultant decrease in the productivity of the country? Undoubtedly the army has absorbed a great amount of working power, which circumstance could not but be reflected on the dimensions of the productivity. The Russian economists do not undervalue the significance of this grave fact, but they point out to a number of counteracting circumstances. On one hand the intensiveness of labor, which used to be generally low in Russia, has greatly risen since the war. This was conditioned by the spiritual upheaval connected with the war, as well as by the heightened level of well being (a better fed man works better); another contributing cause for the improved intensiveness has been the inestimable beneficiary influence of the great reform—the prohibition of vodka.

Then there are good reasons to believe that before the war Russia, especially her black soil central region, had a surplus of population. One should note also the multiplied participation of women in agriculture, industry, roads of communication, various governmental and public institutions, etc. Finally we must not overlook the large contingent of war captives who are performing at present work in the fields as well as in some branches of industry.

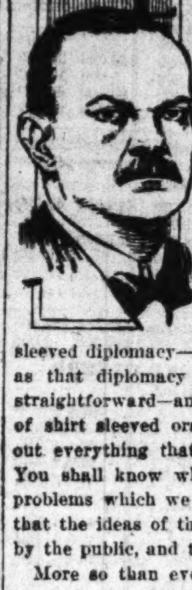
Whether this general prosperity of Russia will endure depends upon the duration of the war. The reserved capital cannot last forever; its inevitable exhaustion is bound to bring need and suffering for the people. We must bear in mind also that thus far the war has not placed any heavy financial burdens upon the population; the raising of some taxes, and the introduction of a few new taxes, have not been sufficient even for filling up the gap caused by the abolition of the vodka income. This situation cannot last much longer. If the war is to continue (and there are no indications for a near end of it), the government will be forced to levy new taxes, and the prosperity of the broad strata of the people will evaporate. Whatever the outcome of the war, it will require colossal sources for recuperation, for restoring the devastated provinces, for remitting the enormous foreign loans, etc. The only source for those expenditures will be again the pockets of the people.

Yet the Russian economists are optimistic as to the future. They believe that the creative element in national economy is primarily "man and his productive labor"; if that factor is alive and active, the country will be able to bear the heaviest economical shocks, and even to emerge from them strengthened and revived. As an example may serve the Russo-Japanese war and the revolution which followed it. In less than ten years after those events Russia met the new great war with all the might of her economical and financial equipment.

This is explained by the fact that the revolution and its resultant reconstruction of the order of things introduced a fresh current into the stagnant life of the people, has awakened the dormant national forces, and has elevated the individual and his creative energy. The same consequences may be expected from the present war. The stirred, electrified, rejuvenated nation will prove powerful enough to heal rapidly the sores caused by the war and to astonish the world with its inexhaustible reserve of productive energy.

THE IMPOSSIBLE SPEECH

By Edward Goldbeck



LADIES and Gentlemen:

The speech which you are going to hear will be an impossible speech. All those people who are blood relations to Mrs. Grundy will cry out: "It 's impossible!" They will refuse to believe that the candidate for the highest office of the nation could have made such a speech. And why will they be so indignant? Because I am going to tell you the truth, without reticence, without mental reservations, and in the plainest language possible. Years ago the Europeans used to scoff at our shirt sleeved diplomacy—I am sorry they can't do it any longer, as that diplomacy had at least the advantage of being straightforward—and I shall give you right now a piece of shirt sleeved oratory; in other words, I intend to cut out everything that is conventional and ornamental only. You shall know what I think about the most important problems which we have to grapple with. It is necessary that the ideas of the presidential candidate be well known by the public, and today more so than ever.

More so than ever . . . for different reasons. The power bestowed on the president by the constitution is very great, but this power, extraordinary as it is already, will still be increased through the force of things in the course of the next ten or twenty years. There are two men in our history who lived at the same time, exerted a tremendous influence on their contemporaries, and quarreled incessantly. Both were big men and both did our country the greatest honor. But they were antagonistic in their conception of the state, its essence, its aims, its limitations.

Hamilton stood for integration, Jefferson for individualism. Both tendencies are legitimate, and a country which would revel in one and eliminate the other would petrify or fall asunder. They are eternal tendencies—you will find them at all times and in all nations. But there are periods in which the one or the other will be prevalent. I think that we are entering now a period of Hamiltonianism and that the country needs it. When this tendency has done for us all it can do there will probably be a reaction and Jefferson will take his revenge. This is the way a compromise is reached for the good of the country. Of course we can at no time be exclusively Hamiltonian or Jeffersonian; we need both tendencies at the same time. But, as I said, Hamiltonianism will probably be the motto of the next decade.

* *

EVERYBODY feels that the competence of the empire—I am using this unwonted term intentionally—is widening and that the sphere of the state is shrinking. The propaganda for universal military training and universal service would have been impossible three years ago; today nobody will dare to call it Utopian. Everybody feels that its goal is in sight already. This is Hamiltonianism. The great democratic army which we are going to have sooner or later will be an American army, independent of the state. Other issues, like woman's suffrage, child labor, government ownership of railways, creation of a merchant marine, are constantly discussed, and it is probable that the solution of these and other nationwide problems will increase the power of the national administration. Furthermore, there cannot be the slightest doubt that for a very long time foreign policy will be the dominating factor of our national activities, and you know that the personality of the president is of the greatest importance in the handling of our international relations.

If through all these developments the position of the president is constantly growing it must certainly seem highly desirable to you to know the man who is going to be your first representative and not only to make sure that he has the qualities necessary for such an office but to get a well defined idea of his political program. "A platform," so Mr. Wilson has said, "is not a program," and his actions have left no doubt about the sincerity of his words. But the voter must have some solid foundation whereupon to build his creed.

In this moment I hear the political standpatters exclaiming that such an undertaking as to give you my program for the next four years is absolutely impossible and that the very attempt would be dangerous. To silence these fears I will only say that one of the greatest statesmen of all times, Prince von Bismarck, revealed his entire political program as early as in 1862 to Disraeli and even to his adversaries, the Austrian diplomats, and that he realized this program in the following eight years without being hampered by any dismal consequences of his astounding and unfashionable frankness.

Of course you must not expect a statesman to tell you the means which he may use in a diplomatic campaign. Waiving the fact that he often finds them at the last moment, he cannot publicly inform you of the moves he will make on the international chessboard; but he can be very frank about his ends, and I shall go so far as to say that this frankness is necessary in a republic like ours if in the psychological moment the leader wants to have the hearty, active, and self-sacrificing support of the nation.

If, instead of treating our foreign policy in my speeches, I only harped on general principles or administrative details, I should resemble a physician who is called in for a case of infantile paralysis and talks about the necessity of the patient's getting manicured. I cannot ignore Europe as if it were sunk by a U-boat and changed into another Atlantis. I know what questions are in your heart and on your lips, and I shall try to answer them.

* *

THE situation with regard to Germany is very simple. It is not necessary to dive into the past; to cry over spilt milk is not the American way. Let us look at the present and at the future. In the present we have no complaint to make against Germany, a country with which we have had relations of cordial and uninterrupted friendliness since the days of our war of independence. We all are fervidly hoping that this feeling of mutual good will which is a centuries-old tradition will continue where it exists, increase where it has been weakened, resurrect where it has died. With regard to the future, I could easily say that we shall cross that bridge when we come to it, but I abhor subterfuges and prefer to make it clear that we shall protect American lives and American rights under all circumstances and at any cost. We are relying on the loyalty and the wise moderation of the German government not to violate the rules of international law which it has acknowledged in the course of our negotiations. On the other hand, I shall not conceal my opinion that every American citizen is in duty bound to avoid complications fraught with danger to our country by refraining from traveling on a belligerent ship, unless it be a case of the most urgent necessity.

If I should be elected president I should think it one of my most imperious duties to come to an understanding with England which would definitely and irrevocably guarantee us all the rights which have been violated again and again without any consideration for our feelings or our interests. England would have to stop interfering with our mail and the telegrams of the American correspondents in Germany; she would have to withdraw the blacklist unconditionally, and she would have to respect our commercial relations with the neutrals. There is no necessity of threatening a nation with which we are connected by common traditions and institutions, by blood and language, law and literature, but we shall leave no doubt about the fact that our demands, which are nothing but reasonable, must be granted and granted without delay. Should England refuse this minimum we would have to retaliate, and we are sure that such a retaliation would be very effective. If this language sounds harsh, I regret it, but I must use it, because Mr. Wilson neglected to do his duty.

THERE is another nation whose doings during these last months have stirred up public opinion. Japan has profited by the European situation in expanding over China and has strengthened her position in the celestial empire by a treaty with Russia. In this respect we have only to say that we shall not allow China to be divided into so-called spheres of interest and that we shall never permit the "open door" to be closed, however softly and cautiously it might be done. The Japanese statesmen, whose diplomatic accomplishments we have so often acknowledged and admired, will understand and appreciate this point of view. It should be a principle as solid as the Rocky mountains that America will never give up a well acquired right and that we shall always be ready to defend it. A new treaty with Russia can by no means abrogate an old treaty with the United States.

So much about our foreign policy with regard to the great countries which interest us most. We are on the best and most cordial terms with France, but Russia must not expect us to consider our relations with her as normal, so long as she does not change her policy about Americans of Jewish religion. It would be a mistake not to state without any circumlocutions that we resent the Russian attitude in this case and hope for a thorough change, which is recommended by the interest of the Russian empire itself.

THERE is no immediate danger of war, and the clearer, plainer, and firmer our policy the less there will be of such a danger. The surest means of preventing a war is universal military service, for which I am going to fight with all the strength I may have. But you must remember that all laws and all appropriations are useless if we cannot revive the spirit of true patriotism, the fiery spirit of Alexander Hamilton. I blush with shame whenever I see the placards: "Be patriotic! Enlist!" This spirit I cannot give you; nobody can. Every single man has to get it by himself. How? Probably by thinking of the woman he loves best—of his mother, his sweetheart, his wife—or by looking at his children. Human nature is weak; abstract ideas do not keep their hold on us very long; but we see the country incarnated in those who are dearest to us.

If we want an efficient foreign policy we must be united. The spirit of racial intolerance has spread through this country, instigated, or at least fostered, by Mr. Wilson. Mr Wilson is impatient of any opposition, and whenever he is confronted with it he insinuates low motives to his political adversaries. When he tried to put the banking legislation through he complained bitterly about an unscrupulous and powerful lobby which was trying to frustrate his beneficent efforts. When he refused to protect American citizens in Mexico he added the insult to the damage in accusing them of mean and selfish money grabbing. When the country demanded a higher amount of preparedness he hinted darkly at the "interests" behind this movement; and when the German-Americans criticized his frivolous interpretation of neutrality he denounced them as unloyal to their adopted country.

I am thoroughly convinced that all the different nationalities would do more than their duty in case of danger, and I cannot consider it as an evil if they keep up traditions brought over from their native shores and try to influence American culture through European thought. We are not narrow enough to resent that. But the different nationalities ought to avoid an idealisation of their old countries. Such a mirage, which often would have little likeness with reality, might make them unjust and unappreciative of the benefits this country has bestowed on them.

YOU see, ladies and gentlemen, that I have spoken to you with entire frankness. If you have any questions, go on and ask them—I have still a few minutes to give you. An alliance with England? You know there could be none without the agreement of the senate. You are afraid that there might be "understandings," like those which England had with France and which involved her in the war. I cannot know that in my present position, but I doubt it very much. It is one of the scant advantages of our short presidential tenure that the other nations have not much confidence in arrangements which are likely to become void in a few years. My personal opinion is that we do not need alliances, provided that we decide to keep out of trouble. Our policy is not aggressive and hardly ever will be so; with an army which universal service would give us we should be able to defend our beloved country even against the combined two strongest powers of the old world.

An alliance with England is impossible because our country is ruled by public opinion. The alliance would seem hateful to the German-Americans and to the Irish-American element in this country. A theorist may regret this; a statesman has to take things as they are, not as they ought to be, and so he will dismiss a project like that as unfeasible. The question is only of academic interest.

Ladies and gentlemen, this in the barest outlines is my view of the international situation and my program. Without your help it is "impossible"; with your help I would feel like Napoleon, who declared that there was no such word in his dictionary. All I have said may be summed up in Shakespeare's famous lines:

"Rightly to be great
Is not to stir without great argument,
But greatly to find quarrel in a straw
When honor's at the stake!"

WHEAT FUTURES ADVANCE; FINAL FIGURES HIGHEST

Strong Close Follows Good Buying by Exporters and Shorts.

Closing at best levels for the day, wheat yesterday scored advances of 3⅛@4¼c, with May relatively not as strong as other months. Exporters were active buyers and there was also free covering by shorts, who desired to reduce risks over the double holiday. Volume of trade was not as large as recently. It was presumed by the trade that the railroad strike would be averted, this view apparently being shared by the roads, as many embargoes were removed.

With shipping conditions improved the cash wheat trade resumed life and firmness was displayed here; in fact, the cash situation was about the strongest the trade has known. Sales of No. 2 hard winter wheat were made at 11c over December price at the gulf, while Omaha sold wheat at 10¼c over December to Baltimore. Export sales of 1,000,000 bu were reported in all positions. Local shipping sales were 20,000 bu.

Foreigners Want American Wheat.

Apparently the foreign buyer is not waiting on possible Russian shipments of grain, in spite of the fact that there are expectations of an early reopening of the Dardanelles. Liverpool spot wheat was ½@2d lower and the cargo market there finished 3@6d lower, after being off 9d@1s early. Weakness there was in sympathy with declines on this side Friday. The movement of spring wheat is now running smaller than a year ago, and further shrinkage in receipts up there is looked for.

Local stocks of wheat for the week are expected to decrease, as more wheat was shipped out than received. Seaboard clearances yesterday were 709,000 bu. Primary receipts for the week totaled 10,821,000 bu, against 8,787,000 bu a year ago. Minneapolis wheat stocks showed a large decrease for one day, due to change in elevator standing there from public to private houses.

Corn at Higher Level.

Corn also displayed strength and closed ⅝c higher for September and ⅞c higher for deferred deliveries. Scarcity of offerings was a feature all through the session and there was good buying by some of the larger houses and by shorts. The improvement in the shipping outlook was of much aid to the markets and the trade also had a number of reports from downstate points saying that corn was not coming out as well as anticipated.

Cash corn was 1c higher, with shipping sales of 160,000 bu and including 100,000 bu for export. Liverpool spot corn was ½@1d lower, with increasing pressure of export offers. Missouri state report on corn made condition 53, against 57 a month ago. Local receipts for the week, 1,504,000 bu, with shimentps 815,000 bu. Seaboard clearances, 498,000 bu. Primary receipts for the week, 4,250,000 bu, against 2,408,000 bu a year ago.

Export Houses Take Oats.

Oats were strong and finished with gains of 1⅛c for September and ¾@1c for deferred months. Export houses were active buyers of oats and there was also much short covering and support, influenced by the firmness in wheat. Offerings were light. Heavy sales of oats for export late Friday had a stimulating effect on the market. Cash oats ruled ½@1c higher, with shipping sales 250,000 bu, including 150,000 bu for export. Foreign demand is urgent and is checked by sellers' caution and lack of sufficient cars.

Seaboard clearances were light at 23,000 bu. Local receipts of oats last week totaled 7,058,000 bu and 2,485,000 bu were shipped. Primary receipts for the week were 13,115,000 bu, against 11,491,000 bu a year ago.

Hog Product Is Higher.

Provisions were strong and substantially higher with lard taking the lead. There was evidence of further buying of lard by packing interests and the market finished practically at best figures for the day. The large decrease shown in local stocks of provisions for the month was a bullish influence and this, with the strength shown in grains, served to offset the weaker prices for hogs at the yards.

Local shipments of meats for the week totaled 15,424,000 lbs, compared with 16,376,000 lbs a year ago, while lard shipments were 8,068,000 lbs, against 7,086,000 lbs a year ago. Hog receipts at western markets for the week were 363,300 head, against 395,000 head last week and 325,000 a year ago.

Rye Sharply Higher.

Rye was sharply higher with sales of No. 2 at $1.18@1.20, and No. 3, $1.16. Receipts, 16 cars.

Barley ruled steady to 1c higher. Malting was quoted 85c@$1.10 and sold 85c@$1.06; feed was quotable, 80@90c, with sales at 85@88c; screenings were quoted 50@70c and sold 68@70c. Receipts, 65 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet, March closing $5.75 asked and cash lots quoted $3.00@4.60. Clover seed held steady; cash lots quoted, $8.00@15.00.

Duluth flax closed ½@3c lower. Cash on track, $2.06; September, $2.05; October and November, $2.07½; December, $2.05½; receipts, none. Minneapolis was 2c lower with cash on track, $2.05@2.09; receipts were 3 cars. Winnipeg closed 1⅝@1⅞c lower; October, $1.88⅝; November, $1.88¼, and December, $1.88½; receipts, 25 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

From all reports from cash interests there is a big trade going on all the while in cash wheat, and sales are said to be much larger than given out. That the demand is urgent is shown by the steadily hardening premiums. Omaha sold wheat yesterday for export at 10¼c over Chicago December track Baltimore, or equal to about 6c over our September wheat here. At the gulf bids were 10@11c over Chicago September for hard wheat. Duluth reported a big call for No. 1 northern but said there was practically none to be had in spite of the strong bids. Mills are said to have taken considerable old hard wheat the last few weeks, and it is believed the old wheat will soon be wanted so great is the demand for new wheat. With all the high bids for wheat the country is selling but little wheat, and in Oklahoma the movement from the country is said to be dropping off to small proportions.

With the practical assurances that the strike would be called off with the passage of the eight hour law, the sentiment in wheat was more bullish. Fear that Balkan developments would lead to an early opening of the Dardanelles was regarded as groundless in view of the attitude of foreign buyers, who evidently are not taking any chances, but are buying wheat as fast as they can. Buying of wheat on the declines the last few days has been of a good class, several of the big bulls reinstating who sold higher up. Exporters generally were bullish in their views, basing their optimism on the demand for wheat from the other side.

Receipts of wheat for the season to date at western points are 87,800,000, compared to 57,585,000 bu a year ago, when receipts were small owing to the wet harvest. Oats receipts since Aug. 1 have been 58,381,000 bu, against 35,087,000 bu a year ago. Since Nov. 1 corn primary receipts were 222,000,000 bu, or about the same as for the same time last year.

The Missouri crop report for September as wired by King of Toledo makes the condition of corn 53, against 57 in August, with crop estimated at 135,000,000 bu. Final estimate last year was 220,000,000 bu. Wheat yield is placed at 8.5 bu per acre. Oats yield is 24.7 bu per acre.

Total cut meats in store at western packing centers, according to Schwarz & Co., are 238,000,000 lbs, a decrease during August of 30,848,000 lbs, compared to a decrease of 50,781,000 lbs a year ago. The total a year ago was 284,709,000 lbs.

Corn and oats were in fair demand, and with the raising of the railroad embargoes there was more chance to do business. Sales were 160,000 bu corn and 250,000 bu oats, including 100,000 bu corn and 150,000 bu oats for export.

Kansas City reported cash wheat 2@3c higher. St. Louis cash wheat 3@4c higher, and Minneapolis reported a strong market with all the wheat offered quickly taken by the mills.

Estimated receipts: Wheat, 73 cars; corn, 162 cars, oats, 285 cars, rye, 16 cars; barley, 65 cars; hogs, 20,000 head for Tuesday and 130,000 for next week.

Deliveries on September contracts yesterday were 275,000 bu wheat, 195,000 but oats, 200,000 lbs lard, and 50,000 lbs ribs.

Packers report fair export sales to Italy and France. The domestic trade is also fair.

The seaboard reported export sales of wheat in all positions at 1,000,000 bu.

With shippers out of the market and receipts much in excess of local requirements, the hog market at Chicago yesterday had a further break of 15c to 25c from recent high prices. Armour & Co. had 3,700 hogs direct from outside points and bought none here. Other smaller killers also stayed out of the trade and the finish found about 21,000 hogs in the pens unsold. Light receipts are expected for Monday, but all killing operations in packing plants will be suspended for the day and only a meager supply of stock will suffice for outside needs, even with railroad uncertainty definitely settled. Top sales were made at $11.15 and the bulk at $10.25@10.90.

Final prices made the better grades of butcher and lightweight hogs firm at a shade higher than a week ago, while packing grades were 5c to 10c lower. This week's average price of all hogs, however, was placed at $10.80, the highest of the year, and compared with $10.70 last week.

CATTLE.

Although closing on a sharp slump, beef steer values finished the week still 50@75c higher than a week ago. At one time they showed net gains of more than $1. Beef cows and heifers closed 15@25c up for the week, while calves were unchanged. Receipts of cattle were small during the first half of the week, while the demand was of spirited character, buyers here and in the east being anxious to accumulate surplus stock in the fear that future supplies be stopped by a railroad strike. Later in the week the advanced prices in force attracted much heavier consignments of stock, while the demand was curtailed by the enforced withdrawal of eastern shippers from the market. Beef steers topped the week at $11.50, the highest price of the year to date. Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 238,000, against 233,900 the preceding week, 196,400 a year ago, and 159,700 two years ago. Total for 1916 to date, 5,139,000, against 4,407,000 the same period in 1915.

SHEEP.

Sheep and lambs finished the week at small gains over last week's close, after having sold at much better values during most of the week. They had a sharp setback on Friday and offerings on Saturday's market were hard to move, due to a heavy surplus of mutton already in store and the suspension of killing operations at all packing plants Labor day. Total receipts for the week were about the same as those of the preceding week, while shipments showed a good increase. Lambs topped at $11.25, compared with $9.50 a year ago, while sheep reached $7.75, against $6.25 a year ago. Breeding ewes sold up to $10.50, a new high record mark for their kind.

BIG INCREASE IN TORRENS BUSINESS, CONNERY SHOWS.

A forty-seven per cent increase over August a year ago in applications for initial registration under the Torrens system was announced yesterday by Joseph F. Connery, recorder of deeds. In the month just closed ninety-seven persons filed applications for registration, compared to sixty-six in August a year ago. Patrons of the Torrens system paid $5,077.70 in fees to the county during August, 1915, and in August, 1916, $6,314.70 was paid, the increase being over 24 per cent.

In commenting on this showing, J. H. Hecht, chairman of the Torrens committee of the Cook county real estate board, said yesterday:

"Much of this success has been due to the strong support given by the great Chicago newspapers and to a publicity campaign encouraged by Mr. Connery since he took office.

"As a result of his grasp of the great possibilities, the Torrens system of land registration affords the home owner and taxpayers in saving repeated title examinations and burdensome charges made by private companies.

"Recorder Connery has realized for some time that when equipped with a new set of so-called tract or abstract books, Cook county would lead every municipality in the country in having the simplest and best title system."

METROPOLITAN "L" BRIDGE MAY HALT UNION STATION.

Action by the federal government to enforce a regulation of the war department may halt the construction of the new Union station on Canal street. The action will be taken against the Metropolitan Elevated company to force the road to rebuild its bridge across the Chicago river according to government specifications.

The war department stipulates that the bridge cannot be reconstructed unless the "run" is widened. The elevated company contends that to widen the "run" would force it to give up valuable property without compensation.

Last December District Attorney Clyne brought suit to force the elevated road to reconstruct the bridge according to regulations. The road resisted and was assessed a fine of $5,000 a month until the bridge was rebuilt. The case was appealed.

According to Mr. Clyne the road can either build the bridge according to government specifications or have the present plans for the new station altered. The latter alternative is impossible, according to the district attorney, who is preparing to begin injunction proceedings when the elevated company starts work on the bridge.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Cotton goods and yarns were firm today with markets generally quiet. Jobbers did a good trade and exporters received many offers of new business.

PLAN OF PERE MARQUETTE TO REORGANIZE APPROVED.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 2.—Plans for complete reorganization of the Pere Marquette railroad, with capital stock of $105,000,000 and elimination of the receivership, were approved by the Michigan railroad commission today. The plan provides for issuance of new stock and bond issues. These securities will be exchanged for securities which now are outstanding.

The total bond issue, as approved, is $36,000,000, the preferred stock issue is to be $24,000,000, and common stock $45,000,000. The plan provides that the fixed interest charges will be reduced from $4,000,000 to $1,500,000 per annum and that $16,000,000 of the new funds will be used to discharge receivers' certificates and to purchase new equipment.

COAL POCKET FOR LEASE

This yard is on the Belt Railroad at Park Avenue. Was formerly occupied by Deles Hull & Co., who sold out to the Consumers Company. Track is at an elevation of about eighteen feet.

As the yard is entirely a gravity proposition, it can be operated very economically.

Coal men agree that we are now entering upon the greatest era of prosperity which the Coal Trade of Chicago has ever seen.

I have had upwards of twenty years experience in the coal business, and would be glad to assist in the organization of a Company to operate this yard.

JOHN E. DECKER, Care Garfield Park State Savings Bank, Chicago, Illinois.

Stockholders' Interests Ignored.

The holders of railway stocks and bonds, numbering probably 1,500,000 persons, have looked on helplessly during the last week while the president of the United States was seeking to gain political advantage by dividing up part of their income among 400,000 employés of the roads. The fact that the 1,500,000 are unorganized made their interests of less consequence than the demands of about one-fourth as many well organized citizens.

The need of a great association of security holders was never more clearly shown than during the negotiations at Washington. The fact that there are known to be 622,000 holders of railway shares and a greater number of bondholders was mentioned in the course of the discussions, but it appeared only as an abstract idea. If this great body of people had had representatives present the abstract idea would have become a concrete fact which could not have been overlooked.

Aside from the moral force which the mere presence of such representatives would have exerted, much practical aid might have been provided in the way of suggestions. The viewpoint of the stockholder as the owner of the property is necessarily different from that of the railway manager and certainly far different from that of the shipper or the public in general. In the absence of representatives who could present that side of the question it was ignored to a great extent.

The only way for investors to protect their interests is to organize and make their influence felt.

Hercules Powder.

W. J. B.—The Hercules Powder company has out $5,350,000 of preferred stock and $7,150,000 common. Its earnings have been exceedingly large since the war in Europe opened. The earnings in 1915 equaled about 63 per cent on the common stock. Part of the money was used in retiring bonds and part was added to surplus, making that item $5,320,563. In the first six months of 1916 earnings were at the rate of 200 per cent a year on common, after paying the preferred dividend. Of course, these are war earnings, and will not continue indefinitely. The cost of construction for war contracts has already been charged out of profits, it is said, so that the surplus does not include any dead investment. Last year 16 per cent was paid on common stock, and thus far this year 25 per cent. The stock was quoted recently at about 300.

Willys-Overland.

G. F. H.—The par value of Willys-Overland common was reduced to $25 for the purpose of making a broader market for it. The old $100 stock was selling at about $300 a share when the change was decided on. The business of the company has increased rapidly this summer, and the $15,000,000 of new stock just issued was sold to increase working capital, it was stated officially. Earnings for the first six months of this year were on a basis of 40 per cent on common stock, including the new issue.

American Typefounders.

W. C. H.—The American Typefounders company has been a steady dividend payer for eighteen years. The 7 per cent cumulative dividends have been paid to date on its $2,360,000 of preferred stock, and 4 per cent a year, with some extras, has been paid on common. Gross earnings are not reported. Net has increased slowly but steadily for the last ten years. Last year net earnings after interest and sinking fund were $350,448, which paid the dividends and left $25,000 to be added to surplus, making it $873,000. There are $1,696,000 of debentures outstanding and the sinking fund is $50,000 a year.

Brief Answers.

R. C. D., Marion, Ind.—The Ohio National Life company has been writing insurance five years. It has had a fair growth. Its last annual report indicated that it was just beginning to make a profit. It had $446,730 of capital stock and $211,161 surplus. No dividends had been earned or paid.

O. S.—California Petroleum common is purely speculative. It has been reviewed heretofore.

LOSS SHOWN IN RESERVES; LOANS EXPAND IN WEEK

The New York bank statement showed a drop of $29,561,220 in the excess reserve. The item now stands at $95,829,140. It is understood the large change reflected was due to operations in connection with the British loan of $250,000,000.

The statement reflected a loan expansion of $48,435,000, and an increase in deposits of $42,217,000. Evidently the loans were converted into deposits so that the decrease in the cash reserve is in a considerable measure artificial. The figures:

ACTUA LSTATEMENT.

GENERAL MARKET STRENGTH.

New York, Sept. 2.—Today's market hesitated at the outset, first quotations indicating doubt on the part of the professional element as to the significance of the overnight developments in the railway labor situation. This condition gave way later to a general strength, the advance being aided by extensive short covering.

Trading in marines, which supplied over 25 per cent of the brief session's turnover, was the noteworthy feature, the preferred making a new record on its gross advance of 4 points to 109, with 1½ for the common and 1 to 2 points for other shipping shares.

A new maximum was also made by American Zinc preferred, which advanced 3¾ points to 74¾, while General Motors preferred sold at its best quotation in many months, rising 3 to 128. Coppers and other metals were 1 to 2 points higher, munitions and petroleums advanced about as much and motors made up some of their recent losses, with additional gains in accessories.

U. S. Steel Makes Gain.

United States Steel came forward toward the last, being extensively taken up to 96, an extreme gain of 1⅝, and placing it, with the quarterly and extra dividends of the previous day, within ¼ point of its high record.

Reading and Canadian Pacific led the advancing movement in rails, at gains of almost 2 points, with a point each for St. Paul, Northern Pacific, New York Central, and some of the eastern group.

Bonds were steady, but dull, Anglo-French 5s being largely dealt in at the prevailing quotation. United States coupon 4s rose ½ per cent on call during the week.

THE threatened railroad strike cast its shadow over the real estate market last week, as it did practically over all lines of business. There was nevertheless a free movement of small properties, and considering the unfavorable conditions the market had to struggle against it made a really good showing. There was nothing doing down town and outside business property did not make a particularly good showing.

Flat property made a particularly poor showing, but taken as a whole the week's business was of an encouraging character. Transactions in acres and the announcement of building projects probably were the most important features of the week, although the purchase late in the week of the old Henry Dibblee residence at 1918-26 Calumet avenue by the Prang company, a prominent Boston school book publishing house, which will locate its home office there, constituted one of the most notable of the week's market happenings.

Adds to Publishing Colony.

It is of special interest as being another important addition to the already large colony of publishing concerns in the district around Twenty-second street, which has become now one of the leading publishing centers of the country.

The house, a handsome three story structure containing about twenty rooms, is said to have cost Mrs. Henry Dibblee, a sister of Marshall Field, about $250,000 to build a number of years ago. Together with the lot it occupies, 100x177 feet, it has been sold by Mrs. Jennie B. Ogle, wife of George A. Ogle, to the Prang company for a reported consideration of $50,000, and after some changes will be occupied by the company as its home office.

The Prang company is said to be one of the oldest firms of its kind in the country, having been inexistence over sixty years. It is the first Boston publishing house to locate its home office in Chicago. The company paid $10,000 cash and gave back a part purchase money mortgage for $40,000. White & Tabor represented both parties to the transaction.

Two Acre Deals.

One of the acre deals involves the establishment of what is claimed will be one of the largest and most completely equipped brickmaking plants in the country. The other is a $150,000 purchase from the Calumet and Chicago Canal and Dock company to be developed as a high class subdivision.

The former is the sale by the Bush estate of Rhode Island and Orville Peckham of Indianapolis, after an ownership of more than forty years, to William G. Bohnsack of a tract of thirty-six acres in Stickney township for $54,000, which is at the rate of $1,500 an acre. The property, which is approximately 1,200x1,320 feet in size, is located at the southeast corner of West Thirty-ninth street and Fifty-second avenue, and extends south from the Hawthorne race track quarter section to the Chicago and Illinois Western Belt railroad and the spoil banks of the drainage canal.

Used for Truck Gardening.

Like many other outlying lands about Chicago, this tract has been used for truck gardening purposes. It is stated the proposed brick making plant to be located there will cost in the neighborhood of $250,000. Preliminary plans already have been made and the work of construction will begin in the near future. Hodge & Chandler were the brokers.

The other acre deal was the purchase by Christian P. Zacher and Edwin R. Shogren from the canal and dock company of a tract of seventy-five acres bounded by Eighty-third and Eighty-fifth streets, South Chicago and Yates avenue, for which the consideration is reported at $150,000. E. B. Shogren & Co. will have the management of the tract and have subdivided it into 400 residence and business lots.

Called Jeffery Highlands.

The subdivision will be known as Jeffery Highlands, and it is expected to have the property ready to be placed on the market by Sept. 15. It is proposed to make street improvements, including water, sewer, cement sidewalks, trees, and attractive lodge gates.

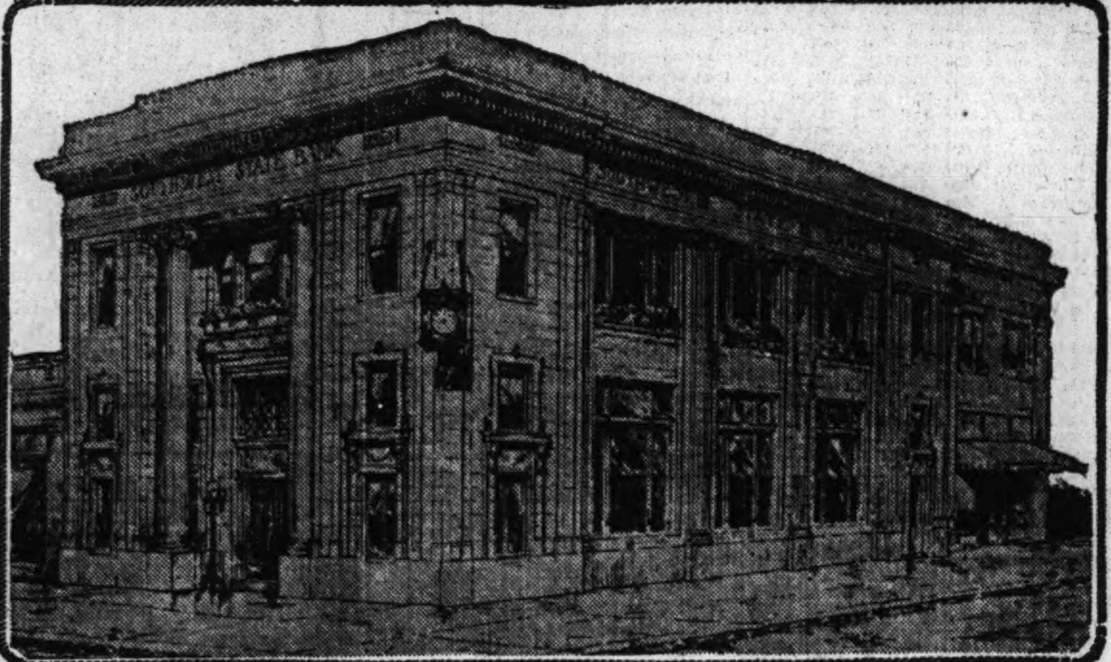
The property is practically the last large tract available for subdivision purposes in the neighborhood of the South Shore district, and is bounded on the west by the through route No. 5 car line on South Chicago avenue, which runs direct to the city, with five minute service. It has a fine boulevard running north of the property from Jeffery boulevard to Jackson Park. There will be building restrictions and nothing but brick structures will be permitted.

Used Employer's Car.

Walter Maya, a chauffeur for B. Gunbotort of 4720 South Ashland avenue, was arrested in Evanston Friday night for taking his employer's automobile out without the latter's permission.

BUILDING KEEPS MARCHING ON

Store and Bachelor Apartment Building to Be Erected in Rogers Park Is Shown in Upper Picture. Below Is New Home of Southwest State Bank.



A big building which is to be put to diversified uses is the Stanford, now in course of construction by Charles Kusel at the northwest corner of Pratt boulevard and Sheridan road, Rogers Park. It will be a four story fireproof structure on a lot fronting 178 feet on the road and 150 feet on the boulevard. It will have on the first floor eleven one room bachelor apartments, with baths and disappearing beds, a large lobby, and ladies' waiting room, six stores, and a large restaurant. Above the main floor will be thirty-nine apartments of three rooms and thirty apartments of two rooms, with bath, bed closet, and disappearing beds. There will be a reception room in each apartment with more than one room. It will cost approximately $325,000, and S. W. Straus & Co. have made a bond issue loan of $250,000.

Work will soon be started on an exceedingly attractive building at the southwest corner of Fifty-first street and Ashland avenue, which is to be the new home of the Southwest State bank. It will be directly opposite the present location of the bank. It will be two stories high, of fireproof construction, and will be one of the finest bank buildings on the south side. Ever since its organization as a state institution about three years ago by Joseph Triska it has grown so rapidly that increased facilities to care for its growing business became necessary.

EMPIRE THEATER SITE FIGURES IN WEEK'S DEALS

Sale to Milwaukee Man of Interest of Other Owner Chief Outlying Transaction.

Probably the most interesting of the transactions in outside business property covered the Empire theater property in West Madison street, east of Halsted street. The deal is understood to have been the acquirement by Herman Fehr of Milwaukee of the interests of the other owners of the property. The lot fronts 96 feet with a depth of 189 feet and is improved with a six story building, with stores and a theater on the ground floor and offices on the upper floors.

The transfers cover the fee as well as leasehold interest and the building, and for the fee Mr. Fehr is thought to have paid about $150,000, according to the transfers filed for record. For the west 70 feet of the lot Mr. Fehr, according to the deeds, paid $109,377, securing from Mary J. Barber, the estate of George A. Mix, and the Empire Amusement company an undivided one-third interest, respectively, for an expressed consideration of $36,459, or $109,377 in all.

Acquires Adjoining Site.

He also acquired from C. A. Cook et al., trustee, the 26 feet to the east, for an expressed consideration of $40,625, subject to a lease. He also acquired from the Empire Amusement company the leasehold interest in the 96 feet and the improvements, a nominal consideration being given.

The 70 feet was originally leased by James H. Wright et al. to H. H. Evans for ninety-seven years from Oct. 1, 1891, at an annual rental of $5,000, while the 26 feet was leased from George B. Cook of Woonsocket, R. I., for ninety-nine years from March 1, 1890, at an annual rental of $1,380.

The property at the southeast corner of Belmont, Clybourn, and Western avenues, opposite Riverview park, was sold by H. H. Joseph to W. H. Barry for a reported consideration of $50,000, subject to an incumbrance of $37,500.

The lot is 171x150 feet and is improved with a building containing ten stores, two apartments, and five offices. It was erected by Lafayette McWilliams about three years ago. Giles P. Corey & Co. represented Mr. Barry and Ben I. Greenebaum represented Mr. Joseph.

The leasehold interest in the 160x100 feet of ground at the southwest corner of Thirty-ninth street and Indiana avenue and the three story brick building thereon has been conveyed by Fred Becklenberg to Milton G. Roe of Princeton, Ill., for a reported consideration of $50,000, subject to an incumbrance of $10,000.

The building contains twelve stores on the ground floor and eleven apartments and two offices on the upper floors. Mr. Becklenberg took in exchange a farm of 419 acres in Jasper county, Indiana, clear. Giles P. Corey & Co. represented both parties.

Pays $300,000 for Corner.

Record was made of the sale by Julius Kramer president of the Pullman Couch company, to Richard P. Lambert of the business property at the northwest corner of West Sixty-third street and Archer avenue, for an expressed consideration of $30,000. The property is improved with a two story building occupied as a hotel and a one story building containing two stores.

The property at the northwest corner of Trumbull avenue and Fifteenth street, lot 36x125 feet, with store and apartment improvements, has been sold by Harris Wolf to Becky Laserwitz for an indicated consideration of approximately $29,000, subject to an incumbrance of $22,925.

Hermine Marquardt sold to Samuel C. Cohen the property at the southeast corner of Western avenue boulevard and Thirty-fifth street, for an indicated consideration of $19,200, subject to an incumbrance of $9,200. The lot fronts 23¾ feet, with a depth of 150 feet, and is improved with a new three story brick store, office, and flat building. Ernis E. Feeney represented the purchaser and J. McDonnell & Co. the seller.

REALTY BOARD WILL HOLD OUTING AT FLOSSMOOR CLUB

The annual outing of the Chicago real estate board will be held at the Flossmoor Country club next Thursday, Sept. 7, and according to the elaborate plans being made by President Paul Steinbrecher and the outing committee, of which Albert H. Wetten is chairman, it promises to set a new standard for these functions.

A special train will leave the Randolph street station of the Illinois Central at 10:15, Forty-third street at 10:20, Fifty-third street at 10:25, and Sixty-third street at 10:30, arriving at Flossmoor at about 11:05. A light luncheon will be served at 11:45 so as to get an early start on the program of games and sports, for which an unusual number of handsome prizes have been provided.

Dinner will be served in the evening, when the prizes will be awarded the victors in the various athletic events of the day. Golf will of course be one of the main events, with tennis, and in addition there will be the regular baseball game, with all sorts of races, etc. Return trains will leave at 5:35, 6:40, 7:58, and 8:30.

NEW CATHOLIC PARISH ON SOUTHWEST SIDE PLANNED.

The establishment of a new big Catholic parish in the southwest part of the city is involved in the purchase by the Catholic bishop from Catherine Walsh and others of the property on the north side of Seventy-first street, from Wood to Honoré, 265x125 feet, and 175x125 feet on Honoré, north of Seventy-first street; also 175x125 on Wood street, north of Seventy-first street, giving him a total of 265 feet on Seventy-first street and 300 feet on both Honoré and Wood streets. The consideration is said to have been about $10,500. It is the purpose to improve this with a church, school, and rectory for the new parish of St. Justin Martyr, of which the Rev. J. K. Fielding is pastor. McMahon & Hoban were the brokers.

Leases and Loans.

There was little doing of an important character in either leases or loans last week.

Paul C. Loeber & Co. have leased for Carrie C. Carey and William J. Hayward to Jacob Sandovitz the three and four story buildings at 1530-34 South Halsted street for a term rental of $30,000. The tenants will take possession at once and will occupy for smelting and refining business.

William H. Suchler & Co. have leased for the Hanchett Paper company to the Chicago Tanners' Egg Yolk company the one story building with track and dock facilities at 1002-20 Branch street, Goose Island, for a term rent of $24,000.

The same brokers also leased for Gulbransen-Dickinson company to the Art Metal Craft company the three story and basement building at 1217-19 West Monroe street for a term rental of $12,500. Hart and Whetston were associated in the deal.

Paul Wahl has leased to the United States government for postoffice purposes the 69½x111 feet ground floor and 69½x30 feet of the basement of building at 1221-25 North Paulina street, between Milwaukee avenue and Division street, for ten years at annual rent of $6,300.

There was filed for record the assignment by Victor Bardonski to the Chopin Theater company of the leasehold interest and building at 1541-43 West Division street, lot 50x125, north front, being 72 feet west of Milwaukee avenue, for an expressed consideration of $28,775.

Among other leases reported closed by the Central Realty and Investment company were: For La Verne W. Noyes to Tom Koronis the store at 121 North Dearborn street, for a term rent of $20,000, to be used for lunchroom purposes. To the Pathescope company space on the second floor of Shops building at term rent of $12,000. To the Globe Trunk company for H. O. Stobe, store at 341 South Wabash avenue, for five years at an annual rent of $4,000. Also three leases in Shop building at term rents of $7,000, $7,000, and $5,000.

Record was made of a loan by the Fort Dearborn Trust and Savings bank, trustee, to Peter A. Nickas of $100,000, eight years, at 6 per cent, secured by the property at the northeast corner of Cicero, formerly Forty-eighth, avenue, and West End avenue, 150x109 feet, improved with a one and three story building erected about three years ago and containing nine stores on the ground floor and thirty-one apartments of four to seven rooms on the upper floors.

Wendell S. Merick has given a trust deed to Augustus S. Peabody to secure a loan of $50,000, six years at 5½ per cent, secured by the property in Lake Park avenue, 150 feet north of Hyde Park boulevard, west front, 100 feet to the Illinois Central right of way.

J. C. Hansen is trustee in a loan of $50,000, five years at 5 per cent, to the Catholic bishop of Chicago, secured by the property at the northeast corner of Chicago avenue and Carpenter street, 175x100 feet.

Subdivision Notes

William E. Harmon & Co. are making an elaborate system of improvements in connection with their new Englefield subdivision, which is about to be placed on the market. It comprises seventy-five acres, extending from Seventy-fifth street on the north to Seventy-eighth street on the south, and from Ashland avenue to Robey street. E. H. Bennett of the Chicago city plan commission has designed the gateway of the entrance at Seventy-seventh street and Ashland avenue, and has laid out a parking system for Seventy-seventh street, across Robey, which is similar to that introduced at Chatham Fields. It is stated a prize of $500 will be offered for the best designed small houses.

William H. Britigan & Co. announce the opening to the public of their new subdivision, "Woodmere," on West Belmont avenue, just west of Fortieth avenue. This property was formerly owned by Adam Schaff, who disposed of it two years ago to a syndicate headed by E. G. Pauling for a reported consideration of about $90,000. It is now held in trust by the Chicago Title and Trust company and William H. Britigan & Co. are the sales managers of the property.

UNIVERSITY ZONE HOMES IN DEALS

Two Costly Residence Sales Lead Market; Low Priced Flats Active.

Two noteworthy sales of high class residence property in the University of Chicago district by J. Grafton Parker & Co. were the most interesting feature of the market for residence and flat property last week.

One sale covered the property at 5626 University avenue, which was sold by Charles P. Miller of the Mississippi Lumber company to Elias Mayer of the firm of Stein, Mayer & Stein, lawyers, for a reported consideration of $36,000. The lot fronts fifty feet on the east side of the street, with a depth of 180 feet, and is improved with a new twelve room brick colonial residence. It is one of the most complete dwellings in this exclusive residence district.

The other was the sale by James H. and Alice Maud McNamara to Dr. Albert Weeifel of the board of directors of the Physicians' Radium association of Chicago, of the property at 5527 University avenue, for a reported consideration of $24,500. The house is a modern eleven room brick structure on a lot 50x164 feet, and is one of the most attractive homes on University avenue.

Low Priced Flats Sold.

It was a run of commonplaces in connection with the market for apartment house properties. There was a fair run of cheap to medium priced stuff, but nothing in the way of large, high grade properties.

Record was made of the sale by C. T. Green et al. to Arthur B. Benning of the apartment house property at the southeast corner of Rosemont and Greenview avenues, with 56x136.4 feet of ground, for an indicated consideration of $52,500, subject to an incumbrance of $31,500.

The apartment house property in Oakwood boulevard, 279 feet east of Vincennes avenue, with 36x150 feet of ground, south front, has been conveyed by C. T. Gramm to Searle S. Barnett for an indicated consideration of $42,500, subject to an incumbrance of $32,500.

The twelve apartment building at 916-18 Garfield boulevard, on a lot 70x150 feet, has been sold by Elizabeth A. Choate to Almon A. Manson for a reported consideration of $27,000, subject to an incumbrance of $15,000. Holton, Seelye & Co. were the brokers.

The Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, has conveyed to Fred Bree Sr. the property at the southeast corner of Jackson street and Karlov avenue, lot 50x125 feet, with flat improvements, for an indicated consideration of $30,000.

Margate Terrace Sale.

Katherine L. Thornton has purchased from S. H. Knight the apartment house property in Margate terrace 654 feet east of Sheridan road, lot 40x118 feet, north front, for an indicated consideration of $27,500, subject to an incumbrance of $19,500.

Record has been made of the transfer by P. J. Bassett to Karl Merz of the apartment house property in Eberhart avenue 96 feet south of Sixty-sixth street, with 48x122 feet of ground, west front, for an indicated consideration of $27,000, subject to an incumbrance of $16,000.

The property in Vincennes avenue 75 feet north of East Forty-sixth place, lot 2x148 feet, east front, with flat improvements, has been sold by Anna Sommers to Frederick H. Wickett for an indicated consideration of $26,000, subject to an incumbrance of $8,000.

Other Deals of Week.

The apartment house property in Montrose boulevard 291 feet west of Clarendon avenue, lot 50x124 feet, south front, has been conveyed by Louise H. Binford to John M. O'Malley for an indicated consideration of 25,000, subject to an incumbrance of $12,000.

H. Huncke has purchased from Eva Friedman the property in North Sawyer avenue 141 feet north of Lawrence avenue, lot 45x125 feet, west front, for an indicated consideration of $24,500, subject to $14,500.

Hjalmar Nystedt has sold to Edward Rasmussen the new high grade six apartment building at 6838-40 Cornell avenue for a reported consideration of $24,000, subject to an incumbrance of $13,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment the new two flat building at 8040 Throop street at a valuation of $8,500. M. W. George of H. F. Norcott & Co. was the broker.

The apartment building at 1429-31 Victoria street has been sold by August J. Surey to Frederick L. Wagner for a reported consideration of $23,000, subject to an incumbrance of $14,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment the three apartment building at 3828 Osgood street at a valuation of $12,000. E. P. Kern of W. A. Merigold & Co. was the broker.

$45,000 PAID FOR A CORNER.

Record was made of the purchase by the Wheeling Corrugating company from the J. F. Paxton estate of the 627x124 feet at the southwest corner of Harvard street and Campbell avenue for a stated consideration of $45,000. It was acquired by the company some time ago and the company has recently completed its new plant costing $125,000. Plans also have been prepared by Architect Paul Gerhardt for a garage adjoining which will accommodate the largest truck, the cost of which is placed at about $50,000.

10,000 Electric Trucks.

There are about 10,000 electric trucks and wagons in service in the United States, operating in 124 lines of trade.

BUILDING GOES ON DESPITE REALTY MART DULLNESS

Plans for Extensive Construction Involved in Week's Deals in Lands.

In spite of the general dullness of the real estate market there were several important building projects announced, most of them in connection with land purchases.

Among the most important of these was the purchase by the West End Amusement company, owners of the Crawford theater, from three different owners a total of 125 feet, south front, by 180 feet deep on Madison street, 125 feet east of Cicero avenue, for a reported consideration of about $22,500.

It is stated that architects are now working on plans for a building two stories high, to cover the lot, which is to contain stores, a theater with a seating capacity of 1,800 people, with office suites on the upper floor. The cost of the building is estimated at about $250,000. Kenny Bros. and John T. McEnery were the brokers.

New Building on West Twelfth.

A proposed Twelfth street building will cover the vacant 50x125 feet at 3532-34 West Twelfth street and will consist of a high grade four story and basement mercantile building, which will cost about $75,000. It will be erected by Morris and Sam Katz and Barney and Abe Balaban, who last week purchased 125 feet of frontage on the opposite side of the street, on which they plan the erection of a store, theater, and flat building to cost about $275,000.

They purchased the ground which is to be improved with a mercantile building from Simon Wecher for a reported consideration of $23,000. Seymour Marks was the broker, representing both parties to the transaction, and will have charge of the building.

$105,000 Flat to Go Up.

A thirty apartment building to cost $105,000 is to be erected at the southwest corner of Park and Kilpatrick avenues on a lot 103x180 feet, by Samuel L. Cooper, who purchased the land from the Chicago Title and Trust company for a reported $15,000. In connection with its construction, Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company have made a bond issue loan of $60,000 at 6 per cent. Seymour Marks, broker.

Judge James C. Martin of the Municipal court has sold to John H. [illegible] the vacant 48½x125 feet at the southeast corner of Ingleside avenue and Marquette road for a reported consideration of $5,500. It is stated the purchaser will improve in the spring with a [illegible] apartment building to cost about $[illegible]. C. E. Parker of C. W. Hoff & Co. was the broker.

A six flat building to cost about $[illegible] is to be erected on the alley on Hudson court by Rowland L. Goode, on a lot 61x107 feet, which he purchased from Ella S. Young of Long Beach, Cal., at the rate of $150 a front foot. Mitchell Bros. and Cochran & McCluer were the brokers.

SAND FIRM LEASES TRACT.

Francis Beidler has leased to the Garden City Sand company 67,900 square feet of land at the northwest corner of Throop and Lumber streets, with a frontage of 180 feet on Throop and [illegible] feet on Lumber street. The lease is for twelve years, at a term rent of $[illegible], which is at the rate of 6 per cent on a valuation of $1.10 a square foot. It will be used as a material yard. Hodge & Chandler were the brokers.

Freight Conductor Killed.

Dennis Grany of 6545 Kimbark avenue, a freight train conductor for the Illinois Central railroad, was instantly killed [illegible] when he was struck by a switch engine.

HOPES TO LAND "KAYO" WHEN RIVAL WEARIES

Friends Expect Charley to End Bout Soon After Tenth Round.

NO ALIBI IF BEATEN.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—If Charley White, Chicago's greatest hope for the world's lightweight championship, does not tear away the crown that has rested so securely for two years on the curly head of Freddie Welsh of England when they meet in battle Monday afternoon in the arena of the Hundred Million Dollar club, there will be another answer.

White will be forced to admit that Welsh is his master in all that applies to the game of pugilism. It will be his fourth chance and his best one, due to the fact that they must go twenty rounds to the decision of Referee Billy Roche. The other engagements all were of ten rounds duration to no decision. The champion in shorter tilts demonstrated he had nothing to fear from White in ten rounds.

Charley Plans Waiting Game.

How White intends to fight the battle is pretty well known to those who are close to him. In the first place, it is not a fight that is likely to end before the expiration of ten rounds, for the simple reason that White intends to bide his time for the first half of the bout. That does not mean he will not make it interesting for the champion in the early rounds, but Charley has learned by experience that he is unable to knock out Freddie in ten rounds, and he must use strategy not for ten, but for twenty rounds this time.

Welsh undoubtedly will make aggressive warfare to pile up points right from the first gong, but while he is doing this he will find White coming right back at him with all the rough stuff that he knows. By roughing it, White thinks he can wear down his less sturdy but faster opponent and bring him down to his own speed. Then when Welsh has slowed up, White plans to take the aggressive with all the speed he can summon and land his famous left hook on the champion's jaw for a knockout.

Must Slow Up Champion.

Those in the White camp are a unit in the belief that almost any time after the tenth round will see the finish of the contest. It is figured that it is only a matter of slowing up the champion to leave Freddie in shape for the knockout.

Should the champion resort to covering up his right jaw with his right club when he begins to tire, it is believed Charley can quickly bring that defensive right down from the jaw by shooting hard left hooks to the body. Then up with the left and bang for the K. O. stuff, is the dope of White's entourage.

White Anxious for Battle.

So fit is White for the fray and so anxious is he to hear the opening clang of the gong that he would be better satisfied to go into action right now than to wait until Monday afternoon. As he finished his work this afternoon in the Temple gymnasium before a crowd of 300 admirers, his eyes glistened and he thoroughly looked the part of an athlete trained to the minute.

So, if perfect condition makes for victory, then the returns are already in, with the Chicago boy the new champion. With White in such shape it is therefore only natural that should Welsh, less sturdy of frame but husky of fighting brain, be returned winner there will be no question as to supremacy.

White has been doing a lot of thinking for himself. He never has had any reason to doubt his ability to reach the point called condition. So with that off his mind, he has plenty of time to plan the strategic moves which he believes will make him lightweight champion of the world.

Trains by Own System.

Out here in Colorado Springs Charley has found friends who have cheered him in his workouts. Some of these are wise heads in the game pugilistic, but while he has listened politely to their advice on how to defeat Welsh, Charley has not accepted their suggestions. His own dope he expects will enable him to win, and right down in his heart he believes when Monday's sun drops behind Pike's peak a new champion, name Charley White, will have been created.

White's confidence has not made him boastful, except in a quiet way, but talking with him this afternoon, just after he had finished his training, left no doubt as to what he thinks is going to happen.

"I don't see how I can lose," said Charley. "I have figured the thing from every angle, and the only answer I get is—victory."

Ban on Open Betting.

Somewhat of a stir was created today when the district attorney, M. W. Purcell, put a stop to all open betting on the bout. The game of wagering was running wide open, with Welsh favorite at odds of 10 to 8, and although there had been little betting either on the result of the contest or on a knockout, enough publicity was given to attract the attention of the district attorney. He immediately closed the one big wa-

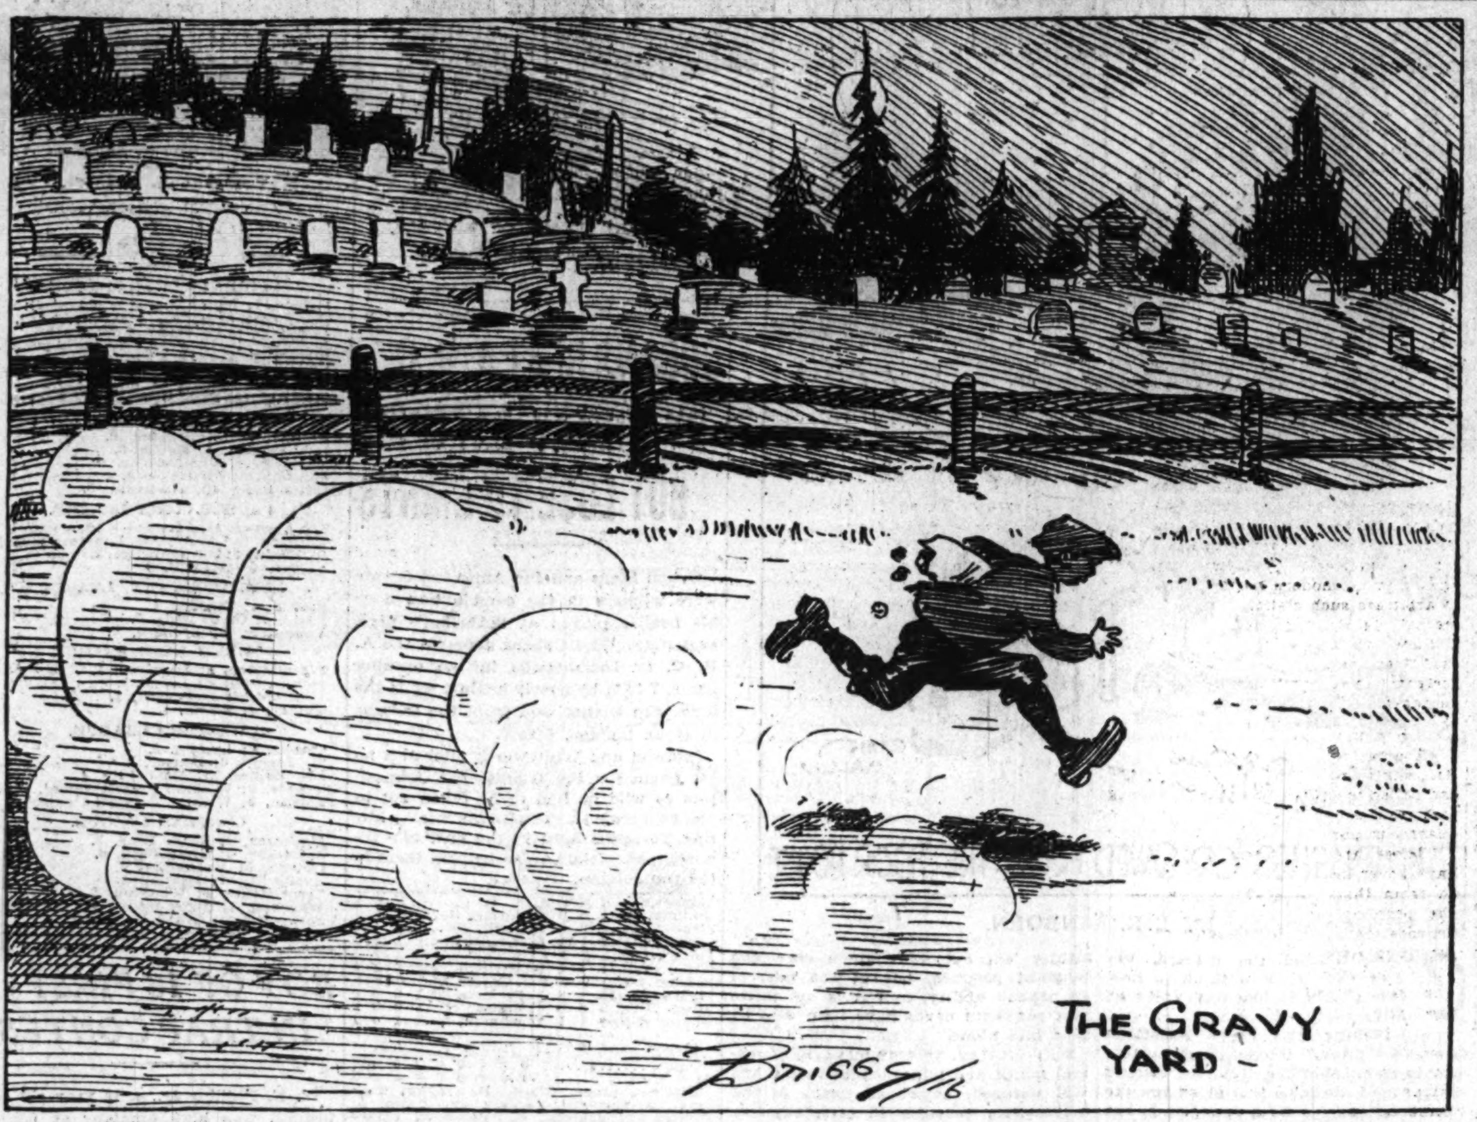
THE DAYS OF REAL SPORT



MURRAY UPSETS FAVORITE CHURCH IN NET TOURNEY

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 2.—R. Lindley Murray, a graduate of Stanford university and now a resident of New York, furnished the first form upset of the thirty-sixth annual national singles tennis tournament today by defeating George M. Church of Tenafly, N. J., in one of the best court battles seen in the greatest of all American tennis tournaments. Church had been the ruling favorite to win the title. Murray won in two hours of the fastest kind of play, 3—6, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4.

The match came as a climax to an otherwise comparatively dull round. Previous to this feature contest Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco disposed of Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, 6—4, 6—2, 6—2. William M. Johnston of San Francisco eliminated Watson M. Washburn of New York, 6—2, 6—2, 7—5. The one eastern representative to win his way into the semi-finals was R. Norris Williams II. of Philadelphia. He beat Douglas S. Watters of New Orleans, southern champion, 3—6, 6—1, 6—1, 6—2.

Church Starts as Favorite.

In the first two sets Church with his great stride rushed to the net at every chance and from there conducted a volleying campaign, which Murray could not equal. Murray's best asset was his terrific high bounding service, and although Church's was almost as good it did not appear to bother the Californian so much. Even in these sets Murray forced Church along at a terrible pace.

The men sprinted about the court like greyhounds, making impossible looking gets and placements. Church, however, had a slight advantage because of his superior passing ability and the speed with which he got to the net.

With the third set Murray appeared to draw upon a reserve store of energy and skill. His service and stroking in rallies grew in force and certainty and as Church also lifted his game to meet the new requirements, sensational volleys followed every service until it seemed that the men had reached the limit of speed and skill.

Church Makes Great Bid.

With the match two sets all and the score four games to love against him, Church made a great bid for the match. With a wonderful flash of playing and court covering, he drew up to almost even terms with Murray, who once was within a point of the match. Murray continued his brilliant play and ran through the final three frames at a great pace.

Griffin's play was only slightly less spectacular than that of Murray. His scientific placement shots threw Johnston, the Philadelphian, completely out of the running. Griffin and Johnston are partners in the national doubles championship team.

Champion Johnston, who has bowed twice to Washburn in recent meetings, started to work quickly, and Washburn was overwhelmed by the mixture of play fired at him by the champion.

Play Semi-Finals Monday.

Murray's great display of prowess should afford plenty of thought for Champion Johnston, who is scheduled to meet the former in the semi-final round on Monday. Williams will tackle Griffin. The Philadelphian was handicapped to some extent by the injured ankle, which interfered with his game all summer, particularly after showers interrupted his match with Walters.

As Murray, although he now makes his home in New York, is still ranked as a member of the California tennis contingent, the result of today's play leaves three Pacific stars to fight it out against Williams, the lone easterner.

In addition to the men's singles championship, progress was made today in the national junior and national boys' championships. In the junior singles H. A. Throckmorton, middle states champion, moved into the final round by defeating Arthur Favreau, New England champion, 6—2, 9—7, 6—1. Benjamin Letson, middle states boy champion, defeated D. W. Johnson, tri-state title holder, for the national boys' championship in straight sets, 6—0, 6—0, 6—1.

NATIONAL SINGLES.

Fifth round—R. Lindley Murray, New York, defeated George M. Church, Tenafly, N. J., 3—6, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4.

William M. Johnston, San Francisco, defeated Watson M. Washburn, New York, 6—2, 6—2, 7—5.

R. Norris Williams II., Philadelphia, defeated Douglas S. Watters, New Orleans, 3—6, 6—1, 6—1, 6—2.

Clarence J. Griffin, San Francisco, defeated Wallace F. Johnson, Philadelphia, 6—4, 6—2, 6—2.

NATIONAL JUNIOR.

Second round—Harold A. Throckmorton, middle states, defeated Arthur Favreau, New England, 6—2, 9—7, 6—1.

NATIONAL BOYS'.

In the Wake of the News

By RING W. LARDNER

THE DIARY OF A SIREN.

AUGUST 28.

RETURNED yesterday from my vacation at Macatawa and went back to work this morning. I had not been in the office ten minutes when the phone rung. It was Lennie.

"Well, girlie," he said, "did you have a good time?"

"Yes," I replied.

"Are you going to be busy this evening?" he said.

"I am never too busy to see you," I replied.

"All right," he said, "I will be out to see you around 8 o'clock."

So I worked hard till 10 o'clock and then the phone rung and it was Mr. Sargent, the man I met up to Macatawa.

"You see, I remembered the number," he said.

"Yes, Mr. Sargent," I replied.

"Well," he said, "you told me I could call up but I could not see you."

"Yes," I said, "I am sorry, but I think it will be best for both of us to forget our meeting."

"Well," he said, "what am I going to do with the two tickets I have for the show at the Grand tonight?"

"You better turn them in at the box office," I said, "and get your money back."

"They won't take the tickets back," he replied. "It looks like you would have to go with me."

◆

Well, diary, I felt so sorry for him on account of him buying the tickets and throwing his money away that I said I would go with him, and when I said it I forgot all about Lennie haveing called up and me haveing an engagement with him, and he the man who I am engaged to be married. But after I had accepted Mr. Sargent's invitation it was too late to get out of it, because in the first place he did not leave his phone number and in the second place he had boughten these tickets thinking I would go with him and it would not be fair not to go. So I reached Lennie at the ball park.

"Lennie," I said, "I told you that you might call on me tonight, but I wish you could postpone it till tomorrow night."

"Why?" he asked me.

"I have a desperate headache," I replied, which was the truth, "and I think it would be best for me if I went to bed early tonight."

"All right," he replied, "I will see you tomorrow night and I hope by that time your head feels better."

◆

So I hung up and all the rest of the day my conscience troubled me on account of me telling Lennie I could not see him and accepting the invitation from Mr. Sargent. But my head did ache terrible and when Mr. Sargent called for me out to the house about half past seven o'clock I felt so bad that I would not of gone with him only for he haveing boughten the tickets.

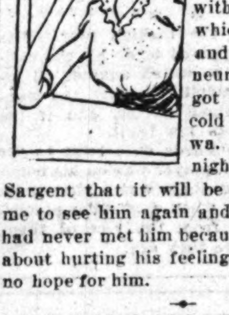
We seen the show together and I would of enjoyed the evening very much only for how sorry I felt for him because of the looks he give me. "Poor Mr. Sargent," I said to myself, "I wish we could be just good friends and I wish I was at liberty to tell you we can never be anything more."

After the show he insisted on me going to supper with him and when he brought me home he took my hand to shake hands and before I knew it he kissed me. I felt terribly sorry for him.

"Can I take you to another show tomorrow night?" he asked me.

"I am afraid not," I said. "I must stay home once in awhile."

"But I already got the tickets," he replied. And I forgot entirely about my engagement with Lennie for tomorrow night on account of me feeling so sorry for Mr. Sargent. So I will have to call Lennie up and tell him I am still troubled with headache which is the truth and I think it is neuralgia which I got from catching cold up to Macatawa. But tomorrow night I will tell Mr. Sargent that it will be impossible for me to see him again and I only wish I had never met him because I feel so bad about hurting his feelings when there is no hope for him.



◆

Many girls are always wishing they were more attractive, but they would never make such a wish if they knew how many problems one has to face and how it hurts your conscience to have to be cold and distant toward a man that would give his soul to call you his and you already spoken for.

CAMPFIRE WINS FUTURITY AND HONORS OF 1916

New York, Sept. 2.—By winning the rich Futurity stakes at six furlongs over the Belmont Park racetrack today, Richard L. Wilson's chestunut colt, Campfire, by Olambala—Nightfall, cinched his right to the 2 year old crown, as he cleverly demonstrated that he is the champion youngster of the year.

Carrying the top weight of 125 pounds, with Johnny McTaggart riding, Campfire won by half a length from H. P. Whitney's Rickety, with H. H. Hewitt's Skeptic third, two lengths away. The winner's time was 1:13 4-5 and the value of the stakes was $22,950, of which the winner's share, $17,340, went to Owner Wilson. Second money amounted to $2,366, and $1,133 went to the third horse.

Ten Face Barrier.

There were ten starters, three of them—Rickety, Tumbler, and Vivid— being the Whitney entry, while a pair of fillies, Madeira and Burlesque, represented the stable of Gifford A. Cochrane. Campfire was a pronounced public choice, the Whitney trio being next in favor, with Skeptic strongly supported as the next best in a lively market.

After a delay of four minutes at the post they were sent off to a good start. Campfire breaking from the outside position was taken to the middle of the track by McTaggart, when he took the lead and held it to the end. Just once, in the final furlong, Campfire's jockey flashed his whip and the colt responded gamely, winning going away.

Madeira Drops Back.

Madeira kept pace with the leader half a mile, but fell back at that stage, and Rickety, never far from the pace, challenged the leader in the last furlong, but could not get up. Skeptic broke strongly, but gradually gained a contending position and made a determined rush in the final sixteenth.

Vivid, well up throughout, finished a close fourth, Tumbler fifth, Deer Trap sixth, Pleasant Dreams seventh, Madeira and Burlesque next in order, with Star Finch last.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—Solly Joel has refused $250,000, which has been offered for his famous racehorse, Pommern, by a prominent foreign buyer. This is an advance of $50,000 over the present record price ever paid for a stallion—$200,000 having bought Prince Palatine.

Pommern, which earned great fame last year when he carried all before him, joining the select list of those racers which have the triple crown of English racing by winning the 2,000 guineas, the Derby, and St. Leger.

His owner, Solly Joel, will shortly sail for South Africa to take an active part in the next flat racing season.

ANGIER OF I. A. C. TAKES CENTRAL JAVELIN THROW.

R. Angier of the Ilinois A. C. yesterday at Grant park won the javelin throw, the uncompleted event of the Central A. A. U. championships held a week previous. The Tricolor club athlete threw the stick 160 feet 5 inches. R. Rinna of the Sleipner A. C. was second with a heave of 150 feet 10 inches. R. Thompson of the I. A. C. took third place with a mark of 136 feet 2 inches. T. H. Miller of the C. A. A. scored the other point with a heave of 125 feet 9 inches. The result of this event does not affect the team standing.

CY'S HOMERS GIVE CUBS EVEN BREAK; PINCH HITTER BEATS SOX IN TENTH, 2-1

ERROR BY NESS FATAL.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Before departing for the land of Fielder Jones the White Sox dropped a thriller to the Tigers here today. It required ten innings of hair raising ball to decide the combat, the Jungaleers finally putting over the blow that hurt on a pinch wallop by Harry Heilman. The final score was 2 to 1.

Pep Young paved the way for the finale by a double over Jackson's dome. Tub Spencer laid down a bunt for a sacrifice. Jennings had one of his lucky hunches and sent up Heilman for Coveleskie. Fans in the stands were heard panning the Tiger leader for his indiscretion, but their voices were drowned in the hurrahs that followed Heilman's line safety to left, which scored Young with the winning run.

Error by Ness Beats Sox.

The loss of the game must be laid at the door of Jack Ness, who committed his first costly error of the year. It was a grounder which sifted through his fingers that let in the first Tiger run.

Oscar Vitt paved the way for the first Tiger run when he rapped a triple to deep right in the opening round. Bush drove the ball toward Ness, who let it sift through for an error, Vitt scoring.

Coveleskie and Russell then engaged in a duel, retiring the sides without a score up to the seventh inning. In that frame Ray Schalk, who is the most troublesome batter for Tiger pitchers on Navin field, came through with a duplicate of Vitt's triple to deep right. With one gone the order for the squeeze play was flashed along the line. J. Collins bunted perfectly and was thrown out, Schalk scoring the tying run.

Fans Cheer Rowlands.

Both Coveleskie and Russell were in rare form and their work was applauded frequently. The Detroit fans laid aside prejudice to clap their hands for some brilliant play by the visiting players. Von Kolnitz and Weaver figured in some hair raising catches.

This was the final contest of the year between the Sox and Tigers. The series for the season stands: Sox, 13; Detroit, 9.

Manager Rowland was chased from the game in the tenth by Umpire Hildebrand. Rowland says Young hasn't touched first base yet, and it was Young's double that started the tenth frame for Detroit and broke up the game. Score:

CHICAGO FIREMEN'S NINE BEATS MILWAUKEE SQUAD.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Chicago firemen proved too much for Milwaukee in the annual baseball game today, the Windy City team winning, 17 to 6. About $5,000 was realized and will go into the Milwaukee department's pension fund. The following fire fighters made up the Chicago team:

Wright, 2b, hook and ladder No. 12; Lehman, lf, engine company 90; Moynihan, 1b, captain engine company 7; Kirbirg, ss, hook and ladder 13; Phfister, cf, engine company 6; Ryan, 2b, hook and ladder 6; Holstrum, rf, engine company 55; McMahon, , engine company 16; Boyle, p., hook and ladder 15.

Moynihan captained the team and Capt. T. Maher of headquarters was manager.

BREWER HURLER TO GIANTS.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 2.—Pitcher Ralph Comstock of the Milwaukee team will be sent to the New York Nationals in a few days, according to President Timme of the local club. In return Timme expects to get a catcher. Comstock has been the only winning pitcher on the Milwaukee staff this season.

SOX TO GET TWO PLAYERS.

Hannibal, Mo., Sept. 2.—"Turkey" Thomas is reported to have been sold to the Chicago White Sox under an arrangement by which Hannibal gets $1,000 and the pick of the recruits Comiskey will turn back next spring. Shortstop Krueger of Hannibal also is slated for a trial with Rowland's team.

Notes

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Weaver made a play for the book in the first inning when he ran back and stabbed Cobb's fly. Bush was doubled off first.

Bush had a bad day at short, but his boots didn't figure in the scoring.

Russell fanned three batsmen in succession in the seventh and eighth innings.

It was the first time this season that Connolly and Hildebrand had done team work as arbiters.

Navin field was nearly filled with rooters, but the attendance was given out as 12,945 paid admissions.

They say Sam Crawford is about ready to pass in his checks, but he failed to look that way in the game. He fielded like a youngster.

Cobb was hit on the thigh by a terrific liner from Burns' bat in the ninth inning. Cobb was out, retiring the side, and Burns got a hit.

Two Circuit Smashes by Williams Win Second for Tinx, 5 to 4.

CARDS TAKE FIRST, 7-3

BY SAM WELLER.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Had it not been for Cy Williams the Cubs would have departed for home tonight with a double defeat chalked against them. As a result of the tall center fielder's slugging ability, Tinker took his men back to Chicago with an even split in the double header with the Cardinals. Williams drove out two home runs, making it possible for the Cubs to win the second combat, 5 to 4, in eight innings. They lost the first, 7 to 3.

The Cardinals led, 3 to 1, going into the fifth inning of the second half. They had collected three runs on four hits off Claude Hendrix in the fourth. In the fifth Williams drove out his first homer with two men on and put the Cubs in front. He poled his second four bagger in the eighth, but this time there were no runners on the bags.

Hendrix Fails to Finish.

It was well for the Cubs that Williams made these home runs, for the Cardinals forced Boss Tinker to yank Claude Hendrix in the eighth, when he threatened to lose his advantage by his wildness. He walked two men, then Mike Prendergast finished the game. Opposed to Hendrix was Reese Williams, whose inability to beat Cy Williams at the plate lost him the game.

Nick Carter attempted to conquer the Cardinals in the initial combat, but failed miserably. Huggins' warriors drove him to cover in five innigs, cinching the battle in the fifth on a series of long hits. Jim Vaughn came to Carter's rescue and was pounded almost as heavily. Off the pair the Cardinals amassed a total of eight hits, bunching five in the fifth for five runs and two in the eighth with a pair of passes for two more markers.

Mule Watson Stops Cubs.

Mule Watson, a Cardinal youngster, was on the rubber and the runs gathered for him in the fifth made it easy for him to win. He let up after the sixth and allowed the Cubs to get five hits. No runs should have been manufactured off these swats, but three errors were injected into the contest and helped Tinker's men to their scores.

Four innings of the opener were played before either side scored, then the Cardinals assailed Carter vigorously. Chief Wilson started with a long fly which struck Cy Williams on top of the head and went for three bases. Miller was retired, but Gonzales smashed a single to center, scoring Wilson. Betzel followed with a three bagger to right center, counting Gonzales. Long singled to center, scoring Betzel. Long purloined second while Carter was passing Corhan.

Tinker hauled Carter in and brought Vaughn from the clubhouse. Bescher doubled to left, sending Long and Corhan home. The hammering ceased when Snyder fouled to Archer.

Cards Get Two More.

In the eighth Vaughn passed Bescher, who advanced to third on Hippo's wild heave past Saier. Snyder singled and Bescher reached home. Miller singled and Vaughn later uncorked a wild pitch which let Gonzales score.

The Cubs crowded three hits into the seventh and got two runs. Williams beat out a hit, Wortman and Vaughn singled, and Watson uncorked a wild pitch for the pair of runs. Errors by Betzel and Corhan, with Saier's single, allowed the Cubs to annex one more in the eighth.

Flack Doubles and Scores.

The Cubs scored in the opening frame of the second battle when Flack doubled to left and took third on Doyle's single. Saier singled to right, sending Flack home.

Huggins' men went after Hendrix in the fourth. Corhan singled and stole second after Bescher fouled to Wilson. Snyder singled, scoring Corhan. Chief Wilson pushed a scratch hit to Doyle, who threw the ball over Saier's head, letting Snyder hike to the far corner and Wilson to second. Both runners tallied on Miller's single to left.

Cy's Homer Nets Three.

In the fifth Flack made first on Miller's fumble, remaining on first while Doyle and Mann were retired, and moved to second when Saier drew a pass. Williams put the Cubs back into the fight with a home run drive far into the right field bleachers, scoring Flack and Saier ahead of him.

In the eighth, after Long went out, Hendrix passed Corhan and Bescher. Prendergast came in and let Snyder single, scoring Corhan. Wilson fled to Williams and Miller fanned.

CUB RECRUIT HURLER WINS NO-HIT TILT FOR HOOSIERS.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 2.—Victor Aldridge, who will join the Chicago Cubs at the end of the American association season, pitched a no hit shutout game against Columbus today, and his teammates won by making three runs. Claude Derrick's jumping, one handed catch of Pete Johns' Texas league fly in the ninth inning, and Zwilling's fine catch of Demmitt's line drive in the first prevented Columbus from making hits.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—With St. Louis leading by 4 to 3 in the ninth, Cleveland won out in the final round, 5 to 4. Wambsganss led off with a single. Gandil sacrificed, and O'Neil fanned. Moeller, who had not made a hit since joining Cleveland, singled to center, scoring Wambsganss. Moeller took second on Marsans's throw to the plate and scored on Chapman's single to left.

Davenport was hit hard at the outset and was forced to retire in the fourth, giving way to a pinch hitter, Rumler, who drove in two runs.

SENATORS WIN IN 11TH, 7-6.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—Washington defeated Philadelphia, 7 to 6, in an eleven inning game. Foster's muff of an easy pop fly in the eighth allowed the visitors to tie the score and brought Gallia in to relieve Harper. In the eleventh McBride was hit by a pitched ball and went around on a sacrifice and hits by Gallia and Foster. Score:

TO PLAY SEMI-FINALS IN CITY LEAGUE TODAY.

Semi-finals for the City league pennant will be staged this afternoon, the Magnets appearing at Rex Tiger park and the Normals showing at South Chicago against the home teams. The winners will battle for the flag next Sunday. The Tigers secured the right to pitch "Red" Ormsby against Barney Coss at the eleventh hour, Manager Bill Kavanagh of the West Ends finally consenting to give the big fellow a clean bill. Exhibition games are:

EIGHT CUP GAMES TODAY

The Chicago Junior Baseball league scheduled eight games in the third round of the cup series today. The feature was the booking of the Invincibles and Grahams at Normal Park. The schedule:

Invincibles and Grahams at Normal Park, Sixty-first and Racine avenue.
Pacellis and Amos at Thirty-seventh and Racine.
I. B.s and High Mountain Jrs. at Forty-third and Washtenaw.
Margates and Satalites at Forty-third avenue and Thirty-first street.
Nectars and Douglas Tigers at Douglas park.
Fontanas and Shamrocks at Arthington and Lawndale.
Mareks and Arcadias at Montrose and Lincoln, Welles park.
Margolis and Lincoln Clothiers at Wrightwood and Greenview.

FIVE TEARNEY GAMES TODAY.

Five games are carded in the Tearney medal contest, the second round of which will be staged today. Games follow:

Southwest State bank and Ciceros at Forty-eighth and Twelfth.
SS. Peter and Pauls and White Citys at Thirty-eighth and Paulina.
Mortons and Grand Crossings at Seventy-ninth and Woodlawn.
Steger at Chicago Heights.
Galligans and Marquettes at Albany and Lake.

JOHN EVERS OUT FOR YEAR.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 2.—Johnny Evers, captain and second baseman of the Boston Braves, is out of baseball for the remainder of the season, Manager Stallings announced tonight. "Neuritis is bothering him so his family doctor says it is useless for him to think of getting back into the lineup this year," Stallings said.

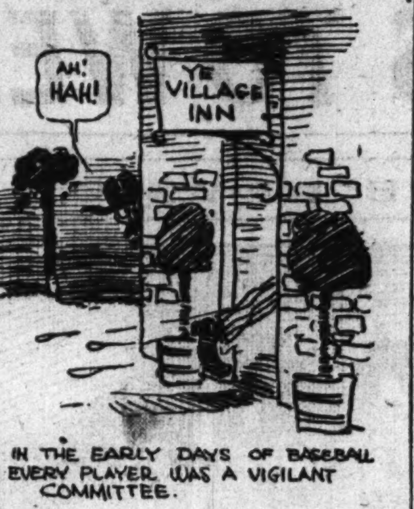
QUIN HALL

OVER THE HILLS TO THE BUSHES OR SAVED FROM THE POOR HOUSE



IN THE EARLY DAYS OF BASEBALL EVERY PLAYER WAS A VIGILANT COMMITTEE.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Considering the discard, did you ever stop to think in how few games it has any value at all?

Playing the great American game of "draw," if enough gamesters stay in to exhaust the deck, the discard may prove invaluable if it gives you the right card to fill a flush or a house, but usually the discards are as lifeless as yesterday's pipe ashes. In the more modern game of rhum only the top card of the discard has any value and the rest is dead wood. In the majority of indoor games there is no discard, anyway.

Baseball is a peculiar game in that the discard may prove of great value, and there is no limit to the amount of resurrection to which a discarded player may be susceptible. As in poker, a discard may prove a winner in the right hand.

* *

If any one doubts it, take a second slant at that Brooklyn outfit which is leading the National league and has compelled the experts to consider it seriously as a most likely pennant winner at this writing. There are more discards to the square foot on the Brooklyn lot than anywhere else outside the minor leagues, but Manager Robinson seems to have shuffled them into a winning hand.

There is Mike Mowrey on third base, who has been cast off by any number of major league managers. He is one of the most dangerous pinch hitters in the game. Ivan Olson was finally picked to fill the yawning gap at short field and Ivan wasn't good enough for any team in the American league after Cleveland grew tired of him. Then there is Jimmy Johnston the outfielder who has been up into the majors and back again so many times that even he has lost count. He was tried out and found wanting by both Chicago teams because he could not hit. Wilbert Robinson has injected some swat serum into him, apparently.

* *

On the pitching staff look at Larry Cheney, Rube Marquard, and Jack Coombs. And behind the bat Chief Meyers. To be sure one or two of these players are not exactly discards because they were obtained in trade, but the majority of them were picked up at small effort simply because they did not fit into the hands that previously held them.

One could form an "old men's club" out of the Robin outfit and get a large membership without great effort, and that was what made the experts at the beginning of the season decline to take Brooklyn's leadership seriously. But they are no longer joking about the whiskers and crutches supposed to be worn by the Robins off the field. It may be an old man's team, but it plays baseball the way it used to be played and that seems to be able to beat the game that is played by younger blood.

There doesn't seem to be any player on Robinson's team that can't at least make a good attempt to do anything he wants him to do in a given situation. That is the mark of a player of ten years ago. They were not so highly specialized as the youngsters have become. Players are carried today to do certain things and nothing else. There are 300 hitters in the big leagues who cannot lay down a sacrifice bunt with any degree of certainty. They have developed their talent for hitting 'em out with much care and constant practice, but at the cost of all around ability, and it is an axiom that pennants never have been won by base hits alone.

Billy Murray, veteran manager of several major and minor league teams, and Kid Gleason, comeback coach of the White Sox, encountered each other on the road recently and hooked up in a reminiscent fanning fest. Like all old timers, they agreed that the player of today is not what he used to be, and largely for the reason that he does not carry the responsibility that formerly was placed on the shoulders of the players individually and collectively. The manager, if he was not in the game himself, was merely a director general, and in many cases the players were no more responsible to the managers in a way than they were to each other.

* *

Gleason cited the old Baltimore team, of which he was a member under Ned Hanlon. According to the Kid, Hanlon used to sit on the bench, keep score of the game, and put down the rotation of his pitchers, then let the players do the rest. He did not even have to watch his players off the field, for they constituted a mutual detective agency. Any player on that team when it was in the pennant winning or contending class who did not keep himself in condition to do his best was handled by the players themselves as a rule, because he was not playing fair with them, as well as doing his club owners an injustice.

Hanlon did not even have to call his men down for making a dumb play or overlooking a chance to trap an opponent. By the time that player's teammates had got through "ragging" him for his mistake there was nothing Hanlon could add to the symposium, and the player could not nurse a grouch on the theory that the manager had it in for him, because he had the whole team on his back to convince him he was wrong and had no alibi.

* *

Today the player who jumps on a teammate for a mistake is regarded as a crab and shortly finds himself unpopular. No thought is taken of the fact the player is working heart and soul for the success of his team and is prodding others for their own benefit as well as his own. When a baseball team has a chance for the pennant every player who makes a costly mistake or fails to keep himself in perfect condition to do his best is an enemy of every other player on that team in a way. He ought to expect to be called down by his teammates for a blunder that may cost each of them a share in the world's series receipts.

If, for the indulgence of his own selfish whims or habits, he puts himself out of condition, there is no reason why the other players should not take him to task and roast him for injuring their own interests as well as his own without in any way betraying him to his manager.

* *

That is not the fashion now. The manager is supposed to do all the calling down and to watch against all infractions of discipline, in fact, the manager is the whole cheese, and if the team fails it is his fault.

Brooklyn's discards date back to the days when each player was on his honor to behave when there was a chance for a pennant and when a mistake precipitated a roast from the rest of them. And look where they are.

PHILLIES ANNEX THIRD STRAIGHT FROM ROBINS, 4-1

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 2.—Philadelphia made it three straight victories over Brooklyn by winning, 4 to 1. Cheney was knocked off the rubber in five innings, all the home team's runs being made off him. Smith was hit safely four times. Demaree held Brooklyn to five hits and was given splendid support. The visitors escaped being shut out for the third successive time when Wheat scored on his double and Mowrey's single in the seventh. Score:

Boston, Mass., Sept. 2.—New York won the first game of today's double header, 4 to 1, and fought the Braves ten innings to a tie in the second contest, called on account of darkness, with the score 5 to 5. New York hit Tyler hard in the second inning, scoring three runs. Tyler retired in the fifth for Reulbach. Gowdy was put out of the game for disputing a decision at first base.

Boston had a 5 to 1 lead in the second game until the seventh inning, when passes, a single, and a fielder's choice gave the Giants two runs. In the eighth the Giants pounded Rudolph for two singles and a triple, tieing the game. Manager McGraw was chased for disputing a called strike. Scores:

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 2.—Hinchman's terrific home run drive in the sixth inning of the first game of today's double header with Cincinnati was the longest hit ever made at Forbes field and netted two runs. Pittsburgh scored two more runs in the eighth and won, 4 to 3. In the second game Moseley was wild, but the locals could not solve his delivery with men on bases, while Evans was hit hard after errors by McCarthy and Warner, and Cincinnati won, 7 to 2. Scores:

CUBANS BEAT A. B. C. BY TIMELY BATTING, BUT LOSE TO GIANTS

Cuban Stars and the American Giants were winners in the combination double header played at Schorling's park yesterday. The Cubans defeated the A. B. C. of Indianapolis in the opening game, 7 to 5, by timely hitting, while the American Giants won from the Cubans in seven innings, 6 to 0.

Johnson and Whiteworth pitched a no hit game for the Giants, but Johnson was so wild he had to be taken out in the fifth innings. The Giants won by hitting Torrentti hard in the first two innings, poor fielding also helping them in the run column. Scores:

FORT DEARBORN NINE CAPTURES CHICAGO TITLE

Bankers Beat Illinois Tools and Will Play for National Honors.

The Fort Dearborn National bank carried the colors of the Bankers' league to the front in the battle for the amateur championship of Chicago in 1916 by defeating the Illinois Tool Works, champions of the Commercial league, 10 to 8, at Garden City park yesterday. Ragged work by the fielders of the Commercial leaguers caused their downfall, as "Gibby" Nelson outpitched his opponent. He fell only when fly balls that came with men on base were dropped by his backers.

A crowd of over 3,000 fans was there when President Jake Garland Stahl pitched the first ball to Ed Litzinger and for four innings the "Comical" leaguers had thing to themselves. A fly to Hanks in the fourth, with two men on, got lost in the sun, and it gave the Bankers a fresh lien on life and more errors in subsequent rounds built up too big a count for the Commercials to overcome.

Victory carries with it the right for the Fort Dearborns to represent Chicago in the national amateur championship, which will start next Saturday at Des Moines, when the Bankers will open a three game series with the Iowa winners. Score:

DRIVING HOME THE PROOF

Under actual touring conditions a registered 7 passenger stock model King 8 has just completed the longest fuel economy run ever attempted—Pittsburgh to Milwaukee—a distance of 616.4 miles, AND AVERAGED 14.658 MILES TO THE GALLON OF GASOLINE.

Nor is that all—not a drop of oil or water was put into the car after leaving Pittsburgh and the tires finished on Pittsburgh air. The only mechanical adjustment made on the entire trip was to tighten a rear hub cap.

A remarkable record! Yes, but not unusual for a King 8.—It is right in line with what King 8 cars are doing EVERY DAY. It is what the King 8 you buy WILL DO FOR YOU.

A demonstration will prove it. Suit your convenience as to time and place.

CHAMPION LIGHTWEIGHT AND CHICAGO CHALLENGER WHO MEET IN COLORADO SPRINGS RING TOMORROW

LOCAL MEN RULE AMONG LEADERS FOR GOLF TITLE

Bob Gardner, Evans, Sawyer Picked Over Other Stars in National Amateur.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Of the twenty-one amateur golf championships of the United States players from the metropolitan district have won nine, Chicago coming second with eight. Pittsburgh has won two of the remaining four. Francis Ouimet won one for Boston and Harold Hilton scored once for England.

Chicago's chances of scoring another victory in the annual classic which will start tomorrow at Philadelphia are equal to those of the metropolitan and it does not look as if any other section will break into the winning bracket, although the south and the far west have several strong representatives.

Evans Has Fine Chance.

Perhaps the most prevailing question among Chicagoans is, Can Chick Evans win? Since 1907, when he failed to qualify at Cleveland, the Edgewater star has been a regular attendant, but so far his most cherished ambition, the capture of the amateur title, has not been realized. Four times winner of the western championship and this year the national open champion, he has yet to anex the amateur championship.

Chick got his first real glimpse at the honor in 1909 at the Chicago Golf club, when he reached the semi-final round but was defeated by Chandler Egan. The following year at Brookline he was defeated by W. C Fownes Jr., 1 up. in the semi-finals, and the next year at Apawamis he was eliminated by Fred Herreshoff, 2 and 1, in the penultimate round.

In Sight of Honor Often.

The following year at Chicago he got a step nearer, but in his memorable final with Jerome Travers he lost, 7 and 6. In 1913 he again was a semi-finalist, but fell before John Anderson, 2 and 1. At Ekwanok the following year he met his nemesis, Eben Byers, and was eliminated in the first round, while at Detroit last year he met Ned Sawyer, who was going at top speed, and was defeated, 6 and 5, in the first round.

With the exception of those players who have won the title, "Chick's" showing has been far better than that of any other contestant. A tendency to "crack" in a close match contributed to several of his defeats, but judging by his success in this year's national open event, he seems to have overcome this.

Finger Handicaps Gardner.

Robert A. Gardner, the title holder, would be as strong a favorite as Evans but for the infection in his left fore finger. For the last two months the Hinsdale star has been playing the best golf of his career and if he can grip his clubs tomorrow he can be counted on to get some distance in the tournament.

Bob has the best golfing temperament of any player in America and for the amount of practice he gets is a marvel. He won the title at Chicago in 1909 from Chandler Egan and repeated at Detroit last year by an easy victory over Anderson.

Ned Sawyer of Wheaton must be given an equal rating with Evans and Gardner. He played wonderful golf at Detroit up to the third round, when he fell off a few strokes and was eliminated by Gardner. He was a finalist in 1905, when he lost to Egan.

Other Star Chicagoans.

Paul Hunter, Albert Seckel, and W. I. Howland are the three next best of the Chicago contingent. Hunter's best showing was at Chicago in 1912, when he reached the third round and lost to H. Kerr at the thirty-seventh hole. Seckel never has gone past the third round, while Howland never has advanced beyond the second.

Ridgemoor.

In the semi-finals for the President's trophy at Ridgemoor R. E. Williams defeated J. B. Arnold, 5 and 3, and L. E. Rein defeated A. W. Johnson, 4 and 3. Henry E. Strassheim, the veteran bowler, won the sweepstakes with a card of 82—12—70, others sharing in the dividend being E. D. Bray, 88—16—72; J. B. Day, 91—18—73, and F. J. L. Kolb, 92—18—74.

Results in the play for the Woltz trophy were: F. J. L. Kolb won from Roy Williams by default; J. C. Weisert defeated W. J. Jamieson, 1 up; W. P. Hageman defeated M. E. Franklin, 6 and 5; W. A. Bayless defeated W. C. Toles, 3 and 2; F. M. Smith defeated J. B. Arnold, 4 and 3.

North Shore.

Frank Wanner defeated E. Hedrick, 5 and 4, in the semi-finals for the club championship at North Shore. The Scott-Cutler match was deferred. Allan Backius won the Coolidge trophy with a card of 88—25—63, and expects an operation on his handicap. E. Rhodes and I. Woodward tied for the Gallie cup and W. Bettridge won the handicap against par, finishing all square.

Oak Park.

W. T. Johnson won the class A handicap at Oak Park with a card of 91—12—79. E. P. Waud, 96—21—75, won in class B and J. Meier, 103—30—73, in class C. Results of the second round for the club championship were: F. M. Swiries defeated W. Spear, 3 and 2; W. P. Thiebault defeated E. P. Waud.

Westward Ho.

Results in the first round for the club championship at Westward Ho were: W. Kettlestrings defeated E. S. Kennedy, 3 and 1; M. A. Evans defeated J. R. McGregor, 2 and 1; C. Richards defeated W. M. Graves, 1 up; A. H. Bernard defeated H. B. Albro, 1 up; T. L. Gadke defeated M. H. Davis, 4 and 3; H. E. Turner won from A. L. Goodman by default; F. P. Sullivan defeated W. H. Speer, 4 and 3.

Hinsdale.

J. N. Redfern won the final for the Blount Age Limit cup at Hinsdale, defeating A. G. Degan, 2 and 1. S. T. Collins won the handicap cup and E. F. Brewster took the age limit cup from M. S. Bush, 1 up.

Qualifying scores for the Robbins cup were: E. F. Brewster, A. Martin, 85; N. G. Simons, S. T. Snohr, S. T. Collins Jr., 86; R. Maxwell, 87; D. G. Heinly, 88; G. H. Bent, 89; W. T. Evans, 90; C. G. Fellows, 91; J. T. Thompson, H. R. Thayer, 92; C. S. Morse, W. L. Blackman, 94; W. V. Brown, 94; W. J. Totten, 94

Riverside.

W. N. Willard won the Vice President's cup at Riverside by defeating R. B. Cushing, 4 and 3, and also took the prize for low gross score with an 88 in the eighteen hole medal handicap event. H. J. Campbell, 94—20—74, registered low net. Other leading scores: H. B. Babson, 103—28—75; E. Templeton, 87—12—75; W. N. Willard, [illegible]—75.

Elmhurst.

[illegible] victories in the penultimate round W. B. Pearn and F. L. Hankey went into the final for the Age Limit cup at Elmhurst. Pearn defeated F. L. Morrell, 2 up, while Hankey was forced to the last green to defeat G. S. Thompson. Eighteen players qualified for the Labor Day trophy. In the women's division Miss L. Rosche won the Members' cup by defeating Mrs. F. Beebe, 2 up.

Midlothian.

With a card of 86—87—173, C. W. Booth won the Goodman cup at Midlothian with little opposition. It was necessary for the prospective winner of the trophy to register a gross score of 178 or under. L. A. Wiley won the ball sweepstakes by notching 97—27—70. Leading scores:

Goodman cup—C. W. Booth, 86—87—173; L. E. Burr, 88—92—180; D. J. Malloy, 91—91—182; F. A. Helmer, 90—93—183; W. M. Robbins, 93—99—192.

Ball sweepstakes—L. A. Wiley, 97—27—70; J. C. Dean, 88—16—72; J. C. Reber, 88—15—73; H. P. Walden, 89—16—73; D. Evans, 103—30—73.

The P. J. Schaefer cup at Edgewater was annexed by A. D. White when he defeated H. A. Mehrle, 3 and 2. Only one match was decided in the third round for the Cummings cup, H. G. Campbell defeating A. V. Dillon, 4 and 3. The second round for the McDonald cup resulted as follows: L. E. Josselin defeated G. L. Payne, 1 up; H. C. Clover defeated W. J. Lawler, 5 and 4; H. L. Winters defeated E. W. Hughes, 3 and 1; E. H. Uhl defeated H. T. Dillon, 1 up.

The initial round for the Consolation cup also was decided. H. H. Heins defeated F. L. Tousey, 4 and 3; J. H. Lawler defeated A. C. Timm, 3 and 1; R. V. McNeil's defeated S. J. Miniter, 1 up; R. W. Beach defeated C. E. Payne, 7 and 5.

West Pullman.

Results in the second round for the club championship at West Pullman were as follows: S. Bristol defeated N. H. De Young, 2 and 1; J. Jensen won by default; F. Graham defeated L. H. Meyers, 2 and 1; H. D. Cook defeated H. C. Clayton, 4 and 3. The qualifying round for the Von Lengerke trophy was played and pairings for the first round are: N. H. D. Young and Dr. N. M. Gunn; L. H. Meyers and E. E. Allbright; F. M. Gunn and R. C. Carleton; F. Graham and M. E. Nelson; H. Sett and F P. Allen; S. Bristol and H. Clayton; J. Jensen and J. Miller; Dr. P. W. Halleman and T. C. Hill.

Onwentsia.

By returning a card of 92—23—69 Leeds Mitchell won the handicap at Onwentsia. D. R. Wegg was second, 87—17—70, while E. W. Winter, 82—11—71, tied with J. Hamline, 80—18—71. F. Hibbard followed with 87—14—73, and P. Gardner, who had low gross, finished next with 79—4—75.

South Shore.

South Shore members competed in the qualifying round for the Labor day tournament. Pairings for the initial round follow:

Charles Antoine cup—C. F. Olson and F. H. Pitkin vs. A. C. Jackman and C. F. Wiley; G. Patterson and Dr. A. F. Henning vs. D. Campbell and D. Rollo.

H. Critchfield trophy—F. J. O'Brien and B. McMeal vs. H. T. Gilbert and J. P. McGrath; I. J. Humphrey and W. A. Waide vs. D. P. Trude and W. O. Trainor.

B. F. Hitchens trophy—C. H. Ball and J. H. Hamilton vs. H. F. Wilkins and C. C. Hale.

La Grange.

Play in the first match rounds for the various club trophies at La Grange was not finished until well toward dusk. Results:

Club championship—H. Simons defeated J. N. Tilton, 6 and 4; C. M. Denise defeated J. A. Connell, 2 and 1; E. M. Hicok defeated A. B. Hall, 2 up; H. P. Spear defeated F. A. Russell, 5 and 3; B. N. Wheaton.

Dr. A. E. Price won the Old Boys' trophy at Wheaton by defeating E. P. Miller, 4 and 3. The President's cup reached the finals, in which D. H. Tweedie will play S. H. Lyon. Tweedie defeated Walter Stock, 5 and 4 in the semi-final round, while Lyon took the measure of E. H. Lannart, 2 up. In the first round for the club championship F. Burgess defeated J. Tuttle, 5 and 4; P. Nall defeated P. Bessire, 1 up; F. J. Douglas defeated E. H. Lennart, 6 and 5; J. Miller defeated F. M. Cutter, 3 and 2.

Edgewood.

In the team event against par at Edgewood, O. N. Wakefield and I. A. Brewer were 3 up, G. M. Donnally and E. A. Elder, 2 up; and J. Tilton and E. C. Davies, 2 up. Results in the first round for the President's trophy were: J. D. Murphy defeated F. H. Bradford, 1 up; O. N. Wakefield defeated I. A. Brewer, 5 and 4; C. F. Ostrander defeated E. H. Smith, 2 and 1; G. M. Donnally defeated E. A. Elder, 2 and 1; O. F. Scudder defeated H. C. Beckman, 2 and 1.

Edgebrook.

W. W. Becker had low net of 60 in the qualifying round for the S. M. Earling cup at Edgebrook. James J. Mullen, the Hibernian expert, who is in the billiard business, "potted" his tee shot for the second hole, known as the circus ring. The distance is 150 yards. The qualifiers were W. W. Becker, C. M. Hollis, W. T. McAndrews, E. Vullmahn, H. Uhlemann, J. H. Taylor, C. A. Butler, F. Vullmahn, W. W. Watson, A. M. Bryant, C. F. Ross, J. J. Mullen, L. L. McLain, L. C. James, J. Hedricg and C. Meahy.

Skokie.

Skokie members competed in the finals for the Town cups and in a handicap event. The latter contest was taken by C. D'Aix, 93—19—72. The result of the match round: Glencoe cup—W. Paepcke defeated W. R. Watson, 5 and 4. Glencoe cup II.—M. M. Townley defeated A. D. Edwards, 2 up. Winnetka cup—S. A. Safford defeated S. A. Wilmarth, 2 and 1. Kenilworth cup—B. B. Clover defeated F. Sherman, 2 up. Wilmette cup—A. Washington defeated M. P. Noyes, 2 up. Evanston cup—C. A. Eldridge defeated H. G. Phillips, 5 and 4. A. B. Kemp defeated C. H. Meyer, 4 and 3.

Westmoreland.

The feature at Westmoreland was the class handicap. W. B. Huey, 84—9—75, was low in class A. E. J. Nichols with 94—16—78 won in class B, and W. F. Dixmit, 101—22—79, in class C. The President's cup, offered for low net for 72 holes, also was taken by Huey, who finished with 307. The ball sweepstakes was won by J. D. W. Archer, 81—4—77. In the blind bogey B. D. Stevens, C. A. Rowe, H. W. Armstrong, W. T. Sheffield, and A. E. Patten tied with net scores of 87.

WHITE EXPECTS TO LAND "KAYO"

gering shop and announced that as far as public wagering was concerned there would be nothing more doing.

The champion sprung a new one on the fans who attended the training performances at the Temple. Mrs. Freddie Welsh, accompanied by little Betty, his 2½ year old daughter, were at the ringside as usual, and when Freddie started work Betty with a wee pair of boxing gloves on her hands was shoved through the ropes to give the champion his first bout.

Heaves Gloves at Daddy.

Freddie immediately slipped a light left to Betty's tummy and Betty sat down on the canvas. She didn't take the count, but got up quickly and, pulling off the gloves, threw them half way across the ring at her daddy, which ended her workout.

Referee Billy Roche was among the arrivals today, as was also Bob Vernon, the New York impresario. Roche says he is ready for the job ahead of him. Vernon't isn't as enthusiastic as usual, because he bet on the wrong nag before departing from Gotham.

GRANDPA COCKRELL TAKES GOLF TROPHY AT FLOSSMOOR CLUB

W. A. Cockrell of the Calumet club won the annual competition for the Grandfather's trophy at the Flossmoor Country club. As in previous years, the players were allowed half a stroke for each grandchild present at the tee, in addition to their regular allowances. Contestants having only one descendant present were able to take a full stroke, as the Western Golf association does not allow fractions in figuring handicaps. Cockrell had a card of 88—15—73 and finished three strokes ahead of his clubmate, E. F. Bryant, who had 95—19—76.

John H. Wood of Flossmoor and J. L. Bobo of the same club made the best showing in point of family attendance, each presenting four grandchildren at the starting point.

Leaders in Contest.

W. A. Cockrell, Calumet [1], 88—15—73; E. F. Bryant, Calumet [1], 95—19—76; N. B. Higbie, Flossmoor [3], 95—18—77; W. H. Leonard, Calumet [2], 94—16—78; R. O. Law, Flossmoor [1], 91—13—78; J. H. Wood, Flossmoor [4], 92—14—78; J. L. Bobo, Flossmoor [4], 101—22—79; C. N. Gillett, Flossmoor [2], 92—9—81.

In the eighteen hole medal handicap C. V. Essroger, 81—4—77, and J. D. Hibbard, 86—9—77, tied for the low net. Essroger won the toss. R. J. Daly won the Warren McArthur cup by defeating Marquis Eaton, 2 and 1.

Play in the first round for the President's cup resulted as follows: A. S. Shiverick defeated C. Cadwell, 1 up; C. V. Essroger defeated F. L. Horton, 2 up; M. W. Borders defeated J. I. Cooper, 2 and 1; W. Morava won from E. Kenyon by default; G. E. Bliss defeated W. W. Low, 1 up; R. J. Daly won by default from W. J. Taber; A. M. Bates defeated Marquis Eaton, 2 and 1; D. A. Crawford won by default from B. H. Whiting.

Beverly.

Dr. B. A Duffy and G. S. Haskell will cross clubs at Beverly in the final for the Hooper trophy. Duffy defeated A. W. Morton, 5 and 4, while Haskell eliminated E. B. Shogren, 3 and 2. In the second match round for the J. E. Hitt trophy A. G. Fitch defeated J. D. Adams, 1 up; M S. Lamoreaux won by default from F. F. Holmes; M. J. Moriarity defeated H. B. Osgood, 2 and 1, and E. C Barry disposed of J. W. Snyder, 6 and 4. J. A Mudd Jr. carried off the prize for low gross with an excellent 76.

In the competition for low net in the handicap J. J. Bransfield, J. J. Monahan, and J. J. Barclay tied with identical cards of 86—20—66. Barclay won the toss. In the class with handicaps of twenty or over, O. D. Frary, 94—28—66, and E. C Barry, 89—23—66, tied for first prize. Frary won the draw.

Chicago.

Play at the Chicago Golf club featured the usual Saturday cup contest. A. Dyrenforth won with a card of 85—9—76. Other leading scores: C. H. Markham, 93—16—77; J. M. Roach, 98—20—78; J. E. Wilkie, 103—24—79; A. W. Cutten, 101—22—79.

TWO GOLF PAIRS TIE FOR TROPHY AT PHILADELPHIA

Lewis-White and Anderson-Hoyt Teams Get 70 Cards; Evans-Gardner Score 72.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Two teams tied for the Travis golf trophy at the Merion Cricket club today. W. P. Lewis and Gardner W. White of Flushing, L. I., and John G. Anderson and F. H. Hoyt of the Siwanoy Golf club each had a best ball score of 70. The tie will be played off tomorrow. Curious to relate, the result was a similar tie at Detroit last year, when Thomas and Sherill of the Yahnunpasis Golf club and Max B. Marston and C. E. Van Vleck Jr. of Baltusrol tied. The brothers Sherman won on the playoff with a 72 to 75.

Chick Evans and Bob Gardner put in a belated appearance and although Gardner's finger has improved he risked only one round. The open and amateur champions were partners in the competition and they had the best score of those who played in the morning, with a 72.

Chicagoans Long in Lead.

Until late in the afternoon they held the lead and as the afternoon scores ruled somewhat high for quite a long time their chances of capturing the trophy became brighter and brighter. However, by the time all the competitors were in the score was beaten, not only by Lewis and White and Anderson and Hoyt, but by G. J. McKee and G. T. Gregg of Oakmont, the latter pair getting a 71.

Seventy was not broken by an amateur in today's practice, but Ben Sawyers, the North Berwick professional of England, who is here, went over the west course in 36—33—69, a new record.

Best Scores in Foursomes.

Leading scores in the foursomes:

M. P. Lewis and G. W. White, Flushing, 70.
J. G. Anderson and F. H. Hoyt, Siwancy, 70.
G. W. McKee and G. T. Gregg, Oakmont, 71.
R. A. Gardner and Charles Evans Jr., Chicago G. C., 72.
J. B. King and J. H. Gay Jr., Philadelphia Cricket, 74.
Robert Abbott and W. P. Seeley, Brooklawn, 74.
W. O. Fownes Jr. and G. A. Ormiston, Oakmont, 74.
G. S. Lyons and W. S. Greening, Lambton, Canada, 74.

ON OTHER LINKS.

Glen View.

Peter Berkey won the title of club champion at Glen View when he defeated Seymour Wheeler, 1 up. A bad approach on the home hole cost Wheeler the title. The flag handicap event went to C. W. Dwight, with Dr. Brown Pusey second, and C. R. Latham third.

Calumet.

Four matches in the second round for the club championship of Calumet were decided, while the other contests went by default. D. W. Heath won from J. N. McDonald by default; G. E. Plumb won from H. J. Mellen by default; F. T. Barrett won from J. R. Towle by default; W. D. Stapp defeated G. M. Peters, 2 and 1; W. A. Cockrell defeated H. W. Hill, 1 up, 19 holes; G. M. Read defeated M. W. Lanyon, 3 and 2; A. L. Davis won from W. L. Eulass by default; C. F. Grimes defeated J. M. Stannard, 2 and 1. Ten members tied with net totals of 78 in the blind bogey event. Those in the deadlock were J. H. Williams, N. L. Lucius, L. Kramer, H. S. Mikesell, J. A. Buchanan, W. A. Cockrell, R. W. Higgins, C. F. Rainey, A. S. Merrill, W. L. Whiteside.

Park Ridge.

Dr. T. A. Broadbent won the Saturday cup presented by L. P. Brady at Park Ridge with a card of 74 net. In the deciding match for the Social Committee cup Dr. A. J. Buckheit defeated L. A. Summarhays, 3 and 1. In the final for the Membership Committee cup E. A. McAvoy defeated W. T. Kiense, 2 up. A mixed foursome will be held on Labor day and four cups will be played for by classes A and B, the events being Maywood.

By finishing 1 down, H. J. Schupp won the match play against par at Maywood. C. V. Williams and J. E. Bradley tied for second with 3 down.

West secured seven tricks only.

The bidding may perhaps be excused by the score. After the first trick north saw no chance of ever getting into the game again, but kept all his hearts as a means of exit should such an unlikely event occur.

West made a bad diamond discard from dummy at trick five, failing to see any possibilities in dummy except a defense in spades. Again at trick eight west failed to see the trap which south was preparing, and which was sprung at trick nine. The queen of hearts, of course, should have been thrown on the ace.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Kansas City, Mo.—[To the Editor.]—1. Are they playing Imperial clubs now in the Whist league? 2. And how many honors do you have to have—four or five—in one hand to play them? 3. Are they not clear out of date?
W. W. L.

Ans.—The bid is completely out of date, but it never had any standing in good clubs or with good players.

BET EVEN MONEY WHITE WILL COP WELSH'S CROWN

Local Ring Followers Also Like 2 to 1 on Charley's Chance for Kayo.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

A visit around fight headquarters yesterday revealed that the local boxing fraternity is betting even money that Charley White, who is to meet Freddie Welsh for the lightweight championship at Colorado Springs Monday afternoon, will return to Chicago with the crown.

Naturally White has a lot of friends in Chicago. They are willing to wager their hard kale that Charley will receive the referee's decision, and they are willing to take the short end at 2 to 1 that White will stop the champion.

Batters End Drill.

George "Knockout" Brown, the local Greek middleweight, who will swap punches with Battling Levinsky at East Chicago tomorrow, finished training yesterday. The Greek was about town yesterday and made the positive assertion that he will beat his opponent. On the other hand, Levinsky is confident of winning the popular decision over his opponent and has left nothing undone to get into the best of shape.

This should be one of the best fights staged around Chicago in years. Both are sluggers, willing to stand toe to toe and let go with either hand. Returns of the championship fights between Freddie Welsh and Charley White and Kilbane and Chaney will be announced from the ringside round by round. A special train will be run over the Illinois Central to the battleground.

Hammer Bets on Welsh.

Ever Hammer is so confident that Freddie Welsh will be returned winner in his championship match with Charlie White tomorrow that he has wagered $200 to $150 on the champion. The north side lightweight believes that the contest will go the limit, twenty rounds, and that Welsh will pile up enough points to win handily.

Hammer will continue his training at the Arcade gymnasium today for his fifteen round contest with Johnny Dundee, which is to be decided in Kansas City Sept. 11. Manager Howard Carr is anxious for him to develop as much speed as possible in his workouts with Sunburst Dolan and therefore has delayed his departure to Kansas City until Wednesday.

Gaelic Football Game Today.

The O'Connells and Wolfe Tones will contend for honors in a Gaelic football contest today at Gaelic park, Forty-seventh street and California avenue. A five mile walking contest, under the direction of A. L. Parker, champion walker of Illinois and president of the Gaelic Park Walking association, will be the feature of a program of track events.

1917 GRANT SIX $825

THE 1917 Grant Six can now be inspected on the sales floors of Grant dealers the country over. There are over 1200 Grant dealers—and they are just as much delighted with this new model as you will be.

The records of the Grant Six Overhead Valve Motor in hill climbing; its extraordinary power and equally extraordinary flexibility and economy are the sort that make people talk, and in these days of good cars it takes an extraordinarily good motor to make people talk.

The Grant chassis is simple, strong and thoroughly efficient. Grant bodies excite comment because of their roominess and beauty of line and of finish.

There is a quality of workmanship and stability in every detail of the Grant Six that makes it easy to see the reason why Grant production has increased this season to 20,000 cars. Before you buy any car, make it your business to see and ride in a Grant Six.

BY JACK PROCTOR.

Sinai Social center natators captured all three events of the fourth annual American Amateur federation outdoor swimming championships yesterday at the Sherman park natatorium. The Sinai representatives walked away with the championship with a total of 74¼ points, Central Y. M. C. A. finished second with 56¾ points, and the Wilson avenue delegation was third with 12¾.

In the junior event Sinai had hard competition from Chicago Hebrew institute, winning out by a margin of 8 points, with 42 points to 34 for the institute.

Girls from Social showed they were by far the best water experts by scoring 10 points, Hyde Park High school girls taking second with 7 credits.

First Place Honors Divided.

Sinai and the Central Y. M. C. A. split even in the fight for first places in the championship with five apiece, but the former squad scored heavily in the other places. Points in the secondary event were added to the championship marks and Sinai walked away with four firsts in this division, which aided in running up its large count.

Wesley Combs of Central Y. M. C. A., a 15 year old natator, was the individual star of the meet, although he did not win the special gold medal, owing to the system of scoring. Combs won the 220 yard dash, 440 and 880 yard swims, using a crawl stroke that was envied by many of his teammates. Louis Scherer, a teammate of Combs, and Moss of Sinai tied with 6 points for the individual honors. It has not been decided which one will get the medal.

Sinai Wins Three Relays.

All three relay races were won by Sinai in great style, the fastest time being made by the championship team, which went the 200 yard course in 1:57 2-5. Miss Violet Wilson of Sinai and Harry Davis of the same club won the fancy diving contests. Davis is indoor champion. A crowd of 3,000 crowded around the huge tank to see the contests.

George Eckart, who handled the meet, was unable to state whether any marks had been broken, as the records were not available.

STARS OF CUE TO BE TAKEN BACK

Charles Morin, August Kieckhefer, Charles Ellis, and Pierre Maupome, four of the leading three cushion players who came under the ban of the Interstate Three Cushion league by playing in the academy at Detroit, can play in this season's tournament if they can secure positions with any roomkeeper holding a franchise.

This was decided yesterday when Secretary Harry Cooler came from Indianapolis and held a conference with President B. E. Bensinger and Secretary H. F. Davenport of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company.

Cooler was authorized to act for the league, and the agreement reached means that the Brunswick company will not withdraw its donation of $2,500 to the prize list, which will remain at $6,000. The matter is now in the hands of the players, and as the academy at Detroit is closed, it is expected some of the stars again will be seen on the circuit.

Cooler, who is to be married in Omaha shortly, left last night for that city, and for the next two weeks his office will be at 2424 I street. He has been negotiating with John Kling at Kansas City to take the remaining franchise in the league. Formerly the players objected to Kansas City because there was no late train for St. Louis, making them take a day train next morning. This condition has been remedied.

LANGER BEATS KAHANAMOKU

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 2.—Ludy Langer of Los Angeles, Cal., already champion of several distance swims, is the possessor of another title today, having bested Duke Kahanamoku last night in the 500 yard open water swim. His time of 6:11:00 2-5 was said by officials to be an amateur American record.

DE GARMO TAKES FEATURE EVENT IN CASTING MEET

BY KEENE GARDINER.

With an average of 182 feet, 3½ inches and with 187 feet and 7 inches as his best shot, L. E. De Garmo yesterday won the light tackle distance fly, the feature of the opening day of the National Amateur Casting association's tournament in the casters' pool at Washington park.

F. E. Moffett, another local expert, won second place. His average was 168 feet and 9¼ inches. H. W. Perce was third with 161 feet, and C. C. Lucke next with 119 feet and 7 inches.

Remarkable scores were made in the light tackle accuracy fly when four casters tied for high with averages of 99 10-15. This is the first time so many high averages have been made under the adverse conditions which existed yesterday. Scores:

JOIE RAY IN TRACK MEET.

Some of the best local athletes will compete in the open handicap athletic carnival of the Chicago Columbian Circle Rifle club at Riverview park next Sunday. Among the stars wil be Joie Ray, formerly of the Illinois A. C., who now is competing unattached, and a number of First Regiment A. A. athletes. Some of the C. A. A. juniors also will compete.

Corhan to Go Back West.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 2.—Roy Corhan, brought to the National league from the Pacific Coast league to play shortstop for the St. Louis Cardinals, will depart for San Francisco tomorrow. Corhan has had a sore arm during almost the entire season, and this is said to be Manager Huggins' reason for not retaining him.

MISS MINNEAPOLIS TAKES FIRST HEAT IN SPEED BOAT RACE

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 2.—Miss Minneapolis won the first heat of the Gold cup power boat races this afternoon. Its average for the thirty mile heat, which was made in six five mile laps, was 46.55 miles per hour. Its time for the heat was 44:41. In the first heat it attained a speed of 51.2 miles and hour.

Peter Pan VII., Columbia Yacht club, New York, was second; Miss Detroit, the defender, third; Hawkeye, of the Lake George club, fourth; and Baby Marold of the Detroit Boat club, fifth. Miss Hamtramck, another Detroiter, developed engine trouble early in the race and dropped out.

Under the point system of determining the winner, which gives each boat a point for its entry, a point for finishing, and a point for each contender behind it when it crosses the line, the winner today received seven points. Peter Pan VII. got 6; Miss Detroit, 5; Hawkeye, 4; and Baby Marold, 3.

While Miss Minneapolis led at the finish of each lap the performance of Peter Pan VII. furnished the thrill of the race. It finished the first lap in sixth place. In the second lap it was nearly two miles behind the leader. It went into second place during the fourth time around, and finished the heat only fourteen seconds behind Miss Minneapolis. Hawkeye and Miss Detroit were nearly two miles behind the first two boats at the finish.

Woods Hydraulic of Detroit won the first ten mile heat in the Express Cruiser race. Betty M. II. and Venetian Maid, also of Detroit, were second and third respectively and Ouananchie of Sandusky, O., fourth.

Summary of event:

First heat, gold cup races, thirty miles:

Boat and club.	Elapsed time.
Miss Minneapolis, M. P. B. A.	44:41
Peter Pan VII., C. Y. C.	44:55
Miss Detroit, D. P. B. A.	47:28
Hawkeye, Lake George	47:33
Baby Marold, D. B. C.	52:14

Miss Hamtramck, Del Rey B. C., Detroit, did not finish.

The second heat will be raced Monday.

LOCAL STARS IN LONG SWIM.

Buddie Wallen of the Hamilton club, winner of the annual river swim held recently under the auspices of the Illinois A. C., and also victor in the long swim at Cincinnati, will lead the local delegation to St. Louis to take part in the annual ten mile Mississippi river swim, to be staged tomorrow under the auspices of the Missouri A. C. Among other stars who will compete will be Mike McDermott and Perry McGillivray of the Illinois A. C. and Clement Browne of the Hamilton club.

YACHT INTREPID WINS FIRST LEG OF TROPHY RACE

Michigan City, Ind., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Intrepid won one leg of the Michigan City Business Men's trophy today in the Jackson Park Yacht club's thirteenth annual Michigan City race. Intrepid made the trip across the lake in 4:20:00, defeating its nearest rival, Mavoureen, by more than twenty-five minutes.

In the various classes winners were announced by the judges, as follows: Tirty-five foot class, Mavourneen; twenty-one foot raceabout, XXIX; thirty foot A, St. Claire; twenty-one foot cabin, Columbia; twenty-five foot sloop, Seminole.

Priscilla, only one of its class entered, met with a fractured peak halyard and put in at South Chicago for repairs. It reached here about 7 o'clock. It was overturned by a big gust of wind when a short distance from the starting line, breaking the bowsprit. Coast guards rescued the crew and the boat was pulled back to port. Pequod and Diamond also failed to finish. Summaries:

	Finish.	Elapsed.
Intrepid	2:50:00	4:20:00
Mavourneen	3:15:48	4:45:48
Larikin	3:24:55	4:54:55

TWO SOCCER GAMES TODAY.

With the start of league play scheduled for the end of the month, teams in the Chicago District Association Football league have started practice and will open the season with several preliminary matches this afternoon and tomorrow. The Referees' association has arranged two games for this afternoon at Bricklayers' field, Thirty-fifth street and Wentworth avenue. Slavia will play the Hungarians at 1 o'clock and at 3 o'clock a picked team from the first division will meet an eleven from the second division.

CHICAGOANS IN TROT RACES.

Woodstock, Ill., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Several well known Chicago horsemen will participate in the program of harness events in this city in connection with the annual McHenry county fair Sept. 5 to 8. George Castle has his entire stable on the grounds. Charley Dean will be here with a large string. Several members of the West Chicago Driving club who will start their horses arrived today.

MAYWOOD TENNIS TOURNEY STARTS

The annual west suburban tennis championships started with nine matches at the West Maywood Tennis club yesterday. Few of the winners were pushed in their first round contests. W. Calcott of Maywood won the feature match, defeating E. Seiter, 3—6, 7—5, 6—4.

Play will be resumed this morning at 9 o'clock and contnue all today and tomorrow morning and afternoon. Star entries are expected to get under way today. These include Ella F. Fottrell, who, paired with National Champion William M. Johnston, held the California doubes title in 1913 and who was eliminated by R. Norris Williams in the semi-finals of the national tournament the year Williams won the American championship.

Other cracks expected to compete are Al Lindauer, present western college champion; M. G. Ketchum, formerly of California, last year's suburban winner, and John C. Neely Jr. Summaries:

FIRST ROUND.

P. Gonder beat W. Darlington, 6—2, 6—0; N. Dietrich beat F. J. Cooledge, 6—0, 8—6; R. Olson beat Ed Chawhan, 6—0, 7—5; W. Calcott beat E. Seiter, 3—6, 7—5, 6—4; P. T. O'Brien beat F. Bigelow, 6—1, 6—2; L. L. Davis beat R. C. Church, 6—1, 6—1; P. Shaw beat J. M. Shawlan, 6—2, 6—2; G. Luttringhaus beat F. Sharpe, 6—4, 6—2; J. M. Kucera beat Dr. E. H. Oelke, 4—3, 7—5, 6—1.

A meeting of a special committee of the Chicago Public Parks Tennis league will be called this week to adjust the tangle over the awarding of the J. Ogden Armour championship team trophy. The Lincoln park squad was penalized with five forfeited individual matches for not playing Mark White square, which would give the honor to Jefferson park, but the defaults against Lincoln are said by players of the latter team to have been incurred through a misunderstanding. Lincoln players expect to have the forfeits removed and to have the Mark White matches rescheduled.

GOSNELL DIES FROM ACCIDENT ON TRACK

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—Curt Gosnell of Muncie, Ind., well known grand circuit driver, who was injured nine days ago at the North Randall race track when he was thrown while driving Hazel Armstrong, died at noon today at St. Alexis hospital. He never recovered consciousness.

Gosnell was one of the foremost drivers of the country's famous pacers and trotters. Before his accident he drove Single G., rival of Napoleon Direct, holder of the world's pacing record.

He was injured while giving Hazel Armstrong a workout when she shied at her own shadow. He suffered a fractured skull. Mrs. Gosnell was at his bedside when he died.

"PROS" TO HOLD GOLF MEET

New York, Sept. 2.—The first tournament of the Professional Golfers' association will be staged in October. Play in the qualifying round will be held in every district represented. The difficulty of gaining the use of courses for this qualifying play, and of rounding up pro-players all over the country may defer the start until late next month. The main events will be held at Siwanoy Country club.

SHAFROTHS LAND NET TITLE.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 2.—Morrison and William Shafroth, sons of United States Senator John Shafroth of Colorado, won the state doubles tennis championship today by defeating Berrien Hughes and Tyson Dines Jr. The score was 6—4, 7—5, 6—3.

Six Trot Races Tomorrow.

Six harness events and a half mile dash for runners will make up the card for Labor day at the West Chicago driving park. The fields will be good sized in nearly every instance and the best horses of the club will be seen in action.

DE PAUL SQUADS FIRST TO START FOOTBALL DRILL

Varsity and Academy Players to Usher In Season Under Coach Paupa Tuesday.

BY OTTO A. ENGEL.

Thirty-four athletes, the first to answer the local gridiron call, will get into action Tuesday afternoon at the De Paul university campus, when Coach Joe Paupa will start his fifth year as tutor of football at the north side school. The squad of players is equally divided between the university and academy, but this number is expected to be raised to fifty or more before another week elapses.

Paupa expects to be as busy as the armless fellow, suffering with the hives. Because of the arduous duties and the time necessary to instruct so many players there is a probability that De Paul will enter the big league class by installing a bunch of arc lamps and bringing the "ghost" ball to life. At least four hours a day will be necessary to put the youngsters through the drill.

De Paul Prospects Bright.

Prospects never looked brighter for a championship season, according to the coach. Nearly every player that competed on either eleven last year is expected back in school, while from the new material which will enroll this week Paupa hopes to draw several prizes. It will be necessary to have two of the strongest elevens turned out at De Paul to have a successful season, because of the heavy schedule now being framed by Father Gorman, director of athletics.

Featuring the academy card will be a return combat on the local field with the Beverly, Mass., high school on Nov. 17. Last season De Paul boys went east at the close of the regular season and came back with a 30 to 7 victory. Other games will be scheduled with St. Ignatius and Loyola academies, Marquette academy of Milwaukee, Hyde Park, Crane, Englewood, and Lane.

Another Ward to Play.

The eighth Ward brother will be back at half back. All of the Wards have played on either the academy or university team in the past. Seven of them were with the guardsmen on the Mexican border, but most of them returned with the First infantry yesterday. Two of them will return to school.

What promises to be the toughest schedule in the history of the varsity is being framed. Among the teams which will be met will be Northwestern college of Naperville, St. Thomas of Minnesota, St. Joseph of Dubuque, Ia., and Keewatin academy of Wisconsin. Following are the players called out:

VARSITY SQUAD.

Ends—Ward, Hart, Keegan, Russett.
Tackles—Kelly, Miller, Breen, E. Geiger.
Guards—J. Shine, Conners.
Center—Glomski.
Quarter back—Warde.
Half backs—Jamison, Pond.
Full backs—Harlan, Smithson.

ACADEMY SQUAD.

Ends—Danahy, R. Erback.
Tackle—M. Roach, Finnegan, Annen.
Guards—M. Shine, L. Erback.
Center—Hurley.
Quarter backs—J. Hamilton, L. Hamilton, Vanderbusch.
Half backs—Grundman, Nilson, P. Ferro, O. Ward.
Full backs—Stapleton, A. Roach.

EXPECT CHANEY TO STOP KILBANE

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—When Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane meets Challenger George Chaney of Baltimore at Cedar Point, near here, Labor day afternoon he is going to have trouble going the fifteen round route.

This is how Hen Bletzer, manager of Chaney, tonight sized up Kilbane's chances of retaining the coveted title. Bletzer and his followers are banking heavily on what they believe is the Baltimorean's superior stamina.

With all their predictions, however, little long green is in evidence. The betting is 10 to 6, with Kilbane on the long end.

Both fighters virtually completed training this afternoon. Each is close to the necessary 122 pound mark as his manager deems advisable. Tomorrow they will go to Cedar Point, where just enough outdoor exercise is planned to keep muscles limber.

Matt Hinkel, referee and promoter of the battle, motored to Cedar Point again today and completed arrangements at the arena. He expects a 10,000 crowd and estimates the gate receipts will total almost $40,000.

HAMLIN PARK YOUNGSTERS ANNEX HONORS IN MEET.

Athletes representing Hamlin playground yesterday won the grammar school division track and field meet of the special park commission in Grant park with 188 points. Dante playground was second with 164 16-100 points, and McLaren was third with 160 66-100.

Leo Kouca of the winning team was the individual star. His all around ability netted him 47 points. Gerome Wilmeff of McLaren playground won second honors with 42 58-100 points and Dan Drehearne of the Commercial club was third with 42 16-100.

A similar meet, open to all playground athletes, will be held at the same place next Saturday.

POSTPONE SWIMMING DERBY.

Because of the rough sea the first annual derby of the South Shore Country club, scheduled to be held yesterday from the Jackson park crib to a finish line in front of the club, was postponed until tomorrow. The field will be slightly reduced, owing to the absence of several swimmers entered in the Mississippi river event tomorrow.

THE PRISON WINDOW

Reproduction of a painting by John Phillip

Every week The Sunday Tribune will reproduce in four colors on this page one of the world's most famously beautiful paintings. There will be a brief biography of the painter and a story of the painting. Herewith is reproduced another in the series.

By LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"The Prison Window," by John Phillips, R. A. (1817-1867). In the Tate Gallery, London.

EVERYTHING Spanish appealed to the Scotch artist, John Phillips, and the first successes of his career began when he went to Spain and entered into the spirit of its highly emotional life. The Spanish temperament interested him especially, and he keenly explored the mazes of its psychology, analyzing it and dramatizing it forcibly on canvas by expressive color schemes and a comprehensive handling of detail.

This prison scene is an example of the sympathy with which he impregnated his pictures. There is none of the stern Calvinistic repression of the Scotch soul in the abandonment of this man and woman to the sorrow which has come to them. They have that ease of emotional expression which never ceases to shock a little the less fervid natures of the north.

There is real intensity in the strong grip of the man's browned arms about his boy and in the woman's bent head and helpless, desperate clasping of her husband's hand. Whatever he has done, she loves him; and whatever his fate, she will remain faithful. The pressure of her fingers against his hand is telling him that, although her eyes are too filled to look up at him and her voice too choked with sobs to speak the thousand things she would say. And just around the corner of the prison bars stands the guard, waiting for the allotted time of the visit to pass. The face of an old woman is faintly seen. Perhaps she is his mother. Perhaps only a stranger with old griefs in her own heart that throb anew at the sight of their young sorrow.

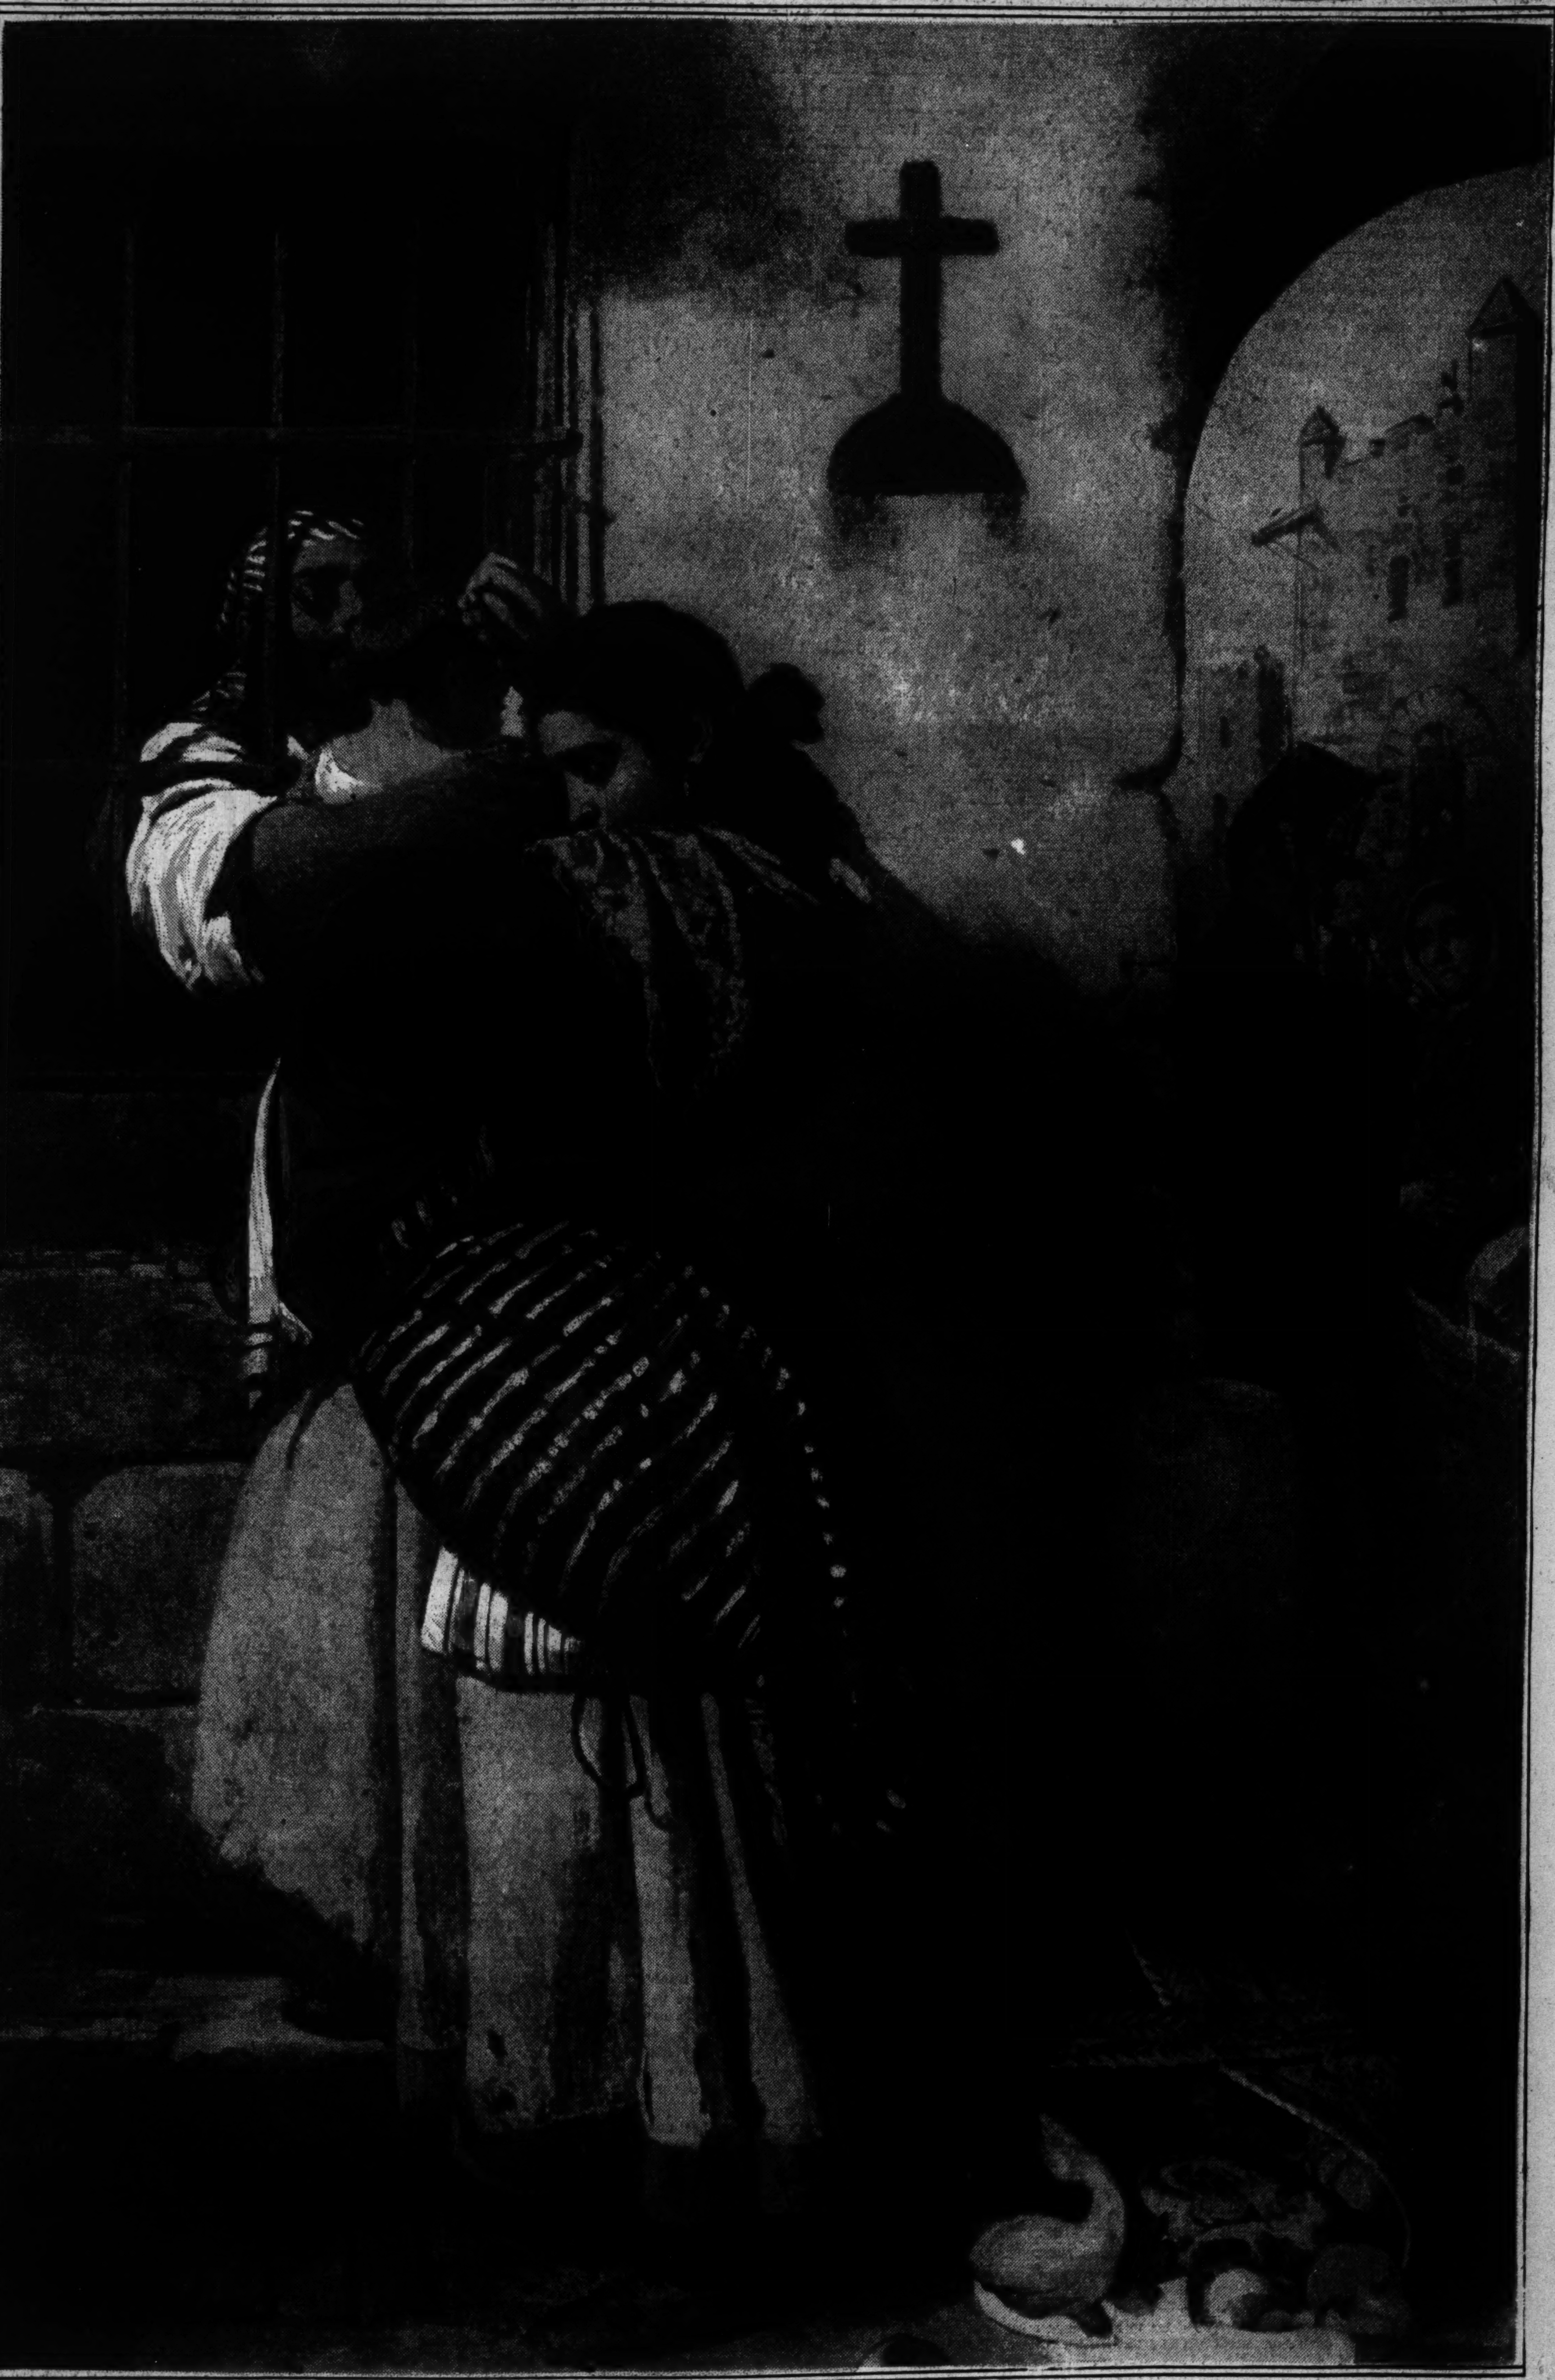
The painting is brilliant with light. For Phillips loved the southern coloring and developed and rendered them so gloriously that before he died he was known as one of the finest colorists of the British school.

His pictures of Spanish life and character were hailed with delight in England, where the British public was frankly satiated with pictures of Scottish and English life. Queen Victoria, at the suggestion of Landseer, interested herself in Phillips, absorbed his attention for a number of years, and made it possible for him to win the title of the "Spanish Phillips." His own grit and determination, however, which he inherited from his Scotch ancestors, were largely responsible for the way he rose from the humblest of circumstances to the council chamber of the Royal academy.

He was the son of an old soldier of Aberdeen and began life as errand boy to a tinsmith. A local artist recognized his youthful talent, which was manifest by the countless pictures he drew wherever his duties took him, and gave him private lessons. Then, one day, a visit in the capacity of glazier to the house of Maj. Gordon turned the current of his life into purely artistic channels. Maj. Gordon took him to Lord Panmure, who, in turn, offered to send him to London to study. In 1839 he exhibited for the first time in the academy. No real success came to him until he had gone to Spain and reproduced that country artistically, adopting the naturalism of the Spanish artists and clinging tenaciously to the actual types of nature he found there.

In 1857 he was elected an associate and two years later a Royal academician. It was under the Gassitot bequest that the Tate gallery has two of his best pictures. One of them is this "Prison Window" and the other is "Gossips At a Well."

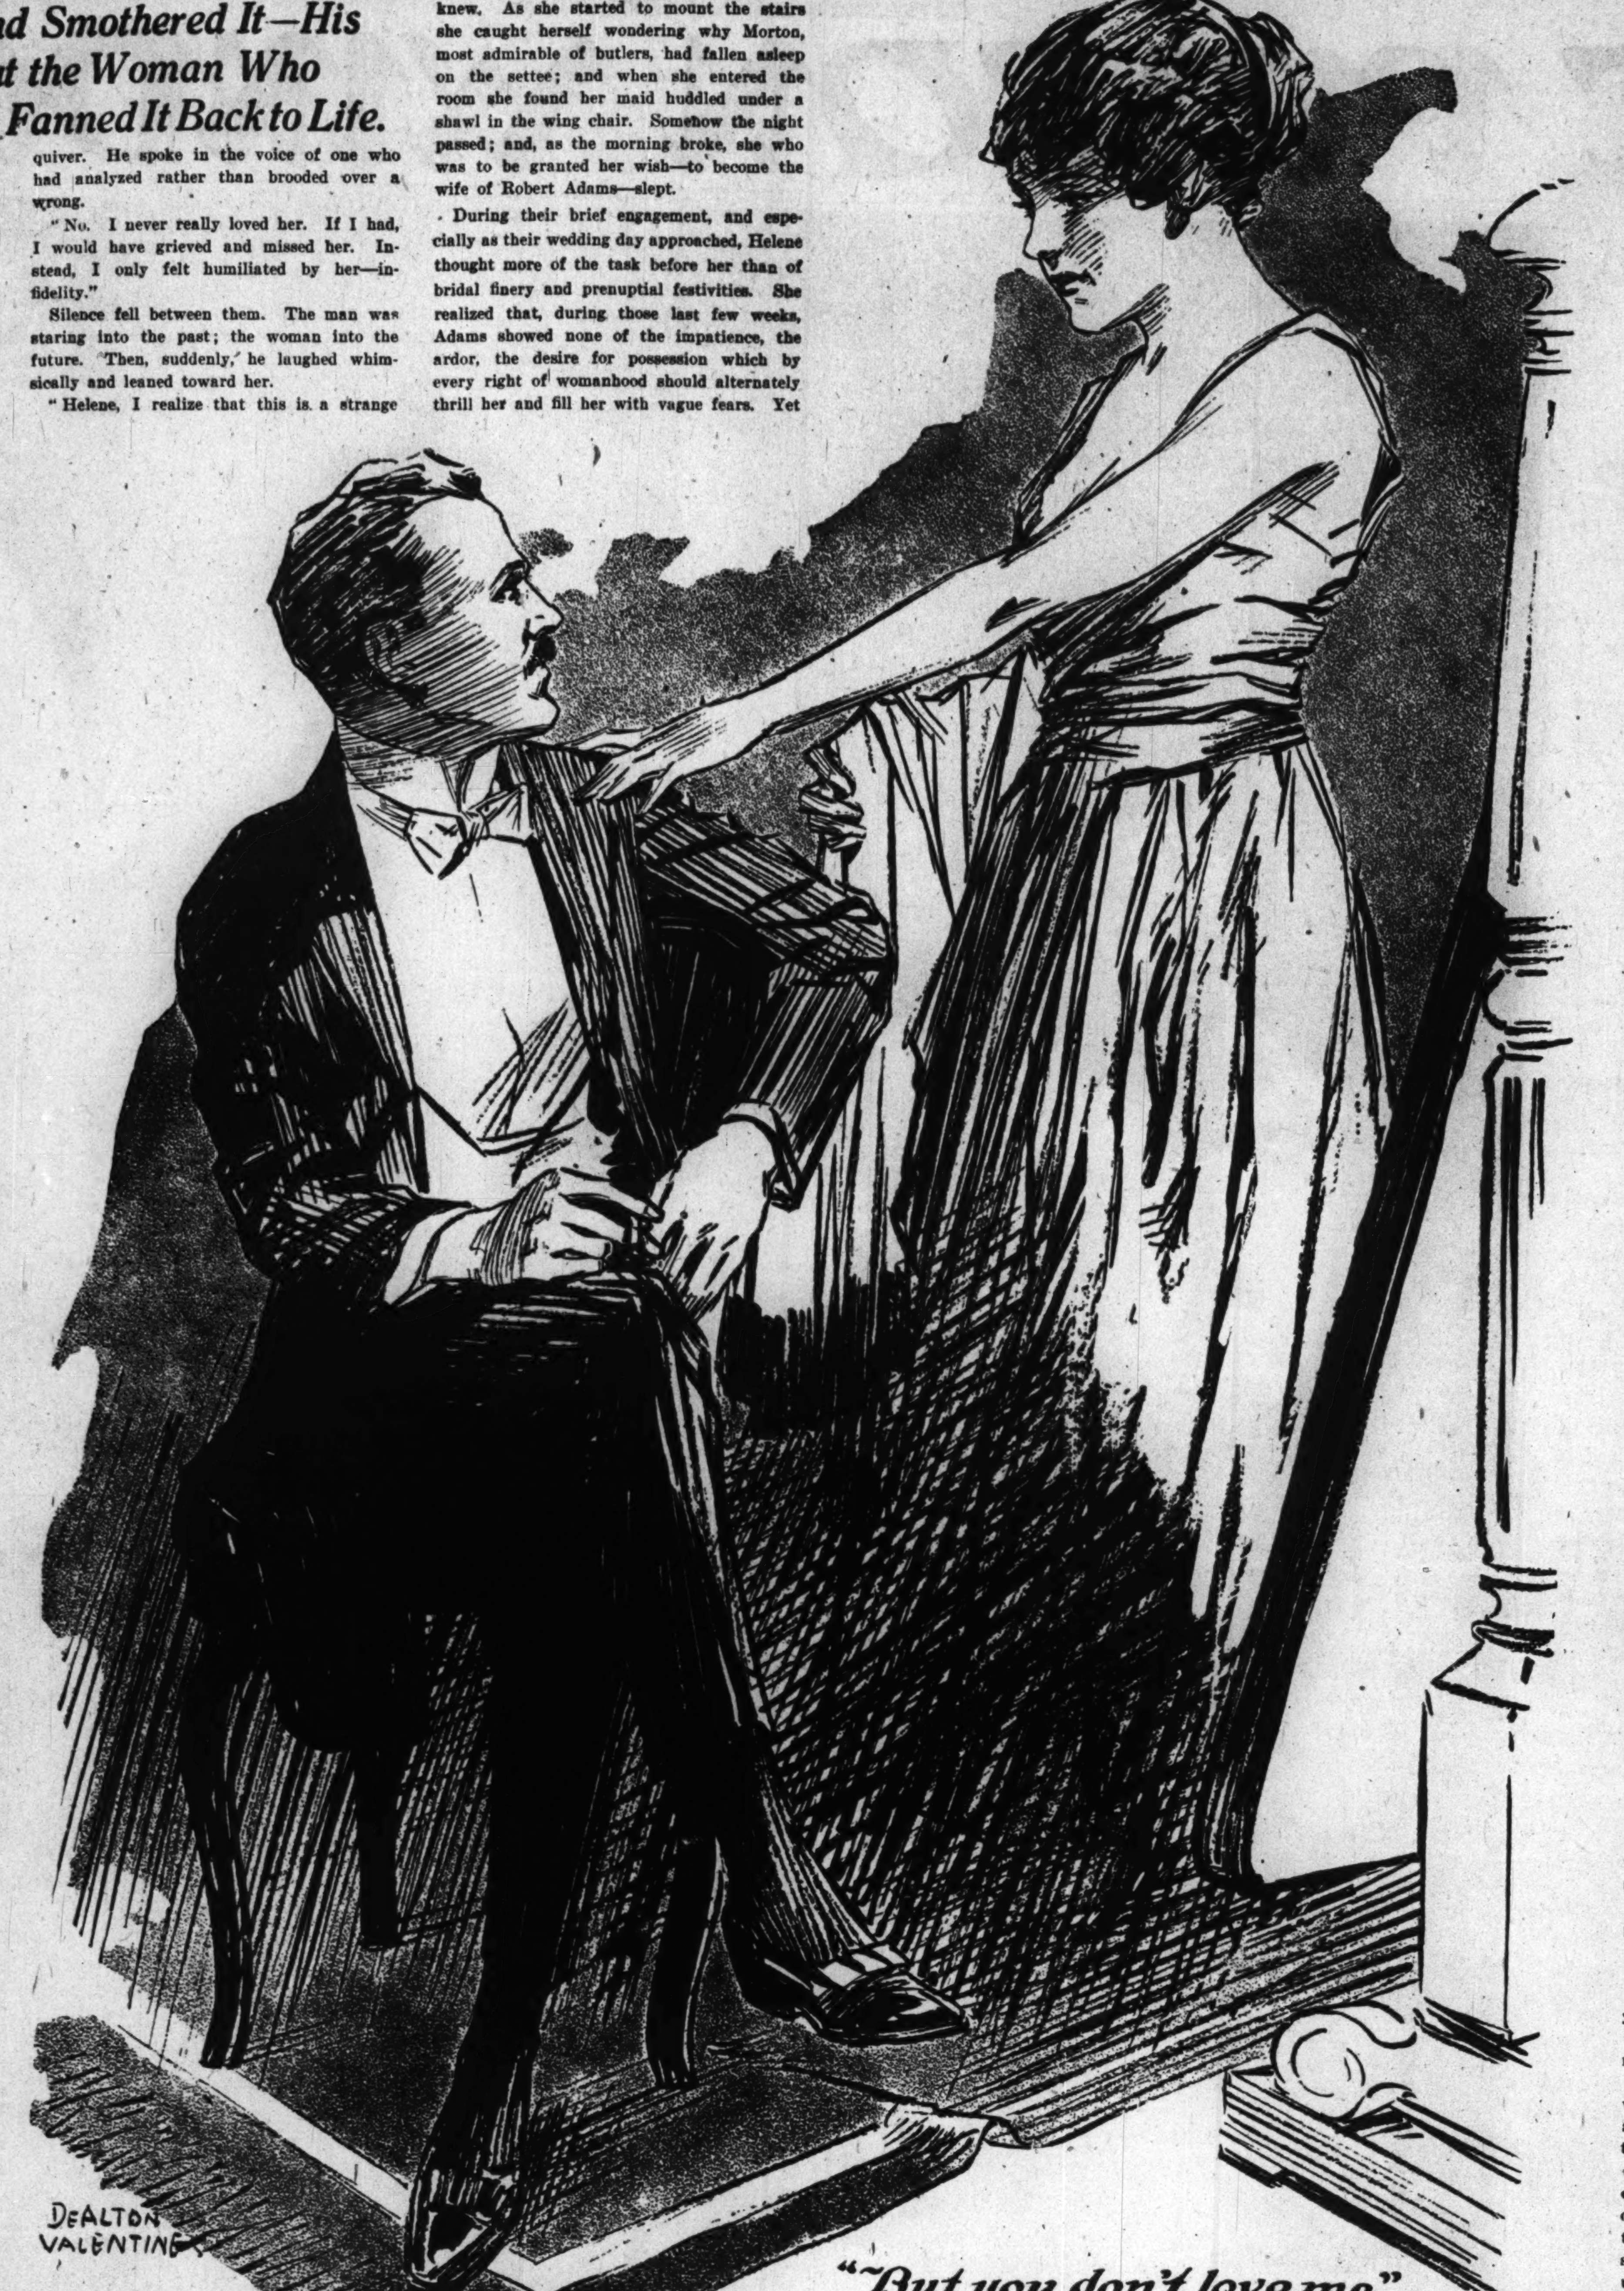
Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.



The Man Who Could Not Love

by Anna Steese Richardson

The First Woman Had Smothered It—His Instinct to Love. But the Woman Who Followed Fought and Fanned It Back to Life.



"But you don't love me"

EVEN the men who called him "friend" admitted that Robert Adams was self-centered, at times cruelly frank, more often taciturn. Yet Helene knew that for her he meant happiness.

He possessed neither subtlety nor distinction. Helene was content with his sincerity, his earnestness, his stability of purpose.

He was punctiliously courteous to women in a distinctly impersonal way. The vainest woman could not deceive herself on this score. He would place a chair for her, pick up her fan, or ask if she were comfortable, as if the attention were the result of habit, never a matter of personal deference. Let another woman suddenly slip into her place, and he would say precisely the same thing in precisely the same tone. Yet Helene thrilled when he adjusted her scarf or fastened her glove.

For Helene was deeply, wondrously in love, with that abiding, unwavering affection which wells up from maternal instinct—rather than from passion. For him she had been waiting, and she was thirty when they met. Thus they drifted toward matrimony, their small world watching their progress, first in amazement, then in pity for Helene, and finally in resignation if not satisfaction.

Women said: "Helene is old enough to know what she is doing. There must be a side of his character which we have never seen." And they sent her out to dinner with him.

Men said: "Well, Adams must be a sentimental Jekyll and Hyde. He's never let us even imagine that he had a heart." And unconsciously they warmed to him.

Only Helene knew the truth—and she did not bear it until the night he asked her to be his wife. His proposal was characteristic. They had heard "La Boheme." Helene, intoxicated by the music and the nearness of the man she loved, had looked almost regal. As they had threaded their way through the crowd in the lobby of the Metropolitan Opera house, Adams had caught the comments of those who were judges of beauty. On the homeward ride, he had responded to her remarks in the barest monosyllables. Helene had not been piqued at this. She often felt that in silence they were closest.

He had followed her into the house; and now, as she sat drawing off her long gloves, he stood watching her, his figure erect, unyielding, his expression alert. When she had laid aside the gloves, he drew up a chair, seated himself before her, and suddenly took both her hands in his.

"Helene, will you marry me?"

For one long, wonderful moment the woman felt as if she were being rushed through space on the bosom of Joy; then she looked into his eyes, and the glory faded from around her. He was studying her exactly as he had on the night they had met at the Barton dinner. The gray of his rather prominent eyes was as clear, as keen as it had been the first time she had gazed into their cool depths across a blur of orchids. She glanced down at their clasped hands and knew that hers thrilled alone. Hers clung, but his did not grip. Through her innermost being a spiritual shudder ran. Its outward, physical evidence was an attempt to withdraw her hands. But he caught them just as the finger tips slipped past his own.

"I do not propose to deceive you. I will not tell you, as perhaps I might very easily, that I love you dearly, that I am happy only in your presence, because it would not be true. I want to be absolutely honest and sincere in all that I say to you. Between us there can be no pretense, because I want you to be my wife."

"Why?"

It was a mere whisper, and he drew her now cold finger tips back into the hollow of his firm palms.

"Because I need a wife and a home. You are the only woman who, I believe, could make that home complete."

"Why?"

A gleam of impatience flickered in his eyes at her insistence.

"I do not know. Most women I forget before I've turned the first corner. You have a trick of following me to my rooms, out on the golf links, even into my private office."

He seemed to be talking to himself rather than to her. The ice around her heart parted just a trifle.

"You never jar upon me. I know nothing about clothes; but I realize that yours are not merely the foolish trappings of fashion, but a part of you. The chatter of the average woman irritates me. What you say is always worth hearing. When my mail contains a note from you I always open that first."

"But you do not love me?"

It was the cry of her who had asked for bread and received a stone! For an instant he hesitated, then he met her glance unflinchingly.

"I wish I could say it—for my sake as well as yours. But I don't want you to think me utterly selfish. If I cannot give you what men call love, I can give so much else that is really worth while. You understand—you would be the one woman in my life. I know I will be very proud of you, and I believe our companionship will be ideal. But I have no capacity for loving. I must have been born without it. My affections are governed by my head, not by my heart."

At the intense bitterness in his voice she suddenly remembered a story that had been told over teacups. Once more her fingers clung to his.

"And so you will make an innocent woman pay the penalty of a foolish woman's mistake?"

He met her questioning glance without a quiver. He spoke in the voice of one who had analyzed rather than brooded over a wrong.

"No. I never really loved her. If I had, I would have grieved and missed her. Instead, I only felt humiliated by her—infidelity."

Silence fell between them. The man was staring into the past; the woman into the future. Then, suddenly, he laughed whimsically and leaned toward her.

"Helene, I realize that this is a strange wooing, and with no other woman would I dare to be so frank. To any other woman I would probably have lied. I would have sworn to a love I do not feel. But I can't lie to you—because you would read me through and through. You understand me. I've heard men's voices thrill as they spoke of the one woman in the world, and I've envied them. Again, I've watched my kind, and wondered if this overwhelming passion they call love is a blessing or a curse. But whatever it is, it is denied me. Helene, are you brave enough to marry a man who is convinced that he can never love?"

"You have not asked me—whether I—care for you?"

The man's entire bearing changed. For the first time its voice lost its metallic ring, and his head bent.

"I wish, dear girl, that you cared—less!"

"I will marry you!"

The words were spoken gravely, yet not without joy. Her figure relaxed. Her expression became serene. But when Adams, rising to leave, drew her into his arms and kissed her, she felt that he did so because it was expected of him. Under no consideration would he fail the woman who was to preside over his home.

How long she stood there alone, just beyond the circle of rosy lamplight, she never knew. As she started to mount the stairs she caught herself wondering why Morton, most admirable of butlers, had fallen asleep on the settee; and when she entered the room she found her maid huddled under a shawl in the wing chair. Somehow the night passed; and, as the morning broke, she who was to be granted her wish—to become the wife of Robert Adams—slept.

During their brief engagement, and especially as their wedding day approached, Helene thought more of the task before her than of bridal finery and prenuptial festivities. She realized that, during those last few weeks, Adams showed none of the impatience, the ardor, the desire for possession which by every right of womanhood should alternately thrill her and fill her with vague fears. Yet she would not permit herself to feel that she had been denied one jot of the joy of living. He—the man she loved—the only man she ever had loved—the only man she ever could love—wanted her to be his wife. It was enough for the present. All else would be added unto her.

And so in dreams she planned her campaign. She would not beg for love. She would not bore him with excessive devotion. Above all things, she would not stoop to pique his love by silly flirtations with otner men. She would awaken his latent capacity for loving by the steadfastness and strength of her own passion.

She entered upon her task buoyantly. Months passed. The buoyancy faded into dull, indefinable fear. Their companionship was all that Adams had pictured. He did not disguise his pleasure in her company. In a hundred ways he showed that she more than realized his ideals and fulfilled his hopes. But between them there was always a barrier which she could not define.

A year passed, and then she put the fateful question. They had been entertaining at dinner. Adams had dropped into her dressing room for a chat. Helene dismissed her maid. In hours like this she felt most hopeful.

The dinner had been marred by the rather tactless conduct of a beautiful but selfish young wife. Adams watched Helene as she moved about quietly, gracefully. She was removing some feminine finery from his favorite chair. In a moment he would draw it close to her white and gold fireplace.

"I couldn't help wondering, as I watched that foolish woman, how I would feel if my wife would so far forget herself and her position."

Helene paused before him, smiling brightly. He reached out for her hand, and held it firmly.

"You're a wonderful woman, my dear—a wonderful woman."

She laid her free hand on his shoulder and looked up into his square, masterful face.

"But you don't love me?"

Something like a spasm of pain sharpened his features, and he dropped her hand.

"Helene, never ask that question again. Can't you understand that if I did I would tell you so with joy and thanksgiving? You took this chance when you married me."

She left his side and stood beside the mantel, staring down into the bright flames. He followed her.

"You don't think I'm cruel? You've not been utterly unhappy this last year, Helene?"

"No, dear," she answered quietly.

"But not happy?"

From that hour Helene's life was ordered on different lines. Not that she relaxed her brooding, tender vigil over her husband; but she sought relief from surging feelings and biting disappointment in other channels. She became a prominent and effective figure in big social movements. Her husband's life broadened with her. In time an invitation to break bread in their home was regarded as an honor.

But there were hours when Helene's marvelous self-control failed her, when she found herself wondering if her husband was not deliberately cruel, or obsessed by some morbid idea. Then her thoughts would revert to his unfailing consideration. He remembered every anniversary, and paid her the highest compliment unthinking man pays to exacting woman when he recalled her preferences in flowers, books, and jewels.

Three years more rolled round. Helene found herself strangely resigned to her position as an unloved wife. She had never permitted herself to brood or become morbid. In many ways her life was very full, quite complete. If she had made a mistake in her marriage, if she had overestimated the compelling power of her own love, at least she would not admit her defeat.

Then, suddenly, for the first time, they were separated for some weeks. Adams was summoned to the Pacific coast on business, and the family physician advised against Helene's accompanying him. She was just recovering from an attack of grip. She wrote to Robert daily the details of her even, quiet life. She knew that he would find pleasure in each word picture. He was essentially domestic in his tastes.

In reply, he described the varying success of the enterprise which had called him west. Several times he lapsed into personalities: "If you were here tonight we would go to—but it is stupid to do that sort of thing alone."

"I dined with the Blanks last night. They expressed their regret that you were not able to accompany me, a regret I share." But not once did he write "I miss you, dear."

Helene was thinking of this when she followed the decorators into her husband's library. A ceiling had fallen, and she wished to order the repairs personally. Two servants were moving his huge mahogany desk, a family heirloom, with overhanging drawers and shelves. As the unwieldly piece of furniture was swung round a grayish-white oblong fluttered from the back of a drawer and landed at Helene's feet. She picked it up and looked into the face of a woman; a face alluring, with a Cupid bow mouth and heavy lashes.

Mechanically she issued her orders. Then, with the photograph in her hand, she returned to her room. She sat down at her desk; and, propping the photograph against a bronze figure of the Winged Victory, she folded her arms and stared at the beautiful face. Bit by bit the tide which represented her sense of defeat and loss rose within her until suddenly she cried out: "You—you killed his belief in all women! That is why he cannot love me. I hate you! I hate you!" And she struck at the lovely face with her clenched fist. With the Winged Victory, it went crashing to the floor behind the desk.

When she came back to a confusion of sounds her physician was scrutinizing her gravely.

"I told you that grip was tricky. You went out too soon."

She shook her head.

"No! I remember—it was the pain. I've had it before often—but never like this!"

The next day the family physician, accompanied by an eminent surgeon, returned. The verdict was reached quickly.

"The operation must be performed at once."

She sat quite still, but she was not thinking of the surgeons, the hospital, or herself.

"Next week?" she asked at last.

"In forty-eight hours," was the eminent surgeon's reply.

"It is impossible," she said, closing her lips firmly. "My husband left San Francisco yesterday. I must see him—first."

The surgeon looked at her sharply. He read determination, not fear, in her colorless face.

"It will reduce your chance of recovery to one in a hundred."

"Just the same, I shall wait!"

She lay in the highest priced room of the city's finest hospital, her muscles rigid, her nerves taut. Her husband's train had arrived at the station. Even now he must be nearing the hospital. For the hundredth time she rehearsed the scene which would fill the few moments the surgeon had allowed them. She would not ask him if he loved her. He might say no——

Of course, he could not grasp all in a minute the gravity of the situation. He would not believe it possible that she could die. Always he had gloried in her perfect health. Once he had expressed contempt for sickly women. No; decidedly it would not be wise to ask whether he loved her. But she might say: "Will you miss me?"

The head nurse left the room abruptly and entered another, where the family physician, the eminent surgeon, the latter's two assistants, and the anæsthetist, all clad in white, waited impatiently.

The eminent surgeon turned to the family physician.

"I told you we were taking big chances."

The family physician frowned.

"Knowing the woman, I can't agree with you."

And in the adjoining room the woman's lips moved again.

"Will you miss me, Robert, if anything goes wrong? Will you miss me? And he will answer: 'Yes, dear girl, I can honestly say that much. I will miss you.'"

Far down the corridor the elevator door closed with a clang. The figure on the bed quivered. Helene listened for his firm, brisk tread. It was not he, after all! The footsteps on the concrete flooring were halting, uncertain. They stopped before the door. She wondered vaguely, irritably, why the nurse had left her alone with the door ajar. Some one gripped the knob. She reached for the electric bell cord that lay on her pillow. Before she could ring her husband stepped inside and closed the door behind him.

She caught one glimpse of his pale, distorted face. Then he was kneeling at her side, his face hidden in the soft, white curve of her throat. His right arm was flung across her heart. It was heavy. She gasped for breath.

"Helene! Helene!"

Her name was a wail—a prayer.

"Can you ever forgive me? Because I denied love—because I looked for a blinding flash, I missed its pure radiance. Helene, girl, you won't leave me? I—can't live without you!"

Summoning the last atom of strength left in her pain racked body, she turned her head until her lips found his, and there she drank deep of courage and endurance, and hope, and—love.

Downstairs in the superintendent's private office an assistant was reporting to her chief.

"She rallied just as we moved her into the operating room. But I never saw a man so broken as her husband. It was cruel to send him those telegrams."

The superintendent was 50 and possessed of an executive mind. She spoke with irritation.

"I can't understand a woman's taking such chances as she did for purely sentimental reasons!"

The assistant superintendent was young. She spoke softly.

"I can! It must be glorious to wait for a man who loves you as he loves her!"

CRITICISES SOME WAR PLAYS.

Dear Miss Tinee: It seems to me that if moving pictures are to continue to be popular they must either be instructive or amusing. One of the surest ways to kill the business is by encouraging those individuals who turn to the movies to exploit a private enterprise or in an attempt to mold public opinion.

"The Birth of a Nation" was a wonderful production in many ways and its long run at the local playhouses testifies to its popularity with the public. Not only as a picture was it interesting but it had the additional merit of being of real historic value as describing in part actual conditions that existed in our own country at the time of and immediately following the civil war.

It's great success from the box office viewpoint naturally called for many imitators, but why in the name of common sense should we be called on to sit through a lot of rot like "The Battle Cry of Peace," "Civilization," and "The Fall of a Nation," none of which is founded on facts but is the wildest sort of dream?

In "The Battle Cry of Peace" on the opening night the managers put on a lot of theatrical stuff intended to arouse the patriotism of the audience, including the waving of the American flag by an old soldier, who proceeded to tell the audience how hard the producers had labored to make the picture absolutely neutral, etc., even stating that the costumes of the soldiers shown in the picture were of a nondescript character, etc., to avoid any appearance of an attempt to prejudice the audience.

After this carefully prepared speech had been delivered the pictures showing an invasion of America by the Germans were thrown on the screen. There wasn't any chance to mistake the uniforms and nationality of the invading army and the exaggerated brutality of the soldiers as shown in the picture was only to arouse the public mind against this one nation.

The author of the play in a speech told of his desire to be neutral, etc., again emphasizing the fact that the picture was not hitting at any particular nation. However, he neglected to tell his audience that he had been a British subject up to the start of the present European war, had retained his British citizenship through a long period of residence in America, where he has built up a fortune and is working body and soul for the English at the present time.

Next we have the story of "Civilization," with the usual accompaniment of shot and shell.

This morbid blending of war and religion is avowedly an attempt to foster Mr. Bryan's ideas of universal peace. Its only real effect is to leave a bad taste in one's mouth after the final curtain is rung down. X.

LIKES ANSWERS TO FANS.

Dear Miss Tinee: Your "Right Off the Reel" page has for some time been to me a most interesting study of human nature taken off guard in its blandly unconscious comedy of youth with the amorous instinct rampant. I refer especially to the "Question Box," which has furnished me with no little amusement through its sheer absurdity. Your replies so often point with such delightfully subtle unobtrusiveness to the funny and human note in the hidden question, seemingly shielding, yet in reality holding up to the searchlight for dissection, that they could almost be called naive in their effect. The discerning chuckle accompanying them is always refreshing in its spontaneity. You are surely to be commended for your monumental patience. INTERESTED OBSERVER.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

"Dear Miss Tinee: Since no sane editor will print any of my stuff, I needs must send it to your column. HAZEL NUT."

Out in the grand and golden west
  The evening sun is setting low.
All nature settles down to rest,
  While soothingly the night winds blow.
But Harold Strong, with tight clenched hands,
  Sees naught of this, for yonder there,
Upon the cliff, a maiden stands,
  In all her beauty and despair.

"O, cruel world," brave Harold moans,
  "To let a girl, so sweet and young,
Dash out her life upon those stones!
  'Tis wrong! I say, 'tis wrong; 'tis wrong!"
While he looks on, with brain awhirl,
  She plunges to the rocks below.
Why did not Harold save the girl?
  He saw this at the movie show.

The Frame of Public Favor

Mary Miles Minter

MARY MILES MINTER, aged about 18, has been on the stage as well as in pictures. At the present time she is with the American company, delighting the hearts of directors and an admiring public. Little Miss Minter is an April girl and was born in Shreveport, Ind. She comes of a family histrionically inclined, and when a mere infant she appeared in "Shore Acres" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin," in which she took the part of "Little Eva." She later played in stock and was with Eleanor Robson in "Salomy Jane," with Dustin Farnum in "Cameo Kerby," and with Mrs. Fiske. She became well known, but perhaps her greatest stage success was "The Littlest Rebel," in which she appeared with William and Dustin Farnum. Miss Minter first went into pictures under the flag of the Frohman Amusement company. Later she was with Metro and now she is an "American" girl. In appearance she is strikingly attractive, being the lucky possessor of gold, gold hair and blue, blue eyes. She is five feet two inches tall and weighs 110 pounds. Her favorite sports are those that take her out of doors.

No Brains Required.

According to Prof. Franklin Henry Giddings, head of the department of sociology and history of civilization, who lectures at Columbia university, it takes no brains to produce a salacious picture. "The sex appeal in books and upon the stage has always been attractive commercially to certain publishers and motion picture producers, short sighted enough to believe in quick rather than continuous profits," he says. "It is a method of theme choosing appealing particularly to the incompetent. The national conscience has been demanding for some time that the screen be at least as clean as the columns of a well edited newspaper.

"I believe that the majority of people seek a moral solution to everything in their environment. Men and women try to clean up their lives as they go along, and because morality is the natural element for human beings, I do not believe there will be any lasting epidemic of nasty pictures.

"My study of sociology has made me an optimist. Those manufacturers who continue to violate the average moral law governing average moral views of life will fall under the combination of average moral standards. The time is approaching when it will not pay to produce immoral pictures. Those who have been prosperous in this respect will find their prosperity at an end."

Wilbur Must Hurry.

Crane Wilbur has made himself the bete noir of department store heads because of his recent announcement that he would take "some" salesgirl and make a motion picture actress of her.

Recently Mr. Wilbur received a letter from a department store asking him for the sake of discipline in the store to please decide at once on the salesgirl who is to get the chance to become a picture star. The letter goes on to say that instead of tending to customers, the girls now drape themselves over the counters, pen in hand, couching in the best rhetoric at hand phrases that they hope will appeal to the screen idol in his quest for a new kind of star. The company tried discharging, but soon discovered it would be necessary to discharge all the girls and fill their places with men. This would not do and so mercy in the shape of a speedy decision is craved of Mr. Wilbur.

I NEVER EAT IN THE SUMMER! IT'S TOO HOT!

R. E. B.: So you imagine I'm young and girlish and fair, and you could fall in love with me? Ah! I have not lived in vain, but I do not go to lunch with moving picture actors. For why? Ask me! Ask me!

CHARLEY K.: So you want to be a moving picture actor, do you? Well, then, you would better send me a stamped, self-addresed envelope for the printed article I have on the subject. I also have a list of the studios. Awfully glad to help you.

MASTERFUL: Pooh!

GUY W.: Surely, I'll tell your horoscope if you will send me the date of your birth.

A. D.: I will be mighty glad to send you the printed materal I have on scenario writing if you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TWO GUN BACHELOR: Yes, and plenty of room beside me on the sofa, but I need it all. I'm a fresh air fiend and I'm not lonesome, and if I am lonesome I'd rather be lonesome. O, no doubt about it, I'm pretty sweet, all right! Ella Hall is 18 years old. Yes, she is still with the Universal, playing in the Bluebird brand of pictures. She has been in pictures for several years. No, she is not married. Keep still, your heart! Keep still!

G. P.: Gwacious! but ums cwoss!

LESLIE W.: In "The White Pearl," Thomas Holding took the part of the lover. No, Florence La Badie has not resigned from pictures, she is still with the Thanhouser company. I've interviewed a lot of them. Thank you for your words of appreciation.

ED B.: In the "Sculptor's Model," Vivian Reed took the part of Una Gray. No trouble at all.

BLUE EYES: Save your tears—the car may run out of water.

MR. B.: No. Yes. Why? You're dead wrong!

N. R. I. H.: Hazel Dawn, Famous Players; Marie Doro, Famous Players; Virginia Kirtley, American; Jack Warren Kerrigan, Universal; Clara Kimball Young, own company; Billie Burke, Kleine; Robert Harron, Triangle; William Courtleigh Jr., Famous Players; Leah Baird, Vitagraph; Edna Purviance, Mutual. Yes, I'm kind, all right.

PAUL C.: Following is the cast of "The Hand of Horror": Stephen Clark, William West; John Clark, John Brownell; Margaret, Bessie Learn; Frank Henley, Edward Earle; and Tom Burley, Andrew Smith. No trouble at all.

JULIA MURDER: Out for killing, aren't you, Judy? Address Wallace Reid, care of the Triangle company, Los Angeles, Cal. No trouble at all.

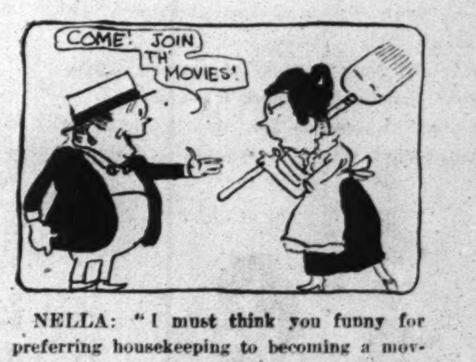
A. V. D.: If you will send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope I will be mighty glad to send you the printed material I have on the "doubling" process.

VIRGINIA S.: Address Mary Fuller, care of the Universal company, Universal City, Cal. Thank you, lady.

ALICE: In "Alien Souls" Sessue Hayakawa and Tsuri Aoki took the parts you mention. Yes, they're married.

M. T.: The star in whom you are interested is with the Mutual company. Y'wekkum!

GENE J. T.: No, I don't write my name that way because I'm small, and I don't write it that way because I'm big, and I don't write it that way because I'm medium sized, either. Cut off the first "e" and see if you don't get a clew as to just why I write it that way. Y'wekkum.



COME! JOIN TH' MOVIES!

NELLA: "I must think you funny for preferring housekeeping to becoming a moving picture actress"? No, my dear, I don't. I'd say, instead, you are the seventh wonder of a seventh wonder of a seventh wonder!

V.: I won't do it.

ANXIOUS: Thanks for loving me! I'm afraid I'll have to ask you to send me a stamped, addressed envelope, because your questions are too numerous to be answered in this column. Not that I shouldn't love to do it for you. It's not my fault I have only one page!

Doris Blake Says

The First Lady of the Land Was Born Under an Exceptionally Lucky Star, for It Has Endowed Her with Remarkable Foresight, Keen Intuition and Perceptive Faculties Far Beyond That of the Average Woman, and That Mrs. Charles E. Hughes Lives Up to Her Horoscope Predictions Perfectly in That She Is a Devoted Mother with Her Chief Interests in Her Home and Family.

MRS. WOODROW WILSON was born on Oct. 14, which brings her birth date under the direct influence of Libra, the zodiac sign which extends from Sept. 23 to Oct. 23. The stars were supposed by the ancients to form a shape like a scale during this period, so the scales have come to be the symbol of Libra and to typify impartial justice. Exceptionally fortunate is Libra in being the home of these planets: Mercury, which endows with physical power, memory, and perception; Venus, known by all as the planet of love, especially of the conjugal type; Jupiter, which brings to mortals a love of the sublime, the noble, and the beautiful, and Neptune, the planet of poetry. By the connection evolved between the twelve signs of the zodiac and the twelve tribes of Israel, Libra is Reuben, who sees the vision of the sun and whose leading characteristic is a power of foresight, vision, or intuitive perception.

Zodiacal authorities agree that Libra people are almost invariably fine looking and blessed with good figures. It is a fact beyond dispute that Mrs. Wilson is no exception to the rule. Her broad forehead and beautifully expressive eyes and lips place her definitely as one of the three Libra types. An intuitive aptitude for languages, a desire to collect works relating to mystical subjects and science, natural mechanical ability, and remarkable powers of intuition are some of the characteristics that mark this type.

Fond of refined society

A lover of flowers

First impressions are, nine times out of ten, correct with Mrs. Wilson, but both she and her neighbors in Libra might be mistaken in the tenth. It is this characteristic foresight that makes speculators of many of them, and often with marked success, but they must have a care, for sometimes they, too, are mistaken. Naturally, Libra folk are not prone to reason except from the standpoint of intuition and observation, so it is usually best for them to carry out their first decisions in all matters they undertake, unless acting under the control of another.

This same wonderful intuition gives an insight into character that makes it possible for the Libra woman to adapt herself to the tastes of those with whom she is mingling, and to adjust her conversation accordingly. A natural simplicity of conversational style but adds to her pleasingness of manner, and as sympathy and tenderness go hand in hand with intuition, she has added to her list of attributes two more fortunate ones, which make her magnetic presence a balm in time of illness.

This same intuition will cause Libra people to feel the mental conditions of those about them so keenly as to be positively uncomfortable in cases of inharmonious surroundings and companionship. So it is that they often will be found in the ranks of spiritualists because of their great susceptibility to psychic control and their natural spiritual intuitions. In religious matters they have a great deal of skepticism to overcome, which causes them no end of anxiety, for they cannot adjust the conflicting points of the different sects.

If the first lady of the land had chosen to follow the theatrical profession, she would undoubtedly have made a success, for by nature she is endowed with unusual imitative powers, and is a born mimic with a keen sense of humor that helps immensely in getting her over the rough places in life. If developed along other lines, this talent shows itself in an ability to invent and originate, especially along mechanical lines.

With Mrs. Wilson as an example, it goes without saying that the women of this sign are good housekeepers and possessed with a knack of adorning both their homes and themselves in excellent taste. The poetry of their nature endows them with a love of the beautiful, which makes harmonious surroundings quite necessary to their happiness. Grandeur isn't necessary, but everything must be of the best; they will brook no imitations. If they have the means with which to work, absolute perfection of detail will result; there will be no wasteful extravagance, for money put into these women's hands will illustrate its full purchasing capacity. No slovens will be allowed; orderliness will be the household slogan. In line with this trait, Libra women can always be counted upon to finish anything they start in a careful, competent manner.

It is only natural that this type of woman would be fond of refined society and that she would be a most devoted friend. Affectionate by nature, she needs love to make her life complete, and she will be unhappy, indeed, if she has to go through life alone. But with her, sentiment, intellectuality, and physical beauty are perfectly combined, making her kind, gracious, hospitable, beauty loving, feminine, and impulsive, but with the will power to govern her impulses. In other words, the Libra woman's physical beauty reflects her soul qualities.

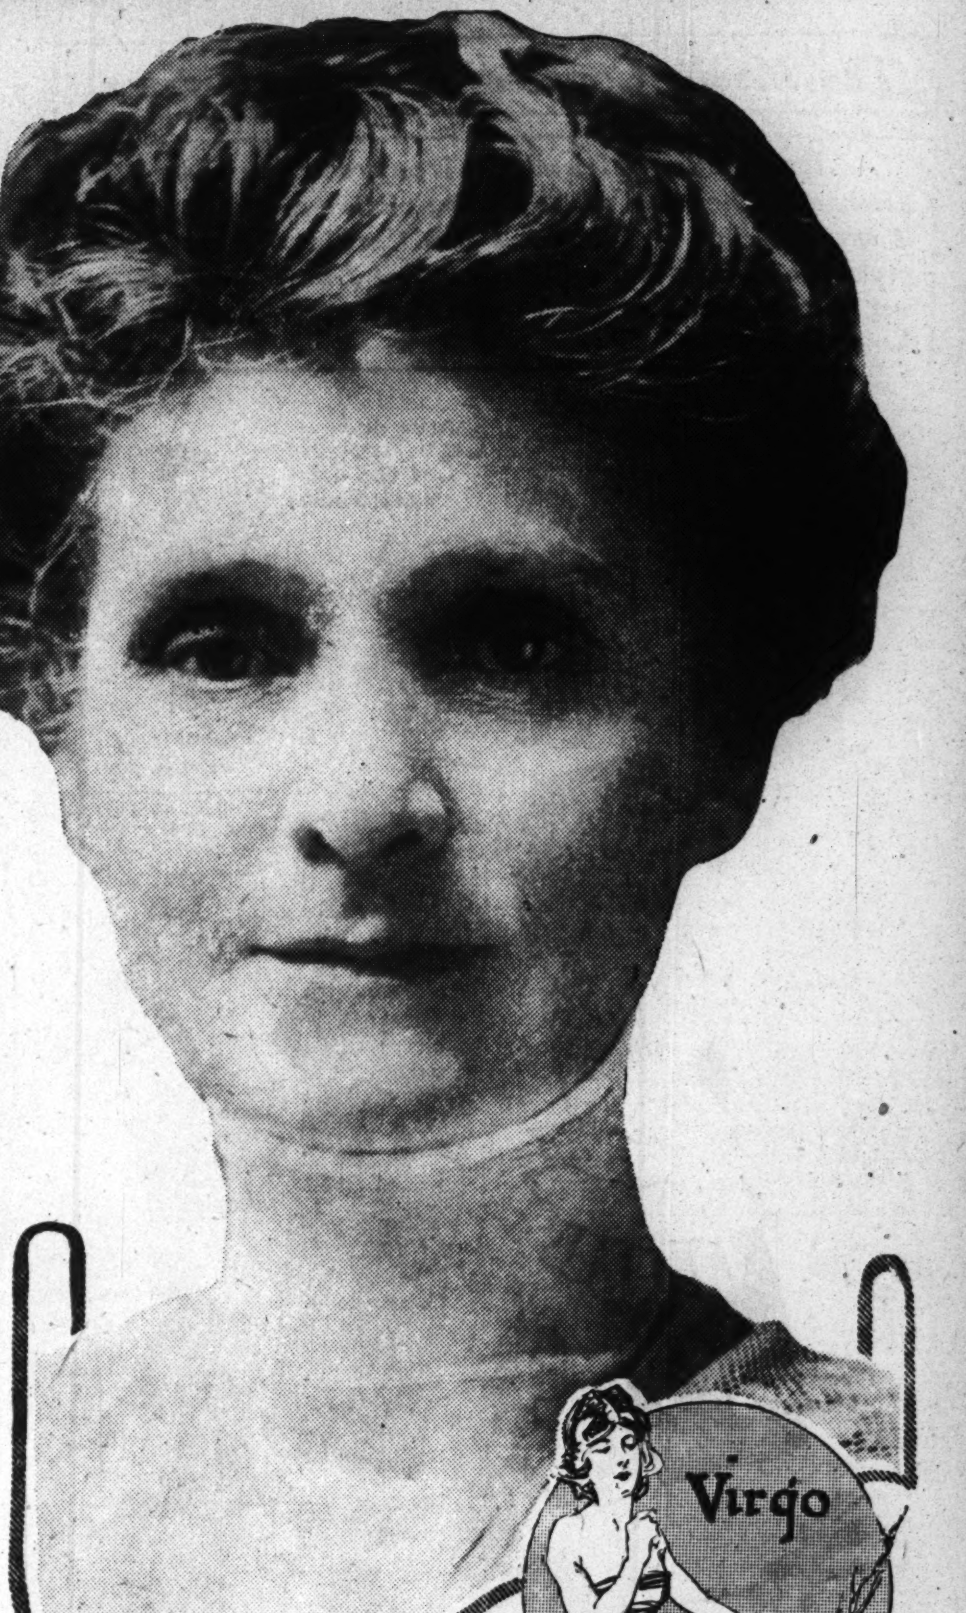
And what is more, the Libra woman usually knows just what she wants, and, fortunately for her, she usually gets it. But here again her predominating trait, intuition, comes to the front, for nothing will excite or annoy her more than to be required to give reasons for her choice or actions. But her nature is, on the whole, so harmonious and well balanced that her well laid out plans seldom fail of execution. But woe, O woe, if they do! The depths of melancholy for her!

All Libra folk should take care lest their excessive activity, especially in the use of their perceptive faculties, lead to a physical breakdown. They should seek spheres of quiet rather than to try to battle with the world, and let their natural conservatism guide them, rather than their acquired love of excitement. If their nerves get the best of them, their tempers are easily aroused, and when angry their remarks are cutting and their manner taunting.

Punctuality is another trait that is Mrs. Wilson's by right of birth. And from all reports, she has lived up to this inheritance perfectly. "They say" she has won an enviable reputation for promptness and reliability, and not once has she been known to keep an official function waiting, or broken an engagement. This, combined with her natural personal charm, has made her the ideal hostess and guest that would be expected from the educated Libra woman.

With such an innately artistic temperament, it of course follows that the Libra person is a lover of nature and all that pertains to outdoors, especially flowers. And along this line is also a highly developed sense of color and form.

Mrs. Wilson's two most fortunate weeks are supposed to be those beginning April 13 and Dec. 6. Her colors are crimson, black, and light blue; birth stone, "To Libra born the opal stone is lucky, and to them alone."



Mrs. Charles E. Hughes
©CLINEDINST

MRS. CHARLES E. HUGHES, wife of the presidential nominee, came into the world on the 14th of September under the guiding constellation of Virgo, whose Virginal influence extends from Aug. 24 to Sept. 23.

With Cancer and Leo, the two preceding signs, Virgo forms the maternal trinity. The planets Mercury, Venus, and Uranus are in ascendancy at this period and each casts its peculiar mystic influence, Mercury giving physical power and a desire for knowledge; Venus bringing happy, conjugal love, and Uranus, being the planet of the occult, tends to lift the thoughts from a material basis to one more spiritual and mental. As a connection has been evolved between the twelve signs of the zodiac and the twelve tribes of Israel, Virgo is Benjamin, whose leading characteristics are an unparalleled strength of will and power of self-preservation.

The parallelism between Mrs. Hughes as she is pictured in real life and her story as told by the stars is striking, to say the least. All reports picture her as a thoroughly domestic woman, whose heart and soul are wrapped up in her home and family, and such, in brief, would the zodiacal influences have the Virgo woman.

Virgo people are characterized by a cool, calm, self-possessed bearing. They seldom lose their presence of mind nor are awed by superiors. It has been said frequently of Mrs. Hughes that although she preferred her own family table, no one could be a more excellent hostess for a large social function than she.

The above characteristics make Virgo people rather hard to approach and give them the label of conservatives. And Mrs. Hughes is conservative.

The remarkable power of observation, even to the smallest detail, a Virgo trait, is the result of a naturally discriminating and analytical mind, so it is not surprising that they excel in practically everything they undertake. When they finish a job it will be well done, every one knows. So trustworthy, capable, and reliable are Virgo people that they easily win the trust of all those with whom they come in contact. These traits Mrs. Hughes wears most becomingly.

The order and method of their minds Virgo people carry into their business and personal habits. For this reason they make fine scholars with marked power along literary lines. So say the stars.

A natural student of the laws of health, with an especial interest in anatomy, chemistry, and physiology, is an attribute of those born on Mrs. Hughes' birthday. Incongruous as it may seem, however, Virgo people, without exception the healthiest people in the world, seem to have a mania for taking medicine. Whereas, Dr. Zodiacal Signs prescribes no medicine is needed by them in case of digestive disturbance—just quiet, harmony, and rest.

A splendid command of language, absorbed to a great extent from their omnivorous reading, is a gift of the Virgo born. Mrs. Hughes has been especially endowed in this respect. Like others of her sign born, she can go through a book and get the pith of it while an outsider may still be reading the title page. And no error in grammar or expression escapes.

Cleanliness is truly next to Godliness

Observers say that the home life of the Hugheses emanates from the library rather than from the drawing room; that Mrs. Hughes, when looking for a suitable Washington residence, insisted upon a big, airy, sunny library, and that the atmosphere of the home is decidedly literary!

Not only do those of Mrs. Hughes' natal sign love the literary, but they are also devotees to the best in art and music. But they have no patience with the mediocre, so as art critics they are apt to be too severe.

Discord in music or in surroundings will in time affect the health of most Virgo people. So it is only natural that they are exceedingly fastidious about their food and living conditions. With them cleanliness is truly next to godliness. They simply could not sleep in a disorderly room, and as for dusty furniture—why, that would cause them to lose all their appetite! There will be no loose ends about the Virgo woman's household.

These same Virgo women, and men, too, desire a full measure of comfort—they wish the best of everything. Not that they are extravagant; on the other hand, the Virgo woman especially is precise, careful, and even economical in the management of her household. If her circumstances do not permit, she can adapt herself to the situation with a cheery, contented smile and be a helpful mate at all times.

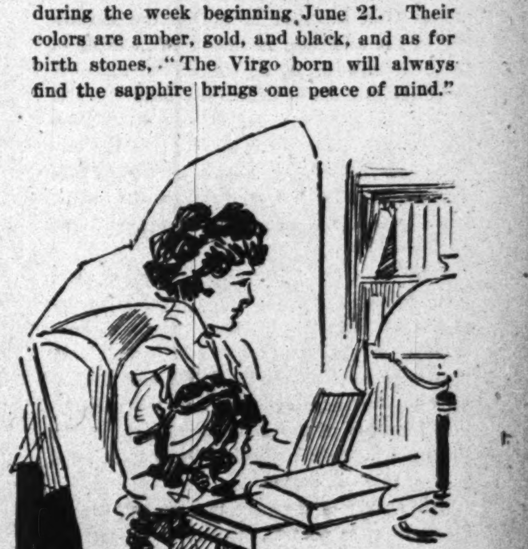
Patient at all times and unselfishly generous to her family as is the Virgo mother, small wonder that Mrs. Hughes is the idol of her home. Nothing is too good for her family and she is always loving and affectionate toward them. Domestic, faithful, thorough, devoted to the point of worship, with her purity ever shining through, inspiring affection and winning confidence, that's the Virgo mother, so exemplified in the presidential nominee's wife. Such mothers can't help imparting a sense of harmony and rest to their ideal homes!

Some zodiacal authorities claim that many Virgo people are "sticklers" for old forms; that they hold family, wealth, and position in too high respect; that a family tree is quite essential to their happiness; that they are almost clannish in their family love. But they all agree that Virgo's friends never doubt their integrity, and that they place absolute confidence in their decisions and opinions. If the tables had been turned and Mrs. Hughes had been the judge, her honest, firm decisions quite likely would have formed precedents, for the vein of inflexible justice in the Virgo makeup will always show itself.

But, lo, the books do say, the Virgo folk are as averse to accepting advice as they are prone to give it. They do not realize that their sometimes sharp criticisms are harder to bear than they have any idea until some one dares turn the tables. Then, oddly enough, they will answer for all sorts of faults they do not possess, but deny the existence of their most apparent ones. This sensitiveness is constitutional with them in company with their delicate touch, fine skin, and acute feeling which makes them unable to endure pain.

Society reports that Mrs. Hughes has done only the conventional amount of entertaining, and that she does not indulge in bridge or teas. In other words, she has done no social plunging, and rather dreads the spotlight of social publicity. So again she is the typical Virgo woman, who goes calling when she has to, but the place that satisfies her best is home. The Virgo woman looks above rather than below her station for the few good friends she chooses to make and always finds them.

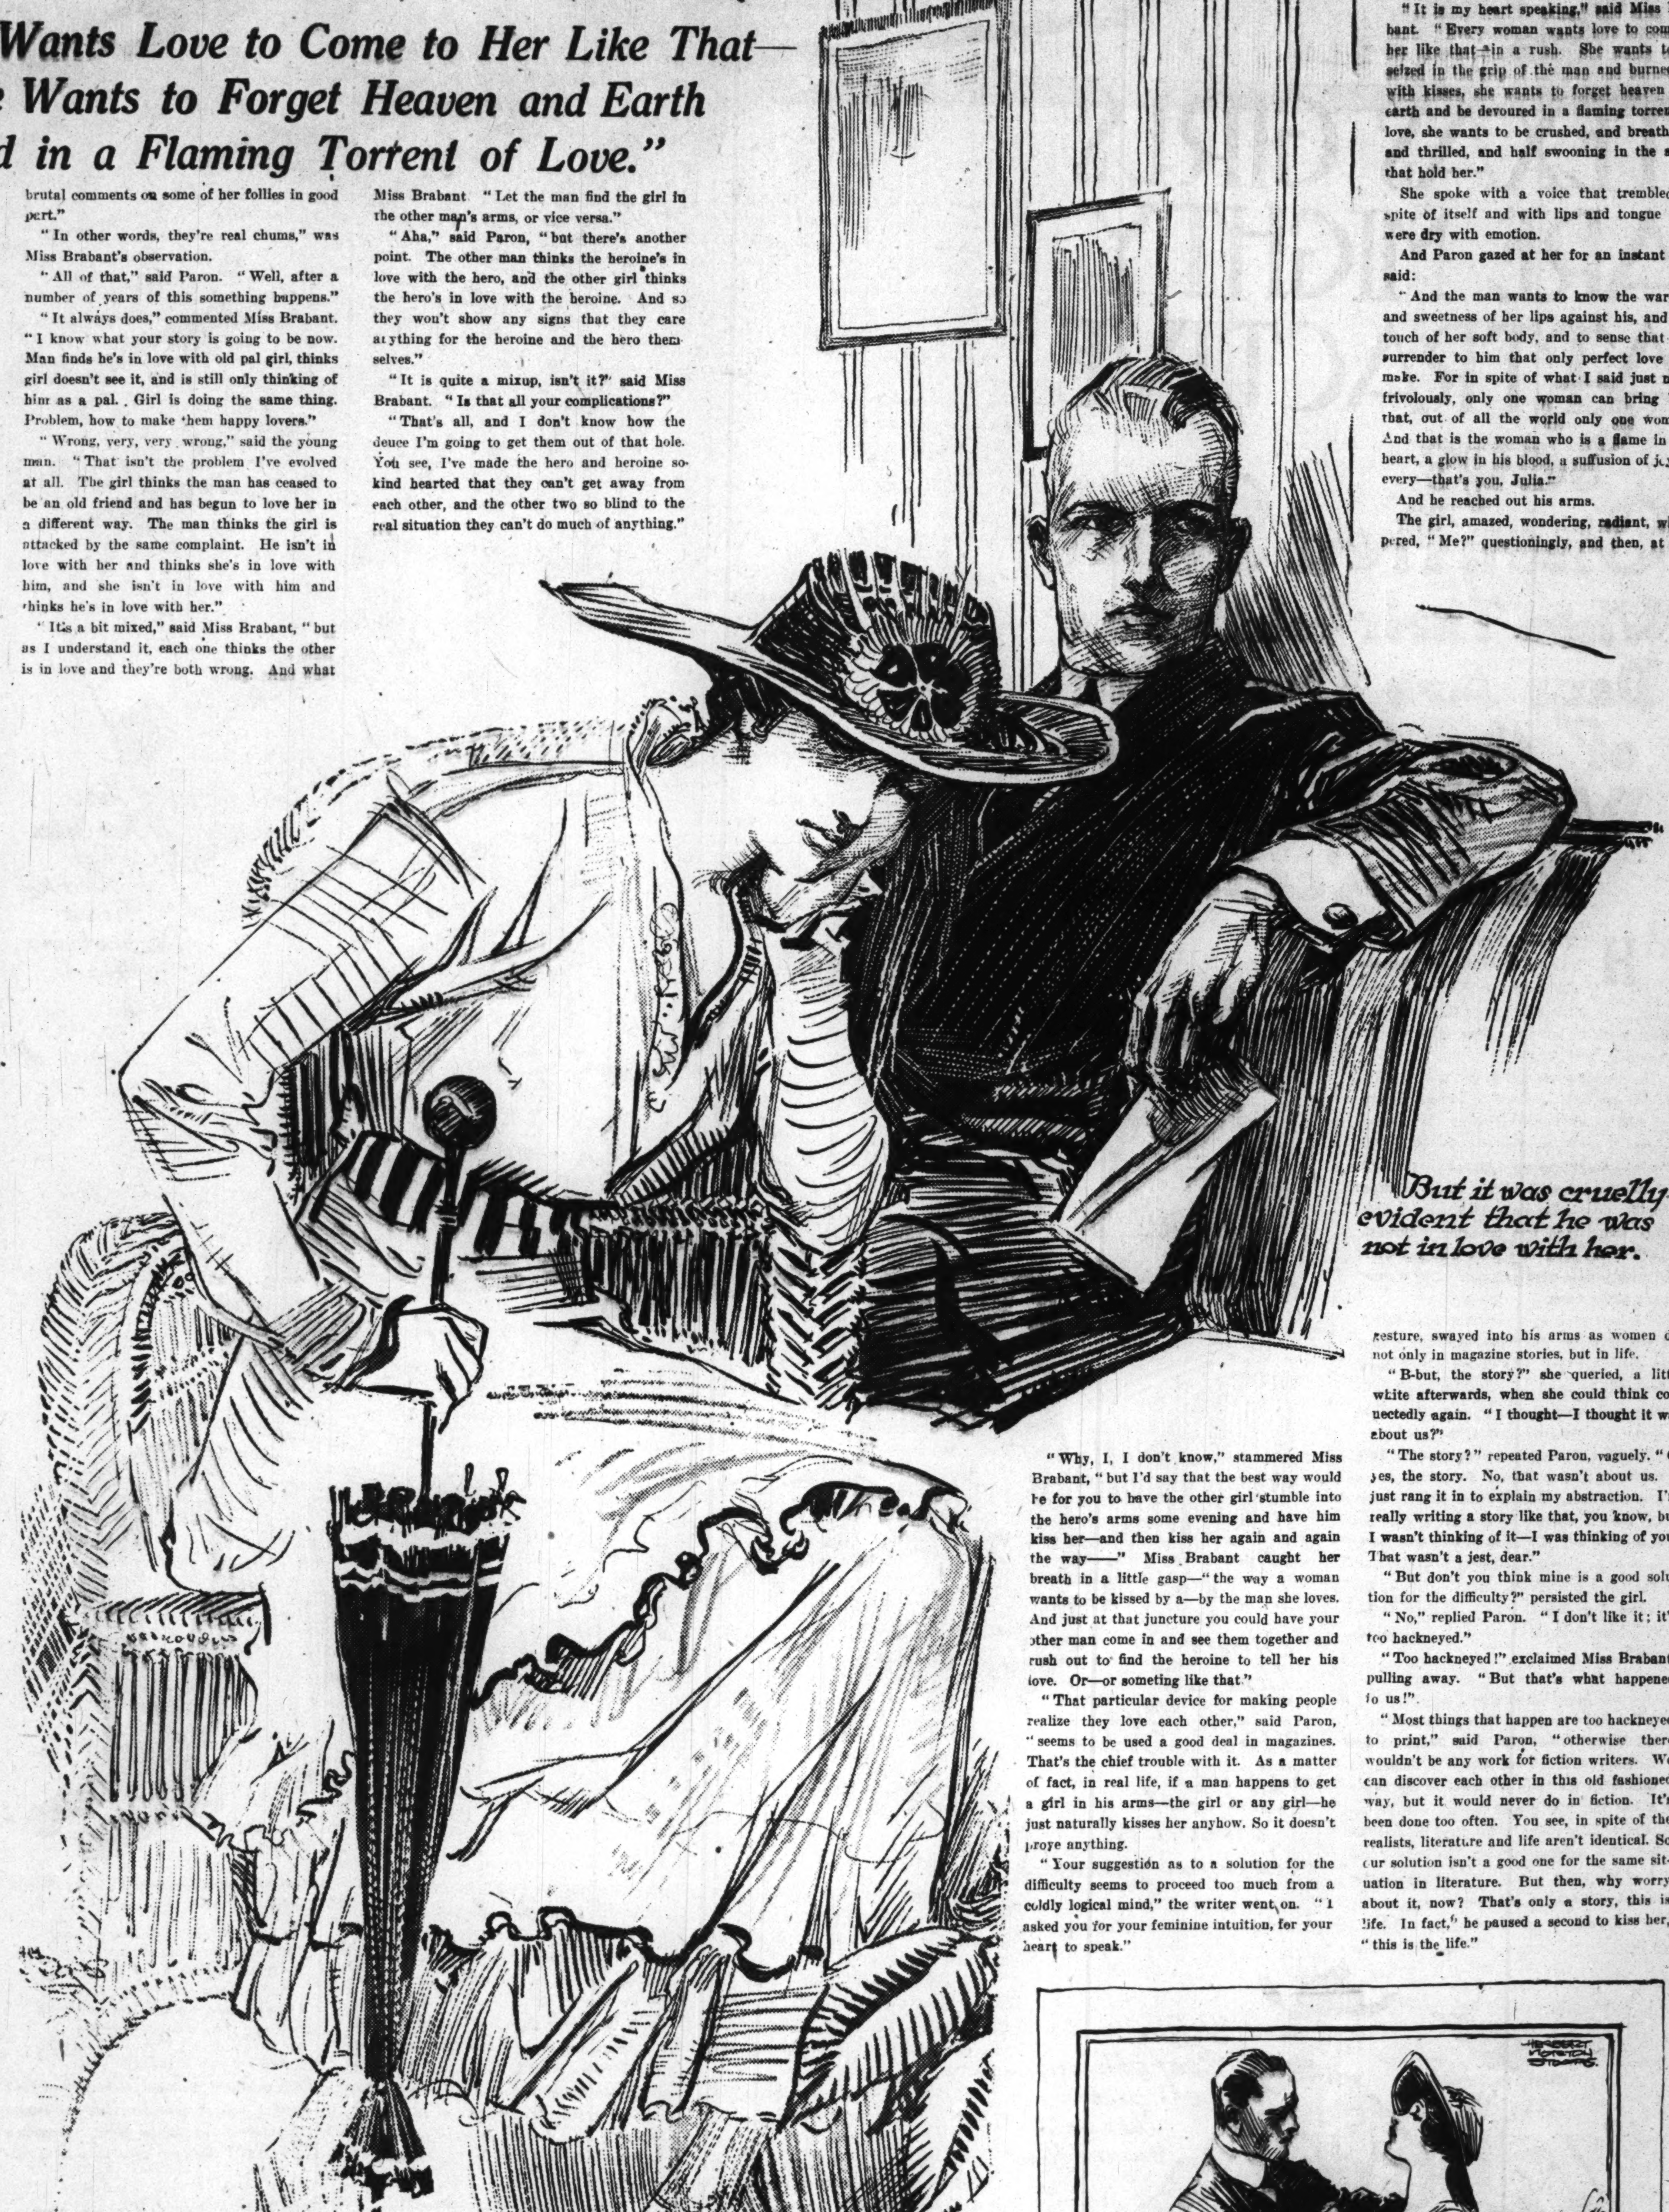
Virgo people will be successful with any enterprise begun during the weeks commencing May 10 and Dec. 28, but unfortunate during the week beginning June 21. Their colors are amber, gold, and black, and as for birth stones, "The Virgo born will always find the sapphire brings one peace of mind."



Mrs. Hughes' home life emanates from the library

The WAY OUT by Berton Braley

"Every Woman Wants Love to Come to Her Like That—In a Rush. She Wants to Forget Heaven and Earth and Be Devoured in a Flaming Torrent of Love."



But it was cruelly evident that he was not in love with her.

"BUT she said: 'My dear, what can you expect? If you will go around with those awful Bohemians and authors who wear their hair short or long or something and live in studios and things, you mustn't be surprised if you get into unpleasant situations.'

"As if there was anything very scandalous in going with nice authors like you or in being locked in your own studio because the lock wouldn't work from the inside, and calling across the court to a perfectly nice stranger to ask him to ask the landlady to come up and unlock my door. You aren't listening." complained Julia Brabant.

"Eh," said Paron, starting guiltily. "O, yes I was, you were telling the landlady that a stranger locked you in and she said he was an Armenian and——"

"I knew you weren't listening," repeated the girl, "you've been sitting there with deep creases in your forehead, looking into vacancy, and all my wonderful flow of anecdote and humor has been lost on you. What's the reason?"

"It's you," said the young man. "Sitting here in your presence lately has that effect upon me. I dream about you by night, I dream about you by day, when I'm away I dream about you, and when I'm near by I dream about you."

He said it lightly and grinned.

"Some doctors give pills for that," said the girl, "and anyway you might be polite enough not to dream about me so much that you don't hear me when I'm talking to you. And while it may seem rude on my part not wholly to believe you, may one intimate that perhaps dreaming of me is not the only thing which makes you distrait?"

"One may," agreed Paron, "and one would be right. As a matter of fact, I was dreaming about 40 per cent of you, and the other 60 per cent of concentration was on a story I'm writing. I can't seem to finish it satisfactorily."

"Is it a question between satisfying an editor who wants a happy ending, or your own artistic conscience, or what?" asked Miss Brabant.

"Not exactly; it's a question of technical procedure, I guess, and perhaps your feminine intuition may help me."

"Giving me no credit for having any intellectual capacity for intelligent criticism, of course," was the rejoinder.

"This is a case," the man replied, "where I should say heart rather than mind should govern your comment. I don't want what you think is logical, but what you feel is right."

"Are you going to read the story to me?"

"O, no, there isn't any need of that. I'll merely sketch the situation. In the first place, there's a man and a girl."

"There always is a man and a girl, isn't there?" Miss Brabant queried.

"Somewhere in the background if not in the foreground," replied Paron, even if your background has to go clear back to Adam and Eve.' In this tale, however, the man and the girl are in the foreground.

"Briefly, the theme is this: The hero and heroine have known each other for years and years—since they were kids, almost. They've grown up together as comrades. There hasn't been a trace of anything but brotherly and sisterly affection between them. He comes to her and tells her about the girls he has loved and what he shall do to win them, or lose them, as the case may be, and she asks his advice about other men and even takes his rather brutal comments on some of her follies in good part."

"In other words, they're real chums," was Miss Brabant's observation.

"All of that," said Paron. "Well, after a number of years of this something happens."

"It always does," commented Miss Brabant. "I know what your story is going to be now. Man finds he's in love with old pal girl, thinks girl doesn't see it, and is still only thinking of him as a pal. Girl is doing the same thing. Problem, how to make them happy lovers."

"Wrong, very, very wrong," said the young man. "That isn't the problem I've evolved at all. The girl thinks the man has ceased to be an old friend and has begun to love her in a different way. The man thinks the girl is attacked by the same complaint. He isn't in love with her and thinks she's in love with him, and she isn't in love with him and thinks he's in love with her."

"It's a bit mixed," said Miss Brabant, "but as I understand it, each one thinks the other is in love and they're both wrong. And what are they going to do about it?"

"That's the problem," explained Paron, "what are they going to do about it? I know they're having a fearful time of it in my story. He is so fond of her in the old friendly way that he doesn't want to stay away from her and for the same reason she doesn't want to send him away. And yet when they are together they're constrained and unhappy, because he's in love with another and though he's dying to tell her about it he's afraid to hurt her, and she's in the same situation, she's in love with another man."

"Well, that ought to simplify matters," said Miss Brabant. "Let the man find the girl in the other man's arms, or vice versa."

"Aha," said Paron, "but there's another point. The other man thinks the heroine's in love with the hero, and the other girl thinks the hero's in love with the heroine. And so they won't show any signs that they care anything for the heroine and the hero themselves."

"It is quite a mixup, isn't it?" said Miss Brabant. "Is that all your complications?"

"That's all, and I don't know how the deuce I'm going to get them out of that hole. You see, I've made the hero and heroine so kind hearted that they can't get away from each other, and the other two so blind to the real situation they can't do much of anything."

"I see," said Miss Brabant. She saw, indeed. Now she understood the constraint that had come over their acquaintance. It is true that the cases weren't quite analagous. She and Paron hadn't known each other all their lives, only a year or two, but they had been friends, wonderful friends, and on her part, this—she realized now, with a shock—had imperceptibly grown to be love.

But it was cruelly evident that he was not in love with her. He was trying to show this to her as kindly and as delicately as possible by asking her opinion of the way out for these fiction characters. He had put in the part about the girl not loving the man simply to spare her feelings. She could see that Paron meant to tell her that her love for him was hopeless, and that their friendship must end.

She remembered now that Paron had often spoken a great deal about Marion Helm. Recently he had ceased to talk of her. Miss Brabant understood why now. He was in love with Marion Helm and wouldn't talk about her for fear of hurting his old friend.

"Well," queried Paron, "have you evolved anything after that long silence? How am I going to get my characters out of that tangle and have them all happy, though married?"

"Why, I, I don't know," stammered Miss Brabant, "but I'd say that the best way would be for you to have the other girl stumble into the hero's arms some evening and have him kiss her—and then kiss her again and again the way——" Miss Brabant caught her breath in a little gasp—"the way a woman wants to be kissed by a—by the man she loves. And just at that juncture you could have your other man come in and see them together and rush out to find the heroine to tell her his love. Or—or someting like that."

"That particular device for making people realize they love each other," said Paron, "seems to be used a good deal in magazines. That's the chief trouble with it. As a matter of fact, in real life, if a man happens to get a girl in his arms—the girl or any girl—he just naturally kisses her anyhow. So it doesn't prove anything.

"Your suggestion as to a solution for the difficulty seems to proceed too much from a coldly logical mind," the writer went on. "I asked you for your feminine intuition, for your heart to speak."

"It is my heart speaking," said Miss Brabant. "Every woman wants love to come to her like that—in a rush. She wants to be seized in the grip of the man and burned up with kisses, she wants to forget heaven and earth and be devoured in a flaming torrent of love, she wants to be crushed, and breathless, and thrilled, and half swooning in the arms that hold her."

She spoke with a voice that trembled in spite of itself and with lips and tongue that were dry with emotion.

And Paron gazed at her for an instant and said:

"And the man wants to know the warmth and sweetness of her lips against his, and the touch of her soft body, and to sense that full surrender to him that only perfect love can make. For in spite of what I said just now, frivolously, only one woman can bring him that, out of all the world only one woman. And that is the woman who is a flame in his heart, a glow in his blood, a suffusion of joy in every—that's you, Julia."

And he reached out his arms.

The girl, amazed, wondering, radiant, whispered, "Me?" questioningly, and then, at his gesture, swayed into his arms as women do, not only in magazine stories, but in life.

"B-but, the story?" she queried, a little while afterwards, when she could think connectedly again. "I thought—I thought it was about us?"

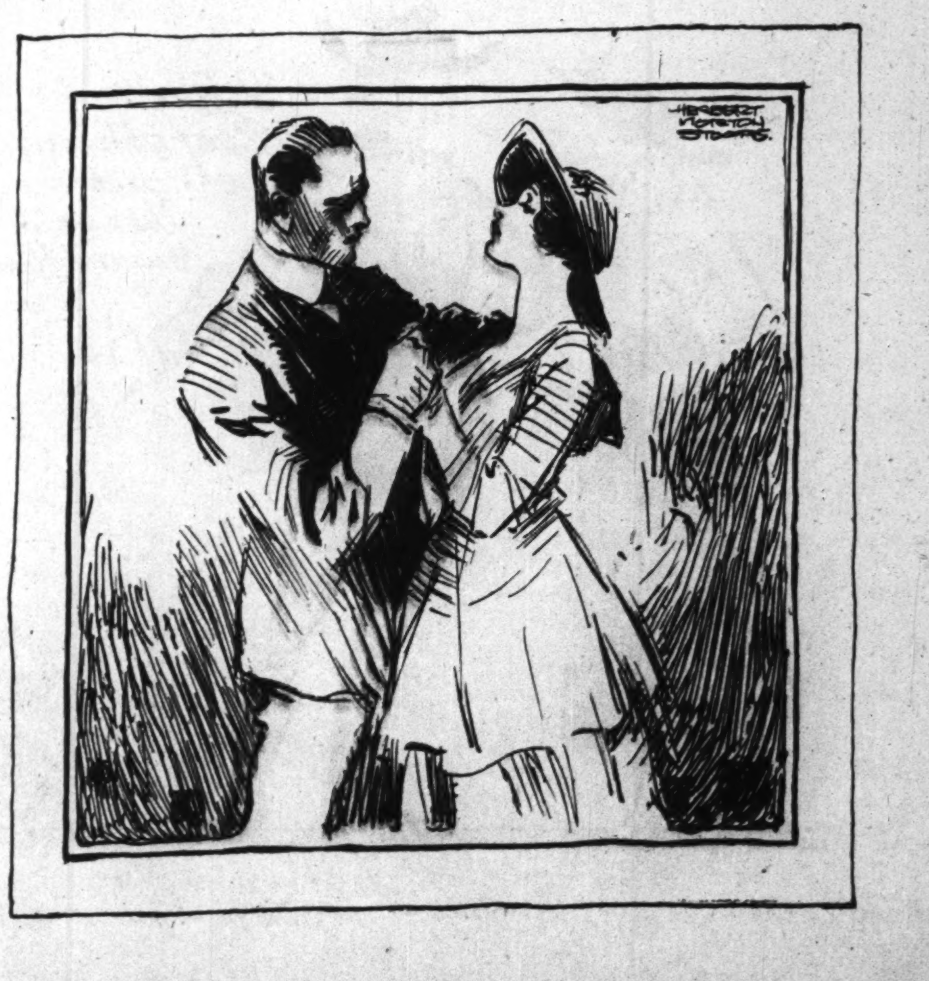
"The story?" repeated Paron, vaguely. "O, yes, the story. No, that wasn't about us. I just rang it in to explain my abstraction. I'm really writing a story like that, you know, but I wasn't thinking of it—I was thinking of you. That wasn't a jest, dear."

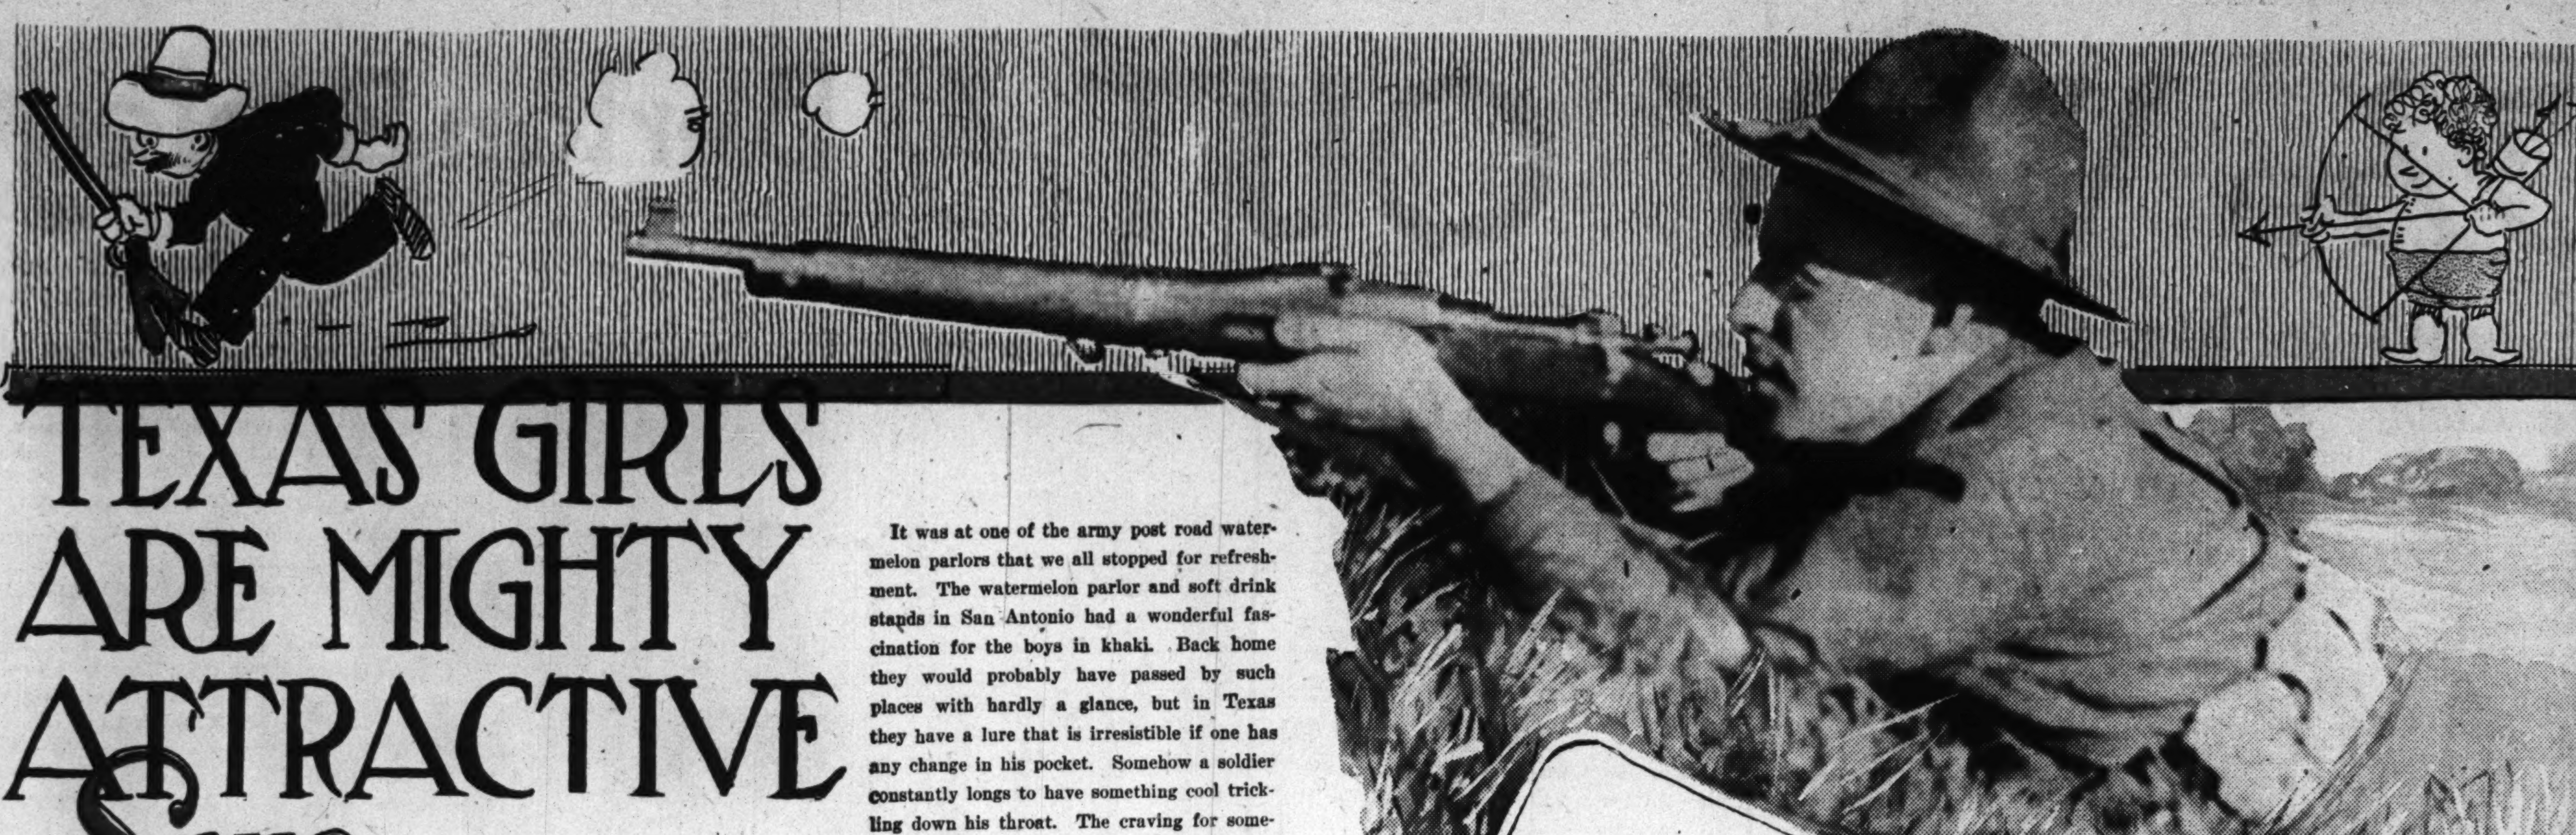
"But don't you think mine is a good solution for the difficulty?" persisted the girl.

"No," replied Paron. "I don't like it; it's too hackneyed."

"Too hackneyed!" exclaimed Miss Brabant, pulling away. "But that's what happened to us!"

"Most things that happen are too hackneyed to print," said Paron, "otherwise there wouldn't be any work for fiction writers. We can discover each other in this old fashioned way, but it would never do in fiction. It's been done too often. You see, in spite of the realists, literature and life aren't identical. So our solution isn't a good one for the same situation in literature. But then, why worry about it, now? That's only a story, this is life. In fact," he paused a second to kiss her, "this is the life."





TEXAS GIRLS ARE MIGHTY ATTRACTIVE Says Oney Fred Sweet

When Their Soldiering Days Are Over Some of the Chicago Boys Will Probably Go Back A'courting

"HOW many of the Chicago soldier boys in camp at San Antonio will return to Texas to make their homes after they are taken back north to lay away their suits of olive drab and khaki?"

The question was put to me by a San Antonion one night on the Alamo plaza. Groups of soldiers were drifting along the dreamy streets of the third oldest city in the United States. A southern moon was giving the light of day to balconied alleys, where Mexican families were lazing away the hours. A three piece string band was twanging a Spanish waltz on the porch of a home that was shaded with pepper trees and shut off by a rambling picket fence.

"I don't know how many will come back," I replied to the San Antonion, "but I have an idea that those who do come back down here will be lured by something besides climate and business opportunities, regardless of how fine these things may be.

"Texas girls are mighty attractive and have their own peculiar charm," I explained to the San Antonion, "but they are different from the girls in Chicago. The point is that the Texas girls and the Chicago soldier boys don't seem to be getting acquainted to any extent. The Chicago soldier boy still counts on his letters from home. He is clinging to his sweetheart back on the shore of Lake Michigan."

In a Watermelon Parlor.

But I do recall one balmy night when I left Camp Wilson with Sergt. Scherwat and Corporal Braham and Corporal Jensen to hike down the army post road to the corner where the jitneys and the street cars terminated. The jitney landed us at the fort-like postoffice building, opposite the Alamo, and from this point we sauntered forth in Houston street in search of entertainment.

It was at one of the army post road watermelon parlors that we all stopped for refreshment. The watermelon parlor and soft drink stands in San Antonio had a wonderful fascination for the boys in khaki. Back home they would probably have passed by such places with hardly a glance, but in Texas they have a lure that is irresistible if one has any change in his pocket. Somehow a soldier constantly longs to have something cool trickling down his throat. The craving for something cool is like a drunkard's craving for strong drink.

It had been at one of these watermelon parlors that I heard Corporal Jensen enter into conversation with one of the girls who waited on tables.

"Didn't you all pass by heah this mo'nin'?" the girl asked Corporal Jensen some time after the melon had been served and paid for.

"With the regiment, about 9 o'clock, yes," answered Corporal Jensen, burying his face among the seeds like a Mississippi Negro.

"I saw you all then," continued the girl. "You was walking on this side, but you didn't look this way at all."

"I remember you," recalled Corporal Jensen. "I had to speak to my squad just as we passed; they were losing step."

"I see you was some kind of an officer," the girl went on. "I noticed they minded you, too—those men beside you."

"Aw, some of 'em are always getting out of step," beamed the corporal, his face, Texas tanned and freckled, turning the color of the watermelon meat. "Are you in here every night?"

"Pa's going to keep this place here as long as the boys stay," the girl replied.

Hearts Back Home.

I had to wait outside quite awhile for Corporal Jensen. He was a pretty good looking soldier boy—so tall that his khaki trousers didn't bag at the knees as mine did, and he had a way of tilting up the front and back of his campaign hat that sort of set him apart.

Downtown that night we wandered along Houston street with the rest of the gang. We crossed the tiny bridge under which the river ran along an electric lighted course. We walked over to the plaza near the courthouse, where Mexicans sat about at tables in the open air, and where aged women and children sat humped over on the curbing as if settled for the night. We reached Little Mexico, where the barber shops and the saloons and the restaurants opened into the street and bore Mexican names. There was a charm about San Antonio at night. It was like being in a dream city. But it was all strange, and with most of us our hearts were back in Chicago. As Corporal Beadie, formerly of Sears, Roebuck & Co., used to sing in his tent at night:

My little girl, I'm thinking of you,
Though you're many miles away;
My little girl, you know I love you,
And I dream of you each day.
I see the lane down in the wildwood,
Where you promised to be true;
My little girl, I know you're waiting
And I'm coming back to you.

But coming back down the army post road late that night I remember Corporal Jensen glancing over toward the closed watermelon parlor. And I remember the next Sunday afternoon when Corporal Jensen brought the girl of the watermelon parlor out to the company street and showed her how we had all decorated the ground in front of our tents with whitewashed stones. She thought the decorations "awfully pretty."

Well, they had taken a lot of work, those decorations had. Some glacier period of the far distant past had furnished the material in the form of pebbles varying in size from those shaped like peas to some that were as big as baseballs. And we had whitewashed them and made lone star designs and army insignias and initials. In front of some of the squad tents the names of the residents were emblazoned against the hard Texas soil in white stones. Maj. Clinnin had been pleased with the decorations. He said he thought if we were proud of the exterior of our homes we would take pride in the cleanliness of the interiors.

And the watermelon parlor girl thought our lawns were "right smart cute." Corporal Jensen pointed out the cactus that had been transplanted on the lawn in front of his tent.

"I like the cactus," I heard him say to the watermelon parlor girl. "I like everything about Texas. Of course it gets hot here, but so does it get cold back in Illinois."

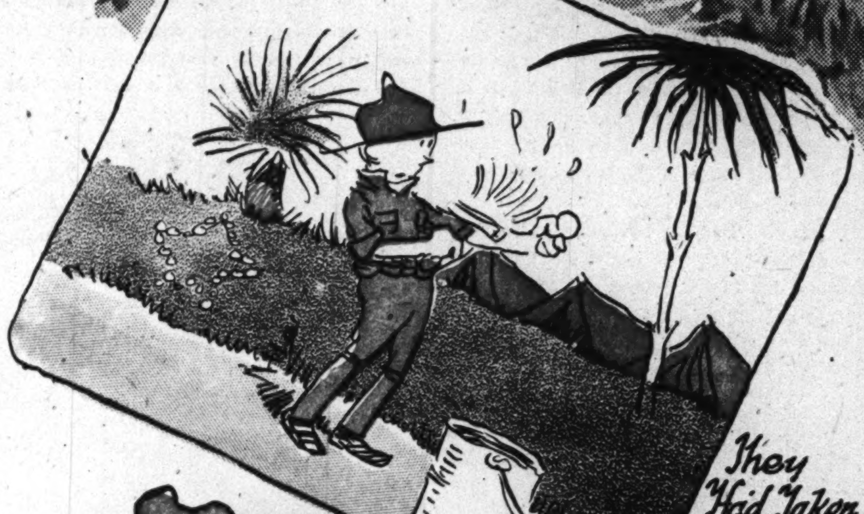
Getting Mail Helps a Lot.

After that I noticed Corporal Jensen wasn't quite as keen as the rest about rushing to the "top sergeant's" tent when the mail came in. You know mail has a good deal to do with a soldier's "morale." Those back home should see the expression on a soldier's face when the other fellows get letters and his name is not read off. After one has received the right sort of news from home it is not so difficult to put "pep" into the exercises at dawn before breakfast, one does not grow so weary on the long "hike" under heavy equipment, the drills do not seem half so tedious. There were times when my mind was so full of distraction because I had received no word from Hollywood, eleven miles out on the Burlington, that Sergt. Reisnow almost despaired of my learning to "right about face."

But Corporal Jensen reached the stage where he could keep right on cleaning his rifle for inspection when the daily mail came in. He knew the watermelon parlor was but a short distance up the army post road, and he knew that if he was a good soldier he would have no trouble getting a pass out of the lines at night.

Since history began, no army ever campaigned into a new country without a few hearts being lost. Texas ways are different than Chicago ways, but love never has bothered about differences in dialect.

Corporal Jensen has not confided in me, but it is possible that some day—recalling the section's climate and opportunities, of course—he may return to the Lone Star state.



They Had Taken A Lot of Work, Those Decorations Had.

GLORIA'S ROMANCE

by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes

Herewith is presented the fifteenth installment of the great George Kleine-Tribune photoplay serial, "Gloria's Romance," written by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes as the especial vehicle for America's most charming actress of romance, Miss Billie Burke, who, for her services, receives $4,000 a week. See the pictures at the nearest theater showing them and read the story here. Watch for it every Sunday. The pictures will be shown in the leading theaters. A new episode is released every Monday.

SYNOPSIS.

Dr. Stephen Royce and Dick Freneau, an adventurer, love Gloria Stafford, daughter of the multimillionaire. Gloria, lost in the Florida everglades, is really saved by Royce, but Freneau, who also searches, gets the credit by a mean trick of fate. Freneau proposes and is secretly accepted, but Stafford pere makes them promise to wait five years. Meanwhile Freneau pursues his affairs with Lois Freeman Stafford, wife of David Stafford, Gloria's brother, and becomes partner to the broker, Mulry. When the five years end, Gloria, out of school, is so matured Freneau doesn't recognize her—a terrible slight. Freneau, however, re-establishes himself with her and plans a hasty marriage, as he and Mulry need money badly. Lois learns of the intended marriage and threatens suicide rather than witness it. Freneau temporizes—declares he loves her (Lois) but must marry Gloria for financial reasons. Lois believes. David, her husband, by an anonymous letter, learns of Lois' infatuation for Freneau—whose name is synonymous with disgraceful affairs. In fact, Gideon Trask, father of Nell, one of his unfortunate victims, is on Freneau's trail swearing revenge. Planning to test her, David tells Lois he is to be out of town a week—but doesn't go. Meanwhile Lois promises to meet Freneau at the soldier's monument, from where they will go to a Catskill village for a week. Each has damaging love letters in possession. Royce knows of the appointment. To deceive Gloria during his absence Freneau has written love letters, dating them from various cities. Mulry mails them. Freneau goes to the monument. There he is killed. Three men are seen near him. Gloria sees it all from her window. Royce thinks it is merely delirium. The fake love letters begin to arrive and add corroboration to this theory. Gloria learns the truth, vows revenge on the unknown slayer, but Royce prevents her from asking aid from the police and newapapers. He thus avoids scandal. Gloria, discovering the deceit of the fake love letters, begins to doubt the quality of Freneau's love. She also suspects Lois, but accepts an invitation to visit her. Nevertheless, Gloria swears to find Freneau's murderer, Royce to the contrary. Gloria, hoping to learn something from Mulry, follows him to Palm Beach, where she saves him from death by drowning. There she also learns from a Seminole Indian that it was really Royce and not Freneau who rescued her five years before. Confronting Royce with this, he still denies it. In the New York night court Gloria runs across Mulry and Freneau's murderer. Before she revives from a faint he is released. Later she follows him. Gloria, following Gideon Trask, gets in an East Side barroom fight and is rescued from danger by Dr. Royce. Both are arrested and taken to the station. There Gloria encounters Mulry, who tells her that Dick made him write the fake letters because he was ill and feared his illness would worry her.

After the police station experience Gloria adopts Casimir, the waiter she befriended in the night court, and his little boy Stas. Gloria follows Trask to the barge on which he lives, and hearing his daughter accuse him of murdering Freneau, faces Trask and tells him she saw him murder Freneau.

He leaped at her and dragged her down.

PIERPONT STAFFORD cherished his majestic country place principally because it furnished him an ample solitude. He could wander about it for hours and meet never a soul. If he wanted company, there was room for it in the palace and in the formally gardened grounds. And he could look down on the tremendous peace of the Hudson river, admiring its strength as one strong man to another, and complimenting it on the efficiency with which it did such a big business with so little fuss.

He was touched in a tender spot when he heard that his scapegrace daughter Gloria had invited three guests to make his sacred retreat their more or less permanent home. She had not consulted him and the guests were the last people in the world he would have invited. It was nice enough for Gloria to take pity on a poor waiter and his forlorn child. It was sweet of her to adopt the child. Pierpont had even forgiven her by now for compelling him to hunt employment for the waiter. But then what followed? Gloria invited the boy's almost hopelessly invalid mother and the boy and the father to make themselves at home in Pierpont's own sanctuary! That was far more than too much.

"This has got to stop, and I'm going to stop it," Pierpont stormed to Dr. Royce, who had, at Gloria's command, transported the three to Pierpont's country place.

Royce smiled. Pierpont grew more furious. "O I'm not afraid of her just because she is only a child. She's got to obey me and get rid of them."

Pierpont decided to evict the waiter's family and save the butler. He would do it at once, before Gloria got home. He stalked forth like a constable with a writ of eviction.

The boy Stas caught sight of him and ran and flung his arms about his neck and began to tell him of the wonders of his own country place, of trees and flowers and birds and animals—commonplace things to Pierpont, but miracles to the boy from the slums. Casimir had gathered an armload of flowers for his sick wife, and he was aglow with the feeling that she was better already.

Pierpont had a great deal of Gloria's impulsiveness and a great deal of her abounding tenderness. He lost his temper in flashes, but his charity burned steadily and deeply, and now Stas had won his heart. He could not unclasp that child's arms. In fact, he lifted Stas to his arm and held him there while he told the butler he could leave without notice if he did not like the guests of the house. Also Pierpont told Royce that he must take particular care of Casimir's wife. Royce laughed at the old man's complete collapse, and said:

"It's a pity Gloria isn't here to see you. I wonder where on earth she is."

"She's somewhere where she oughtn't to be, that's sure," Pierpont growled, as he stared at his section of the Hudson, where, fighting against the current, a little tug was visible, towing an old canal barge loaded to the water line. Then he added: "She's probably on that barge now, adopting the bargeman's family."

He could imagine nothing more extravagantly impossible to say than that. And yet, the truth kept pace with his extravagance. For Gloria was indeed even then on board just such a barge being towed upstream by just such a tug. Only Gloria was not adopting the bargeman's family. She was being adopted by it. She was a prisoner and her life was in pawn.

When Trask heard Gloria's voice over his shoulder accusing him of the crime he was denying, he whirled as if an angel had spoken with the voice of conscience. An angel would have been hardly more surprising than the look of Gloria on the stairway of the barge.

Trask had no idea of Gloria's identity. He could not imagine who she was, whence she had come, or why she accused him. He stood transfixed a moment, then moved toward her with menace. Gloria retreated up the steps, but he leaped at her and dragged her down and seized her by the throat, as he had seized Freneau.

She tried to scream, but she could not make a sound. Nell attempted to restrain her father, but he turned on her with terror and wrath: "If she gets away, I go to the chair."

He might have throttled her then and there, but there was a jolt, the barge shook as the tow line dragged it away, and down the hatchway came the voice of Trask's helper, Jed.

Trask hurled Gloria against the wall and warned her that if she made a sound it would be her last. He would wring her neck and throw her into the river.

Gloria cowered in utter dread of him and remembered the fate of her poor lover, whose body the same stream had received and kept for days.

When Trask stamped up the cabin stairs and banged the hatchway down Gloria studied the girl. She had been beautiful, and still was pretty but too sad. Just now she was too angry. Nell had been fighting against her father till this unknown woman appeared from nowhere. Now Nell was all for her father against the world.

Gloria spoke to her, questioned her about Freneau. Nell did not answer at all, only in grumbling monosyllables. Gloria tried to bribe Nell to let her escape. Gloria offered larger and larger sums till Nell would have been dazzled if she had been convinced. At last she spoke:

"Say, who do you think you are? The Dime Savings bank? And who do you think I am? I ain't on auction. If your father had all the money you're makin' up he has, do you think you could buy my father with it? No!"

Gloria liked her better for that, but she was none the less determined to escape if she could. She talked no more. But she thought harder than ever before.

Nell went on getting her father's supper at the little stove, clattering the pans and jabbing the fire with the poker angrily.

Gloria had often steamed up the Hudson on her father's yacht. This was her first voyage on a canal barge. The place was extremely unlike her father's yacht, but the savor of the frying pan made Gloria democratically hungry. When Trask came back, however, his cold eyes took her appetite away. But not his own. She watched him wolf his food; she felt that he was half insane, a relentless fanatic on a wild crusade.

His eyes kept rolling in her direction. He found her so mysterious that he was half afraid of her, half assured that it was his duty to kill her. He remembered the loneliness of that winter night by the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument. He remembered the appearance of Freneau alone and no other human being in view. His very hands remembered the death grasp they took on Freneau's throat. He smiled. That was one good deed, at least, he told himself.

But he could not imagine how this girl could have seen him. How could he guess that she had sat at her window with binoculars to her eyes and watched the whole tragedy. He began to grow superstitious. Gloria was apparently able to perform miracles. She wore the invisible cloak. Perhaps she would leave as mystically as she had come.

Finally he grew brave enough to shout out at her: "Who are you? What was Freneau to you?"

Gloria knew that any one who blusters is likely to be weak, so she answered coldly: "Never mind who I am. The main thing is, who are you and what was Freneau to you?"

The very name Freneau seemed to madden Trask. He emitted a loud yelp of hate and derision and left the table. He moved toward Gloria, but changed his mind or deferred his purpose and went up the stairs, closing the hatch and fastening it above. There was nothing reassuring in his last look at Gloria.

Nell was clearing up the table when she saw that Gloria was faint with hunger or terror. She offered Gloria the remnant of the supper. Gloria was glad to get it. She ate like another pauper. She felt that she would need what strength she would acquire. Her wits were dancing as she tried to think out a means of escape. She could not fight Nell and her father and the big man, too. She could not overcome them with force, and she had no weapon but her five wits, and they had never been trained to such problems.

She thought and thought while Nell cleared the table. She offered to help Nell and was permitted to aid in the work. When the last dish was removed to the wash basin Gloria and Nell took opposite ends of the coarse tablecloth. When it was folded twice the two girls began to bring the two ends together, as people do who are folding tablecloths.

Nell stopped short at the proper moment; Gloria went toward her. The solution came to her in a flash. Instead of putting the two ends of the tablecloth in Nell's fingers, she suddenly whipped the cloth over her head, brought it down around her elbows, and, after a furious struggle, forced Nell back into a chair, and knotted the tablecloth corners under the arms. She snatched a pair of dish towels from the wall and tied Nell's feet to the legs of the chair. Nell fought like a mad woman in a straitjacket, but the knots held.

Gloria was out of breath, but she was proud as Punch over her victory. She stood up panting and exclaimed: "Well!"

So far so good. But the next job was harder yet. There was still Trask to settle with, and Jed, also. She had not tablecloths enough for all three, and she doubted if she could hoodwink those giants in the same way.

Another scheme occurred to her. She had noticed Nell poking up the fire in the little stove. Now Nell was quieting down and it was safe to leave her.

She ran to the stove, lifted the lid, and set the poker in the red coals. It was a grand idea and she was tremendously enthusiastic. But the poker was not. It was in no hurry whatever. They say that a watched poker never glows. Gloria heard somebody working at the hatch before the poker had attained as much blush as a hardened sinner feels on his cheek at a little mistake.

She heard Trask's footstep. She could see his feet on the stairway. She stared at the poker and whispered: "Hurry up" The poker was in no hurry.

Trask paused to call to Jed, then he began to come down the stairway. Gloria was stupefied to see how much there was of him. His face appeared last of all and it appalled her. He carried a rope in his hand.

Trask did not see Gloria at first. But he caught sight of the animated bolster in the rocking chair and it frightened him. He started back. But a muffled shriek came from the depths. "Pa! Pa! It's me! She did it!"

Trask understood that the witch woman had performed another of her feats and he was sure that he was under the voodoo. Then he saw Gloria standing by the stove. She looked so small and so timid that he regained courage. He roared at Gloria and moved toward Nell. Gloria cried: "Stand back!"

Trask was so astonished by her impudence that he laughed.

"Why, you little fluffy pullet. I'll tie you up and drop you in the river!"

"O will you?" said Gloria.

She snatched the poker from the fire. Trask laughed at it. She hit the table with it and sparks flew. She rubbed it on the wooden top of the table and smoke arose. There was a hissing sound. Trask shuddered. Gloria jabbed at him with her red hot sword. He could feel the searing pain of it before it reached him. When it arrived where he was, he was not there. Gloria was a trifle conceited over her success.

And now, what next. She saw the rope in his hand. He had brought it to tie her with. The next idea came. She gloated a trifle.

"You thought you would tie me up, did you? Well, you can just tie yourself up!"

Trask could hardly believe that any one would be cruel enough to inflict such an insulting injury. But Gloria's arguments were pokes with the poker.

If Trask had been more intelligent and less confused, and had known how, he might have tied himself up as the cabinet tricksters do—so that he could slip out easily. But this was beyond him at the time, and Gloria was vigilant.

She made him fasten the rope around a stanchion, then knot it about one wrist, then pass it around him till he looked like a package of Gloria's own tying. The last knots she attended to herself. She set the poker on a plate within easy reach, and knotted, and knotted, and knotted. Trask gnashed his teeth with rage, but he could not budge. He yelled just once, then she seized a dish towel, whirled it into a roll, and gagged him so that he could not even gnash his teeth.

Gloria heard footsteps along the deck overhead. Probably Jed was coming down. The poker was cold. There was no time for reheating it. Something must be done at once. She put out the lamp that Nell had lighted; she set at the foot of the stairs a wicker rocker, she laid it on its side, and fell back to await developments.

Jed came down the stairs in the dark. As he left the last step he put his foot in the wicker rocker as in a trap. Jed went on over with a crash that shook the barge. He was yelling that he was being bitten to death by a wildcat, when Gloria sidled past him, ran up the stairs, and out on deck. She closed the hatch, fastened it, and voted herself three cheers.

She looked about her now and saw that she was in the middle of the Hudson river and a great distance from either shore. The view was magnificent in the gloaming, but she had had enough of it, and the hateful tug was furrowing the water and dragging the barge farther and farther north.

She saw the tiller of the barge flopping idly, and it occurred to her that if she could get free from the tug she could steer the barge to shore herself. Somewhere below was her father's home. Stas and his father and mother would be waiting for her. Perhaps her own father was alarmed. It was time for her to go home. She would take her prisoners back to her father and deliver them to whatever punishment seemed right.

She had never steered a canal barge, but she imagined that it would be about the same as a motor boat in general principles. Fortunately, she had been carried so far north that the current would act as engine power.

She was delighted with the scheme. She went forward and saw the big hawser connecting the barge with the tug. The hawser sagged in the middle and cut the water. The tug was buckled down to its work, churning up a noisy wake. She could see the backs of the crew of the tug where they sat smoking and solemn and bored to death.

They would have had a good laugh if they had seen Gloria trying to untie the knots in that hawser with her little hands. She was laughing to think how surprised they would be later when they discovered by chance that the barge had disappeared.

When a parcel came home from a shop Gloria always tried to untie it, then always went for the scissors. So now, when she saw that she could not quite unknot the hawser, she looked for the shears. She found an ax on deck and attacked the big rope.

She hit everything but the hawser, and when she hit that at last it was like hitting a huge rubber band. The ax bounced out of her hands and just escaped falling into the river. She picked it up and chopped at the hawser where it was wound. Every third or fourth blow hit the cable and severed a few strands. And finally the rope gave and flew. The barge quivered at its release from the tension, and the tug, suddenly unhitched from its load, jumped forward and sent the crew sprawling.

Gloria ran to the tiller to steer her prize home. She was greatly disappointed when she heard the yells from the tug and saw that the pilot already was making ready to recapture the barge as soon as he could take in the hawser. Also she could faintly hear the howls of her cabined and confused prisoners. If the tug men came aboard and released them, what would become of Gloria? Gloria wondered.

FOUR TEENIE WEENIES

GET LOST IN THE WOODS

BY WM DONAHEY

IT was a sultry afternoon. Not a breath of air was stirring, and the Teenie Weenies lay about the tiny house boat idling the time away. The Old Soldier and the Dutchman sat playing their after dinner game of checkers, the Lady of Fashion yawned over a book, and the General snored softly in his easy chair.

"Crickety!" exclaimed the Dunce, looking around at his nodding companion. "I never saw such a lot of sleepy heads! Come on, let's do something!"

"I'll tell you what we can do, Dunce," announced the Lady of Fashion; "let's take a long walk in the woods."

"All right," cried the Dunce; "come on!"

"Oh, I've got to change my dress; it would never do to walk in the woods wearing an afternoon gown."

While the little lady hurried away to change her clothes the Dunce moved about the boat trying to make up a party for the walk, but Gogo and the Clown were the only ones who wished to go.

Soon the Lady of Fashion appeared in a trim walking suit and the four little people climbed over the side of the boat into canoes and paddled ashore.

The four Teenie Weenies enjoyed themselves as they walked along under the great trees and bushes, stopping every now and then to rest beneath the cool shade of the ferns.

"Boys, I think we had better be getting back to the boat or the first thing we know it will be dark," said the Lady of Fashion as she noticed that evening was drawing near.

"Believe we had," said the Dunce. "Come on." And off the little fellow started in the direction he thought the boat lay.

The Teenie Weenies hurried along in silence for some time, but when they came to the edge of a swamp instead of the creek that they expected to find the Dunce let out a low whistle. "Jinks," he exclaimed, "we're lost!"

"Oh, dear! What shall we do?" said the Lady of Fashion.

"Well, it looks as though we were lost," cried the Clown, "and I think that the best thing for us to do is to find some good place to spend the night, for it will never do to try and find our way about in these woods after dark."

The Clown's suggestion was thought a good one and the four little people set out to find a suitable place.

"Here's just the place for a camp," shouted the Dunce as he climbed over the root of a big tree. "See that old tin can? That will make a fine place to sleep, especially if it should rain."

The three boys carried moss and leaves into the can and made a most comfortable bed, while the Lady of Fashion prepared a berry the little colored man had found for their supper.

"D-d-d-don't you think w-w-we had better build a fire?" asked the Dunce as the evening drew near.

"What for?" demanded Gogo.

"W-w-w-why, t-t-to keep off the wild animals," answered the Dunce.

"I 'spect that am a mighty good suggestin'," said Gogo, rolling his eyes about the dark place.

The Teenie Weenies brought up wood and soon had a roaring fire, around which the timid little folks gathered.

The three boys armed themselves with heavy sticks and stood ready to fight off any stray bug or toad that might happen along.

"Cuh chug! Cuh chug!" came a loud voice from the swamp.

"Merciful goodness!" screamed the Lady of Fashion. "What was that?"

"Have no fear; be calm!" said the Dunce. "I'm here to protect you. That noise you just heard is only a frog croaking."

"Wh-o-o-o! Wh-o-o-o!" sang a voice high above the little camp.

"What's that?" cried the Dunce, throwing his arms about the Lady of Fashion in his fright. "Is it a-a-a b-b-b-b-bear?"

"Maybe it—it's a giraffe," suggested Gogo, who was particularly afraid of giraffes, although he had never seen one.

"Ah, that isn't a giraffe," said the Clown. "That's a owl, that's what it is."

The Lady of Fashion slept comfortably in the tin can while the three boys timidly spent the night sitting about the camp fire.

At the first break of day the little people set out to find their way back to the houseboat. After they had walked for some time they suddenly came across the Teenie Weenie Indian, who had followed their trail through the woods, and you can well believe that he was joyfully welcomed. The Indian soon led the wanderers back to the houseboat, where they were received with loud cheers.

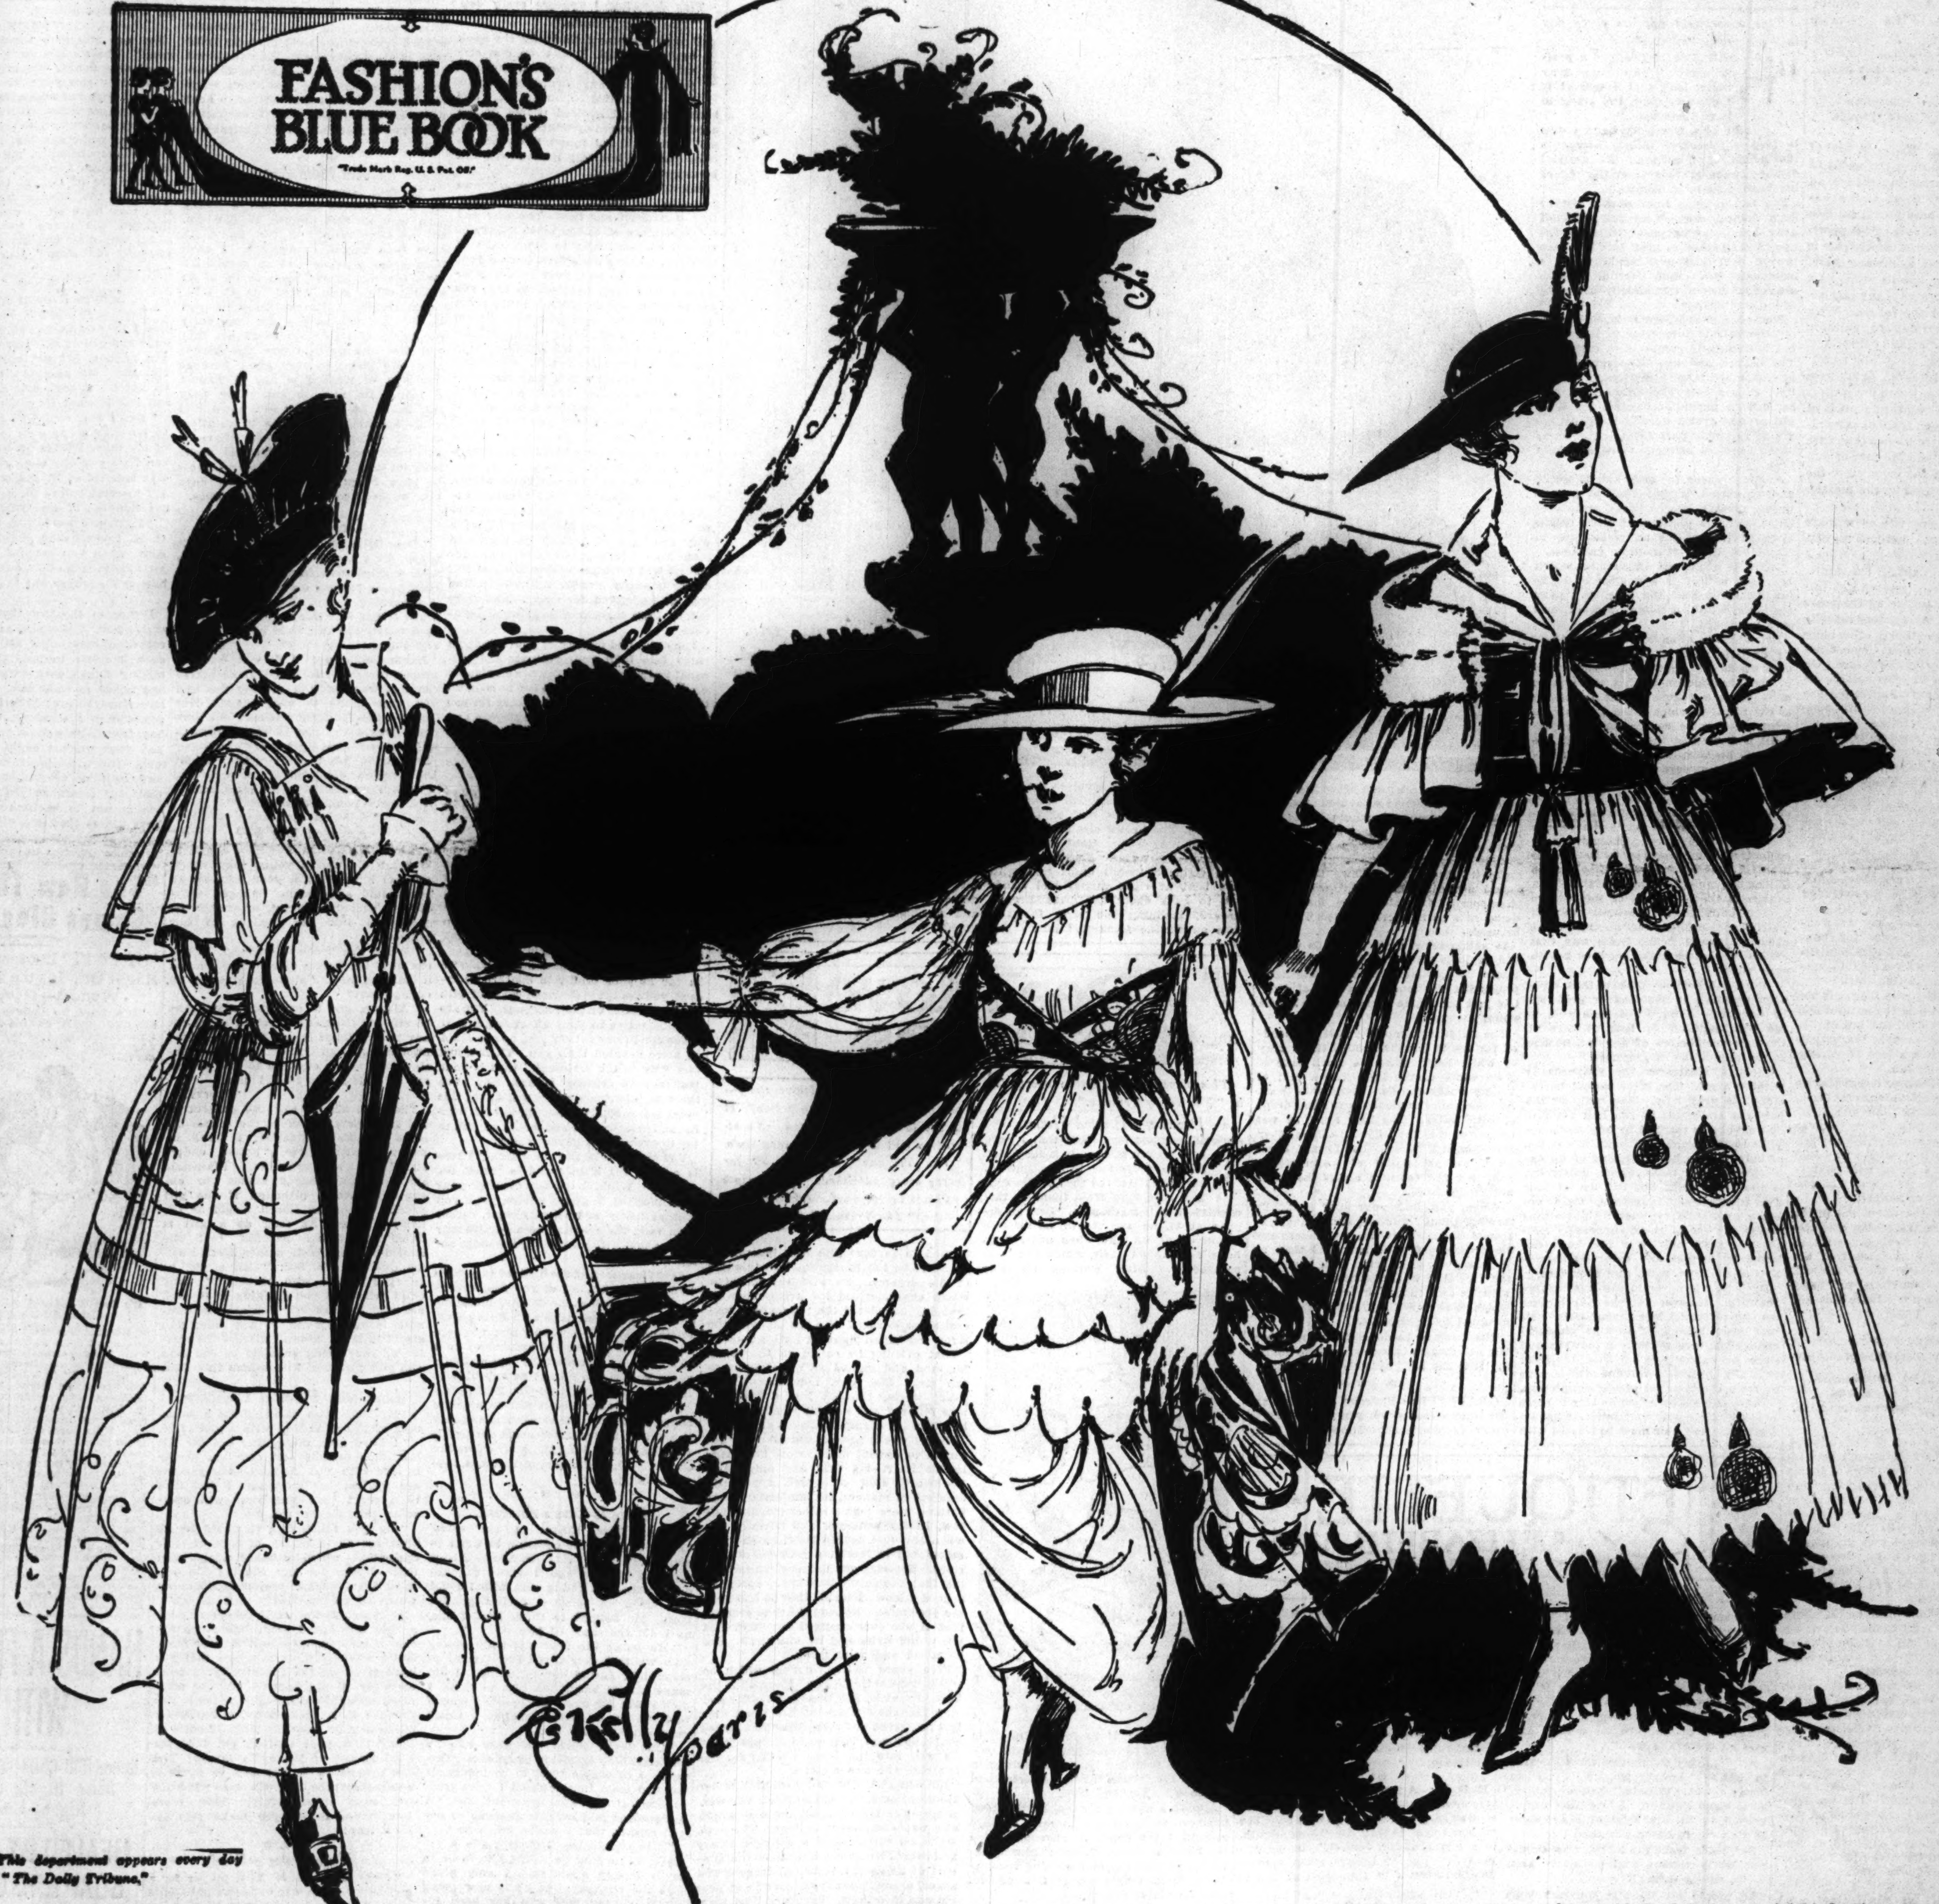
WARLIKE MEDALS TRIM THE MOST FRIVOLOUS FROCKS

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK
"Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off."



This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

By JEAN SEIVWRIGHT.

(Drawings by C. E. KELLY.)

(Copyright: 1916: By The Chicago Tribune and The New York Globe)

1. "Velvet tam" turquoise and silver gros-grain. Mauve embroidered blue organdie over mauve taffeta. Shoes of mauve satin.

2. Felt sailor hat. Flesh color organdie, high girdle and wide side panels of rose and black brocade taffeta.

3. Dull blue velvet hat; fancy aigrette. Mantelet of old rose and black natural mink. Pink batiste embroidered edge; beaded motifs.

EACH month of the passing year brings with it certain gifts that charm or repel the denizens of the world. April, with her fitful rains is swiftly forgiven when June brings her roses, while September with her cool nights and crisp mornings is a welcome guest that banishes quickly the memories of August's stifling hours.

And for the pleasant days of September when the leaves, golden tipped, drop lightly from the maple trees, and the sumac with its flaming foliage heralds the advent of fall, some charming frocks have been designed. Three delightful models are depicted on this page, and while they still echo the fairylike modes beloved in summer the velvet chapeau and fur trimmed wrap indicate the forward march of the seasons.

At the left is an exceedingly dainty creation in blue organdie over mauve taffeta. The misty dream-like beauty of this color scheme is somewhat strengthened by the mauve embroidery which is found on the deep flounce of the skirt as well as the band that encircles it a little below the waistline.

The bodice is interesting. The front quite close fitting, is ornamented with tassels of mauve silk and collared in flaring mode. About the shoulders a pretty cape is attached so that it partly covers the very generous puffs that head the sleeves. A frill devoid of fullness—indeed, merely a flaring cuff—characterizes the lower part of the sleeve, which is closely draped about the forearm.

The shoes, colonial in style, are of mauve satin and the cleverly fashioned tam is of black velvet. Perhaps to relieve this of too great severity, or to reflect somewhat of the dream-like color of the dress, a quaintly tied bow of turquoise blue and silver grosgrain ribbon makes a novel trimming.

The figure depicted in the center of the group is attired in flesh color organdie, whose summery look is subdued by the introduction of very wide side panels of rose and black brocade taffeta. The skirt is prettily modeled with three scalloped flounces that extend a trifle below the knee, while the lower part of the bodice is enriched with a high cut girdle of the brocade. A plain yoke takes the place of a collar, and the soft folds of the organdie are lightly gathered at its lower edge. The sleeves are set in to a dropped armhole, and just below their greatest width they are prettily shirred so that a pleasing cuff is achieved.

The broad brimmed hat that crests this figure is made of pink felt, and about its rounding crown a band of grosgrain ribbon is placed. At the back a pair of wings is attached so that one speeds skyward while the other makes a reconnaissance at the right side of the brim.

At the first glance one gives the model at the right one may be tempted to exclaim, "For what act of heroism has this fair daughter of Eve won all the medals that adorn her gown?" for in this age of chivalry deeds of valor are not done by the sterner sex only. But this is merely phantasy, for the decorations, medal-like in appearance, are fashion's tribute to the stern realities of the day.

Originated in vari-colored beads, they form a decidedly novel trimming for this lovely gown of pink batiste that is enriched with fine embroideries around the scalloped flounces that form the skirt. The bodice is cut in one with the short sleeves and finished with a rolling collar of the batiste, and deep girdle of dull blue velvet. A quaint little mantelet, originated in old rose satin, is draped about the shoulders. This is lined with black, and as the mantelet is decidedly full and cut rather longer toward the back, touches of black satin alternate with the old rose. A band of natural mink heads the satin, and to this are attached satin ties with tasseled ends.

A decidedly smart hat, made of dull blue velvet and trimmed with a fancy aigrette, is worn with this pleasing dress that is ideal for the affairs of early fall.

Many charming accessories are always in readiness for the woman who delights in pursuing or anticipating the vagaries of fashion. Modish umbrellas are made with handles of galalithe that match the frocks or the silk which covers the umbrella. These are shown in many colors, including blue, rose, purple, and a cheerful yellow.

This composition is also used in another realm, for many of the smartest handbags of silk or leather have mountings of galalithe.

MEN AND WOMEN

“BECAUSE he thought a girl who could save so well for herself would save doubly well for two” was the reason accredited an Evanston banker for his choice of a young woman depositor as his wife.

A healthy contribution toward an American thrift movement is seen in this form of appreciation of a woman's ability to save money.

American women are the least thrifty women in the world. More broken marriages are due to the extravagance among wives in America than in any other country. And among the wage earning American women there is a deplorable lack of thrift.

Women and Thrift.

The problem of thrift in general is a different one among women than among men. The whole attitude of women toward saving for the future is peculiarly discouraging. There is, first of all a general apathy, with the result of generations of accustomed reliance on man as the provider. Even in the case of women who have been forced out into industrial life and who are self-supporting, this inherent sense of dependence is seldom outgrown. It is always there, acting consciously or unconsciously as a dead weight which prevents any real initiative in saving for the future. With the younger wage earning woman there is always the expectation of marriage. Work is more or less a makeshift until marriage comes. Moreover, in the case of woman in industry, where the wage is comparatively small and the demands of living and the craving for small extravagances far greater with women than with men, the possibility and the duty of putting aside a part of the income for the future seem less urgent to the individual.

It is true that many women who are now carrying economic burdens for others ought to be expected to develop a certain sense of foresight for the future. But the fact that such women look forward to less responsibility as the years go on, because these burdens usually mean the care of parents or of other older relations, brings in a new element not conducive to saving for the future. On the other hand men who have others dependent upon them must expect the economic responsibilities of later life to become more and more exacting.

If thrift were more generally considered a matrimonial asset in womankind the saving habit would be a much more evident quantity among the sex.

* *

Anti-Gossip League.

An anti-gossip league has been urged (no need to mention the sex of the originator of the idea) for a certain suburban territory in the neighborhood of Chicago. Sympathy is hereby extended the suburb for the branding of its good name as gossip overrun when that encomium would as well become ten thousand other equal or smaller size communities. But a reform has to start somewhere. So, why not in Oak Park?

However, an anti-gossip league is not the panacea. Gossip is the natural and inevitable outcome of ill fed brains. It follows as day follows night that gossip results where there is a lack of variety and intensity of interests.

Now there is nothing so interesting as the lives and the sins of human creatures. Nothing else affords so piquant a topic of conversation as these chiefly because a man's life and his sins, being really private concerns of an individual who would conceal their inner side, have the character of what is known as news. The gossip is primarily a newsmonger.

The fault is in the mind, not in the heart. The cure, consequently, is to provide the mental switchboard with so many calls born of interests that are wholesome and healthy that there will be no time for the individual to “listen in” on our neighbor's private sins and indiscretions.

Debutante Leads Strenuous Life.

The social butterfly is a misnomer. A Chicago debutante at the end of last season said: “I worked like a truck horse and I object strenuously to being called a butterfly.”

The outline of a day of action in the life of a New York debutante was recited last week as: Three hours of tennis in the morning at the Casino, a long swim two hours later at Bailey's beach; later in the afternoon guest at a coming out party with dancing until after 6, then a drive over to a distant polo grounds to another function; guest at a dinner given in her honor at 8 o'clock, and at 10 p. m. making her formal bow at a club in another part of the city.

Between the items given on the above program you may fill in for yourself the hurried, strenuous half hours for changes of dress and the visits of hairdressers, manicursists, and Masseuse.

The life of the average society girl in season is harder than that of the average working girl. The social functions which make delectable reading and ofttimes bestir envy in the soul of the girl who has to punch the time clock at 8:30 and again at 5:30 are not the altogether joyful events they read about. Balls, for instance, are serious matters to the debutante, for each one is more or less a public test—a test of attractiveness, of popularity, of beauty, and of position. And these things are not accomplished without hard and strenuous labor.

“No Gemmen Travelin'!”

“Ah' don' b'lieve you'll stan' much show of a lower, lady,” explained the inevitable “George” to a woman traveler seated opposite me on my way up north a couple of weeks ago. “They ain't seem to be no gemmen travelin' on trains nowadays any more. If they gets a lower they hangs on to him. Las' ebening a man with a broken leg got on at B——. He was that bad that he had to be lifted up into the train and carried to his seat. He had an upper and had 'xpected to get a lower on the train. Believe me, ma'am, I went through all dem coaches and not one man was willin' to give up his lower to the broken legged man. He couldn't climb into the upper, so had to sit up all night. Course,” added George, “Ah didn't ask any woman, cos he wouldn't let me. But if I had ast any lady the first one would hev give up her berth and gladly. Men ain't no good nohow.”

“HORRORS!” exclaimed a pretty girl. “Two more gray hairs; isn't that dreadful? If I get any more I'm going to have them dyed.”

The sight of a few gray hairs seems to inspire the same unholy horror in the minds of women as the gradual disappearance of hair from the top of his head does in a man's.

For two reasons there should not be such mental anguish at the sight of gray hairs coming; first, because the age idea attached to gray hair has been proved over and over again to be a fallacious one. And, second, because gray hair has a wonderfully softening effect on the face.

There is a natural tendency, of course, for the hair to turn gray in later life, but it frequently comes on in early life. The degree and age of occurrence of grayness are largely matters of heredity. It is a family characteristic, just as, due to physical changes, the little girl or boy grown up will suddenly begin to resemble parents strongly, or as other physical changes show a family type.

Another reason for gray hair is worry and emotional trials. This is true if these mental states are prolonged. Grief, business anxiety, or other conditions of intense mental strain are to blame for much premature grayness.

There is a general impression which has been verified in a number of striking instances that the hair may gray suddenly—within a month, a week, and even overnight.

Dr. William Allen Pusey, an authority on hair, says: “Why grayness occurs we do not know. The explanation of the phenomenon is that there is in most cases a failure of the formation of the pigment which gives the hair its color. For some reason no more pigment is formed at the papilla or in the bulb of the hair, and as the hair gradually grows upward it shows as an unpigmented hair.

“The lack of pigment alone, however, does not account for its whiteness; it alone would leave the hair a yellowish white color. The silvery or perfect whiteness seems to be due to the fact that at the same time as the failure of pigment in the hair there is a change in the formation of the texture of the hair, so that spaces are left which become filled with air, and these cause whiteness in the same way that minute air spaces make snow or beaten eggs white.

“Some authorities believe that ordinary grayness is hastened or produced by dandruff. I have not been able to see that dandruff or lack of care of the hair are factors of any importance in the production of grayness.”

Curative treatment for grayness is without avail. The color cannot be restored to gray hair. The roots of the hair are embedded in the hair follicles and cannot be reached by any fluids applied to the scalp. Not only is the use of hair dyes to be deprecated as an exhibition of poor taste, which, unhappily, is too often seen, but the use of hair dyes is extremely dangerous. Cases are being constantly reported by physicians where the use of these supposedly simple vegetable hair dyes has been followed by serious and extensive dermatitis of the face, neck, and shoulders.

Dyed hair is never in the least degree beautiful. It never matches the complexion, for no matter how prematurely one's hair may whiten, the same chemical change has been working in the skin, and since we cannot dye our skin, the most skillfully dyed hair will not avail to save us from the betrayal of our complexion.

There is a yellowish white tone to some heads of gray hair that is really not attractive. Gray hair must be treated with much greater care than other heads of hair. It must be kept scrupulously clean. It must be shampooed frequently enough to keep it so. And it must be dried with extra care, because dampness from incomplete drying or perspiration tends to make it smeary and yellow. Gray hair should never be wet except when it is shampooed. For this reason, instead of using hair curlers, crimping pins should be used.

In shampooing white hair it is well to add a little bluing to the last rinsing water. Experience will teach the right proportion for one's own tint of hair. Use just enough to make the hair a pure white.

The following soap jelly is recommended for use in the shampoo of either gray or white hair: Shave a small cake of pure white castile soap into a pint of boiling water and let it stand until thick. Add one ounce of alcohol and a few drops of rose water. The hair must be wet enough so that the jelly will adhere. Then rub it until a thick lather forms. Rinse off in an abundance of warm water, changing the temperature of the water until quite cold.

When you find your hair gradually turning, though you are still young, pay special attention to the cleanliness and the dressing of your hair and then let it take its own course. You have seen the face that would be beautiful framed with its own turned or turning hair, but which was startlingly ugly when surmounted by dyed locks.

The thing to be done, therefore, when the hair begins to turn gray, is to admire it. It is the most sensible thing to do.

GRATEFUL: Exercise and diet are the lines along which you must work in order to reduce superfluous flesh. Any vigorous exercise that involves the muscles of the chest will help to reduce the bust, and one of the best of these is swimming. The breast stroke swimming movement may be practiced on land as well as in the water. Stand with feet about eighteen inches apart and with arms bent at right angles and hands back to back shoot the arms directly forward, inclining the body forward. Then sweep the arms and hands outward in a horizontal plane, extending them back as far as possible without straining. Swimming and walking, punching a bag, bending exercises, and any exercise that involves activity are recommended. Even more important than exercise is the diet. Do not eat fat producing food. Such foods as cakes, pastries, ice cream, and candies and alcoholic beverages must be tabooed.

ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

At the Table

IN some magazine long ago I read a short story—a love story, I believe. The one thing about it that I remember is this: The hero was sitting opposite a pretty girl in a dining car. She was wondering if the waiter was ever going to bring her order and he was wondering “how a girl could possibly be so pretty, and who on earth she was.”

Among other things this thought came to him: “Lovely woman is seldom lovely when she eats,” but, of course, as is quite right in all love stories, she proved to be the ideal of his dreams in this, as in other directions.

But aside from the story, why should not lovely woman still be lovely even while she is eating?

If people sit up straight and keep their elbows off the table they have made a good start towards correct table manners. Besides this, one should take small mouthfuls, chew with the mouth closed, and eat noiselessly. People are apt to be careless about things of this kind, but seemingly small matters are the ones that count.

MRS. B.: Your reply to such a reception should be sent, within twenty-four hours, to the woman whose name heads the list of hostesses. However, if you know one of the hostesses well and the others only slightly you may send your answer to her. You should shake hands with all the hostesses.

* *

A. R.: If a man is standing outdoors talking to a woman it always looks better for him to hold his hat in his hand. This is a courtesy which all women appreciate. Probably if the weather is cold she will insist on his keeping it on, but otherwise he must—to conform to the rules of careful breeding—stand and freeze.

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, “Chicago Sunday Tribune.” If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

E. D. B.: A younger person is always presented to an older one, and a man is always presented to a woman. The proper thing to say is, “Mrs. Smith, may I present Mr. Jones?” In my column for Aug. 20 I have given a more detailed answer to a question similar to yours.

* *

CONSTANT READER: Although many hostesses do wear evening dresses at a formal afternoon reception, it is not correct. The hostess and the women who are assisting her should wear handsome afternoon gowns or simple dinner gowns.

MARY S.: A spoon should never be left in a cup or glass when the cup or glass is raised to the lips. It should be taken out and placed on the saucer or plate near by. Few things look worse than to see a person drink from a glass with the spoon still in the glass and secured against the edge by means of the index finger.

G. J.: It is not necessary to send a gift to the bride, the announcement of whose marriage you have just received, particularly as you do not know her well. Be sure and call on her as soon as possible after the date on the “at home” card.

Real Love Stories

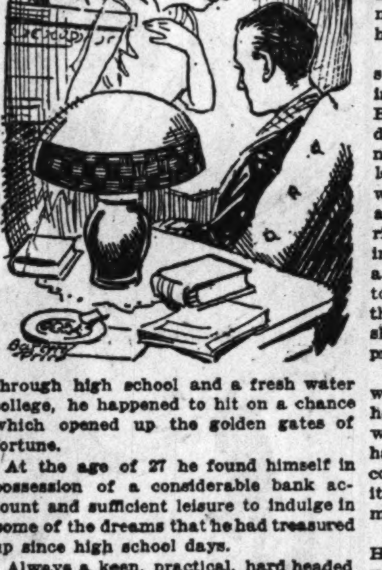
Dreamer's Blasted Hopes.

THE saddest love story that I have ever known personally is one which has its prototype in thousands of instances over the world. The man is a type very often found in this country—a self-made man. Left an orphan at 14, he was thrown on his own resources at an age when other boys have nothing on their minds but their pompadour. After working his way through high school and a fresh water college, he happened to hit on a chance which opened up the golden gates of fortune.



At the age of 27 he found himself in possession of a considerable bank account and sufficient leisure to indulge in some of the dreams that he had treasured up since high school days.

Always a keen, practical, hard headed business man, no one would ever have suspected the depth of romance which lay beneath the quiet, self-possessed exterior, or that the fast working business brain could weave the most wonderful and fragile of dreams.

But, contrary to popular opinion, down deep in the heart of this dreamer there was cherished an ideal—the image of his ideal girl—which he confidently believed he would meet and love some day.

One day there came into the little Maryland town that he called home a girl, a Hoosier maid. She was visiting her young married sister, whose husband was a wealthy manufacturer and who lived in a beautiful home on the outskirts of the town.

Driving past the place one bright May morn the man chanced to glance over the pretty garden, and there amid the flowers he saw the girl, as fresh and lovely as a flower herself, and instantly all the romance in him rose up and clothed her in the garments of his ideal and gave his heart into her keeping from that time forth. Utterly unconscious of the emotions she had aroused, this maid of 23 sang on happily among the flowers.

But in the mind of the man there rose the vision of a home, a house beautiful, framed in gardens rich with bloom, the whole to be the background for this girl of his dreams. So with the dispatch which characterized his every move he that day completed the purchase of several acres situated on a low hill near the river and began planning for his home.

That evening he called on the young husband and gained an introduction to the girl. She, gay, independent, and heart whole, thought him a “mighty nice fellow” and secretly wondered why he often sat silent and looked at her.

Happy weeks passed, and each day but served to cement more firmly her image in his heart—his first and only love. Backward, slow of speech, apparently diffident in manner, he impressed her as nothing more than a rather plodding fellow, kindly generous, and friendly. So when her visit neared its close she was astonished to receive a proposal of marriage. She very gently refused him, saying that she didn't love him, except as a good friend. Fearing that he had been too precipitate, he begged her to promise that if she ever changed her mind that she would write and let him know. She promised and went away.

Five years passed, during which he wrote constantly to her. Meanwhile the house beautiful had become a reality and was the show place of the town. He had prospered and everything that money could buy and love could dictate found its way into the home waiting for the mistress who was to come.

But the girl, who had gone back to her Hoosier home, had met a man, a widower, years older than herself, and with whom she was completely in love. The man, while he commanded a splendid salary and owned a nice home, was the sole support of an aged mother, an incubus of a sister, a worthless brother, and a 20 year old son in college. Burdened thus, marriage was an impossibility, so these two who loved each other so well were kept apart by one of those inexplicable strokes of fate.

The man from Maryland finally decided to put his luck to the test “and win or lose it all.” So he came to Indianapolis, fully resolved to win her or die unwed. He saw the girl and learned of the other man. Though he had waited so patiently for five years he was stunned by the revelation and hope died within him.

He went home and after days of indecision and agony of mind and heart, he wrote her, offering her half his fortune, which he begged her to take and be happy. Of course she declined, and today he is eating out his lonely heart in the splendid home which he had dreamed, planned, and built for her, unable to help her to happiness, while she is working in an office, waiting for the golden day to come when her lover can come to her, free, and ask her to be his wife.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are Firm.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care “The Sunday Tribune.” If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in “The Daily Tribune.”

IF your birthday falls during the week beginning Sept. 3, as a builder, machinist, engineer, chemist, artisan, jurist, or at any occupation requiring discrimination, research, and brains, you will succeed. Some of you are inclined toward agricultural pursuits, and if you will but follow these inclinations you will not only make money but be happy in doing it.

You are the sort of person who knows just what he wants, and goes about getting it without any fuss. The why and the wherefore of things must always be considered, according to your ways of thinking, as they must form part of your calculations. To you, your own way always seems best; needless to say, you are positive, and determined to the point of immovability. And you like the old ways best; you will never be found in the vanguard of fashion, the old forms and customs suit you far better. No matter how many enemies you may make because of this attitude, you aren't going to change it. But, just the same, even if some smart folks do call you “old fogy,” you are needed just as you are in this world, as a balance wheel for your more flighty neighbors.

For one quality, you are noted widely, that is your integrity. People realize that you are always just in your decisions and so depend upon you absolutely. That is why you have within you the ability to make a good jurist; your opinions and decisions will form precedents, for you will decide honestly, firmly, and clearly. You will be appointed for your reliability rather than through any political influence.

The order and method of your mind you carry into both your business and personal methods, so that you are a valuable organizer in anything that can be reduced to a method. Naturally it is easy for you to win the trust of your employers and fellow workmen as well, because of this reliability. And large interests as well can be intrusted to your care in absolute safety and security.

You have a wonderfully exact sense of touch and a keen ear for harmony. In art and music, especially, you have no use for anything mediocre; it must be the best, or you will have none of it. In these matters, you will be severely critical, in fact, almost caustic at times. If this sharpness of tongue is not curbed, it will increase as you grow older, and show itself in an intolerant desire for perfection in others, while you will far from furnish an example of perfection in yourself.

You are the very soul of thoughtfulness as far as your family in concerned; indeed, you are apt to overload yourself with responsibilities on their account. You are demonstrative in your affections, and if home conditions satisfy you, no one could be more devoted than you. There's just one “fly in the ointment,” that is your tendency to criticize others. You have the best intentions in the world, but this habit is dreadfully annoying to both family and friends, and you would do well to try to overcome it in your youth.

You should take as your motto, “There is a time for silence and a time for speech.” While no one may question your good motives, in giving advice, yet if you will patiently and silently wait, rather than talk, the results you so desire may come about without any one's feelings being hurt.

You Virgo women are inclined to be hero worshippers, but all of you people born in this sign will make devoted husbands and wives. A marriage with Pisces, Feb. 20-March 21, will probably result in happiness; or if you marry another of your own sign, a wonderfully sympathetic union is likely to result; as will also be true with Libra, Sept. 24-Oct. 23.

You will be successful with enterprises begun during the weeks commencing May 10 and Dec. 28, but unfortunate during the week beginning June 21. Your colors are amber, gold, and black; birthstones, sapphire and jasper.

Here Is Love's Analysis.

“Dear Miss Blake: I am sorry to think I have the occasion to write to you concerning this matter. About eighteen months ago I made the acquaintance of a young man who I could look upon as being a perfect gentleman. He seemed to think lots of me, as I did the same of him.

“He being the first and only young man whom I ever cared for, I tried to conceal it, during our courtship. I did many things which led him to think I didn't care for him. He in one instance told me he at times thought I didn't care anything for him.

“One night about one year ago he left and said ‘Good-by, be good to yourself.’ I of course tried to be independent and from that time on I have tried to conceal my affections for him. I have never told but about three of my girl friends that I really was sorry.

“One of his boy friends made a remark to me that he would like to be in my company again had I only given him the chance. But he is now going with a young lady and has been for some time.

“Would it be improper to let him know I am really sorry that our courtship has ceased, or would it be best to keep up my independence? If not, how will I show that I am truly sorry?

“I have met him several times on the street or in public places, but such a strange feeling comes over me and I want to shun him rather than speak. Can you also tell me how to overcome this? ANXIOUS.”

You've carried to extremes the advice that I have to give so often, which proves that you're an exceptional girl; therefore I'm going to advise you out of the ordinary. I believe if I were you I'd write him a little note, saying that you were sorry if in the past you hadn't seemed to appreciate his friendship; that even though he might no longer wish to be your friend, yet you wanted him to know how you felt about the matter. And you might add that if he cared to come again, you would be very glad to see him. My steady readers will realize that this is unusual advice and I shall be interested in hearing if it proves effective.

* *

He Keeps Her Busy.

“Dear Miss Blake: I was out at a summer resort last year and I met a boy there the same age as I am. I am 13. He said he would write me often; then I went home and got about three letters from him; then he did not answer my letter. I wrote him again, asking him why he did not answer me, but he did not reply until about three weeks ago. Then I answered him. How can I gain his friendship again? DOROTHEA.”

With such troubles at 13, what will they be at 18? You'll have to learn one thing, little Dorothy, and that is all advances toward friendship should properly come from the boy, not the girl. You've a great deal more than done your part in this correspondence business; now don't write him again. If he really wishes to keep up the friendship, he'll write; in the meantime, you'll just have to be patient and wait.

* *

Act Indifferent.

“My dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 16. Five months ago I met a young man who at first seemed to like me, but as time went on his affections have been turned to another. I have tried every possible way to regain his love, but my efforts seem to be of no avail. What shall I do? O. C. L.”

Quit trying, that's the thing for you to do. As long as you are constantly reminding him by your every act that you are anxious to renew the friendship he's going to stay away because this sort of method is apt to disgust a man. Be nice to the other boys you know, go to places with them, and while speaking to the one in question, as you always have done, otherwise act indifferent toward him and make him see that he is not indispensable to your happiness. Your plans have not worked, so just try my advice.

* *

Decidedly No!

“Dear Miss Blake: Do you think it proper for a young lady to cross the lake with a gentleman friend and stay over night? My parents did not object, as he is a personal friend of ours, but I have a girl friend who thinks it improper. He is a fellow one can trust and he is to be relied upon. D. C.”

Emphatically no! I do not think it proper for you two to go alone unless the trip was made in the daytime and you were going to visit friends over night. The fact that the man is a personal friend and can be relied upon is all very well, but that doesn't have any effect upon what other people might think of your doing this; in other words, it makes you liable to criticism, and if you're wise you'll not do it.

* *

Engaged to Two?

“Dear Miss Blake: When a girl is 19 years old and a young man whom she has known for a year proposes to her should she become engaged without her parents' consent, or should the gentleman ask the consent of her people?

“When she becomes engaged, should she have her choice of a ring, or should a diamond be the stone to give for an engagement?

“After a girl is engaged, should she be allowed to attend anything or go out any time without regard to her parents? Should a girl go out with another gentleman if she is engaged to one, or can she be engaged to two at once? “BETTY.”

The man should ask the consent of the girl's parents before the couple become definitely engaged; I have no patience with these “secret understanding” arrangements. Diamonds are the acknowledged stones for engagement rings, although if the girl prefers something else it would be entirely proper. As long as a girl is living under her parents' roof she should consider their wishes first. Foolish question No. 999: “Can a girl be engaged to two men at once?” Silly child, what are you thinking of to even ask such a question? You have no business being engaged to any one; you aren't in love. I won't discuss the matter of your being engaged to one man and going around with others this time.

* *

Love with Parental Objection.

“My Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man of 20 and in love with a girl of 18.

“I have been taking her out for the last four months and now am deeply in love with her. Although her parents are against our marriage, I feel sure in a short time that they will overcome this dislike for me.

“Do you think that it would be all right for us to marry in spite of their opposition, which is based solely upon their dislike for my family? Do you think $18 a week is too small a sum on which to get married? R. M. C.”

At 18 and 20 the world does have such a rosy hue and I don't like to be the one to take the wind out of your sails. But I must have my say, now that you have given me the opportunity. I most certainly do not approve of your marrying under the existing conditions; you are not in a position to do so, either financially or from the point of view of years. Try your best to get into the good graces of the girl's family. You don't want to be the one to cause a break there; the time will come when she will miss them sorely. Think more than twice before you make this serious leap!

* *

Three Dates a Week.

“Dear Miss Blake: Is it proper for a girl between the age of 14 and 18 to have more than three dates a week? Is it proper to come home with a gentleman whom you have just met? H.”

No, indeedy! I should say not. That's plenty for the maid who has passed the 20 mark. I see nothing wrong in your coming home with a man whom you have just met, provided you have been properly introduced by friends. Why not? Haven't you confidence in your friend's judgment? Anything more?

* *

What to Do.

“Dear Miss Blake: I would like to have you give me some advice on this question: When a fellow takes a girl home and they sit down and talk a few minutes, is it the girl's place or the boy's place, to say, ‘I guess we'll part for tonight,’ or ‘It's time to get in’? How late should he stay? J. E. L.”

The man should be the one to make the first suggestion about going home, as it isn't considered polite to tell your guest “it's time to go.” And you, Mr. Man, shouldn't stay so late as to cause the young lady to be chastised by angry parents. Make your departure by 10:30, at least; some others think 10 is late enough for couples in their “teens.” Now remember!

* *

Keeping Up Conversation.

“Dear Miss Blake: We are two girls, 15 years old. We have both been writing to boy friends this summer, and one of us has been away. Just before leaving she answered a letter. After she had been home some time she received no answer. Is it her place to write again? When you are dancing with a boy whose place is it to start and keep up the conversation? Waiting for a prompt answer. “BETTY AND BETH.”

But are you sure there was an answer? There's the rub. If there's a reasonable doubt, one might with propriety drop this youthful correspondent a postal with her new address, but don't write another letter. It isn't either one's business particularly to keep up the conversation while dancing; it should be a mutual responsibility, provided you are clever enough to dance and keep up a running fire of talk at the same time. Don't let the silence worry you; the man may have all he can do to get through the dance without thinking about anything but his feet. I'm not meaning to “slam” your dancing, understand.

* *

Mother Frowns on Boys.

“Dear Miss Blake: This is the first time I have come to you for aid. I am a lonesome girl of 19. I have a number of girl friends, but not any of the opposite sex. My parents are strict. They do not let a boy come near the house and this is what I am asking you about.

“Don't you suppose I am old enough to go with a boy once in a while? All of my other friends do, and some say I can't get any one to go with me. Mother was married at 16, and says I shouldn't get married before 26. Of course, I am not thinking of marrying at all.

“My friend would like to know if it's O. K. to exchange pictures with boys. Also, when two couples meet, and the girls know each other, but the men don't, how is the proper way to get introduced? “W. W.”

I suppose the fact that your mother married at 16 probably accounts for her rather unreasonable attitude now, for such it seems to me. Have you tried talking things over with your parents and trying to make them see how really lonesome you are? There isn't any reason why you shouldn't be having your boy friends as well as your girl chums and your parents ought to realize the fact. Don't think of doing anything without their consent, but try to make them see things as you do. Tell your friends not to exchange pictures with boys unless they are old time friends. In the other case, one of the girls should introduce the men to each other

Itched Till Child Was Nearly Wild. Some Nights He Cried All Night. Now Entirely

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

“My brother's hands started with pimples; some had water, and some seemed to have matter in them. His hands cracked and you could almost lay a slate pencil in the cracks. They itched so that he scratched till he was nearly wild, and they were a fright. We had him treated, but his hands were getting worse all the time, and some nights he cried all night.

“Then we got Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and it was not long before the itching stopped, and his hands began to heal. Now they are entirely healed and they have never bothered him since.” (Signed) Mrs. W. G. Dow, Mandan, N. D., April 1, 1916.

Salads.

VINAIGRETTES (cut up meat soaked in French dressing), hors d'œuvres, and salads proper—in other words, the salad greens—constitute in cosmopolitan usage what we in America group as one thing, salads. We even stretch this term still further to include fruit mixtures, fruit and nuts, and nuts and vegetables. We include thus practically everything except the starchy things, and unfortunately many people consider bread and crackers an essential part of a salad course. They should no more be eaten with a salad than served in one.

At this time of year, although the true salads, lettuce and its kin, are of uncertain quality, there is a wealth of salad stuff which for formal dinners can be utilized as hors d'œuvres. In France, where present cosmopolitan usages originated, melon is served as hors d'œuvre. A large melon may be cut in many slices, as it is the essence of a hors d'œuvre to be a small, appetizing thing, but these are served to look as though the melon were entire.

So easy it is, at this season, to get materials for a salad course, that in making up a grocery order (groceries proper and not meat) almost every item on it may be accessory to a salad. It is not a bad plan, when we have made up an order that turns out to be of special service in this way, to note the items, so that we may duplicate it, say on a Saturday. An ice box that becomes desolate of something that will serve for a salad before Sunday evening comes around may start that extravagant and not to be commended habit of going to the delicatessen for Sunday evening refreshments. When this becomes a constant practice it is a pretty sure sign of poor marketing ability and of uneconomical management.

Let us notice what salad resources we have in a dollar order like the following, reckoning that we have enough for four salads each for four people and some left over: One basket of tomatoes of two pounds, one good sized cabbage, two cucumbers, two green sweet peppers, two large heads of leaf lettuce, one pound of new onions, two stalks of celery, one bunch of beets, one small basket of malaga grapes, one small basket of apples.

We can start with a combination salad, that favorite of many a man of the family. If we use any green pepper in this we should taste it first, especially if it is sliced from a small one, as those labelled sweet are sometimes hot. Two I got in an order like the above were so.

Perhaps this is a good place to mention that the seed cone of a pepper, divested of its seeds, and the coarser stems and leaves of our celery and any green parts of our onions—all by-products of the main business—go naturally into the soup or into the water in which we boil fish, or into the meat stew, or into a sauce for meat. One leftover tomato serves in the same way, and the coarse outside leaves of the lettuce are utilized by the careful housekeeper. Cut fine they are excellent cooked for a few minutes in the stew.

We need our lettuce to serve almost any salad on, but there are no end of ways of serving it as lettuce salad. Some people never tire of a garnish of boiled egg for it. If served with a French dressing, to which has been added one onion chopped fine, one tomato, some chopped cucumber, and possibly a little pepper, we have something like a combination salad.

The cabbage plus a little onion and celery, or even of green pepper, is a most serviceable material, for which a larger number of dressings are good than for almost any other material. By the way, the true salad epicure serves both mustard and sugar in dressings.

The newest of our salad materials deserves a long article of itself. This is the avocado or alligator pear. Though often served cut in halves, with just a plain French dressing, it may be cut in thin slices or dice and served with cucumbers and lettuce or with various fruits. It is becoming more popular each year, and I have found it to be cheapest in price in early October, although it comes into the market in midsummer. If you want something of far higher food value than any of the materials mentioned above, get avocado.

Lettuce and Egg Salad.

To these two rather flavorless staples of the larder can be added some of the piquant things called "fines herbes" to make a salad of a great deal of character. When other supplies are lacking nasturtium leaves may be chopped fine and scattered over the egg. The nasturtium belongs to the cress family and a little chopped watercress is good to enhance the egg-lettuce salad. Cut up boiled eggs are equally good with the cress foundation instead of the lettuce. The important point to remember is that egg takes up a great deal more French dressing than does anything green. A cooked dressing is excellent with it. Boil the eggs or simmer for twenty minutes, drop immediately into cold water to keep the yolks from growing dark, and cut either in quarters or in thin slices. There are special utensils for cutting eggs.

Molded Beet Salad.

One of the most inexpensive salad materials of the season, which is almost everywhere acceptable, is the beet. The small ones are prettiest cut in thin slices and served on a lettuce leaf with French dressing. When to be molded cut the beets into small cubes while they are hot, add butter enough to make them cohere, and press lightly into small cups. When cold turn out on lettuce leaves and serve with French dressing or with dressing to taste.

Avocado Salads.

Avocado plain with French dressing is what I like best, but two years ago Mrs. Kate C. Havens of Florida, where so much of this fruit comes from, sent me the following salads:

Sun blessed salad: Cut fruit in thin slices; season with salt, pepper, vinegar—lemon or lime juice is better—chopped onion, hard boiled eggs, celery, and pimento. Serve on lettuce leaves. Oil is unnecessary, as the fruit itself is oily.

Biscayne salad: To two parts of diced avocado add one of chopped Bermuda onion, salt, pepper, paprika, and vinegar, or lemon, or lime juice. Chopped sweet peppers may be added.

Trapp salad: Spread avocado pulp over bread as butter; season with salt, pepper, and lemon juice; put between crisp lettuce leaves. Finely chopped sweet red or green peppers may be added.

There are a good many recipes for avocado salads scattered through a little book called "Palm Beach Dainties." It contains also the following avocado salad dressing: To either a boiled or mayonnaise dressing add an avocado that has been mashed and creamed until smooth.

Hot Salad Dressing.

For any one who cannot eat an acid dressing an excellent substitute for a lettuce salad is a tomato and onion fried gently and mashed and when completely tender served hot on the lettuce. It is a good thing to remember this time of year that stewed tomatoes, cooked down a half or two-thirds and sieved, make, with a bit of salt, an excellent chili sauce. Cold, it may be added to a mayonnaise for what is like a highly seasoned thousand islands dressing.

Answers to Inquiries.

MRS. E. L.: Here are two of the recipes you request. I would beg you not to use Spanish rice often. It is rice cooked in a tomato sauce. I am not sure what chicken Spanish stew is. I never have found a recipe of an authentic sort for this dish. Perhaps Mrs. Hill's creole chicken is as near to it as anything. This is her recipe: "Joint a young fowl; season with salt and pepper, and sauté to a golden brown in hot salt pork fat or butter, together with two onions, sliced thin. When all are well browned remove the fowl and cook one-fourth cup of flour in the fat; then add one cup each of white stock and tomato pulp and in this simmer the fowl until tender, adding more stock if needed. Arrange the joints in a circle upon the serving dish. To the sauce add a tablespoon of tarragon vinegar and other seasonings as required, strain, and reheat in it one-fourth of a pound of macaroni, cooked and blanched. With this fill in the center of the circle. Garnish with celery leaves or parsley." No two recipes for chicken à la king are alike. A good many years ago I got one from a hotel source, in which there is not a single definite quantity, but I have reason to believe that this is the original whence all the differentiations have been made, so I give it. To make it inexpensively, a white sauce is used instead of cream and egg yolk, and sometimes cream only is used. No great amount is needed. The number of nice little slices of chicken used depends much on the price paid for it in public places, where it is so much served. Sliced white meat of chicken, sliced mushrooms (fresh if procurable), sliced green peppers sautéed together in butter. Add some strips of pimiento, season with salt and paprika, and, keeping the whole at simmering point, add a laison of cream and egg yolks When at a creamy consistency serve in a chafing dish with a plate of buttered toast. A little sherry wine may be added to the sauce. If served without chafing dish, surround with a border of duchess potato.

Her Surprise Indescriable.

My brother, his girl, my friend, and myself were among the number at a recent beach party. It happened that my brother's girl wore a bathing cap so conspicuous that she was nicknamed by the crowd on account of it. I decided to play a little trick on her, so I asked her if she would let me trade caps with her for a few minutes, which she did, not knowing what I was up to.

My idea was to swim up to my brother and, not letting him see my face, put my arms around his neck and tell him I loved him, then swim away and let him think his girl had done it. So, with her cap on, I started for my brother, who was standing a short distance from me. I swam to his side (supposedly my brother), put both arms around his neck, and, with my face buried on his chest, told him I loved him; then I turned to flee, but he grabbed me with such force that it was impossible to resist, so, turning my face to him to give him the laugh, I found myself confronted by the fellow I was going with.

My surprise was indescribable. After a number of vain excuses I left to meet him on the sand, where he told me love's old sweet story, and, although I protested, he teasingly said he was glad I had proposed.

Thirteen Hours a Day.

I had played tennis all morning with Frank; had eaten lunch with him at noon, played golf in the afternoon, had eaten dinner, and danced all evening with him. We had spent exactly thirteen hours together!

"O," said I, "I never thought that I could stand to be with one person for so many hours, but this day has really been delightful!"

"You wouldn't have to see me thirteen hours every day if you married me, and I want you to," said Frank, "because I'd be too busy making a living."

I married Frank one year ago and I can't wait for his vaction to come, so I may once again play tennis, eat, and dance with him. Frank says I proposed. Did I? I do think I started something.

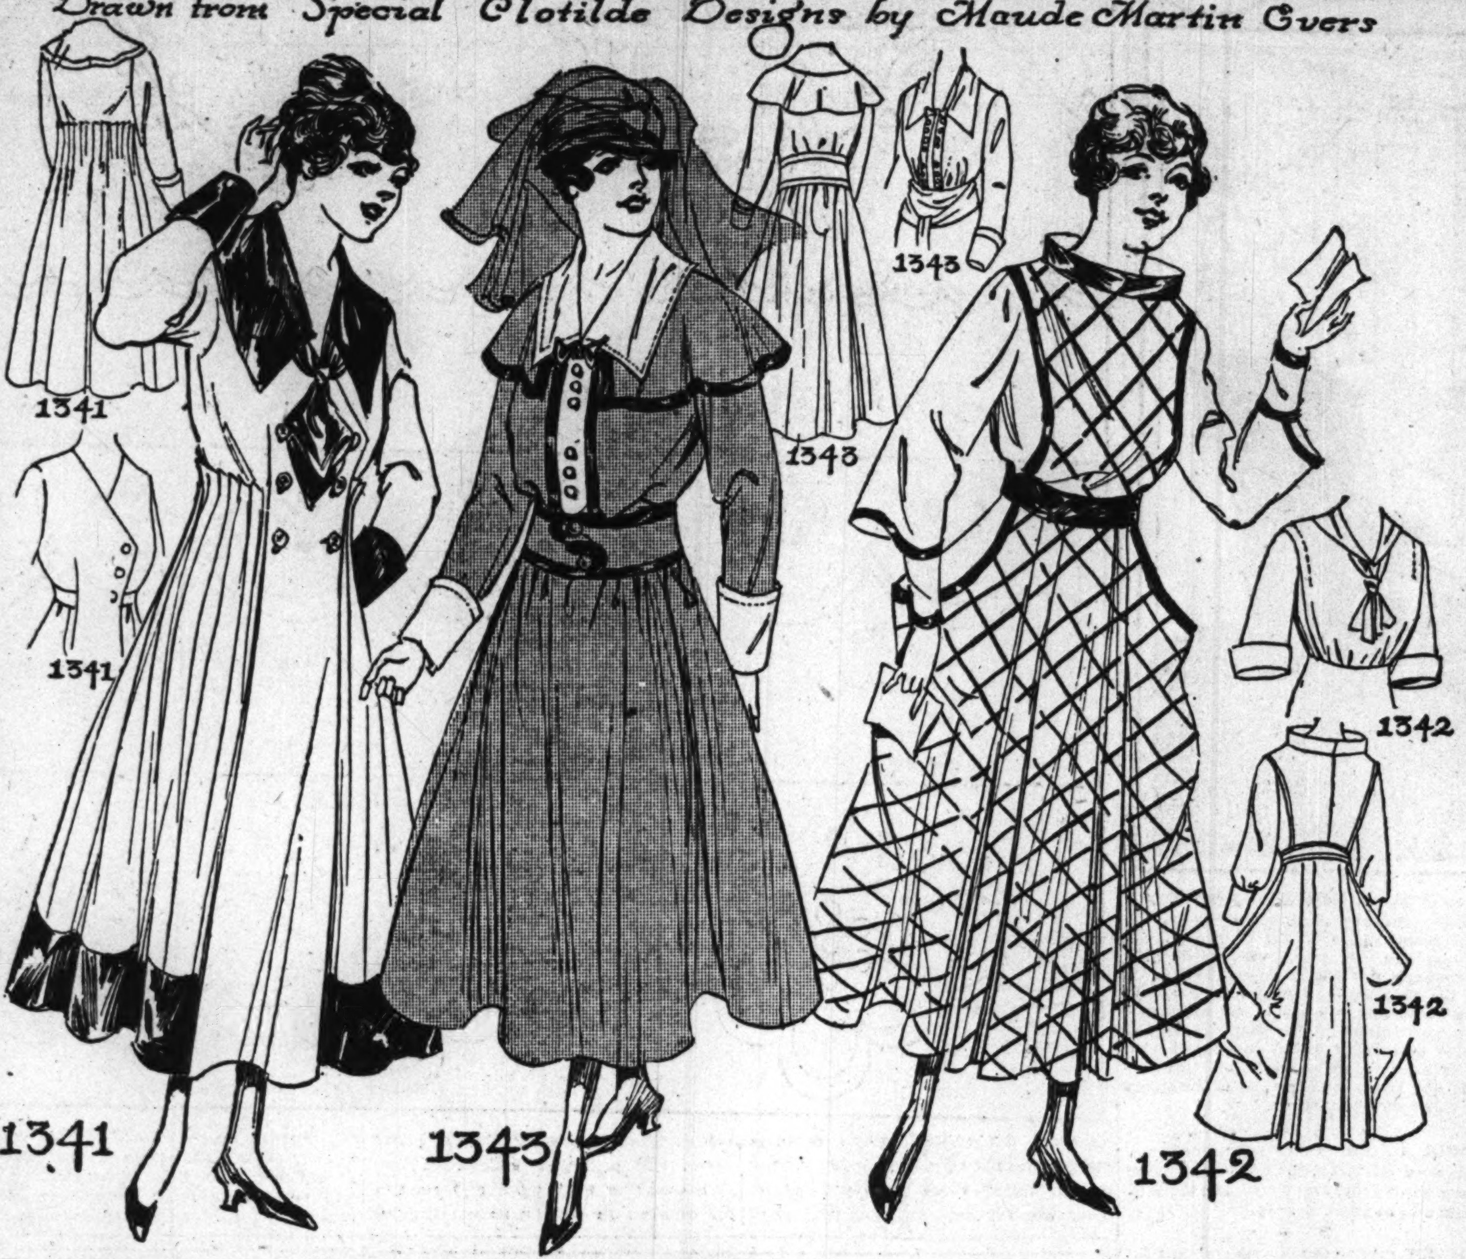
PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

Smart Frocks to Suit the Well Dressed Woman

Drawn from Special Clotilde Designs by Maude Martin Evers



No. 1342—One piece dress for misses and small women, 16 and 18 years. For the 16 year size will be needed 6¼ yards of material 36 inches wide, 5¼ yards 44, with 2½ yards of velvet 20 inches wide for the trimming.

No. 1343—One piece gown, 34 to 44 bust. For the medium size will be needed 6¼ yards of material 36 inches wide, 5¼ yards 44, with ⅝ yard 36 inches wide for the collar and cuffs and 5 yards of banding.

No. 1344—One piece gown, 34 to 42 bust. For the medium size will be needed 6½ yards of material 36 inches wide or 6 yards 44 for the skirt and overblouse with 2½ yards 36 inches wide for the underblouse and ⅝ yard 36 for the trimming.

THESE three dresses are all representative of the newest and best in the fall and winter fashions. They are simply made at the same time that they possess a decided amount of individuality and charm.

This is the time of times to be thinking of the fall garments. Materials are much less expensive than they will be in a few weeks and quite as pretty even if the varieties to be had are not so great.

The fact that there is a Chicago office from which the Clotilde patterns are sent out now means a great deal to the home dressmaker. It means that she can obtain her patterns within a short period from the date she sends for them. They will be mailed out the same day they are received at the office.

She Died Between Acts.

It was during that tragic and heart-rending scene in our class play that my "moment" came. I had just received a telegram saying my husband, who had gone to war, was dying. I was a weak woman and had fainted. The servant was to give me a drink of water, but she had stage fright and instead of pouring it down my throat she turned a whole glass full down my neck. Well, I yelled and kicked, and the curtain came down with a thud on a roaring audience. Thank goodness, I died between the acts, so I didn't have to face that crowd again!

"That Little Boy."

I went into the butcher shop with my sister last Saturday evening when the store was crowded. A short, thin fellow whom I knew had come into the store before I did and he stood next to me. Therefore when the butcher asked me what I wanted, without glancing at this fellow, I said, "I guess that little boy is next." You can imagine my humiliation when a big 200 pound woman called out cattily, "He's with me; he's my husband."

A Crashing Sermon.

I was once visiting my brother, who was the pastor of a large congregation. A banquet was given in the basement in honor of several missionaries who had returned from China.

The tables consisted of long boards supported on saw horses in the old fashioned way. There must have been 300 people present that evening. I was called on to speak.

I started to rise, caught my foot in a saw horse; I fell flat, the saw horse collapsed with me, and the long table came tumbling after amid the clatter of dishes and china. I think I need say nothing more.

Housekeeping Experiences.

Did you make absurd mistakes when you first started housekeeping? Of course you did. Every bride has. So tell us about it. And if you are a man—well, surely you can remember what your wife did. The funnier the experiences the better. For every letter published "The Tribune" will pay $1. Keep your story on one side of the paper and within 300 words and address it to Housekeeping Experience Editor, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." No manuscripts returned.

The Hand Painted Frosting.

When I was first married I wanted to make a pink frosting for a cake. As I didn't know about fruit coloring, I decided to use water color paints. It was beautiful, but when my husband saw it, he said, "Where did you get the pink frosting?" When I told him he laughed so much I cried, and we decided the chickens could have the cake.

Boiled the Turkey.

I was 18 when married, an only child, and as is usual in such cases did not know a thing about cooking. One Sunday early my husband showed me how to fix a large turkey, watched me prepare a Scotch dressing he knew well how to make, and when the bird was sewed up ready for cooking he went out to be gone until the late afternoon, telling me he would be starved and to have a nice dinner. But to his surprise when he entered the door there was no smell of fine roasting turkey and Scotch dressing, but of something being boiled. On investigating he found I had taken a ten gallon pot and was boiling the turkey. It had been on the stove five hours boiling to beat the band, so the least said about my first turkey the better.

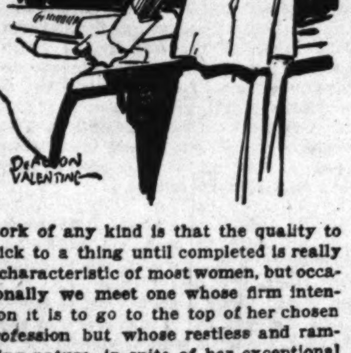
Perseverance Brings Success.

A WOMAN from whose business makeup the essential amount of perseverance is lacking has little chance of an ultimate success in the work which she has chosen for herself, no matter if she possesses ambition, cleverness, and energy.

The reason that women have had such phenomenal success in the short time they have been engaged in commercial work of any kind is that the quality to stick to a thing until completed is really a characteristic of most women, but occasionally we meet one whose firm intention it is to go to the top of her chosen profession but whose restless and rambling nature, in spite of her exceptional qualities, prevents her from making any headway in her career.



Some women argue that it is never wise to stay in one position for any length of time; that in order to better herself one has to make frequent changes. This may be true if we have given the position a fair trial and have had time to know that the chances of advancement are nil. But unfortunately there are women who believe that if they stay in one position for more than six months without promotion they are getting into a rut and it is high time for them to leave and get another position. They do not seem to realize that in each new position they are practically starting all over again and that as long as they keep making such changes, just so long will they remain in the beginner's class.

This restless, roving spirit, which demonstrates itself most prominently in one's work, has always been more characteristic of men than of women, but little by little it is getting into the spirit of the woman worker and every day we see fresh signs of the havoc wrought by it on promising careers. The danger from a lack of perseverance is naturally less to a woman with a definite profession, such as law, journalism, art, medicine, etc., as there are fewer chances and less of an excuse for a change.

As an example of failure due to the inability to stick to any one job long enough to allow for promotion I have in mind a clever young girl who when she finished her school work was suddenly faced with the necessity of earning her own living. She was not prepared for any special line of work, but it was her intention to astonish her friends by a meteoric career in business. She started as a saleswoman in a department store, with the declared idea sooner or later of becoming a buyer. The prospect was good and she was given every encouragement from the firm. However, to the surprise of every one, she soon gave up her position and was starting all over again in another, with the announcement that promotion was not coming fast enough in her first job and she did not want to get into a rut like the other girls in the place.

Her second position went the way of the first, and so on, until in spite of five years of work and exceptional qualities as a saleswoman she is now no further toward attaining her ambition than she was in the beginning. It is not in her nature to remain at a task for any length of time, and it is simply due to this restlessness that she is a failure today.

If in the beginning she had realized to what an extent this lack of stick-to-itiveness would have interfered with the attainment of her ambition, and had she exercised a little self-control over her impatient and restless disposition, she would in all probability have been the success in business that she intended to be.

Arrayed in a new suit, new hat and shoes, carrying a cane, and quite satisfied with myself, I went out to a park one Sunday, and while there I met a bright little 3 year old, with whom I engaged in conversation. Crawling into my lap, the little one removed a pen from my pocket and exclaimed: "My papa has got a pencil like that." My watch attracted her next, and she removed that from my pocket also and said, "My papa's got a watch, too." She then grasped my walking stick and eyed it curiously. I asked her if her papa had a cane like mine and she looked up in a disdainful manner and said, "O, no! My papa is a big, strong man."

When a little acquaintance of mine was in the first grade at school the teacher was one day explaining the meaning of "blonde and brunette." To illustrate she pointed to a little dark girl in a corner, saying, "Now, Minnie is a brunette and"—here her eye alighted on Dick—"Dick is a brunette, too." Dick, thinking there was some reference to race or religion, piped up indignantly, "I ain't neither a brunette; I go to the Presbyterian Sunday school."

All a Bluff.

Before my wife became my wife she was a school teacher. In that capacity she had been the leader of the movement against corporal punishment. I had, therefore, supposed her to be violently opposed to the application of the rod.

One morning a few weeks after we had been married I heard a commotion in the back yard. Hastening to the scene of disturbance, I found my young wife with the neighbor's 10 year old lad across her knee, doing some skillful work with a shingle. It was too well executed for a novice. Of course I took her to task.

"How about your anti-corporal punishment principles?" I said.

"Principles, bosh!" she confessed. "That was all a bluff to please the superintendent, who was greatly opposed to corporal punishment."

I never knew before what a clever wife I had. I have had occasion to see other evidences of it since.

Jim's Wife Speaks.

Before marriage and during the first months of our married life, my husband always referred to our saving, our one pocketbook, etc. He gave me all the money he had to care for a few days before our wedding. This made me think, "Now, here is a man that thinks his wife has a share in the money as well as the work of the married state," but what was my horror to find that although we both saved and used the one pocketbook, that if I used any without his permission I had to pay dearly for it in a spell of the grouch that sometimes lasted a week. Glad to tell you things are different today.

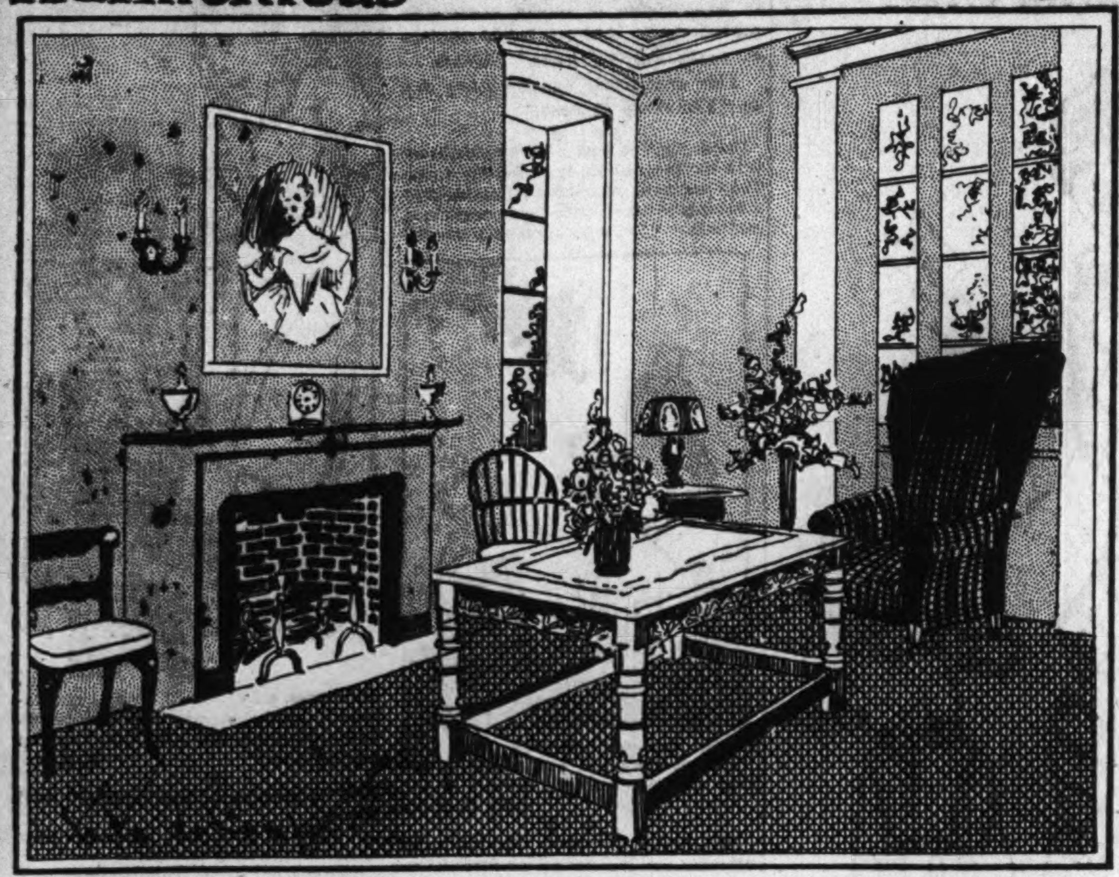
The Home Harmonious

Modernizing an Old Mantel.

Anita de Campi



Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

THE first thing one does upon buying an old house or moving into an old apartment building is to alter the old time mantel tops. Ugly mantels of the extremely passé type, having brackets at the sides, mirrored center pieces with scroll edged frames and bits of oval mirrors under or over the brackets, are clearly indicative of age bordering on decrepitude.

All of the ornamentation of the overmantel must be done away with if the interior is to be rejuvenated into anything that looks like "up to dateness."

Among the several hundred photographs of successfully executed interiors which I have before me none has a mantel piece with a built up top. All sorts of schemes are attempted to finish the space above the mantel shelf. The most attractive fashion is that of having a painting inset in the allotted space. The painting selected for the purpose usually is either a reproduction of an old floral piece in quaint style, showing a vase of large rich colored flowers on a dark ground, with a lacquered finish to make the piece look very old, or a fine old portrait, also properly aged with lacquer. The canvas is stretched upon the wall and edged with a molding.

Mirrors, while they no longer form a part of the mantel piece proper, are also effectively used above the shelf, or in some instances are framed and suspended above the shelf.

Sometimes the over-mantel space is simply shaped into a single large panel or into one square center panel and two small upright side panels by means of narrow wood moldings. The moldings are tacked on to the wall and then the whole space is painted, molding and all—or it may be calcimined.

Plaster panels are used with telling result as over-mantel insets. These are particularly good with period furnishing, especially that of the Adam or the Louis XV. or XVI. periods.

A charming dining room furnished in William and Mary walnut furniture has wood paneling a little more than half way up the height of the side wall clear around the room. The woodwork is painted old ivory and the upper wall is violet blue. At one end of the room is the fireplace, with a mantel shelf extending the full width of the room, and above this the old ivory wood paneling is repeated clear up to the ceiling. The floor covering is gray green, with markings of fawn color and little flecks of ivory. The china is of purple luster and Wedgwood.

Striking indeed is a fireplace without a mantel shelf, but with the square sage green tiling that frames it extending in a flat, wide panel above the fireplace as high as the ceiling. Each tile has a white mark in its center, and they are put together with white cement lines. The floor covering and the casement curtains are of autumn red, and the dark brown furniture is upholstered in deep blue. The side walls are a light tobacco brown, and the woodwork is cream colored.

In colonial rooms the over-mantel is furnished with any one of the many good style colonial mirrors. The long horizontal mirror is most excellent in point of balance.

Lighting brackets are now placed at either side directly above the mantel shelf instead of on the wall outside of the mantels. Where it is not feasible to have wiring done for the actual electric candle fixtures wax candles in candlesticks are used.

More unique than pleasing is the arrangement of a French mirror below a mantel shelf, completely covering the gas log, grate, and tiling of an old mantel piece. The mirror is divided into small oblong panels by narrow moldings of white enamel. Above the shelf is a painting of Mme. Pompadour, framed in a dull gilt frame. Candles with rose shades trimmed with gilt lace flank the portrait. These are attached to the wall. The picture frame just escapes the shelf, and no objects are on the mantel. The walls are paneled with moldings on white decorator's canvas. The furniture is upholstered in wistaria velvet, and the finely patterned carpet is of dull blue and taupe.

The mandates of present day good taste require but little bric-à-brac to be used on mantel shelves, and the little that is used to be bi-symmetric in arrangement. A center piece and two side pieces form the accepted mode. The center piece may be a vase, basket, or bowl of flowers, a small clock, or a carved box, and the side pieces may be a pair of urns, a pair of candlesticks, or a pair of vases—nothing more.

Many of these modes of over-mantel finish seem difficult and expensive, but other methods are simpler. The main idea is to procure a restful effect by getting rid of all those tortuous lines—all of that undesirable mixture of beveled mirror and machine turned wood. This can be economically done by displacing the old top and finishing the space above the shelf with paper, paint, or calcimine to match the rest of the wall. A piece of fabric may be stretched above the mantel. I have seen a charming finish made of a breadth of dull colored velveteen, edged with a flat band of dark gold galloon.

A breadth of machine made tapestry is also pleasing hung across the space. With this dull brass candlesticks topped with bayberry candles are used. This arrangement supplies a radical change in the appearance of the mantel, and its achievement would not involve the average householder in untoward expense.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

J. S. G.: Make a simple slip cover for your morris chair of cretonne, choosing a pattern printed on a dark ground. Fit the covers to your cushions, cutting the pattern as nearly as possible by the shape of the cushions themselves, only a little larger, and fasten them with snap clasps.

* *

W. P. S.: Wicker furniture is artistic and correct. About the table I should prefer a gate leg or spider leg table to the fiber. These tables can be had in any wood. Have in your living room a big, comfortable sofa, fitted with squab cushions, one big fireside chair upholstered, a Chinese hour glass chair, and fill in with one or two Windsors. This is all furniture of medium price, but in good taste. It is popular to leave the plate rack bare, and either to have pictures above it or to have figured paper above it. Collections of pewter or copper are sometimes used. Silk gauze makes an excellent covering for your transom, but if you have marquisette on the French doors marquisette would be better for the transom, too. Bronze colored portieres would be pretty with the sample of wall paper you inclosed.

* *

T. W.: I believe light green would look as well as yellow. Either one, of course, woud depend for its beauty upon the tint you use. Contrast your rugs with the wall instead of matching them to it. If you use a light yellow wall, let your rug be green and white, and if you use the green wall, let your rag rug be old gold and white. Yes, the figured cretonne or chintz would be pretty for your spread. Your friend is mistaken; paint for the side walls is both fashionable and feasible.

* *

MRS. A. W.: In your dining room with the two windows facing north you could not have made a better selection than tan paper. The choice for the next room is also good, provided the brown is a light brown. Gray would not look as well.

* *

E. L. B.: No, I should not advise a change in paper and hanging in your Jacobean room. The style requires a certain depth of color. Use old ivory enamel for the furniture as well as the woodwork in the young girl's room. The sample you sent of wallpaper is charming. Let your inside curtains in this room be blue, matching the ribbon stripe in the paper. Have the candle shades and toilet things, powder box, etc., of pink matching the rose in the little decorative posies. For the other curtains use glass curtains of white Swiss. In the boys' room, monks' cloth would be good for the curtains. Boys usually like simple, straight line furniture in dark wood. Navajo rugs always appeal to me for use in boys' rooms. These rugs of a soft quality are often used for bed covers. Choose a bed with a low head and foot board, so that it may be placed endways or sideways to the wall.

* *

W. C. C.: I am glad you found my advice so practical and pleasing, and take pleasure in helping you again. About the black leather chairs, as you call them old comfort, I believe the shapes must be good and suitable, so I would not discard them, but make pretty slip covers of chintz. Do not attempt to hide your built-in sideboard, but simply line the glass doors with silk, shirred to two tiny rods on the inside of the glass, at the top and bottom. The case may then be used for a bookcase, linen closet, or whatever you like. Your samples are excellent.

* *

MRS. F. A. J.: If you go to the library and inquire you will be furnished with a number of books on the subject of oriental rugs.

* *

MISS ETHEL W.: Portieres are still being used, though it is usually preferable not to have such hangings during the summer months. Why not wait until fall to consider draperies to put at your folding door? Velour is about the least expensive material for the purpose. Old blue would be a good color with the things that you have. I would suggest having it broken with a touch of old gold.

* *

MRS. L. S.: Choose rather light neutral colors for your entire scheme. Your idea is right about having yellow the keynote. Let everything be slightly tinged with it. This scheme can always be carried out in either tan or green, and can also be done in delicate gray. In this case the gray is always mixed with cream instead of white. Let your upstairs rooms be lighter and clearer in color than the lower ones.

* *

MRS. A. O. A.: I should advise using old ivory enamel rather than stain on the ground floor in your new home. If you have mahogany furniture upstairs, the mahogany doors would be pretty, but unless you are going to furnish with mahogany, use enamel doors like the rest of the woodwork. I would have the living room and reception hall alike and probably contrast the dining room. I think you would be better satisfied with a detachable sideboard, which will permit you changing the style of furniture in this room at any time.

* *

MRS. H. P.: Have your woodwork enameled old ivory, the wall in the living room pearl gray, and the wall in the bedroom a light greenish gray.

* *

H. J. L.: With the sample cretonne for cushions that you sent me, use jade green candle shades, that is, in your center room and sun room. The dining room paper, of which you sent me a sample, is lovely. Use with it yellow silk the shade of yellow you see in mullen weeds. Use pink shades in your guest room and cover them lightly with a silver net. Corn color would be good in the children's room. The cretonne that you have selected for your sun room, if I can judge by so small a sample, has a circular motif, and this cut out and bound with wire would make unusual and attractive candle shields. Trim them with fringe on the lower half and let the fringe be black. I believe you will get good use of the cretonne. About the other room I am inclined to suggest light Delf blue for your lamp shades. Line this with yellow, so that it will show green at night and blue in the daytime. Allow me to advise you never to send samples of paper and cretonne fastened with pins and needles in your letters.

* *

M. V.: I should use gray or green for the dining room rug. Use a silk shade instead of a dome; let it be in a good tone of amber. Use draperies combining all of the other colors in the room and allow a decided touch in the pattern of cherry wood color of the same tone as that in your cherry wood bookcase. See that you have one good crimson lamp shade in this room. Save your portieres, and when your chairs begin to wear out reupholster them with the old portieres, making several cushions out of them also.

* *

H. F.: Since your walls are white it would be well for you to keep a light color scale for your furniture. Natural light woods are lovely if you can have the furniture made to order to match the wood trim of your bungalow. French doors are usually curtained with thin net or scrim. Reception halls are to be kept quite simple, a table with a chair is enough if a closet is provided for the cloaks. Yes, brown wicker would be correct for a sunroom, but use chintz instead of tapestry for your cushions. Clear flax is an excellent sunroom rug material. Grayish green is good with mahogany.

* *

D. G. B.: Certain shades of mulberry and old blue go well together. About those you have I could not say without seeing samples. Thin inside curtains are used in conjunction with the chintz roller shades.

* *

MISS L. E. K.: The plan you have made for your living room draperies, portieres, and lamp shades is in excellent taste. Why not use old rose and tan striped sunfast for your brown dining room? This should all harmonize well. Yes, velours and silk are suitable together.

* *

S. R. L.: I can only say, speaking in generalities, that curtains are less elaborate than they have been heretofore. I cannot tell you what style of curtains are used without making my description relative. It depends entirely upon the style of windows and the sort of furniture one has.

* *

A. E. S.: Yes, when rooms open together, it is satisfactory to have the walls treated alike. Choose a delicate gray for your tinting, and if possible have the woodwork white.

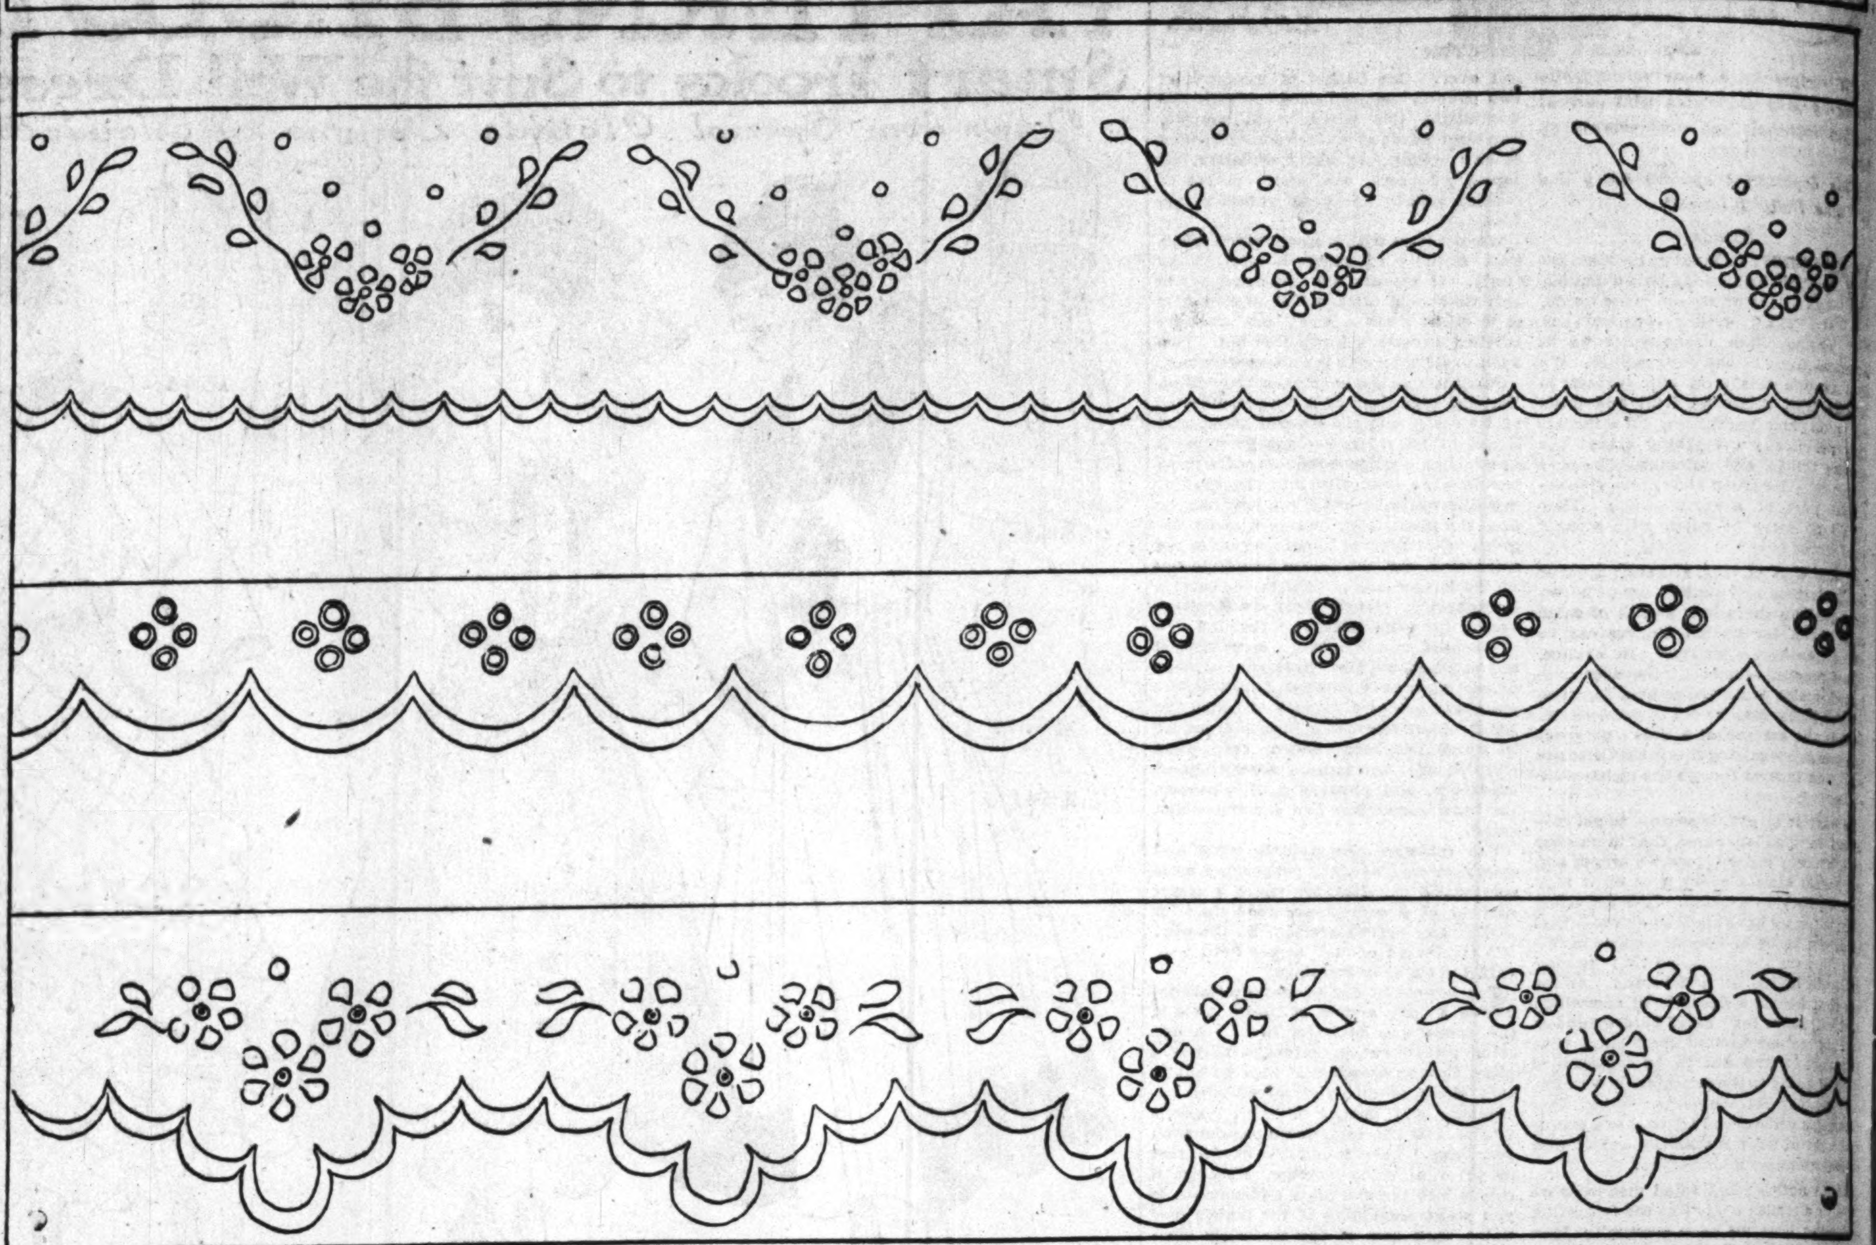
* *

C. H. M.: Since your bedrooms are to be in white, the color of the side walls must be in light scale; that is, they must have a great deal of white in their composition. Yes, cream with a decided tinge of orange in it would be appropriate. I suppose you will have several rather large, beautiful vases to hold fresh flowers in these rooms, and will probably have a few pictures, simply framed. Pictures all of a certain marked style are nice. Use dull turquoise green for your sunfast casement curtains.

* *

E. R.: I would suggest that you use some good varnish remover, and after that either stain or ivory white enamel your woodwork. I like your idea of using cherry blossoms, if they are real. The season for cherry blossoms is a short one. What is it that you wish to know of the dressing table? Is it a matter of covering or of what articles to place on it? For the side draperies in your bedroom sundur is a good material. It comes in a number of designs and weaves and colors.

Embroidered Scallops with Flower Sprays.



Already the practical needlewoman is considering her Christmas gifts. Today are published three scalloped edges. They are for petticoat flounces, lunch cloths, dresser covers, sheets, pillow cases, and children's underwear.

Commencing next week and running for four weeks will be an old English alphabet in crochet. All women who intend to do Christmas fancy work should not miss this alphabet.

In using the printed design from the paper the directions are as follows: If the matrial is sheer, the easiest way is to lay it over the design, which will show through plainly, and draw over each line with a hard, sharp pencil. If your linen is heavy, buy a piece of impression paper—the kind that does not rub off—lay it on your material, place the design over it, and trace with a hard pencil. You will find the design neatly transferred.

How I Won My Mate.

How did you win the love of your mate? What measures, if any, did you adopt? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Won My Mate." Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

Girl He Was Waiting For.

In a crowd at a party was a young man whom I disliked, as I thought he was given to boasting. The conversation turned to housework, and as usual this young man could wash dishes. Thinking to cure him of boasting I got two aprons and invited him into the kitchen. I washed and he wiped dishes for fifty people that evening, and when a year later he proposed, he said he had been waiting for a girl who could wash dishes without kicking. F. P.

A Good Girl Scout.

We lived in a small Michigan town, where there was a dearth of young people. Both of us were from the city and felt the lack of congenial company. I met him through my brother when we three went for a hike. There were many tramps together after that. I never refused an invitation to "rough it" for a day across country, and no matter how tired and exhausted I was I never said so. I wore a short skirted suit and high topped walking shoes and never had to stop to "fix" or tie anything nor needed to be helped over anything. He told me that I was the best pal he had ever had and asked me to be his pal through life. Since our marriage we have tramped and I've proved to be a pal to his liking yet. G. G.

Charles Fell for This.

Charles was considered the best looking young man in the university, and consequently he was independent. He was never known to ask the same girl for a second date. I had secretly decided that I would never be with him once unless I felt that he would ask to come a second time.

One evening after a class meeting by chance Charles and I walked out the door together and he proceeded to walk home with me. On our way we passed "the Greek's," a famous lunching place for the students. Charles, as was the custom, asked me to go in and order something to eat with him. I refused, saying that I was not hungry.

When we reached home, much to my surprise, he asked if he might call the following evening. From that time we were together often, and by the end of the year we were engaged.

Charles has since told me that before he met me he had never been with a university girl who at any time had refused to eat upon the invitation.

He said that he had secretly resolved that if he should ever find a girl who would refuse to let him spend his money in such a way, when she knew that she really did not want the "treat," that he would ask that girl for a second "date." E. M. H.

The AMATEUR GARDENER

by Eben E. Rexford

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

All questions relating to the cultivation of gardens will be answered if addressed to the Amateur Gardener, "The Tribune," Chicago. Please write on one side of the paper only.

Some Questions Answered.

ANNABELLE: Instead of two trees in the space you mention in front of the house I think you would be better satisfied with but one, in the long run, and that an elm. The catalpa is much inferior in all respects to the elm. Of course, while the trees were small there would be ample room for two, but when they have developed there will be a crowded effect, which will detract from the appearance of both. A fine tree should always be given plenty of room in which to display its charms. I am not familiar with the length of catalpa roots, but I presume they would in time extend as far as those of the elm. If you had sent a rough sketch of the place where it is proposed to plant trees I could have obtained a better knowledge of the possibilities of it and given you more definite information. You do not say when you intend to set your trees. If this fall, do it as soon as they have ripened their foliage.

* *

H. M. and A. H.—These correspondents ask how to eradicate dandelion, chickweed, bur, mustard, oxeye daisy, field garlic, wild carrot, tansy, and jimson weed. Truly a goodly list of weeds to be disposed of. I am sorry to say that I know of no way of getting rid of them except by pulling them up root and branch or cutting off close to the ground such kinds as do not throw up suckers from the root.

* *

TEACHER'S QUERIES.—What plants suitable for the back yard are easily grown? Hollyhocks, delphinium, pyrethrum, and perennial phlox. What plant would you advise for a hedge on three sides of a cemetery lot? Berberis thunbergii. What vine is pretty and easily grown for front and back of house? If one with fine foliage is wanted, ampelopsis is as good as any. If a flowering vine is preferred, I know of nothing better than clematis paniculata. Would a vine flourish if trained over a house covered with metal siding? I hardly think so. The metal will draw heat in summer and the vine would be scorched by it in intensely hot, dry weather.

* *

M. M. B.: Your letter was mislaid, hence the long delay in answering your queries. I could not have helped you any, however, if the document had come to light sooner. I infer from what you say that some of the plants in your garden were attacked by a disease which seems to have been very prevalent this season over a large section of country, and for which, I am sorry to say, no remedy has been discovered to date. In some instances persons have made use of Bordeaux mixture, thinking the trouble of bacterial origin, and some benefit has resulted from the application of this standard bacteriacide. I do not think that the fact that your flowers were planted in an old garbage dumping place explains your failure to grow plants successfully there, as if this were the cause of failure other plants which you say have done well would quite naturally have been diseased. I have lost all my asters, and this is not the first season they have failed me. Cosmos does not seem to have suffered any. Truly, you have been attempting to grow flowers under difficulties, but—try again.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING-HAND

by MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"I HAVE music, songs, and instrumental pieces that I will give to some one who cannot afford to buy. My daughter also has some shoes, slightly worn, numbers three and three and a half, to give to some needy girl. Of course, these articles would necessitate much postage and for that reason we wish to give them to those in actual need and hope no others will apply. I have answered numbers of requests from the Helping Hand and with few exceptions have not received any acknowledgments of appreciation. But this does not deter me from my purpose to render favors or deeds of kindness when opportunity presents. MRS. W. D. B."

These offers are likely to be accepted promptly and I hope that only those who really cannot afford to pay for the articles mentioned will write for the address of this Cornerite. The Corner fails of its object when it gives to those who have the money to purchase for themselves instead of to those who would lack what they need without the aid of the constituency. I am sorry this correspondent has not received more acknowledgments of her gifts. Such ungraciousness is rarely found among those of our circle.

* *

Seeks "Pen Friends."

"I, too, am one of the lonely ones. I am keeping house for my father on a large farm. This is in a desert reclaimed by irrigation and made to 'blossom like the rose.' It is a wonderful valley, but extremely hot—too hot for comfort about six months of the year. I also should like a few pen friends if you could put me in touch with some of the Cornerites. E. D. H."

I should think this correspondent would send most interesting letters from the reclaimed desert. I have sent her by mail the special addresses she asked for and I hope to receive requests for her name and address, accompanied by the above clipping and a stamped, addressed envelope, in order that she may secure the pen friends she craves.

* *

Words of Old Song.

"Does any one know the words of the old song that starts like this: 'Two babes were born in the selfsame town, on the very selfsame day'? Then the song goes on to tell how the one was rich and the other one poor, etc. A. D."

I have never heard the song, but some one of the constituency is sure to know of it, and I trust to receive a copy of it before long.

* *

Quilt Pieces Wanted.

"Would you allow one more old soul to enter your happy band? I am an old woman, but I do enjoy reading the letters and I would like to ask a favor of some of the Cornerites. If any one has quilt pieces of any kind to give away I would like so much to receive some of them. I am not able to do much else except piece quilts and I have not enough means to supply all my needs. "MRS. M. W."

We have so many old souls, to use the correspondent's phrase, in the Corner that there is surely room for another and we welcome her to our band. I hope some one may be able and willing to send her some pieces. Her address will be forthcoming on receipt of request accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope and the clipping of her application.

* *

Would Give Magazines.

"I have read the Corner for a long time, but have never thought I could help until now. I have a number of magazines which I would like to give to some one who would appreciate good reading. They are this year's copies and are all the best magazines that are printed. I also have some pretty embroidery designs, cut from newspapers, which I am sure a fancy work lover would like. I can't undertake to bundle the books up and send them to anybody, but I hope some one can send or come for them. I think the Corner does a wonderful work and I wish you all luck. "MRS. J. L. B."

Your donation sounds attractive and no doubt there will be many requests for your address.

* *

Cotton Quilt Pieces.

"I cannot afford to send away heavy magazines, but will send some cotton scraps to those who want them, as my right hand is not strong and I cannot sew them, so there is no pay for me in cotton quilts. I shall be so proud of my silk quilt when it is done." "MRS. M. J. M."

* *

Magazines to Pass Along.

"I sent Mrs. O. M. a large geography about two months ago, but never got word from her. Do you suppose the package went astray? I am sure I put my return address upon it, but I have been a little worried about it. I also got some little dresses for my baby from a contributor through the Corner and I have written to her to thank her. The Corner is certainly doing a grand work. I have a year's copies of a magazine. If any one would care to have them I shall be glad to pass them along. Has any one these two books, 'The Lamplighter's Daughter' and 'Tess of the Storm Country,' that are no longer needed? If so I shall gladly pay postage on them and return the favor in any way I can. MRS. W. P."

If Mrs. O. M. received the geography sent her I wish she would write and let us know. There are always chances of parcels and letters miscarrying and for this reason it is well to acknowledge them promptly, that the senders may not worry over their possible loss. I am sure some one would like to have the magazines offered and I trust she may obtain the books she desires.

* *

System of Teaching Children.

Some time ago—I think it was nearly three years since—I read in your Corner of a woman who had devised a system of education for children, begun while they were babies, with which she had had great success. It was new and seemed marvelous in the results. I am anxious to communicate with her, either personally or through the Corner, and I hope this will catch her eye or that of some one who remembers about her letter. I have an idea that the system was something like the Montessori, only that she began so much earlier. Please print this as soon as you can. I have a little 3 year old son. MRS. J. C. B."

Does any one recollect the writer of the letter to which this correspondent refers? I should think the system might be of use to other mothers and I am sorry I have at present no trace of it.

* *

Longs for a Canary.

"Here is one of my heart's desires. I long for a canary bird, but sickness and expense keep me from buying one. If the friend who offered a bird has not already disposed of it I should like much to have it. I would also like to have the address of M. L., as I think I can supply her with a better recipe for scrapple than the one printed at her request. "MRS. L. W. M."

I regret to say that the address of Mrs. L. W. M. has disappeared. It is not on her letter, which lies before me now. Still I print the communication in the hope that she may see it and write to me. I am grateful for the directions for pickling olives, and would be happy to use them had not so many others appeared for the process. I trust that her address may be found, and that she may secure the bird she desires. M. L.'s address was not received, but if the scrapple recipe is sent to me it shall be printed in the Corner for the benefit of all.

Miss Clara Joel Cries, "Save Me from My Critics"

By Percy Hammond.

MISS CLARA JOEL played "Common Clay" for the first time on Monday night, and the following day the sky was red with a new and blazing reputation. It was written in the newspapers that this young actress, recently from the backwaters of low priced melodrama, was a prodigious instrument of the emotions, waking the soul by many strokes of art. All the elements of greatness were found in her by the reviewers. The encomiums ranged from my own nervous and wary musings to the hot and fierce estimations of Mr. Stevens, who is usually grave, inward, and self-controlled. Such a pæan of appreciation has not been sounded since Bennett sang of Bernhardt and William Winter addressed his hymns to the art of Ada Rehan.

Therein, I suspect, we wronged Miss Clara Joel. Ere sunset of Tuesday it had become bruited about that an extraordinary event was happening at the Olympic theater, a sort of dramatic miracle turning the water of histrionism into the wine of life. Several millions of newspapers had advertised it thus and there was a rush to see the phenomenon in "Common Clay," the Harvard prize drama.

Now, it is not the odious intention of these paragraphs to say that Miss Joel does not deserve every word of the praise of her panegyrists. For she does. Her impersonation is a wonderwork considering the nature of the material of which it is built, and I know of no one who can transpose the hoakum of theatrical emotions into a semblance of the real thing more skillfully. She has beauty, a sense of comedy, and a personality that enables her to be unerringly honest, eager, and appealing. Her contribution to the real merits of "Common Clay" is greater, perhaps, than that of Harvard.

But the public, excited by the newspaper outburst, expected, I think, too much. The substance of our remarks about Miss Joel was truthful, but the manner of its expression was injudicious. At least I am so informed by correspondents who admire Miss Joel's acting as much as I. They say that she was not over-estimated, but over-advertised, and that on Tuesday evening her first night tribute of ten curtain calls was unjustly reduced to five. Miss Joel may well cry "Praise me not too much!" and implore us to temper approbation with mercy.

"Common Clay" a Winner.

OF the popular appeal of "Common Clay" there can be no doubt. It is one of those plays of which you think, 'It is not very good, but I like it." A product of the Harvard-Bryant & Stratton school of the drama, it is built to sell, and sell it does. We always like to see the nice, fallen woman, valiantly regenerate, become a prosperous prima donna and in the end marry the millionaire's son, no matter how great a cad he is. I suspect that "Common Clay" would be just as saleable, however, were Mr. Kinkead to be more explicit regarding the reformation of the young seducer. He leaves him in the second act slinking out of his responsibility to the girl he has betrayed, rather a nasty cur with no redeeming aspects whatever. All the evidence we have that he is leading a new life is the seraphic mien of his actor, Mr. Booth, and the doubtful depositions of his evil parent in the last act. I wonder what President Lowell, Prof. Bliss Perry, and Prof. Barrett Wendell of Harvard really think of that epilogue!

◆

Perhaps they like it. The more austere the intellect, as a rule, the worse the taste in the drama. So, though "Common Clay" may be a Harvard prize, there seems to be little justice in an anonymous sneer coming evidently from the University club, since it is written on the stationery of that institution. This derisive correspondent suggests that if "Common Clay" is a Harvard prize drama, the accolade of the university's sanction might be bestowed in other arts as follows:

Sculpture—Any Rogers Group.
Literature—"That Printer of Udell's."
Painting—"Breaking Home Ties."

Mr. Kinkead, no doubt, thinks it but square for us to say something nice about the first two acts of his prize. This it is a pleasure to do. In them the story progresses interestingly and not without authenticity through the regretful wanton's endeavors to be good, her precipitate and pitiable failure, and her indignant outcries for reparation from the father of her child. The lines are racy and real, and the situations are achieved with considerable ingenuity. Even the bizarre "Dolly Montrose" motif is introduced and developed plausibly. Nevertheless, I believe that if Mr. Kinkead were in the position of the elder Fullerton or of the craven young profligate, Hawley, he would not deport himself as either of them does.

Here is the father of a boy in trouble with a girl, depending on another youth to get them out of the scrape by testifying to his intimacies with her. It was all very well to have these intimacies occur in a shady hotel owned by the father—that has been done in better and less successful plays. But if Mr. Kinkead were in the place of Mr. Fullerton he might not shake his stick at his prospective savior and squawk, "You dirty little degenerate!" because he would fear that the dirty little degenerate would leave him flat with his new grandson. And Mr. Kinkead, were he in the position of the volunteer deliverer, would probably resent these epithets from the object of his beneficence and exit angrily without performing his inexplicable function.

◆

None of which has anything to do with the happiness of us who go to the Olympic while "Common Clay" is there. They are merely minor irritations annoying only those who are peevish. We laugh and cry; we react with gusto to the anguished lamentations of her who has loved and lost, and we are glad at the finish, when her smug betrayer, after she becomes successful, makes of her what is known as an honest woman. They ought to be very happy, considering that out of a family of three only two are illegitimate. An incident in the epilogue shows how great is the appeal of this type. Miss Joel, having worn the drab livery of servitude and the streets for three acts, enters the scene wearing the lustrous regalia of the prima donna of grand opera. As she throws aside her coat, revealing the grandeur beneath, there is loud applause!

"The Happy Ending" Had a Sad One in New York

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—What, may we ask, is your idea of the physical appearance of heaven? Is it a blossoming desert backed by ranges of purple hills? Or is it a mighty mansion of marble, tinted by a never shaded sun and gold tipped at its cornices? Given a commission to picture heaven, would your inspiration lead you to a throne room or a park?

There was produced in New York last week a play that tries seriously to visualize the hereafter. "The Happy Ending" it is called, and it was a failure here because possibly New Yorkers could not recognize the picture. So in September it is to be taken en tour that you may have a chance to revel in its spiritual messages.

Stage heavens never have been altogether satisfying. The apothesis through which Little Eva was borne to her eternal rest among the flies and tormentors was never altogether convincing, for all we saw it mistily through tears. To our elders, we recall, even the spiritual significance of her passing depended so much on the life belt she wore there was nothing at all pathetic about the life force she was presumably giving up.

The shadowy meeting of the automaton ghosts across the river of souls in Mr. Belasco's "Darling of the Gods" was effective but hazy, just as though even Mr. Belasco hesitated to improve on heaven, scenically considered. And though there have been several epilogues showing the towering gates that are presumed to guard the entrance to the hereafter, they have excited no more than a common curiosity as to the life inside. Not to mention the fashions.

◆

There is the familiar story of the small lad's pencil sketch of God. "But nobody knows what God looks like," objected his mother. "Well, they will when they see this picture," the lad replied.

So it is with "The Happy Ending," and the rarely beautiful scenes one of the newest artists of the theater, Robert Edmond Jones, has devised for it. Save for the fact that we feel life must be, even in so beautiful a place, rather monotonous, we personally would be quite content with such a heaven. For it is no more than an idealised earth. And all the angels wear their regular clothes.

There are rolling banks of greensward, flower-dotted in one scene, and far in the misty background a range of mountains to typify the heights of happiness that may be scaled by those who finally cast off the ties of earth—the love-bound, the playwrights call them—and the curious.

There is a wonderful river backed by a sort of perpetual rainbow, along which flower-decked canoes glide on their way to an island devoted exclusively to sleep. Heavenly idea, purely.

There is the island itself, with the tired spirits stretched out on banks of asphodel and daisies, dreaming, with smaller spirits in the form of pretty children to lead them when they dream to the scenes of their visions.

◆

Triumph Achieved in Lighting.

BUT is really isn't in the decorations of heaven that the artist has achieved his greatest triumph. It is in the lighting. Here is a perfect autumn sunlight that cheers and warms but neither burns nor tans the angels, a yellowish glow that seems not the least bit hard on the eyes or complexion, but still abnormally bright. A light, we feel sure, it would do the celestial electricians some good to investigate.

Of the play itself there is not much to be said. It is, in fact, a flimsy, commonplace affair. And that is the real cause of its failure. The staged entertainment that does not tell a story may be displayed in the finest setting conceived by man and yet be hopelessly dull and boresome.

If there is no conflict, as they say at Harvard, there is no drama. If there's no story, as they insisted in Aristotle's time, there is nothing to worry about or be hopeful for, nothing to excite the well known emotions or stir the obscure depths of the spectator whose demands, conscious and subconscious, are Missouriesque in their directness.

In "The Happy Ending" a princess moans in a forest of brown canvas trees. Her soldier lover is dead. Her mother has passed on. And she hears them calling her. To her grossly physical father she is crack-brained and to her playmates she is a bit of a bug. But in the forest she finds a gentle spiritualist, a soft toned woodman, who also hears voices and understands the nearness of the other world. It is he who advises the princess to sleep, and in her sleep to dream, that in her dream she may know the realities of heaven. Which she does.

It is the visualization of her dream that forms the body of the play, which thereafter swings between heaven and earth, and shows her sometimes a wonderful mortal seated in the shadows before the footlights watching the passing celestial show and at other times a part of the pageant itself—meeting the mother who has been begging her to die these many years, and the lover who cannot understand why she should wait so long to join him.

With them she learns how simple a thing is the mystery of death and how happy a release. There is rejoicing in heaven at the report of a regiment's being wiped out on earth, and one of the few dramatic moments of the play comes at the end of the first act when such a regiment is heard approaching from the earth below gayly singing its way through the gates, voicing the old prophecy concerning the body of John Brown that lies a-mould'ring in the grave while his soul goes marching on.

At the end of the play, which reveals its one superbly impressive episode, if your patience has held you in the theater until that time, the king sits a lonely and dejected figure in the throne room of his palace, a massive affair in dark tones with towering French windows at back. The court violinist is playing soulfully and the music is occasionally interrupted by voices from the adjoining room, where the princess tosses in delirium.

Suddenly the boy scout, whose work it is to escort the spirit of the dead over the border line, appears at back. He has come for the princess, and with him are the mother and the soldier lover and a whole troop of children bearing flowers with which to strew her pathway.

Inside the sick room the doctor calls vainly for oxygen. Outside the angels smile at the ways of mortals. And advancing to the door of the sick chamber the little scout calls out, "In the name of Love I summon thee!" "But they do not understand, scout," interposes the mother. "O, very well," he replies, testily, "in the name of Death, then, I summon thee"

And out from the death chamber romps the princess to be folded in the arms of her waiting mother. Through the windows at back the sun breaks—that really wonderful light of heaven—and off go the host to the strains of welcoming music, while the lonesome king, still blind, still misunderstanding, still hopeless, sinks heavily and sadly back into his seat.

NEWS of the THEATERS

Basil Hallam, who became popular here while playing the juvenile rôle in "The Blindness of Virtue" at the Studebaker, was killed in action last month in France. He was a member of the Royal Aviation corps. Mr. Hallam is the second of that cast to fall in battle. Arthur Holmes-Gore, who played the clergyman, was killed earlier in the war.

Pierrot in "Pierrot the Prodigal" is to be played by Miss Marjorie Patterson, who is a member of the well known Bonaparte family. She is the author of two novels, and it is said she can act.

The Playhouse, now the Fine Arts theater, will be opened under the management of Messrs. Hardy, Sheehan, and Perry on Oct. 9 with "When the Rooster Crows," by A. R. Ranee.

Nearly all the men players in this season's "A Pair of Silk Stockings" are British soldiers, incapacitated from war by their wounds.

Cyril Maude comes from London with three plays. One is called "Jeff" and is from Stephen Leacock's "Sunshine Sketches," and the others are a dramatization of Thackeray's "The Newcombs" and "The Baskers," by Mrs. Clifford Mills.

A New York newspaper announces that Miss Maude Greenough, an American actress with London experience, will appear with Lew Ziegfeld in "Step This Way," a musical comedy to be produced next month.

Winthrop Ames has engaged an all-British company to act in "Hush!" Miss Cathleen Nesbitt, the beauty of the erstwhile Abbey Theater company, is one of the players.

Mr. Sothern's farewells were so golden last year that he will repeat them this season, and, no doubt, in other seasons until he is 80 and has a cork leg.

When Maurice Browne produces "Mrs. Warren's Profession" at the Playhouse Miss Dorothy Donnelly will play Mrs. Warren.

Winchell Smith is building a house near Farmington, Conn., at a cost of $125,000. He wrote "The Fortune Hunter," "The Boomerang," and "Turn to the Right."

Mrs. Richard Mansfield is preparing to revive "Old Heidelberg," with her son, George Gibbs Mansfield, in the leading rôle.

Miss Nora Bayes is the author of these lines:

"Two dogs met on a 'Frisco street,
Two dirty, hairy little dogs;
One looked quite spry and fairly neat;
The other like some mangy furs.
'What ails you?' said the dude dog;
'You're looking kinda punk.'
'Feel it,' said the other dog,
'And this here ain't no bunk:
'I haven't slept a wink this week,
'Gosh darn these awful fleas.'
'O, nix on that, you crazy freak,
'You must have some disease.
'No fleas can keep a dog from sleep,
'We're covered with them daily.'
'I know, but this Hawaiian flea
'Plays on a ukulele.'"

They are going to give New York a No. 2 company in "Nothing But the Truth." William Collier will have the rôle acted here by Grant Mitchell and later by Will Deming.

The J. Hartley Manners trilogy of intellectual dramas will be produced this season in New York by Mr. Manners' wife, Miss Laurette Taylor. Its items are "Happiness," "The Wooing of Eve," and "The Harp of Life."

Speaking of Percy Mackaye, we have often thought it would be a wonderful thing for the American stage if Luther Burbank could graft a little George Cohan on him. And a bit of Percy Mackaye wouldn't hurt George Cohan, either.—Heywood Broun in the New York Tribune.

Andreas Dippel, formerly director of the Chicago Grand Opera company, holds January in the Playhouse, where he plans to stage a new musical comedy by Horst and Engle, whose "The Blue Mouse" and "Girls" were made over for the American stage by the late Clyde Fitch.

"The Upheaval"—Five reel Metro drama, with Lionel Barrymore and Marguerite Skirvin playing the leads.

"The Victory of Conscience"—Lasky drama, picturing a man's struggle for regeneration. His success and life sacrifice for God and his country. Lou Tellegen and Cleo Ridgely play the leads.

"The Yellow Menace"—New Unity film service serial in sixteen episodes. Edwin Stevens plays the lead.

"Youth's Endearing Charm"—Six act Metro production, in which Mary Miles Minter is featured as a orphant, who through the kindness of fate makes a transition from the slums to a mansion.

The North Shore "Frolic."

Every day and every night along the north shore between Evanston and Lake Forest, many youths, maids, and matrons are rehearsing in schoolhouses and elsewhere for the Ravinia Frolic of Sept. 9.

Ravinia itself has become a community of signs and silences, under the direction of Mrs. Charles S. Mauran, who is perfecting a pantomime of "North Shore Types." In Evanston the pet of the park during the children's dancing season, 6 year old Miss Charlotte Andrews, is pursuing a final mastery of toes and posture, to show folks that the student artist days are turning out real dancers. Dancing occupies a prominent place on the frolic's program, and one of the features is to be the interpretative selections of Miss Helen Rosenfield of Highland Park.

Glencoe's "Le Danse Reminiscent" is being directed by Mrs. Charles Allison, and there are to be monologues and burlesques, and songs operatic and popular.

Some of the 100 young performers are:

Miss Marion Osborne,
Miss Betty Hoyt,
Miss Amy Dean,
Miss Ruth Dean,
Miss Augusta Fenger,
Miss Georgiana Owsley,
Miss Katherine Cushing,
Miss Margot Cushing,
Miss Helen Hoyne,
Miss Helen Warner,
Miss Olga Taylor,
Miss Louise Taylor,
Miss Grace Andrews.

Glencoe's "Le Danse Reminiscent" will contain:

Mrs. A. Brintnell,
Miss Katherine Jacobs,
Miss Agness Martin,
Miss Emma Wilmarth,
Miss Ethel Copeland,
Mr. A. Brintnell,
Mr. Whipple Jacobs,
Mr. Tom Pope,
Mr. Phillip King,
Mr. Husted Meyer,
Mrs. John King,
Miss Philoma Becker.

Kenilworth's ballet, "Dance of the Hours," will be given by:

Evelyn Isom, solo.
Miss La George Conda,
Miss Agnes Pease,
Miss Margaret Fitch,
Miss Louise Weart,
Miss Marion Keehn,
Miss Dorothy Foresman,
Miss Emily Foresman,
Miss Virginia Ridgeway,
Miss Carroll Sandborn,
Miss Edith Sandborn,
Miss Lucy Chandler.

Ravinia's Finale.

The final bill of the season at Ravinia will include Mme. Beriza, Morgan Kingston, and Henri Scott in the prison scene from "Faust"; also Millo Picco and Henri Scott will sing and Mlle. Galli will dance.

"Manon" is the opera for tonight, with Miss Wentworth and Messrs. Harrold, Scott, and Adkins in the cast. This afternoon's orchestral program is:

Overture—"Tannhäuser" .... Wagner
Largo from "New World" symphony .... Dvorak
Scherzo from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" ....Mendelssohn
Ballet music from "Le Cid" ....Massenet
Overture—"The Marriage of Figaro" .... Mozart
Fantasia for violoncello—"Le Desir" ..Servais
Walter Ferner.
Boyard's March..................... Halversen

Playbills of the Week

Illinois—"Mitzi," who used to be Mitzi Hajos, reopens this theater tonight in "Pom Pom," a musical comedy successful elsewhere. Tom McNaughton, one of the drollest of the musical comedians, is in the cast.

Garrick—Lew Fields in "Step This Way," a new version of "The Girl Behind the Counter."

Princess—"Margery Daw," which is about the romance between an elderly and elegant gentleman of means and his pretty ward. Miss Kathleen MacDaniel is charming in it.

Grand—"The Cohan Revue 1916," burlesquing with much success the recent dramas. Richard Carle, Harry Bulger, Elizabeth Murray, Charles Winninger, Frederick Santley, and Valli Valli are among its high lights.

Cort—"Fair and Warmer," a laughable farce, colored by frequent dashes of lavender.

Olympic—John Mason at his best in "Common Clay."

Powers'—"The Defective," a propagandist drama by an Oak Park doctor, emphasizing the advantages of sterilization. Monday night.

Palace—Vaudeville, with the Morgan dancers as the headliners. Jack Wilson and Miss Lillian Boardman, Miss Elsie Pilcer and Dudley Douglass, and many others will also participate.

Majestic—Vaudeville, with Miss Helen Lakaye as the headliner in the unique playlet "Overtones," by Miss Alice Gerstenberg. Among the alsos are Miss Louise Dresser in songs, and Bert Melrose, a clown, in feats of equilibrium.

Great Northern—Vaudeville in a double bill with the Metropolitan dancing girls, etc.

Logan Square—Vaudeville, with a musical sketch, "On the Veranda," at today's performances.

Imperial—"Any Man's Sister."

National—Miss Nancy Boyer in "The Little Lady from Lonesome Town."

PARKS AND GARDENS.

Riverview—Mardi Gras carnival, with the Tsingtau orchestra and many diversions.

THIS PIANO HOUSE
Has Not Raised Prices
On Cable Made Instruments Yet

FOR 35 years we have succeeded in meeting the rising cost of materials without advancing the prices of instruments of our own make. Ever increasing factory efficiency has enabled us not only to meet rising costs but to better our product and still retain our moderate charges.

However, should materials continue to advance there can be but one result—retail prices MUST go up. If then you have even a remote desire to own a piano or player-piano decide to select your instrument at once—this week. We guarantee our prices will be no lower but we cannot promise that they will not advance sharply and in the very near future.

Call or write today for factory catalogs of Conover, Cable, Kingsbury, and Wellington Pianos, Carola Inner-Players and Euphona Inner-Players. And details of our THREE YEARS TO PAY PLAN.

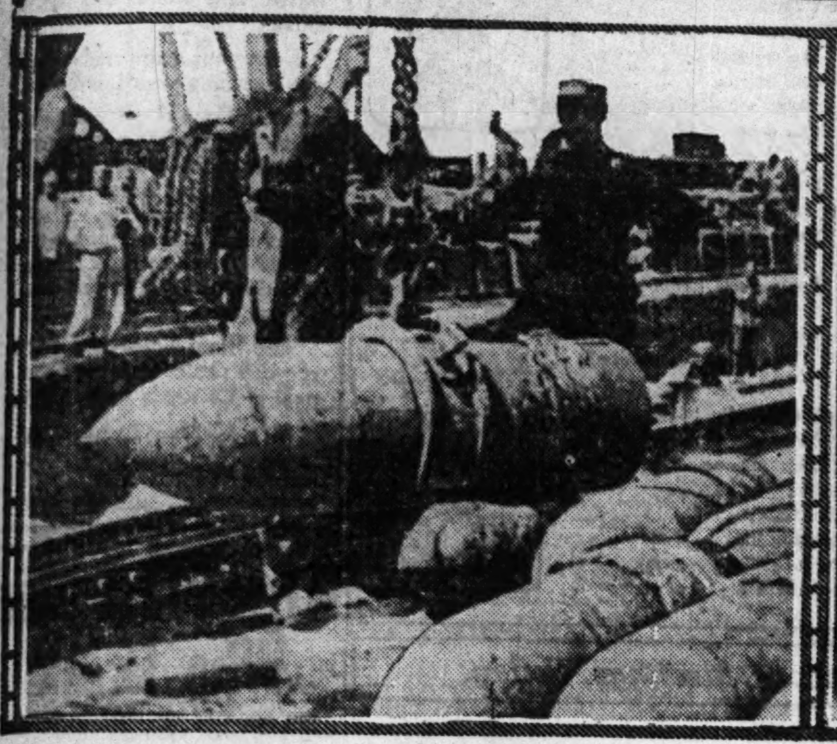
The Selig-Tribune—Semi-Weekly.

The World's Greatest News Film.

In the two issues this week are shown:

Number 70

Number 71

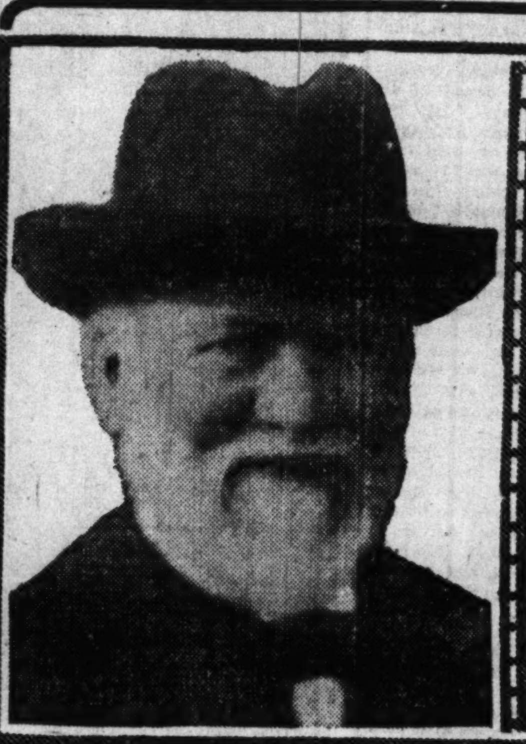


FOR MASTERY OF THE SOMME.

Millions of these mammoth, deadly shells are falling on the German trenches in the horrible conflict. As you see them in the picture you cannot help a shudder at the ominousness of them even in repose.

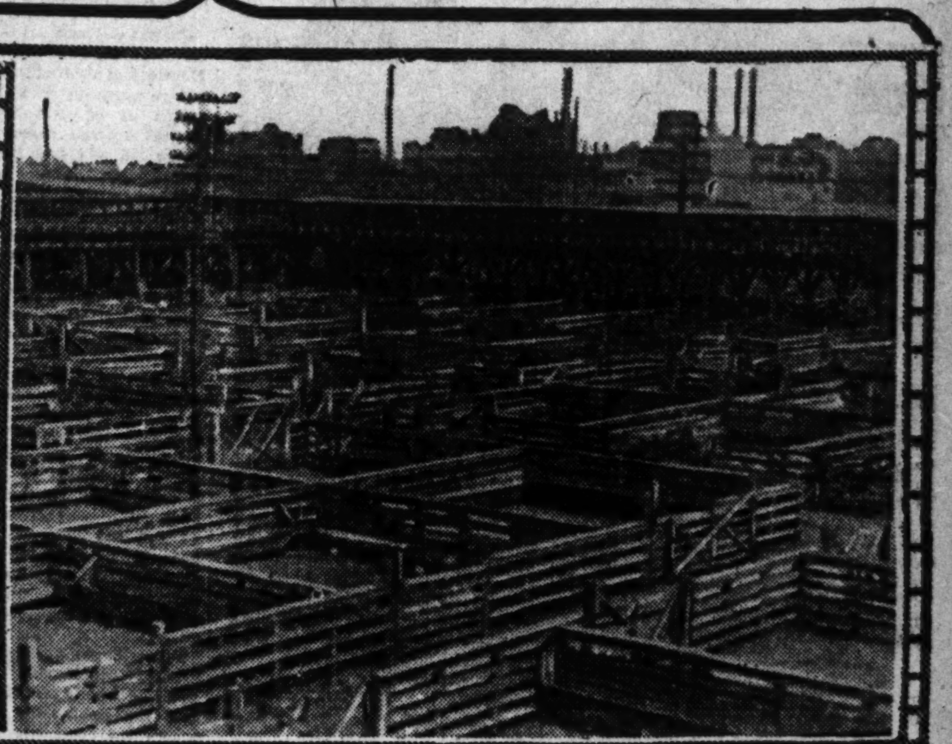
MY LADY—ARCHETH!

My lady, the world over, is certainly proving that she is some woman! You should see her—hundreds of her—competing in the thirty-eighth annual tournament of the National Archery association which took place in Jersey City, N. J., recently.



IS ANDREW CARNEGIE "DANGEROUSLY ILL"?

Andrew Carnegie, steel king and library patron, who was recently reported to be "dangerously ill" was "caught" by the camera as he came ashore at Bar Harbor, Me., from his yacht Surf. "Not sick, only tired," he said in answer to queries.



MEAT FOR THREE DAYS—THEN—

—What? The empty pens at the stockyards, shown in the film, filled twice a week, hold only a three day supply of meat. If the strike comes, they'll remain empty. Then—well, blessed will be the vegetarians!

ANNA LITTLE A BRIDE.

It certainly is some little item of news to hear that Anna Little, whose real name is Mary Brooks, and Allan Forrest, birthmarked with the name of Allan Fisher, were married in Santa Barbara the other day. They spent one day honeymooning and then went right back to work at their respective companies at the American studio. Congratulations.

The Selig zoo nursery added to its inmates last week three baby leopards. A noisy trio!

Into a beautiful new home which has just been completed for her on Long Island, Edith Storey, happy as a child, moved last week.

Ruth Stonehouse has been given her own company to direct and work has been started on a serial entitled "Mary Ann," which Miss Stonehouse wrote and in which she will play the lead.

Mrs. Vernon Castle has designed what she calls the Castle preparedness suit. She will wear it in her coming picture.

Webster Campbell has been engaged by the Lasky company to support Blanche Sweet—in pictures.

Lady Jane is lost and Mr. Kerrigan is in despair. Lady Jane, be it known, is his pedigreed Scotch collie and has been his constant companion since puppyhood—Lady Jane's puppyhood.

And Lottie and Jack Pickford have joined the Famous Players!

Thomas Meighan, when speaking of his school days, often refers to his excellent record as a football player. Funny he never talks of his studies.

Next time you see William F. Russell in pictures will probably be as lead in the $10,000 sequel to "The Diamond from the Sky." No, an announcement of the winner hasn't been made yet, but will be vurr' soon.

Francis Ford has the grip.

Anna Q. Nilsson has been engaged by the Ivan Film Productions company.

Artcraft Pictures corporation is the name for the new Mary Pickford company. Headquarters will be at 729 Seventh avenue, New York. The distributing concern is capitalized at $2,000,000 and will have exchanges in Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Seattle, Denver, Minneapolis, Chicago, Kansas City, Detroit, Cincinnati, Pitsburgh, and principal cities of Canada.

Owen Moore says: "My land, how in the world would I get time to write to photoplay fans when I don't get a chance to write home to my mother more than once or twice a year?" My land!

Marguerite Skirvin has quite an aviary, which includes canaries, parrots, a cockatoo, and a pair of mocking birds.

Three Best Sellers in Music

The three best sellers in Pathe records for the week were:

"Pretty Baby" and "We've Been Married Just One Year."

"Where Did Robinson Crusoe Go with Friday on Saturday Night?" and "I'm Going Home and Have a Wonderful Time."

"Have a Heart" and "When the Lights Are Low."

The Edison records that had the best sale were:

"I Want All the World to Know" and "Rackety Coo, Katinka."

"My Old Kentucgy Home" and "Gigue Pierrot Serenade."

"I Am a Roamer Bold" and "Spring Morning."

The most popular Victor records were:

"Blue Danube Waltz" and "Southern Roses Waltz."

"You're a Dangerous Girl" and "I'm Going Back Home and Have a Wonderful Time."

"Tales of Hoffman—Barcarolle."

The following were the best sellers in Columbia records:

"Down Where the Swanee River Flows" and "I Sent My Wife to the Thousand Isles."

"You're a Dangerous Girl" and "On the Old Dominion Line."

"Tannhauser Overture, Part 1," and "Tannhauser Overture, Part 2."

The best selling sheet music numbers for the week were:

"Love Me at Twilight."

"I Left Her on the Beach at Honolulu."

"By the Sad Luana Shore."

Maxwell motor cars have demountable rims and the same size tires on both front and rear wheels.

REMEMBER these important features, because they are not to be found on some of the lighter cars.

Maxwell cars have 3½ in. tires all around. This is a generous size. The tires are not overtaxed. They last longer and make riding easier.

Tires of one size mean that you have to carry only one size casing and one size tube.

Demountable rims, of course, are recognized as the best. They are on all good cars. Don't buy any car without demountable rims. If you do, you'll regret it.

These two features—along with the other complete and up-to-date equipment; the economy and proved endurance of the Maxwell, make it the greatest automobile value in the world today.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by FANNY BUTCHER

GEO. H. DORAN CO. PHOTO

J. D. Beresford and his son

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store:

FICTION.

"When a Man's a Man" [Book Supply], H. B. Wright.
"Nan of Music Mountain" [Scribner], Frank Spearman.
"Seventeen" [Harper], Booth Tarkington.
"The Thirteenth Commandment" [Harper], Rupert Hughes.
"Bonnie May" [Scribner], Louis Dodge.
"The Magnificent Adventure" [Appleton], Emerson Hough.

NONFICTION.

"Tramping Through Mexico" [Century], Harry Franck.

WAR.

"The Red Horizon" [Doran], Patrick MacGill.

WAR'S EFFECT ON LITERATURE.

J. B. BERESFORD, whose Jacob Stahl trilogy is one of the great things in the English novel, has written another book in that same slow, careful, detailed style. "These Lynnekers" (Doran) he calls it. What he thinks about the effect of the war on English literature is worth listening to, for he speaks with the conviction of the real novelist. He says:

> I see two concurrent lines of development, but which will eventually swamp the other I do not dare to say. One of these lines is the inevitable revival of romance, a general reaction against the intimidating facts of a realism which seemed likely only two years ago to be leading us to a new expression of the English novel.
>
> The present demand of the book public is for diversion and relaxation. Our readers are surfeited with the bitter horrors and facts of daily life—they do not want second hand reports of them. And this demand will inevitably have its effect upon production. Subsidiary to this reactionary phase, we shall witness as soon as the actual experiences of the war are modified by the passage of time (six months will do it) an output of books of every kind dealing at first hand with every aspect of the immense struggle. That phase, however, will obviously be evanescent.
>
> I come now to the second line, which must, for a time at all events, be somewhat in the background. I hope to find that our better realists, and more particularly I hope to find H. G. Wells, becoming more synthetic. All their comments on the social developments that in a sense, culminated in August, 1914, have been largely nullified. But even such a world-wide catastrophe as the war will not kill thought nor alter the essential, fundamental attitudes of the average man. Nevertheless, I think the criticisms of those writers whom I have typed by a single name will have to take a wider scope. The new conditions will be impermanent and will hold a greater potentiality for change. The need for harping on one string will be less; the need for practical, immediate suggestion immensely greater.
> But all these more or less logical deductions from known premises may be destroyed by the coming of genius. And genius may upset the most rational prophecy. I may, however, insist by way of summary on my primary statement, which is that for the next five years, at least, English literature will decline in quality. I see no hope of avoiding that inference. What is America going to do to fill the gap?

"An Introduction to The Study of Sociolog" [Appleton], by Edward C. Hayes, must be a pleasantly readable little text book. Prof. Hayes is the head of the sociology department at Champaign, about whom these statistics are given. When he took charge of the department there were twelve enrollments in the principles of sociology. Now there are 230 taking the course.

Word comes from England that John Galsworthy is spending the summer at "Wingstone," his home in Devonshire. His especial interest just now is arousing public interest is some permanent foundation for the lives of those who have been maimed in the war. "All the other miseries," he says, "whipped on by that fell huntsman, war—starvation, destitution, imprisonment, anxiety, grief—if they do not kill you, they pass. Maiming abides. Maimed for the duration of the war—that would be bearable, but maimed for the duration of life is the sacrifices that these have made and that we shall have to watch. And the grimness of it is that with each year, which leaves the war further behind we shall watch and feel for them the less—a hard saying but true—and they will feel the waste of their powers the more." With this appeal he is stirring England. When it is all over, the sword sheathed which is cutting war upon the hearts of the continent, he is coming over to America again, but not until then.

Did you happen to notice that "Innocents Abroad" (Harpers) was in the library of the Deutschland? Her captain is said to have grinned, "But that did not apply to us."

For the posthumous Siwash stories of George Fitch, to be called "Petey Simmons at Siwash" (Little Brown), Edmund Vance Cooke has supplied a biographical introduction. He says that Siwash is not Knox college but that, in memory of George Fitch's years at Knox, that college is going to have a chapter room of the fraternity to which George Fitch belonged, Beta Theta Pi, as a memorial to the creator of the fictitious college. Peoria, where George Fitch lived, is to place a tablet in the public library in his memory, and Galva, Ill., where George Fitch was born, is planning a monument to honor his memory.

Besides being a successful author Payne Erskine, or Emma Payne Erskine to give her full name, is the proprietor of several hundred acres of land in the most desirable part of the Blue Ridge mountains of North Carolina. When she isn't writing novels like "The Girl of the Blue Ridge" (Little-Brown) she is busy designing and building cottages for northern occupants. Lately Mrs. Erskine has been dividing her time between writing a new novel and planning a golf course.

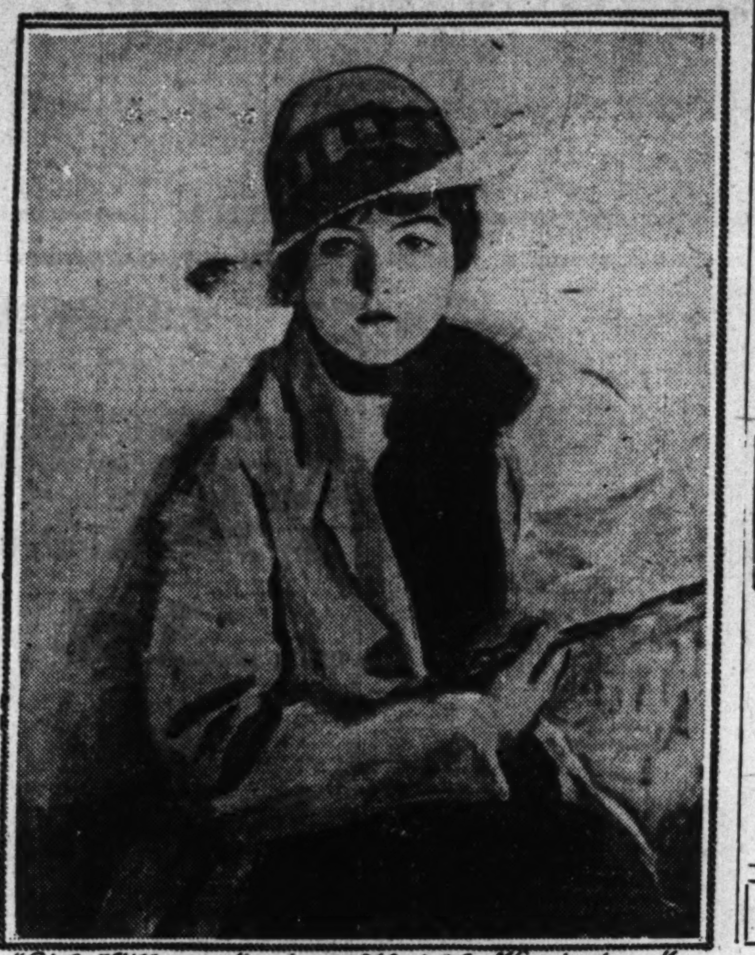
Charles G. Norris, author of "The Amateur" (Doran), husband of Kathleen Norris and brother of Frank Norris, is a Chicagoan by birth, although he deserted us in his babyhood. His first desire to write came when he was 10 years old and had just returned from Paris. By the time he was 11 he had written a long story called "In the Reign of the Grand Monarch," which dealt with the career of Louis XIV., and was about 2,000 words long. During his undergraduate days at the University of California he did little writing. He says now that it was because Richard Watson Tully and Eleanor Gates threw him into temporary eclipse with their work. After he left the university he was with Country Life in America, with Sunset magazine in San Francisco, and with the American magazine. While he was with the American he was always trying to get at the novel that he was planning to write but never seemed to get started at it. A year ago Mrs. Norris was taken ill and was ordered by the doctors to go to California for her health. The Norrises journeyed westward, and for the first time in his life Charles Norris found time to write his novel.

From England comes this news about "The Brook Karith," George Moore's novel of the life of Christ, which is promised for publication very soon by the Macmillan company. Copies of it have been distributed among likely people. It is an imposing book in many respects. The binding suggests a theological treatise or a handbook on law. The type and paper are Biblical in appearance. The absence of quotation marks in the dialogue and the unbroken pages and the number of them—nearly 500 closely packed pages—give the book a certain appearance of heaviness. But the book is far from heavy. I can say no more at present, save that it is dedicated to the lady who, eighteen years ago, in a moment of doubt, presented Moore with a copy of the Bible. It has been his constant companion ever since.

Houghton-Mifflin company announces a new printing of 20,000 copies of Kate Douglas Wiggin's "The Bird's Christmas Carol." That makes the sixty-seventh time the book has gone to press.

ART

By Louise James Bargelt



"Girl With a Mexican Hat" by Harrington Mann Now Hanging In the Collection of Contemporary British Artists

LOAN EXHIBITS FASCINATING.

IT is hard to stay away from the loan exhibits these days at the Art institute, they are so interesting to look upon from the standpoint of artistic beauty.

The two new collections, one of Cyrus McCormick's and one of Mr. Hutchinson's, are to be there for several weeks. In these collections and the exhibits of Mrs. Kimball and Frank Logan there are pictures from a great variety of countries and covering a long period.

The majority of the paintings are landscapes and the majority of the work is of the really great artists of the last three centuries.

Admirers of the French school of landscape can see some of the finest paintings of Rousseau, that epic poet of French natural scenery and the equal to many minds of the English Constable. Corot's "dream pictures," as he called them, are there. In Mr. Hutchinson's room there is a large Corot which in its mysterious beauty is a veritable elf land. The contrast between the two men is well brought out when their work is placed side by side. And Diaz, too, is there, with his wizard coloring; Daubigny, with his brush dipped in peace and quiet; Jacque, with no touch of anything in his pictures but harmony and pastoral contentment.

Before the English painters one senses a different note. Constable saw beauty in every phase of nature, but he saw great strength, too. He was neither romanticist nor sentimentalist. He loved skies that were turbulent and the heavy fogs and mists and moisture burdened air of his British isles.

And then there is Turner! Of all the paintings in the institute, temporary or permanent, I know of no such impressive piece of nature rendering as his picture which is now hanging in Mrs. Kimball's room. As Rembrandt painted the face of a man, so Turner painted a ship or a sea. All of his life he passed in comparative seclusion. People meant little or nothing to him. Nature meant everything. And because he spent the years of his life worshiping at her shrine she rewarded him lavishly. From her he wrested his greatest powers, going from strength to strength in the revelation of her many aspects until he became one of the most perfect of landscape painters.

The German and Dutch schools of painting are given deserved prominence. Schreyer in a desert scene; Meyer von Brennen in a simple picture of simple life, hang on the walls.

The exhibit of paintings by contemporary English painters continues to interest considerable numbers of people each day. The portraiture is the strongest part of the collection. There are some extremely vivid, forceful faces of men and women included in its number.

Benjamin Briscoe's Masterpiece

Benjamin Briscoe is one of the earliest pioneers of the motor car industry. He has built more than 250,000 light, moderate-priced cars. He has always concentrated on this division of the industry. There are more than a million cars now running that bear the mark of his genius, for he is the originator of the modern principle of radiation. As the climax of his career, Mr. Briscoe spent nearly two years in Europe, employing the most noted German, French and Swiss engineers, and at an expense of half a million dollars created the

THE CAR WITH THE HALF MILLION DOLLAR MOTOR

The Briscoe Four Twenty-Four is light but strong. It is rigidly built, evenly balanced, tested and proved. Here you will find ample leg room in front or rear seats for passengers six feet tall. The Briscoe Four Twenty-Four is as beautiful as it is sturdy. Its upholstery is the kind you see in cars at $1,000 and $1,200. Its sides are high and its seats are deep. The Briscoe Four Twenty-Four is fully equipped with every modern up-to-date convenience. You won't have to spend a cent for speedometer, gasoline gauge, demountable rims, one-man top, electric headlights, eye-saver ventilating windshield, electric starter, linoleum running boards and other conveniences, which, if you bought, would cost $200 or more! They are built in. Here's a real motor car for the family of moderate means and those, too, who are looking for real efficiency no matter what the price. You will own this Briscoe Four Twenty-Four with pride. It will give you happiness of possession.

Housewives Talk of Problems Rail Strike May Bring

By Mme. X.

STRENUOUS days lie ahead of us if, as seems inevitable at the present writing, the railway strike materializes. Some of the features of a siege will be the lot of urbanites and suburbanites alike. The question as to whether or no the wise and foresighted housekeeper should stock up with such provisions as will keep was discussed over the teacups and at bridge tables last week in many communities, and the conclusion was generally reached that the grocer could do this for us all.

In any event, a little taste of hardships won't hurt most of us. It will give us a realising sense of what our friends on the other side of the water are enduring and have been for months. And the following recipe of "Canada's war cake," which is published in the latest report from the French "war shop" in East Washington street, may come in handily to some housekeepers, if Jane Eddington will forgive this trespass on her territory. It is made without the three supposedly prime requisites for a good cake—butter, eggs, and milk—and is a great favorite with the soldier in the trenches as well as with the thrifty housewife.

Boil together for five minutes, having the mixture bubble before beginning your count, two cups of brown sugar, two cups of hot water, two tablespoons of lard, one package of seedless raisins, cut once, one teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of cinnamon, one teaspoon of ground cloves. When cold add one teaspoon of soda dissolved in one teaspoon of hot water. Then stir in three cups of flour and bake in two loaves forty-five minutes in a slow oven.

This cake has the added advantage of being even better at the end of a week than when first made.

Try this as the industrial storm clouds gather, and as you eat it discuss the relative merits of fighting and arbitration in the settlement of differences at home and abroad.

Hazards of Military Service.

It seems just now to be a world of strife in which we mortals have our temporary abode. It will be one of life's little ironies if the men who joined the national guard when the country seemed in peril of being embroiled in the European war, and then with noen too much satisfaction found themselves facing the possibilities of a more or less guerrilla war with half-civilized Mexicans, should get their first taste of active service in preserving the peace during the railway strike troubles.

The dangers of military service are not at all confined to meeting and fighting the enemy. One of the most lively hazards is the training of the green horses which our affectionately paternal government provides as mounts for our equally green troops. While foreign military experts are ransacking this country for the best horseflesh the stock raisers can produce for cannon fodder in Europe, our own war office is supplying our men with an unedifying, inferior brand of steeds, in consequence of which many serious accidents have added to the hardships of our plucky volunteers.

J. Norris Thorne, of a New York cavalry regiment in Texas, whose wife was Miss Zoe Hannah, a daughter of Mrs. John Hannah, formerly of Chicago, was several weeks ago kicked on the head by his mount, and is only just recovering from a severe case of concussion of the brain.

As a measure of security for her son-in-law, Sergt. Henry Stimson of the same regiment, Mrs. Hugh McBirney of Chicago gave him a first class horse when he first mustered in.

* *

Summer's Plans Upset.

The Mexican troubles and national epidemics upset many of the McBirneys' summer plans this year. In order to have their daughter, Mrs. Stimson, formerly Miss Isabelle McBirney, and her husband with them for the summer they took a most attractive house at Lawrence, Long Island. Next door to Cedarhurst is Lawrence, and near to the Rockaway Hunt club. Before they were even settled in it the government called Sergt. Stimson from his excellent law practice, and after weeks of preparatory drill at Van Cortlandt park stationed him at Fort McAllen, on the Mexican border. Infantile paralysis frightened Mrs. McBirney's other daughter, Mrs. Joseph Ryerson, away from her parents' Long Island abode, and the Ryersons brought their young son to his other grandparents at Lake Forest.

The sudden death a month ago of Day McBirney's only son, Hugh McBirney Jr., at Shelter island, of cerebro-spinal meningitis, added further to the summer's sorrows for the family, since which sad event Mrs. McBirney and Mrs. Stimson have spent much of their time at Shelter island, while Hugh McBirney has been in Chicago.

Mrs. McBirney and Mrs. Stimson will be in Chicago about Sept. 21 for a short sojourn. Mrs. Stimson will go from here to Texas, where she and her husband and some New York friends will spend an expected ten days' furlough at a Texas ranch, after which Mrs. Stimson plans to stay as near her husband as possible during the rest of his service on the border.

The Hugh McBirneys will be in Chicago this winter and are already looking for an apartment here.

Ravinia Has Prosperous Season.

The long, hot dry summer has been an ideal one for all open air enterprises. Ravinia has flourished as never before, its receipts for the first month totaling almost as much as those of an average season in other years. It has its last entertainment next Saturday with its annual festival gotten up by the various north shore communities.

Another fresh air undertaking has had a banner season and that is the Arden Shore camp, where a daily average of 525 women and children have been fed, sheltered, and in many instances clothed by the benevolent women who run this camp.

Counting its season as twelve weeks, which means eighty-four days, this is equivalent to caring for 44,100 people for one day, or, granting each sojourner a ten days' stay, 4,410 different dwellers in the city's worst districts had a chance to spend at least ten days in a lovely, leafy park on a high bluff hanging over the cool, wind swept stretches of Lake Michigan.

Furthermore, the guests at Arden Shore had an abundance of good, wholesome, well cooked food and milk. The women were taught to sew and make over for themselves or their children the large share of garments given for this purpose, while the mothers of wee babies were given instruction from trained nurses how to best care for these morsels of humanity. The children, meanwhile, had the time of their lives romping in the woods and fields and on the wide clean beach.

Camp Needs Money.

It ministers to our foolish vanity and pride in size to be told that this is the largest as well as the most complete camp of the kind in the world. But the very fact that this is so means that it takes money to run it, and to help raise this money Mrs. Thomas McInerny and Mrs. William G. Hibbard Jr. are organizing an open air entertainment in the latter's charming garden for next Wednesday evening. If weather be propitious, Mlle. Galli, our lovely Rosina, will spring out of the bosky depths of the Hibbard groves and will dance in the enchanting little open air theater Mrs. Hibbard has recently caused to be made on the brim of the mirroring pool which is such a feature of her gardens. Henri Scott will also contribute to the program some songs. After which there will be music and dancing on the canvas covered tennis court nearby.

If, by any evil chance, the weather, which has smiled so warmly on us all summer, should go back on its record, the entertainment will be moved to the Winnetka Woman's clubrooms. These are amply able to accommodate the undertaking.

Mlle. Galli is especially interested in contributing to this performance because so many of her country people are among the Arden Shorites. She has been living at Highland Park this summer, where she and other Italians, who have been playing at Ravinia, have had a little house and an Italian cook who supplied them with all the maccaroni, ravioli, risotto, and fritto misto they could eat. Though she has worked tremendously hard she says she has enjoyed the summer and the living "en villeggiatura," as the Italians say.

Nicolet Portraits on View.

Last Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Louis Laflin asked her friends to come in to see the two recently finished portraits of her sons, Ellsworth and Lloyd, painted by the French artist, Gabriel Nicolet. Delightful works of art both canvases are, even if one doesn't know the originals. As likenesses they are also most satisfactory to the people most concerned in this aspect of the pictures, Mr. and Mrs. Laflin. The artist has given personality and character to the two youthful figures that look out from the richly somber backgrounds.

M. Nicolet's next portrait commission is to be Mrs. "Charlie" Brown, who will be a most interesting study for a painter, with her striking coloring and decidedly Spanish type. M. Nicolet has also made a delightful little pastel portrait of Miss Elizabeth Farwell, the Francis C. Farwells' youngest daughter.

The Edward Ryersons are gradually acquiring a notable collection of family portraits. The latest addition to this gathering is an effective likeness of their eldest son, Joseph T. Ryerson, by Mrs. Ellen Emmett Rand (better known to many as "Bey Emmett"). This is a brilliant piece of work from one of America's foremost painters.

A recent portrait of Edward Ryerson himself, by the English artist, Harris Brown, is now framed and hanging in the beautiful drawing room of the Ryerson country home, "Havenwood," in Lake Forest. It is a dignified, impressive piece of portraiture, though the artist seems to the casual observer to have looked ahead some years and painted his subject as he will probably look in 1926.

Other family portraits hanging on the walls of "Havenwood" are an interesting old painting of an ancestor of Mrs. Ryerson's of the eighteenth century, painted full length and in the knee breeches, perruque and ruffles of that period; a notable likeness of Mrs Ryerson's father, the late Donald G. Mitchell, which is one of Gari Melcher's best pieces of work, and two of John Alexander's best canvases, a portrait of the Ryersons' only daughter, Mrs. Donald Frost of Boston, Mass., and one of Mrs. Ryerson herself, a picture which gave the artist himself as much satisfaction as anything he ever did.

Harris Brown left one other piece of art at Havenwood—a great flamingo, which, caught in long, level flight, with pink legs trailing behind, now, from the top of a giant flagpole set on the broad lawns to the south of the Ryerson Italian mansion, fronts the breeze and shows the inquirer which way it blows. It's a stunning bit of landscape adornment.

Novel Hobby for Amateurs.

Nowadays no garden or country house is quite complete without its weathervane. For years the high pooped, Dutch galleon has been a feature of the Howard Shaw gardens as it whirled now this way, now that.

The designing and execution of weathervanes is an art in itself, and the most noted amateur in this part of the world is Vide K. Spicer of Kenilworth, who in odd hours carves and paints the most enchanting birds and ships, viking crafts, or Spanish caravels, and poises them on lofty standards or on arched trellises in gardens. It is a novel and original hobby and one well worth the attention of others of artistic instincts.

Mrs. Spicer, who is also artistic, is at present devoting herself to designing and fashioning gargoyles, a hitherto neglected field since the old days of Gothic architecture when Notre Dame was built. Mrs. Spicer's garden is one of the loveliest examples of the gentle cult of gardening to be found on the north shore. It is small, but so cleverly designed as to give space and privacy as well as a wealth of color. Its latest ornament is a pool with lilies growing in one corner.

Speaking of gardening, why did the builders of Lake Forest's picturesque village square plant it with elms? Are elms customary in an architectural setting like this one—a setting which smacks of southern Germany and the Tyrol? Won't these elms in time grow lofty and branching and dwarf the adjacent structures?

Nowadays the architect and landscape designer must beware of the great light that is spread abroad by such agencies as the garden clubs and such a course on landscape gardening as Prof. Root's recent one in Lake Forest. We are growing sophisticated and observing.

FUTURE EVENTS.

On Nov. 4 Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pemberton Wurts of 1212 North State parkway will introduce their daughter, Miss Henrietta Wurts. Miss Elizabeth Grey will be presented by her aunt, Mrs. Julian S. Mason, on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 18, at a tea to be given at Mrs. Mason's home, 1355 North State street. On Friday evening, Nov. 24, Mrs. Howard Van Doren Snow and Mrs. John Buckingham will introduce their daughters, Miss Sylvia Shaw and Miss Harriet Buckingham.

The Ravinia Frolic of 1916, under the auspices of the Ravinia club, will take place Saturday evening. The accomplished amateurs of the north shore will furnish the program, which will be preceded and followed by dancing.

The Chicago Yacht club will have a concert and dinner dance tomorrow afternoon and evening instead of the usual Tuesday evening dance.

The annual children's sport carnival at the Winter club in Lake Forest will be held this year on Friday, Sept. 15. This week all the tennis players under 15 years of age along the north shore will have a tournament. The girls' singles will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, the boys' singles on Thursday and Friday, and the mixed doubles on Sept. 11, 12 and 13.

The usual weekly informal dancing parties at the Country club of Evanston will be given on each Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock during September. On Friday evening, Sept. 15, each member of the club may invite one guest. Mrs. A. Fletcher Marsh will be the hostess. The finals in the tennis doubles will be played tomorrow afternoon.

The Arden Shore Summer camp will be the beneficiary of a charming affair on Wednesday evening in the gardens of Mrs. William Gold Hibbard Jr., at Winnetka. Mrs. Hibbard has added to her beautiful garden this summer a grassy stage, picturesquely set, just back of the cool, green pool, surrounded by hemlock, forming natural entrances. It is here that the artists will appear. There will be general dancing on the tennis court after the program.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the "feast o' lanterns" next Wednesday evening on the lawn of St. Ambrose church, Forty-seventh street and Ellis avenue. The Ambrose Men's club has completed arrangements. Among the girls, garbed in oriental array, who will sell flowers are Miss Ethel Burnham, Miss Mary Munday, Miss Anna Jenkins, Miss Ethel Dwyer, Miss Florence Maloney, Miss Madeline Hardin, Miss Margaret Fallon, and Miss Mary and Miss Catherine Lanahan. The Misses L. and G. Quinn have provided the program. Mrs. John W. Rainey, Mrs. J. D. Cain, and Mrs. Harry J. Tansy are to take care of Rebecca's well, and in the refreshment booth will be Miss Marie McGuinn, Miss Mary Foley, Miss Elizabeth Hamel, and Miss Catherine Sheridan. The cigar booth is in the care of Miss Lillian Sheridan, Miss Catherine Mahoney, and Miss Ida and Miss Margaret Hayden. The feature of the two evenings of the fête will be "college night," on Thursday evening.

The officers and directors of the Chicago Culture club, with their husbands, will be entertained by Mrs. H. T. Woodman at her summer home at Lake Zurich on Wednesday.

The Onwentsia club program for tomorrow will be:

9 a. m.—The Byron L. Smith Memorial cup. Presented by the Onwentsia club to be played for annually on Labor day, at thirty-six holes, match play, handicap vs. par, the cup to remain the property of the club and winner to have his naame engraved thtereon and to receive a miniature cup.

9 a.a m.—Medal play handicaap, eighteen holes. For Onwentsia trophy.

2 p. m.—The Weight-for-Youth cup. Presented by Slasaon Thompson.

Medal play handicap, eighteen holes.

Match game between picked polo teams at 4:30 o'clock.

Music afternoon and evening.

Tomorrow at the South Shore Country club there will be special golf contests, with a Labor day shoot, tennis, bathing and a tea dance on the outdoor platform from 4:20 to 7 p. m. There also will be dancing during dinner and from 9:30 to midnight out of doors. In case of inclement weather dancing will be in the ballroom.

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin of Lake Forest are planning to go to Green Lake, Wis., for several weeks.

Black and White Ball the Event of the Summer.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It was a clever idea of Mrs. J. Hamilton Rice to give a black and white ball last week for the benefit of the dependent families of the national guardsmen now at the border. How clever no one fully realized until the event itself proved so highly successful. It not only kept the decorations and costumes within modest color limits, as befitted a war charity,

Miss Roberta Willard

but it taxed the originality of both colonists and their modistes in the preparation of something to wear, which is always a desirable mental exercise.

It was easily the event of the summer in point of social briliance, both as to the quality and extent of the attendance. Literally every one was there. It was a most successful charity, too, seeing that $3,000 was realized for the needy members of those young patriots' families who ran for the border at the first call to arms. On the word of a dowager who has attended practically every affair of importance in Newport these last twenty years, it never has been surpassed in some respects. Of course, one can't place too much dependence upon the reminiscences of dowagers, but the ball has caused as much comment as any we have heard discussed in recent years.

And, not content with one sensation, Mrs. Rice also announced immediately after the party that she and Dr. Rice were about to leave for another journey up the Amazon and Orinoco rivers. The doctor is noted as a South American explorer, and Mrs. Rice, who was the former Mrs. George D. Widener, widowed by the Titanic disaster, has already accompanied him on a similar expedition. They will make the trip in their large steam yacht, the Alberta. Leaving the boat, they expect to push some distance into the exterior.

Much of the talk of the black and white party, to return briefly to that event, concerned the costumes. Miss Roberta Willard, whom many consider the handsomest girl in Newport this season, was dressed as a nautch girl, in a white satin Turkish costume, her coiffure embellished with pearls.

Mrs. Charles De Loosey Oelrichs was also a dancing girl, but of a different type, with a costume of black satin elaborately embroidered with jet trimmings and rhinestones, and Mrs Richard T. Wilson wore a long trained skirt of clinging black satin, devoid of any trimming whatsoever, and a corsage of rhinestones so closely set that some one insisted it resembled a garment fashioned from "cloth of diamonds."

Miss Natalja Willard, who, incidentally, had a narrow escape from drowning at Bailey's beach the other day, impersonated "Night." Of course, there had to be a "Night," even at a fashionable ball, but this one happened to be an attractive design in black tulle, embroidered with stars of brilliants.

Miss Edith Deacon's gown attracted much attention because of its unique trimming. The foundation was silver cloth, and scattered over the surface were rosettes of tiny black ostrich tips held in place with rhinestones studded with knots of white lace.

The governors' wives, Mrs. R. Livingstone Beeckman of Rhode Island and Mrs. Charles Whitman of New York, were attractively gowned. Mrs. Beeckman wore a trained court costume of black and silver brocade with a knee length necklace of pearls, and Mrs. Whitman an evening gown of black lace studded with jet. Pearls were her ornaments.

In the Receiving Line.

Canvas was stretched for out of door dancing, and over the lawn were scattered all manner of catch-dollar devices to swell the funds. Khaldah Bey told flattering fortunes for high prices, and sold horoscopes for a mere fraction of the wealth they promised to bring to their possessors.

The receiving line was impressive. It included Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. George Henry Warren, Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Mrs. Forsyth Wickes, Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Whitman, Mrs. J. Stewart Barney, Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mrs. Harold Brown, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. John R. Drexel, Mrs. Elisha Dyer Jr., Miss Mabel Gerry, Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, Mrs. Pembroke Jones, Mrs. James Lanier, Mrs. Ogden Mills, Mrs. Starr Miller, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, Mrs. John Sanford, Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer, Mrs. William Payne Thompson, and Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombley.

Another party of some pretentiousness is being planned for the aid for the Prince of Wales' national relief fund and Queen Mary's Needlework guild of England. It will be given at Newport Beach and enlist the services of all our most interested pro-allies, including Mrs. John R. Drexel, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, Mrs. Vincent Astor, who is just now away on a short cruise in the Noma with young Mr. Astor; Mrs. J. Laurens Van Alen, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. Joseph E. Widener, Mrs. Harry La Montagne, and Mrs. Murragh O'Brien, wife of the military attaché of the British embassy.

The cottagers "and many others" rubbed elbows last week at the exhibition of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's art collection. The paintings and statuary represent the largest private collection ever placed on view in Newport, and include all of Mrs. Whitney's best known marbles, bronzes, and plaster casts. On the lawns outside the Art association's new home have been scattered several of Mrs. Whitney's models for fountains, including her huge Aztec design, intended for the bureau of American republics in Washington. The Whitneys this week are to give a dinner at their Bellevue avenue home to celebrate their twentieth anniversary.

The sailor men, or rather those who order the sailor men about, are still socially active hereabouts. The victorious red fleet, which under the masterly strategy of Admiral T. Mayo succeeded last week in eluding or blowing up or doing something equally disastrous to the blue fleet that was defending the Woolworth and other buildings, including all our best Fifth avenue residences, was in harbor Sunday, and the admiral received congratulations aboard his flagship. He spent a part of the time promising that if trouble should come he would immediately transfer his services to the defense of New York. Therefore there was no cause to worry.

Miss Marie Buhmann was elected president of the Alumnæ association of St. Patrick's academy, Washington and Oakley boulevards, at a recent meeting. The association will start soon a Red Cross class in first aid and nursing, and a class in parliamentary law which will begin in November.

Funds Needed to Lift Mortgage on Frances Home

By Hazel Whitaker.

SOME one has accused the average clubwoman of liking a "pretty pet" for her philanthropy, hence explaining the fact that it is difficult to interest her in the more sordid, unhappy phases of human needs that are to be found in this big city. But such is not the case with the women who are interested in the Frances Juvenile home, the only institution of its kind in the country.

Back in 1909 a nurse from the county hospital realized the dire need of a place where able bodied little children afflicted with diseases could be given medical attention and at the same time receive regular schooling. So it was that with a few hundred dollars at her command she started such a home. The difficulty of financing it was and still is a great problem because it is not classed as an industrial home, hence can receive no state contribution. But that there is great need of such an institution is shown by the fact that it has already outgrown its original headquarters in Indiana avenue and made necessary the buying of a larger building.

The new fourteen room home at 433 East Forty-second street is admirably suited to the needs and is in charge of women especially fitted for the work. Here again the board has to face a big problem, for to secure the competent services so necessary it must pay higher salaries than would be demanded under ordinary conditions.

Soon the $4,000 mortgage on this home will have to be met, hence the directors are especially anxious to make the benefit card party on Wedensday a financial as well as a social success. It is to be given in the afternoon at the Edgewater Beach hotel, and tickets, which are $1, can be secured from Miss Erlenborne at the hotel or from Mrs. Richard Fischer, 7336 Oglesby avenue.

The home is supported by subscriptions, solicited and voluntary, a life membership costing $200, a sustaining $5, an associate $3, and a general $2. The annual per capita cost of maintenance averages $300 a child, and it is seldom that one is dismissed as cured under a year. Over thirty-five were cured last year and about that many are regular residents all the while, receiving the best of medical attention and schooling, for the board of education has equipped a schoolroom in the home and supplies a teacher for their instruction.

In the six years of its existence the home has cared for several hundred children, most of whom would otherwise have had no medical attention and would probably have remained lifelong menaces to themselves and the world at large. The county hospital is the only other institution that admits these little patients, and it can keep them only during the acute stage. A recent survey of the city shows that over 1,000 children thus afflicted annually come under the observation of the hospitals and dispensaries.

Every Friday the active members of the board are to be found at the home, sewing either for the children or now for the bazaar, which is to be held on Nov. 3 and 4 at the Lakota hotel. They take orders for lingerie and all kinds of fancy articles, such as are suitable for Christmas presents. Pound parties are held every third Friday and at present the need for both food and children's clothing of all kinds is especially great.

The officers for 1916 are: Mrs. Anne X. Smith, president; Mrs. Frederick G. Harris, first vice president; Mrs. Richard Fischer, second vice president; Mrs. John R. Thompson, third vice president; Mrs. A. Lincoln May, recording secretary; Mrs. Edward Hyman, corresponding secretary; W. R. Dawes, treasurer; Miss M. A. Erlenborne, assistant treasurer.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS.

The wits and wisdom of some of the cleverest women in Chicago are in almost daily demand these days for rehearsals for the women's country fair to be held on Sept. 23 under the direction of the Brownleigh club. The fair will be given entirely by members of the club and the booths and other attractions will occupy the entire sixteenth floor of the Stevens building, where the club has its home. There are to be booths with all sorts of articles for sale, and a program of entertainment, which will include numbers furnished by some of the talented members of the club, serious and comic. A concert, a minstrel show, bits of dramatization, and fancy dancing are among the numbers scheduled. The booths will include a "good fairy" grotto, where one may make a wish and have it come true on the spot, and vanity, utility, candy, flower and tintype booths. Mrs. Claire A. Carman, who is vice president of the club, is chairman of the fair and in charge of the subcommittees. Mrs. Ella Cutler is president of the club, Miss Clara Louise Hagins recording secretary, Miss Evelyn M. Seguin corresponding secretary, and Miss Margaret H. Brown treasurer. Miss Mary M. Bartelme and Miss Harriet Vittum are prominent in the affairs of the club. Miss Josephine L. Malone is one of the members of the flower committee.

On Wednesday the P. E. O. society will lunch in the south room of the Marshall Field tearooms at 12 o'clock. Chapter A will be hostess.

There will be a meeting of the Hoosier Women's Round Table on Oct. 12 in the rooms of the Central Eleanor club in the Stevens building. It will be James Whitcomb Riley day. Mrs. John Wesley Gray, president of the club, will preside.

Oct. 11 is the date selected by the Medical Woman's club for its first meeting this season. A tea was held last Wednesday afternoon in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

There will be a board meeting of the Sunbeam league on Wednesday at 9:30 a. m. in the east room of the Hotel La Salle.

There will be a meeting of the Prince of Wales chapter, Daughters of the British Empire, at the Auditorium hotel on Saturday at 2 o'clock. A program of English songs will be given.

The officers and directors of the Chicago Culture club, with their husbands, will be entertained by Mrs. H. T. Woodman of 2010 Warren avenue, at her summer home at Lake Zurich on Wednesday.

On Wednesday the Chicago Woman's auxiliary of the Railway Mail service will meet in room 913, Masonic temple, at 12 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at 1 p. m. These meetings will be held every first Wednesday of each month.

Mrs. William Severin, president of the Republican Woman's association of Illinois, has invited Republican women of all factions to attend the first meeting on Tuesday at the Hamilton club at 2:30 p. m. The speakers will be the gubernatorial candidates, Col. Frank O. Lowden, Col. Frank L. Smith, and Senator Morton D. Hull, and the candidates for attorney general, Senator Richard J. Barr, Edward J. Brundage, George H. Wilson, Fayette Munroe, and Walter M. Provine. Luncheon reservations may be made with Mrs. Robert R. Levy. Mrs. Dora Earle is program chairman. Alvin T. Hert and James R. Garfield of the national Republican campaign committee are invited as guests of honor.

With the annual election of officers for the ensuing year on the program for the first meeting of the new club year, the Virginia Colony club will meet Wednesday at the Hotel Morrison. Mrs. Charles M. Aldridge, the chief for the last year, is spending the summer at a resort and will not return home in time to attend the meeting. She failed to announce her candidacy before leaving the city, or express her wishes to have her name presented for reëlection, but her friends will ask that she be reëlected. Mrs. Charlotte Rhodus, president of the Woman's Party of Cook County, is to be the guest of honor at the meeting, and will address the members on their civic duty. A luncheon is to be served at 1 o'clock.

The name of the Artcraft institute will be changed to the Vocational Art institue, according to an announcement made by Mrs. T. Vernette Morse. "This name has been selected," reads the statement, "as more in accord with the modern tendency of education since the passage of the Smith-Lever and other vocational bills."

NORTH SIDE CLUBS.

On Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. the regular Twenty-fifth Ward Woman's Republican club will hold its monthly meeting in the crystal ballroom of the Edgewater Beach hotel, 5345 Sheridan road. It will be the last meeting prior to the primary elections.

A picnic will be held today at Leo Brees' grove at Touhy and Lincoln avenues under the auspices of the Twenty-sixth ward organization of the Illinois Woman's Democratic league. There will be automobiles leaving Winnemac and Lincoln avenue for the grove from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. Candidates in the coming election will speak. There will be games and races. Mrs. J. L. Lowenthal is president of the organization and Mrs. Mary C. Callahan is secretary.

The members of the North End club will give an automobile parade on Thursday, starting at 1 p. m. from Sheridan road and Byrn Mawr avenue, to the loop and return to the same place, where a Chautauqua will be held from Sept. 5 to 11 for the benefit of the North End club.

There will be a meeting of the Woman's club of the German Old People's home on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Bismarck garden, Halsted and Grace streets.

WEST SIDE CLUBS.

The Alumnæ association of St. Patrick's academy, Washington and Oakley boulevards, at its annual meeting, elected the following officers: President, Miss Marie Buhmann; vice president, Miss Clara Joyce; secretary, Miss M. Josephine Ryan; treasurer, Miss Ethel MacFarlane. The alumnæ are planning an interesting year. A Red Cross class in hygiene, first aid, and home nursing is under way. The class is known as the "Alumnæ of St. Patrick's Academy unit." The class is held at the Academie la Fayette, 5948 Winthrop avenue, with Miss Eva Mack of St. Luke's Hospital Training school in charge. The association is also planning a class in parliamentary law to begin in November.

Miss Harriet Vittum, civic director of the Woman's City club, will make the address at the civic concert at 3 p. m. today at Garfield park. A musical program will be given.

SUBURBAN CLUBS.

The date of the historical pageant of Palos township, which will be given in Palos Park, has been set for Saturday afternoon, Sept. 16. The general pageant committee consists of Mrs. Ballard Dunn, Miss Catherine McClaughry, and Thomas Quin. Other members of committees are: Grounds, Alfred F. Pashley; dramatics, Thomas Quin; transportation, Edward M. Tourtelot; general music, Mrs. S. F. Klohs; orchestral music, Otto Schmidt; pageant dancing, Miss Dorothy Ostrander; relics, Mrs. Jacob Rodatz, John Kelly, and Peter Lucas; press, Mrs. Alfred F. Pashley. Rehearsals of the different episodes depicting the stirring history of Palos from 1673 are in progress on the out of door stage, the principal parts being played by the descendants of the first white settlers of the township.

The first meeting of the Brookfield Woman's club will be held on Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Albert L. Porter. There will be a board meeting at 10 a. m. at the home of Mrs. S. W. Cooper.

LONDON SOCIETY.

English Nobility Is Golden Goose to Stage Stars.

BY A MEMBER OF THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE STAFF.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—A garden party was given the other day at the town residence of the Duke of Westminster—the same palatial mansion from which he locked his wife a few years ago when she was said to have come home late at night from a fête with another gallant. I believe, at least, that this was the legend. You will, if you care to take the trouble, find a lengthy account of it in the columns of THE TRIBUNE.

I went to the lawn fête. It was to raise money for something. I do not think, however, that they raised so very much, for although the fee was high enough to make you stand on tiptoe, not many came. The English do not seem to part with their money so unconcernedly as Americans in the name of parties, garden and other. Whereas we are standing in line for the privilege of entering Mrs. Vanderbilt's front door at any price whatever, the Britisher seems to get on quite comfortably without ever penetrating the portals of the Duke of Westminster.

Maybe this is because society over here has been established for so much longer; maybe it is because if there is one idea the English public have firmly embedded in the groundwork of their philosophy it is that they cannot get into high society, however hard they try. However, this is not to be a sociological article, but one on smart society—even though a great lady of the land did tell me the other day that as one result of the war you would see people of different classes talking together in the restaurants, so great was their interest in a common subject. The big end attained so far, I should say!

But to get to my subject: The town house of the Duke of Westminster is beautiful. It contains a collection of pictures more valuable than those of the Art institute, and the residence itself [come to think of it] reminds me in its size and rambling extent somewhat of our home of art. The grounds are almost as vast as those of the lake front, but lie more privately enshrouded in trees and hemmed in by high walls. Hereabouts stalls were established for the fête and presided over by such celebrities as Lady Diana Manners.

* *

And No Place to Go.

When I arrived the theatrical part of the program was going on. I knew at once that I was in England. Some good American colored boys were seated in a half moon at the back of the stage. They had been giving some numbers. Raymond Hitchcock was singing. The title of his song was, "All Dressed Up and No Place to Go."

The colored boys were killing themselves laughing. The English audience was looking at Mr. Hitchcock up through their eyebrows, with eyes thrust forward and chins drawn in, while the lower jaw dropped just a little. Not a flicker of a smile illumed their visages. Indeed, they seemed a little reflective and sad. I mentioned to my companion that the subject matter of this song too nearly hit their own cases to be a funny song to them. Have you ever sat in an English parlor after dinner, when all of the women were dressed in costumes of only one dimension [which is length] and cut low in the neck, while the men sit stiffly about in evening clothes, and nobody does anything whatever except knit? How could such a nation laugh over the subject of Mr. Hitchcock's song?

When this program was finished, a game of tennis was announced. Everybody hurried to the grounds and chairs were arranged. I hurried with my own chair and placed it in the front row. A large number of women were standing about, all of them hanging over chairs and putting themselves out to be extraordinarily gracious to a certain elderly British woman. I sat down promptly, and observed to my companion, "That is one type of English woman." I nodded to the one to whom they were all so polite. "She is elderly and English people are nice to their elders." I made the concession to the nation. "Why don't the people sit down?" I asked.

* *

Queen Talks of Dogs.

Presently the one to whom they did deference did sit down, and then the others did so, too. Later in the afternoon I inquired of a young girl at Lady Diana Manners' booth who the elderly, slim lady might be.

"Queen Alexandra," she answered. The queen had on a wig of a different color from the one I had last seen her in and I did not know her. I was sorry that I had sat down. I do not understand yet how it happened that the British nation did not as a whole tell me to stand up. Anyway, I can now forever say that I have listened to a queen converse. Like all the rest of her countrywomen, she pursued the vital subject of dogs. The way to do, according to the conversation, is to get them when they are very little and bring them up yourselves. "Then they will love you." Queen Alexandra is a little deaf and hesitating in speech, and I, who sat three seats away, missed nothing of the conversation.

I treated of a subject a week or two ago to which, it seems, I came nowhere near doing justice. It was the matter of the reception by the English of actors and actresses. With rich Americans for years past doing their best to buy their way into English society, actors walk right in! Mr. Hitchcock and Ethel Levy, divorced wife of George M. Cohan, were hosts at a table at the luncheon preceding the fête! They were the ones invited to play tennis before the guests—although neither of them can play, so far as I can make out.

* *

It's Home for Actors.

Mr. Hitchcock is having quite a friendship with Lady Dinana Manners, that is causing a great deal of comment. Miss Levey is invited everywhere. She sang during the theatrical performance of the afternoon. It was the poorest thing on the number, but she received great praise. I cannot imagine why all of the actors and the actresses in the United States do not emigrate to England. Miss Olga Nethersole was present and very popular. Mrs. Clara Butt acted as hostess. Maxine Elliott was there, as was also Lady Tree.

Here are three verses written by Sir Philip Burne Jones and brought in at the luncheon like liquors. They concern Raymond Hitchcock, Ethel Levy, and Lloyd George, respectively:

All dressed up and nowhere to go,
O, that was not exactly so.
Once, when I met him,
He hadn't taken any pains,
Yet every one who entertains
Was mad to get him.

Of Miss Ethel Levey it was written:

This charming lady offers us the most bewild'ring choice:
We can hardly watch her footsteps for the beauty of her voice;
Yet, when we try to catch the sounds, this is the strangest thing,
We find her dancing so entrancing we cannot hear her sing!

And this to Lloyd George:

Deathless amid the records of our race,
His honored name shall hold illustrious place,
And generations yet unborn shall read:
"He saved his country in her hour of need."

The verses disclose more convincingly than columns of argument the attitude of the British aristocracy toward "the profession."

ASTRONOMY

BY CLIFFORD RAYMOND

URANUS.

URANUS virtually defies the unaided eye. One skilled, keen, and perceptive may find it, but for the ordinary observation it is useless to look for it unless with an opera glass. Even so low powered an instrument as an opera giss will reveal it and its green color, and the fact that it moves, as a planet, among the stars, may serve to identify it.

At present it is in the constellation of Capricornus, which is distinct in the south. It is at the zenith, or in mid sky, about 10 o'clock, and its position may be determined by use of the sky maps given above.

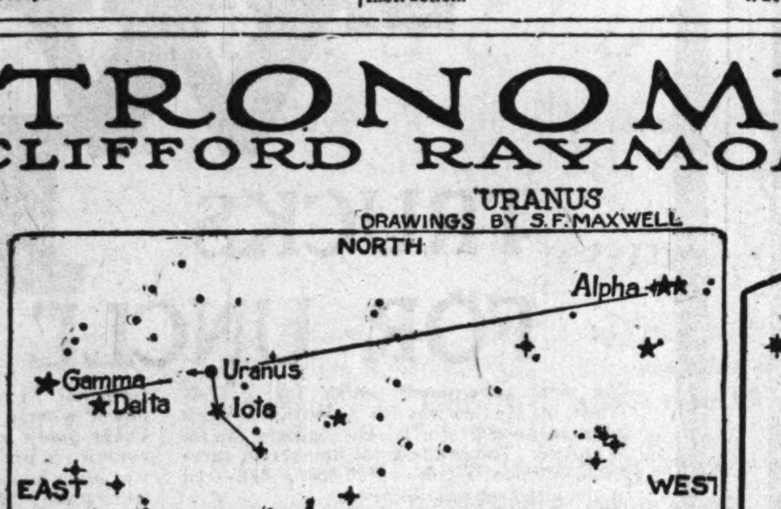
To the west of it Antares, the red star, will be just above the horizon and to the east Fomalhaut will have arisen. Capricornus is a well defined formation of stars between these two southern suns, closer to Fomalhaut than to Antares.

Uranus is the seventh planet in order from the sun. Beyond it is Neptune, the outpost of the solar system, so far as is known. Uranus, interesting in its own peculiarities, is further interesting in that the discovery of it led to the discovery, by mathematics, of the presence of an unknown planet beyond it, which was found to be Neptune.

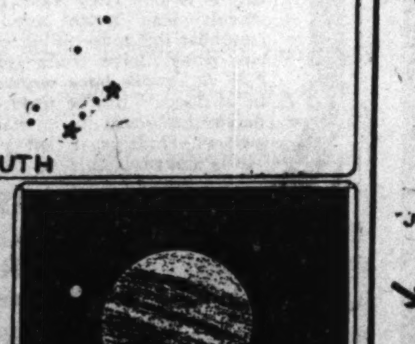
The course pursued by Uranus indicated that it was influenced in the compelling scheme of gravitation by a body which was not known to exist. The fact that it was so influenced proved that the exterior planet, unseen and unknown, did exist. With mathematical astronomy proving this to be a certainty, Neptune, the outpost of the solar system, was found.

Uranus is about nineteen times as far from the sun as is the earth, which is the third planet in order from the sun. The earth's distance from the sun is about 93,000,000 miles and its diameter is about 8,000 miles. The distance of Uranus is about 1,800,000,000 miles and its diameter is a little less than 32,000 miles. Uranus requires a period slightly over eighty-four years to make its revolution about the sun.

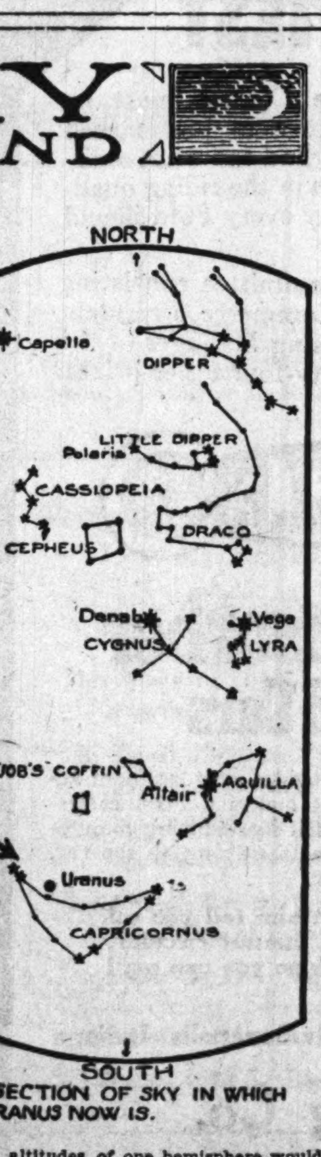
URANUS
DRAWINGS BY S. F. MAXWELL



THE CONSTELLATION OF CAPRICORNUS IN WHICH URANUS NOW IS.



A TELESCOPIC VIEW OF URANUS



SECTION OF SKY IN WHICH URANUS NOW IS.

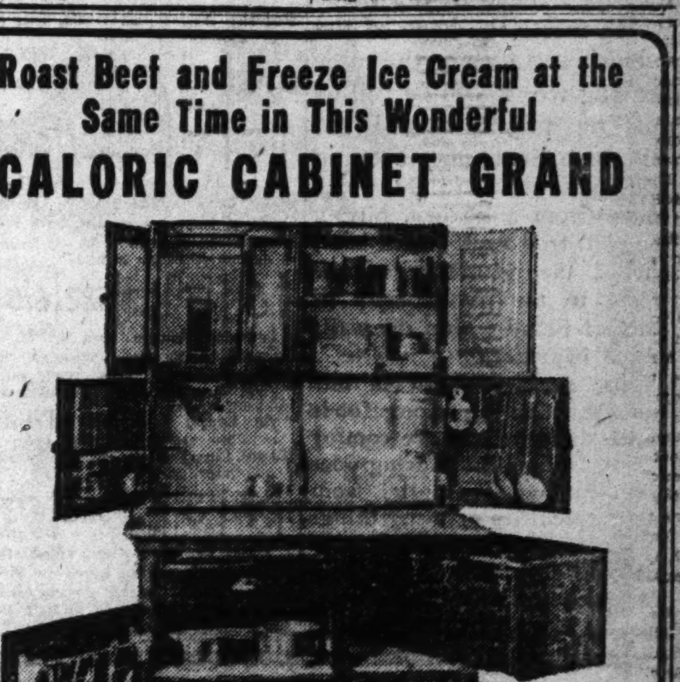
The earth is inclined to the plane of its path about the sun at an angle of 23 degrees. Uranus is inclined at 82 degrees. It is virtually on its side, not on its poles.

Because this planet, although its mass is nearly fifteen times that of the earth, has a density only slightly more, its attraction for things which might be on its surface is less than that of the earth's for things here, which means that an object on Uranus would weigh less than an object on the earth.

It gets only a small fraction of the light and heat which the earth gets from the sun, but Uranus still has the heat of original life in celestial bodies. Its crust covers internal fires.

Uranus has an extensive atmosphere, and its high reflecting power indicates heavy clouds. In the telescope it presents a small, sharp disc, of a remarkable green color. Belts similar to those of Jupiter and Saturn are seen, but dimly, because of the great distance. Uranus turns on its axis once in fifteen hours. There are four tiny moons, the largest of which, called Titania, is 500 miles in diameter, and is situated at about the same distance from Uranus that our moon is from the earth.

Because of the great inclination the zone along the equator which has daylight every day in the year is only sixteen degrees wide. An observer in the high altitudes of one hemisphere would see a day forty-two years in length, with the sun and planets wheeling constantly about this pole, neither rising nor setting, while in the other hemisphere would reign a darkness of equal length, broken only by the little moons journeying through the sky.



Roast Beef and Freeze Ice Cream at the Same Time in This Wonderful CALORIC CABINET GRAND

Not only is this the best built and most conveniently arranged kitchen cabinet on the market, but it is also the most wonderful stove ever dreamed of. The Caloric Cabinet Grand contains two "fireless cooker compartments—one of them electrically equipped. In these compartments you can achieve the miracle of cooking without permitting the escape of heat or flavor or odors.

You place food in the compartment and turn on the electricity. When the automatic valve announces that the proper temperature has been reached you turn off the heat and THE FOOD CONTINUES TO COOK UNTIL DONE, for all the heat created by the electricity is IMPRISONED WITH THE FOOD—cannot escape.

You can have food cooking in the usual fireless cooker way in the other compartment or you can use it to freeze ice cream without being able to tell (by feeling the outside) for which purpose it is being used.

A Caloric Electric Cooker makes it MORE ECONOMICAL to use electricity than to use gas because all the heat created is CONCENTRATED ON THE FOOD, while with gas or any other fuel about 80 per cent is wasted.

See it at your dealer's or write for descriptive booklet.

Churches Plan Observance of Labor Sunday.

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

TODAY is Labor Sunday. For several years Labor Sunday has not been as generally observed as it was at one time. The Rev. Charles Stelzle, recently appointed to this and similar work in the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, has announced that the revival of interest in Labor Sunday will be one of the objects to which he will give special attention next year.

There is objection to Labor Sunday coming so soon after the summer vacation, but Mr. Stelzle said the real difficulty was in a lack of leadership whereby the subject may be brought to the attention of the church.

The railroad strike situation will be made the subject of comment by many ministers, as it affords an acute illustration of the intimate relations in which the churches and all citizens stand related to industrial questions.

In the call for the observance of Labor Sunday the Rev. S. Z. Batten of the social service commission of the Baptist church published the declaration of the Baptist Northern convention towards labor and it may be taken as the attitude of nearly all of the churches. It declares in favor of:

1. The right of labor to organize.
2. The right of labor to deal with capital on the basis of collective bargaining, reserving the right of every man to sell his labor as he will.
3. The right of labor to an increasing share in the profits of labor.
4. The right of labor to the best and latest form of welfare work.
5. The right of labor to the various kinds of compensation and social insurance which have now passed in other countries and in some states of our union beyond the experimental state into social duties.
6. The right of capital and labor alike to all the best kinds of publicity, arbitration, and social helpfulness.

The Rev. Thomas V. Shannon

The Rev. Thomas V. Shannon is the pastor of the St. Thomas Apostle Roman Catholic church and editor of the New World, the Catholic weekly paper published in Chicago under the authorization of Archbishop Mundelein.

This afternoon a reception will be given to all of the members and friends of St. Thomas Apostle church at the parochial school 5731 Kenwood avenue. The building in which the school is located was formerly the Ray public school and was leased from the board of education. It has been thoroughly renovated and decorated and 600 new desks have been put into the sixteen class rooms. The school will open on Tuesday and the classes will be taught by eleven Dominican sisters. Father Shannon was formerly priest at Wilmette, Ill., and was transferred to his present parish as the successor of the Rev. J. J. Carroll, who retired because of illness and died a few weeks after his retirement.

The Illinois state convention of the Disciples of Christ churches will be held in Central church, Peoria, Sept. 11-14. It is expected that more than 1,000 delegates will attend. Mrs E. M. Bowman of Chicago will be among the speakers at the young women's conference. The Rev. Austin Hunter, pastor of the Jackson Boulevard Christian church, will speak on the subject of "City Redemption." The Rev. W. G. Winn, pastor of the Irving Park church, will give one of the Bible studies and W. E. M. Hackleman will lead the singing throughout the convention.

The Bowen Methodist Episcopal church will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization next Sunday. The Rev. Frank W. Barnum of the Oakland church will preach the morning sermon and the Rev. J. W. Funston of Waukegan will preach the evening sermon. Both ministers were former pastors of the Bowen church. On Monday evening, Sept. 11, there will be a home coming social. The Rev. Charles H. Putnam, the pastor, will be in charge.

The Swedish Baptist general conference will begin its thirty-seventh annual session next Tuesday in the Second church, Thirty-first street and Fifth avenue. It will adjourn next Sunday night.

The conference represents 362 churches divided into twenty-two different states or district conferences. The membership is 30,000. The denomination has an academy and theological seminary at St. Paul, Minn. It maintains several children's and old people's homes.

The Morgan Park Old People's home has fifty inmates and a property valued at $30,000. The conference will give consideration to the educational, missionary, and philanthropic work of the denomination.

Bishop Edgar Fawcett of the Protestant Episcopal church of the diocese of Quincy was a close imitator this summer of the bishop of Venice, Italy, in that he made his episcopal visitations by boat. Bishop Fawcett is just completing what he called a cruise of the diocese, going by water on the Hennepin canal, the Illinois and Mississippi rivers. His wife and daughter accompanied him and he was able to visit two-thirds of the parishes and missions of his diocese. He left Quincy June 21 and was scheduled to reach home again early this month.

Prof. J. B. Trowbridge of the Moody Bible institute has resigned and will leave Chicago this week to become the director of music in the Biblical institute of Los Angeles, Cal., of which the Rev. R. A. Torrey is dean.

The international convention of the Disciples' churches will be held in Des Moines, Ia., on Oct. 9 to 15. The convention, it is expected, will attract several thousand visitors.

The Tribune's Weekly Almanack

SEPTEMBER

GREEN fields turned brown and yellow; sun in a haze at down; warblers coming back from the north to fill the thickets of a morning; a log on the fire of an evening. Golden bantam coming to the last of the yellow filled husks; a touch of the sear showing in the woods.

After August, the month of silent birds, the new chirpings in the woods seem vernal, sounds of life in activity again. The sunlight is warm, the evening chill; the katydid gives the night its voice; life buzzes by day and sings by night. White moths hover over the garden; a chickadee comes early to foretell the falling leaf and the falling snow.

Acorns are strewn over the ground; fields are in their richest colors, with goldenrod and helianthus, wild asters and browned grasses making a haze in the fields which meets the haze of the evening sun. Soon the seed-bearing weeds will be full of rustling migrants and the sign of a September evening will be the shaft of light, which comes from a kitchen, hitting the well trod walk which leads out of the generality of the world to the particularity of comfort found within the walls of hut happiness.

That shaft of light in late summer when the strong foods which delight Esau are coming to pot, is the light which guides the commonplace mortal from the perplexities of many things to the sanctity and intimacy of his own cloister, in which lies the essence of hut happiness.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Miss Nixon, whose school at Florence Italy, was closed on account of the war in Europe, and who has been spending several months in Chicago, will leave shortly to take up Red Cross work on the Italian front. She spent last week at the home of Mrs. Leverett Thompson at Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Crane II., the latter formerly Miss Marjorie Baker, who were married on June 27, are making their home at 1330 North State street.

Mrs. Robert Hunter and her two little daughters, Helen and Louise, have arrived from California to spend a month with Mrs. Hunter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell, at Lake Geneva.

Mrs. George M. Benedict of 61 East Elm street is the guest of Mrs. Coonley Ward at her summer place in Wyoming, N. Y. Mrs. Benedict will remain in the east a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Atkinson of 405 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Tuesday. Mr. Atkinson and his family moved to Chicago from Henderson, Ky., in 1896, and for several years he was superintendent of organizers of the endowment rank, Knights of Pythias, and up to the time of his retirement from business he was connected with Swift & Co. and Libby, McNeill & Libby. Mr. Atkinson has been for a number of years an elder in the Third Presbyterian church, and was for two seasons president of the West Side Sunday Night club.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Hooper are the guests of Mrs. Frederick Greeley at Winnetka for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. George Halleck Taylor of 59 East Division street are at East Hampton, L. I. Mrs. Taylor's sister, Miss Doris Rinehart, who has been at York Harbor, Me., since June, left on Friday for Boston to spend two weeks, after which she will return home.

Mrs. Chauncey J. Blair of 4830 Drexel boulevard and her daughter, Miss Mildred Blair, are at Alexandria Bay, N. Y.

Mrs. Donald Fairfield of 6316 Ellis avenue is the guest of her sister, Mrs. George Brown of Omaha. Her little daughter, Mercedes, who has been spending the summer with her aunt there, will return home with her mother.

Mrs. Orson Smith of 50 Bellevue place, who has been at Lake Forest during the summer, at the Onwentsia club, will open her town house about the middle of the month.

Miss Elizabeth Hinde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinde of 1524 Astor street, who has been in Kentucky much of the summer, is now the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Jasper Hewitt Garmany, on Long island.

Mrs. Joseph Cudahy of 1415 Astor street, who returned Monday evening from the east, will have charge of the new Red Cross shop during the absence of Mrs. Phillip Schuyler Doane of 1427 North State parkway, who is leaving this week for New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucius P. Yale and Miss Helen Yale of La Grange have left for an extended lake trip. They will return to La Grange late in the fall.

The Misses Laura and Muriel West of Linden avenue, Oak Park, who have spent the summer in the White mountains motoring with friends, will return home by way of Canada this week.

Mrs. W. W. Gurley of 1416 North State street, who, with her daughter, Miss Helen Gurley, is at Bretton Woods, N. H., will return home next week.

Dr. and Mrs. John Alfred Graham of 533 Roscoe street have left for a motor tour through the Yellowstone and will visit friends in cities along the coast before returning about Oct. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Reagan and daughter of Riverside are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fuller Story at their summer home at St. Joseph, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hobart of 4144 Wilcox avenue will spend the month of October in California.

Mrs. Margaret Clifford of 6650 Newgard avenue has returned from Lake Oconomowoc, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lobdell, the latter formerly Miss Florence Freschl of St. Clair, Mich., who were married on July 18, will make their home in the apartment building at Fifty-first street and Kimbark avenue. At present they are with Mr. Lobdell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lobdell, 3958 Ellis avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edson Keith have closed their summer home at Charlevoix and are at the Blackstone hotel. They have taken an apartment in Astor street for the winter.

Miss Loretta Jane Morris of 4114 Calumet avenue has returned from a three months' visit to Ann Arbor and Niles, Mich.

Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson of Rye, N. Y., who was formerly Miss Isabelle McBirney, and who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson of Lake Forest, moved into town last week to the house which she has taken at 70 Bellevue place.

Mrs. Niels Gron and her son, Horatio O. Stone, of 607 Rush street have gone to Spring Lake, Mich., for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Landon C. Rose, who have taken the Cobb-Coleman house at 8 East Division street, moved into it on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, who are giving up their home in Kansas City to move to Chicago this fall, are delayed by Mr. McCormick's business interests in Wichita, Kas. They will be here before the holidays, however. They have taken one of the new Hugh Garden apartments at 3330 Sheridan road, which are now in process of construction.

Mrs. S. Ella Wood Dean of 4730 Ingleside avenue has returned from Narragansett Pier.

Miss Marjorie McIntosh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. McIntosh of Lake Forest, has as her guests Miss Clarisso Halstead Stem of Cincinnati, O., and Miss Pauline Mugge of Ithaca, N. Y.

Miss Pauline Gartin Funk, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Funk of 4116 Prairie avenue, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William H. McGee of Denver, formerly of Chicago. She will motor with them through Yellowstone Park and return to Chicago late this month.

F W D 134 TRUCKS FOR UNCLE SAM

The first government order for F-W-D Trucks in Mexico was for 5. Within a week followed another for 9. Then others for 29, 33 and 42. Today the total number in service in Mexico is 118, and 16 to be delivered in the shortest possible time.

Uncle Sam based his first order on army officers' reports. They had already tested the F-W-D. They said the drive on four wheels was more economical—got over roughest ground—pulled out of holes where two-wheel drive trucks stalled.

F-W-D Trucks have more than "made good" in Mexico. They've proved that four-wheel drive performs in a way that outclasses two-wheel drive in every respect. In fact, it is unreasonable to expect F-W-D performance of a truck that has only two power wheels.

Uncle Sam's experience coincides with the experience of European Governments in the war zone and of thousands of business men in everyday handling in this country.

The F-W-D drives on all four wheels—cuts first cost of tires one-third—doubles tire mileage—reduces gasoline and oil costs 20% to 25%—lasts years longer than ordinary trucks—picks up faster—threads traffic more rapidly—doesn't skid—stops quicker—reduces chance of accidents—keeps ON the road and OUT of the repair shop.

We'll rest our case on a demonstration. Call Harrison 682—or if you'd rather see literature first, mail coupon on right.

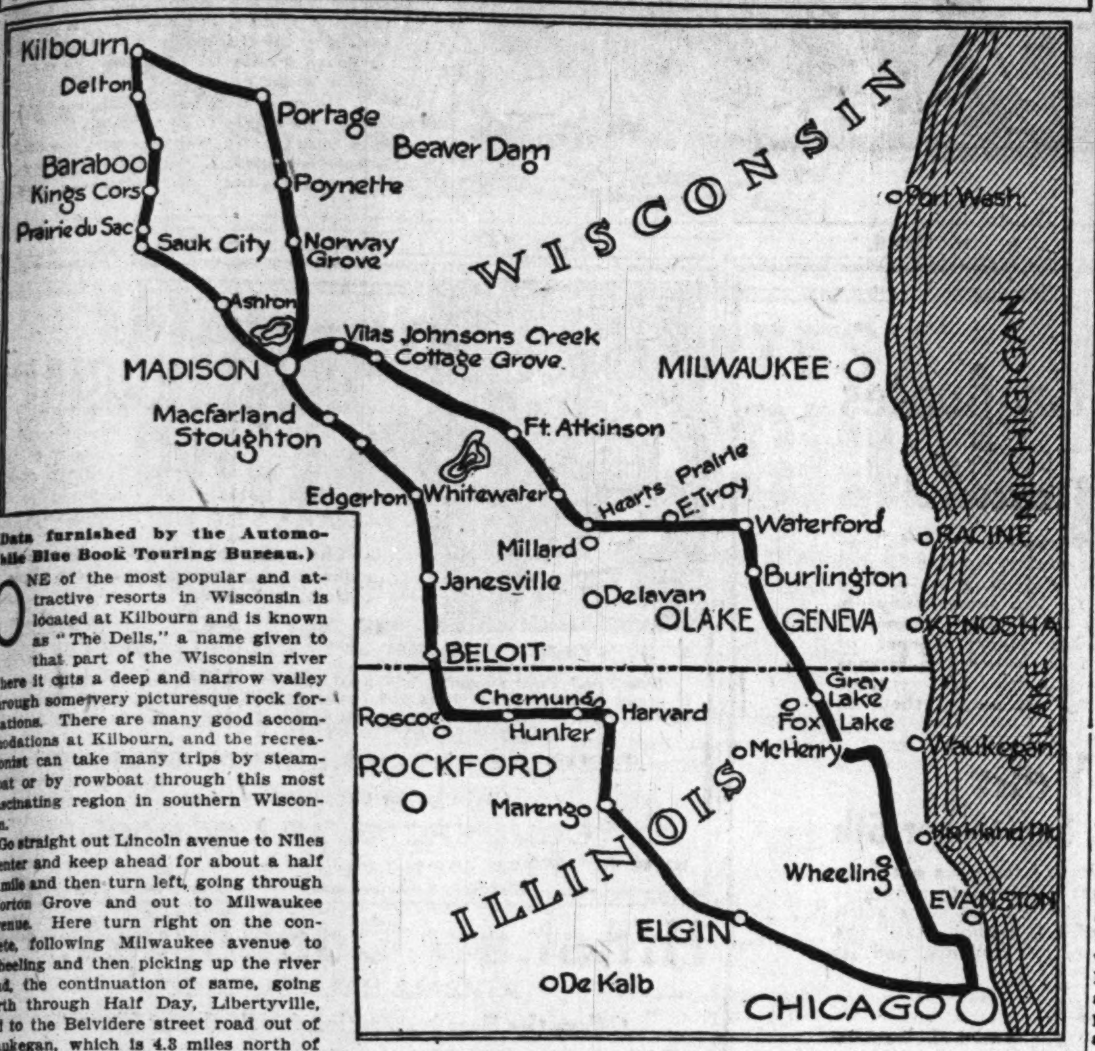
MOTORS AND MOTORCYCLES

Conducted by J. C. Burton

Route to Wisconsin Dells and Return.



(Data furnished by the Automobile Blue Book Touring Bureau.)

ONE of the most popular and attractive resorts in Wisconsin is located at Kilbourn and is known as "The Dells," a name given to that part of the Wisconsin river where it cuts a deep and narrow valley through some very picturesque rock formations. There are many good accommodations at Kilbourn, and the recreationist can take many trips by steamboat or by rowboat through this most fascinating region in southern Wisconsin.

Go straight out Lincoln avenue to Niles Center and keep ahead for about a half a mile and then turn left, going through Morton Grove and out to Milwaukee avenue. Here turn right on the concrete, following Milwaukee avenue to Wheeling and then picking up the river road, the continuation of same, going north through Half Day, Libertyville, and to the Belvidere street road out of Waukegan, which is 4.3 miles north of Libertyville. Here turn left and go west 4.8 miles to Gray's lake, where turn right to the edge of town, bearing left at the three corners two miles beyond. Pass through Rollins, Lake Villa, Loon Lake Station, Antioch, and Salem [60.9 miles].

Just beyond Salem at the four corners turn left, crossing the railroad and the Fox river at the small town of Munster [67.1 miles], where turn right and follow direct road into Burlington [74.6 miles]. From Burlington go west to Spring Prairie [81 miles] and then into Elkhorn [88 miles].

From Elkhorn curve right around the courthouse, following the poles and at the fork about two miles beyond, keep straight ahead and continue on this road to [illegible] at the cemetery, but turn left, coming into Millard [96.5 miles]. Here turn right past the church and at the jog in the road a mile beyond turn left and curve right with the road, going through Park Prairie and following the travel in a northwesterly direction to Whitewater [97.3 miles].

Here keep right at the fork, going past the state normal school and follow the direct road into Fort Atkinson [106.7 miles]. From Fort Atkinson the road continues in a northwesterly direction, going into Cambridge [117.6 miles], Cottage [illegible] [131.3 miles], and Vilas [133.8 miles], and comes into Madison on King street right up to the capitol [142.1 miles].

Go straight out Broadway in Baraboo and at the large brick church two-tenths of a mile from Third street turn left and then right at the end of the road and follow a good macadam road through Delton [195.3 miles] along the Wisconsin river into Kilbourn [198.9 miles].

At Kilbourn the motorist can make a trip of sixty-four miles to Grand Rapids, "the heart of Wisconsin," over the Red Circle route that follows the east bank of the river and penetrates scenic country. The roads are of sand, but hard packed and good.

The Red Circle trail goes through Nekoosa and Port Edwards, two attractive paper mill towns, and the trip from Nekoosa to Plover, a distance of thirty miles, is one of the most scenic rides in the entire 400 miles of travel along the banks of Wisconsin's famous river.

The scenery in and around Grand Rapids in grandeur ranks next to the attractions of the Dells.

From Grand Rapids, the Red Circle route extends east to the Chain-o'-Lakes at Waupaca and follows the river to Stevens Point, Wausau, and Merrill, then going northwest to Marshfield and Neillsville. Many sections of the trail are state roads and scores of tourists follow this route to reach the lake region of northern Wisconsin.

A good option will be found returning from Kilbourn by going east on Broadway for six blocks, then turning right for three blocks and then left, following a rather rough, sandy road into Portage, but there are many scenic views over this route and in good weather it is a fairly good option going down to Madison.

From Portage, go southeast on Wisconsin street, keeping straight ahead where the trolley leaves to the left, crossing iron bridge, following poles, down to the cemetery. Here turn right over short stretch of macadam, soon coming into Poynette (33.3 miles). At the park here, turn left, descending steep grade, and at the end of the road jog left and right, going through Norway Grove (43.1 miles). Follow the travel into Madison, going along the shore of Lake Mendota, coming in on Sherman avenue and Gorham street, and at the waterworks, turn left on Hamilton street to the state capitol.

At the courthouse square, go down to King street and leave Madison the same as coming in. (A short cut can be taken by going from Sherman avenue south on Brearly street instead of going downtown straight to the capitol and then coming left on Williamson street.) At the stone water trough bear right with the trolley on Atwood avenue, keeping to the right into McFarland (67.1 miles). Here turn left, follow the travel on the east shore of the lake, coming into Stoughton (77.3 miles). Keep straight through Stoughton, going south to Edgerton (89.8 miles), Indian Ford and into Janesville (103 miles).

From Janesville, keep straight ahead on Main street and at the end of the road, turn left and half a mile beyond at four corners, turn right, going south and following the river road into Beloit (109 miles). Keep straight through Beloit on Grand avenue, going south to Roscoe (125.1 miles). Here turn left, going straight east through Hunter and Chemung into Harvard (144.1 miles). From Harvard, go south to Marengo (156.3 miles), where turn left, following the Elgin road through Coral, Harmony, and McQueen, coming into Elgin at Chicago street and Grove avenue (180 miles).

Dramatis Personae of the Speed Spectacle.

NO. 18—GEORGE BUZANE, DUESENBERG.

HAD George Buzane followed the example of thousands of his fellow countrymen who become American citizens he would either be the proprietor of a soda water establishment or boss of a shoe shining parlor. But George showed originality when it came to adopting a vocation in the land of his adoption, and as a consequence he can boast of being the only automobile race driver of Greek descent in captivity.

Buzane hails from Athens. He lived in that classic and ancient city until he was 15 years of age. Then he heard of America, and, securing a job as stoker on an ocean liner, worked his way across the Atlantic.

Like the Greek youths of old, Buzane was athletic. In addition, he had a liking for mechanics. He learned the rudiments of the gasoline motor by repairing the engines used for carbonating the water that puts fizz in an ice cream soda. He then mastered the art of profanity, and, feeling himself well qualified for the position of a taxicab driver, applied for and got a job with the Shaw company of this city.

It was while he was piloting a multiplication table on wheels through the chaos of Chicago's loop that Buzane made the acquaintance of Eddie Hearne. Hearne was in the market for a mechanician. He made Buzane an offer, which was accepted, and George pumped oil in the Fiat in the Vanderbilt cup and grand prize races run at Savannah in 1911.

It was not for three years, spent in the rather sordid operation of an automobile repair shop in Chicago, that Buzane got another taste of speed. Last season he made his debut as a driver, participating in the Elgin road races and the dirt track meet at Kalamazoo, where his mount, an ancient De Dietrich, failed to finish inside the money.

This year Buzane secured a backer, Arthur Bernstein, a local pawnshop keeper, who purchased the Duesenberg that Eddie O'Donnell campaigned in 1915. The car busted up in the 300 mile Chicago auto Derby, but took third money in the century race at Kansas City, finished second in the Pike's Peak hill climb, and was third across the wire in the Speedway Grand Prix event.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

Shipped in twenty-three cars, seventy-five Briscoe automobiles reached Chicago on Thursday, having been rushed through on passenger schedule from the factory to circumvent possible strike complications. That the shipment was necessary is evidenced by the fact that the local Briscoe salesmen established a day's sales record on Wednesday, when sixteen cars were sold and delivered. If the impending railroad strike is of long duration, Manager Eichinger of the Chicago agency plans to drive his cars overland from the factory at Jackson, Mich.

By completely outfitting a car and giving it character, by finishing it in such a manner that it can be easily described, by giving to it a distinction and an individuality, the manufacturer is doing much to rob the thief of his vocation. The theft of a car which has many distinctive features, easily described, is seldom noted. Thieves confine themselves to makes of cars which are finished in the same manner throughout and can only be described by the license numbers. This phase of the product of the Bour-Davis Motor company of Detroit was made prominent recently by the user of one of its cars in Detroit, who told of thieves passing by his car to take one of another make which was just like hundreds of others of its own line of manufacture.

The Chicago Allen company service branch, 2526 Michigan avenue, has opened a laboratory to test out accessories as they are placed on the market to determine their possible usefulness to Allen owners.

In the early part of the European war the F-W-D automobile company received an order from the Russian government for a number of F-W-D trucks, which had a power winch at the rear. This proved invaluable to the Russian army when hauling guns and supplies over rough and undeveloped country, which otherwise would have been impassable. The United States government officials, after a test of one of this type of F-W-D trucks, became convinced that it would serve admirably for heavy duty over the rough roads to be found in all parts of the canal zone, and one has been sent down there for the use of the quartermaster's department at Christobel.

Contracts have been let by the Studebaker corporation for construction work that will add 40,000 square feet to the floor space of the Detroit factories.

Through the efforts of the Amici club and the coöperation of Mr. Staebler, manager of the Reo Motor Car company of Chicago, in the donation of cars, children from the Eli Bates Settlement home, 621 Elm street, enjoyed a day's touring and outing last week. The party toured through the parks and boulevards of the west and south sides, arriving at Lincoln park in time for lunch, which was furnished by the Amici club. The luncheon was followed by games and races, the winners being awarded prizes.

The Pathfinder company of Indianapolis has started a train load of forty-seven Pathfinder twelve cylinder cars, including touring cars and Clover Leaf roadsters, for Petrograd, Russia. These cars are for use of the legitimate trade and none will be used for army purposes. The Pathfinder now is represented in all leading foreign countries.

Spray Your Furniture WITH WONDER-MIST

The Original Sprayer Polish

When your furniture is cloudy, covered with blue haze, fingermarks and spots, spray it with WONDER-MIST, the wonderful new cleaner and polish for all varnished surfaces. WONDER-MIST produces a lustrous, lasting, cloudless polish without hard rubbing. It feeds and toughens the finish—positively cannot scratch or injure. It is who knows by experience the best way to keep fine finish in perfect condition. WONDER-MIST has stood severest tests on interior woodwork and furniture in public buildings, homes and on automobiles. It will keep your piano, woodwork, floors and your automobile bright and new with less work and at lower cost than any other way.

The Formula of a Furniture Expert

WONDER-MIST is non-inflammable, non-combustible, non-poisonous—safe to use by anyone, anywhere, any time.

Make Your Own Dustless Dust Cloths with WONDER-MIST

Instead of using ordinary dust cloths which only stir up the dust to settle again, make and use your own WONDER-MIST Dustless Dust Cloths by spraying a yard of cheesecloth with WONDER-MIST—they actually pick up and hold the dust and clean and brighten the surface, making frequent dusting unnecessary. Excellent for cleaning woodwork and mouldings, bordering, kalsomined or papered walls.

WONDER-MIST cleans and polishes automobiles in one operation more quickly and economically than washing and without ever injuring finish. Spray it right over mud, grease and grime. Then rub dry with cheesecloth. No trouble—no muss.

Ask your dealer for FREE demonstration. If he does not handle WONDER-MIST, we will tell you one that does. Quart with sprayer (enough for 20 car cleanings), $1.25. Half-gallon with sprayer, $2.00. Gallon with sprayer, $3.00.

Royalty

is above all things human, loving enjoyment as do you and I, but better able to follow every new appeal.

Scripps-Booth.

King Alfonso, being under his royal insignia but a gentleman-driver, with a tasteful appreciation of Best Things, gets the same pride and enjoyment out of his Scripps-Booth that you do. He enjoys it for what it is, and for its beauty which reflects his station. Its comfort appeals to him, and the fact that he can drive it himself without losing dignity. You will find Scripps-Booth in nearly every Royal garage in Europe outside of the enclosed war zone.

Scripps-Booth does business in a way that appeals. It moves with the least effort, meaning economy; it is light-fingered in the handling, light-footed in the going, quick, lithe and pliable, with a never-failing store of smooth-flowing power.

That it is the one American car whose prestige is as great abroad as at home, is impressive, but not surprising. It appeals to Those Who Know, for it in turn is sure of its own ground.

Scripps-Booth appeals to Royalty as royalty appeals to Scripps-Booth, adding each to the prestige of the other.

MAJESTIC.

Jack Wilson and Company:

"Did you see those classic dancers that just came ahead of us on the bill?"

"I certainly did. What are you mopping your brow for?"

"I'm warm. Those dancers did it. It seemed to me every time they danced they got rid of more clothes."

"Well, they've stopped now."

"Yes; I was sorry to see it happen, too."

"Did you notice that Hawaiian dance?"

"Yes, sir. All they wear down there is some baled hay. And if I ever get a vacation, Hawaii's the place I'm going to spend it."

"I hope you saw the girl with the million dollar eyes."

"She was lovely. She was a pippin. Such a figure!"

"Did you notice her eyes?"

"No, I wasn't looking at her eyes."

"I dined at ——'s last night."

"That's the place they steal your hat and coat, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"But you can always buy them back cheap."

"The food's great."

"Yes. Three split peas and a cracked plate—$2.80!"

Walter Brower: I met my wife in a cabaret. She was a singer. I used to watch her as she'd go through the audience—not all of them, but most of them. It was funny how that girl couldn't hold on to her money. She simply couldn't keep it. Except on birthdays. Then I'd give her a dime or so. She was a sweet girl, but her father and I didn't get along well at all. He wanted me to work. I thought I had better move, so we moved the next week. It was terribly simple. I didn't have to carry a thing, not even a suitcase. I had the ticket for it, though.

After we got out we decided to take a taxi but my wife only had a dime, so we took a street car instead. The car was terribly crowded. I was breaking in a pair of shoes for a friend and my feet hurt terribly.

I'll never forget the time we were married. She came into the room leaning on her father's arm and two friends held me up. She was dressed in a princess slip and I was afraid every moment that it would. Her brother did not appear at the ceremony. I was dressed in a brown suit that didn't fit me very well. That was why the brother was not present. The best man were a regular evening suit, and everybody thought he was the lucky one. He was, but I didn't realize it at the time.

In truth, I must say the bride was the ugliest I have ever seen. Her mother must have thought an awful lot of children to bring her up. The bridesmaids wore Helen pink. I had better say "were."

At last we reached the end of the aisle. The gentleman beamed down on me and said: "Young man, have you ever been arrested before and . . ." No, no. I was wrong. That was another time.

After the ceremony was through I asked him what the charge was. He told me that it was not the custom to charge a fixed price, but that usually the groom gave the minister whatever the ceremony was worth to him. I gave him a dime. He gave me back a nickle.

McVICKERS.

Cohan and Young:

"Well, how did you like riding in the subway?"

"It would be nice if there wasn't any lights."

"Now, don't be naughty."

"I don't like the conductors on those subway trains."

"Why, what's the matter with them?"

"When I was getting off from the train he shouted out to me, 'Wash your neck, wash your neck.'"

"The conductor told you to wash your neck?"

"Yes, he shouted out just like that, 'Wash your neck, wash your neck.'"

"The conductor didn't tell you to wash your neck; he was telling you to watch your step."

"Yes, just the same."

"Were there any nice girls in New York?"

"Sure. I got a fine New York girl."

"A fine, good looking girl, eh?"

"I don't know."

"You don't know if she's good looking or pretty?"

"No, but she's rich."

"I suppose you did some spooning with her?"

"O, yes; one night we sat in her parlor, the lights were out, she sat on my lap."

"She sat on your lap—then what did you sit on?"

"A pin her kid brother put on the chair."

"Did you come down hard on the pin?"

"Of course I came down hard. She was sitting on my lap at the time."

Get Bigger Pay

You might as well get BIG PAY right from the start. There's no satisfaction in working for a small salary. The experts, with the big salaries, are the only ones who get any joy out of working. And it's just as easy to write 80 to 100 words a minute on the typewriter as to write 30 or 40—if you learn the right method. Arnsan's wonderful new method of DOUBLE SPEED TYPEWRITING and DOUBLE SPEED SHORTHAND is revolutionizing typewriting and stenographic work. It does away with the hard work. It does away with useless motions. And it makes you a master of speed. It has enabled dozens of typists and stenographers who learned the old methods to DOUBLE THEIR PAY. And it only takes three months of either day or evening work.

VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY

Founded 1873

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

21 Departments—220 Instructors and an annual enrollment last year of more than 5000 Different Students. Excellent Equipments.

While the expense in all the Departments is exceedingly low, it has not been made so at the sacrifice of a high grade of instruction, but by applying business principles to The Cost of Living so that the most satisfactory accommodations for board and room may be had, from $29 to $41 per quarter of twelve weeks. Tuition $20.00 per quarter, or $65.00 if paid in advance, for a year of forty-eight weeks. If the entire tuition is paid in advance for the year, it includes all the departments except Medical, Dental and private lessons in Music.

The total expense of board, tuition and furnished room for the regular school year (thirty-six weeks), need not exceed $142, or for forty-eight weeks $181. For Free Catalog Address

St. John's Military Academy

THE AMERICAN RUGBY

AN ARMY OFFICER WRITES:

"I am more than pleased with what you have been able to do for the boy in the short time he has been with you. Every one speaks of his fine physical appearance compared with what it was when he came to you, and I know he is much more alert than he was before he went to St. John's."

This is unsolicited testimony from one who from personal experience recognizes the value of military training, and whose choice of a school would be correspondingly discriminating. He selected St. John's because he wanted a real military school. (Rated by the government as an "Honor School.")

Do you want your boy to grow more alert? Do you want him to have a fine, strong body? Do you want to properly develop his character? Send for our catalogue and let us tell you what we can do for him. Address Box 101, Delafield, Waukesha County, Wisconsin.

CHICAGO'S GREATEST SHORTHAND SCHOOL

Special courses of instruction and practice preparing our students for positions as stenographer, private secretary, court reporter, shorthand teacher, and in the civil service.

You will prepare for stenographic work but once; therefore, select the school and the shorthand system which will enable you to do the best work.

Gregg School solicits your patronage solely on the excellence of its course of study, the high standard maintained and the profitable results you can obtain from it. Space here permits only a brief mention of a few of the leading features which should commend our school to your favorable consideration.

Gregg Shorthand is the easiest system to learn and is the most legible and rapid. With it and our methods you can attain the greatest skill in the minimum of time.

Gregg Training equals experience. Our course in Office Training for Stenographers gives actual practice in all the details of general office work that the well qualified stenographer and secretary should know.

The tuition at Gregg School is based on the service given. A complete course in our school will cost you the least when you measure "value received" for what you pay.

Rational Touch Typewriting, first taught in our school, has produced the majority of the world's famous typewriting experts.

Our course also includes instruction in English, spelling, scientific letter-writing, principles of salesmanship and advertising, and business ethics.

Our free employment service is at the disposal of every student as soon as he or she is competent to accept a position. Every year we receive many more calls for stenographers than we have students enrolled.

Start Tuesday, Sept. 5 — Day and Night Sessions. Enroll at any time — progress is individual.

Gregg School is delightfully located on Michigan Avenue, overlooking the lake. All rooms are light, airy, splendidly equipped and arranged. Visitors say it is most attractive and businesslike in appearance. The enthusiasm and business atmosphere pervading every department radiates an influence for good that is certain to be reflected in the greater success of our graduates.

You are invited to visit our school. That is the most satisfactory way in which to get a correct knowledge of the many exclusive advantages enjoyed by our students. We desire you to know the facts about our school; then your own judgment will tell you what is the best course for you to pursue. Call at office, write, or telephone Randolph 6040 for pamphlet, "Your Career and Its Attainment."

Questions and Answers

By High

What do you consider the best route between this city and Michigan City, Ind.? What kind of roads would one drive over and what is the approximate distance? EDWARDS, Chicago.

The best route from Chicago to Michigan City is through South Chicago, Hammond, East Chicago, Calumet, Gary, Miller Station, East Gary, Porter, and Furnaceville. The distance is 62.7 miles, and most of the road consists of macadam or concrete.

We are about to undertake an automobile tour from Momence to Normal, Ill., and as we are rather new at the sport and know absolutely nothing about the route we would like to ask you to publish a list of the towns along the way. H. H., Momence, Ill.

Kankakee, 12 miles; Dwight, 29.7 miles; Pontiac, Lexington, Normal, 146.5 miles; Bloomington, 149.5 miles.

Will you kindly furnish me with details of the best route from Moline to Detroit by way of Chicago? Please state the distances between principal points? What good guide book would you recommend? F. G., Moline, Ill.

East Moline, Watertown, Hillsdale, Erie, Galt, Sterling, 56.2 miles. At this point you will take the Lincoln highway direct to Chicago, passing through Dixon, Rochelle, De Kalb, Geneva, West Chicago, North Glen Ellyn, Elmhurst, and Maywood. The distance from Sterling is 119 miles. Then go through South Chicago, Hammond, Highland, South Gary, Hobart, Wheeler, Valparaiso, Westville, Laporte, and South Bend, 101 miles; Niles, Pokagon, Dowagiac, Paw Paw, Kalamazoo, Galesburg, Augusta, Battle Creek, Marshall, Albion, Parma, Jackson, Chelsea, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Wayne, Inkster, and Detroit, 208.6 miles. The last stage of the journey, while somewhat longer than the route through Coldwater, is reported much better at this time. We cannot recommend a better guide book than Automobile Blue Book No. 4, which contains maps and data covering all main automobile routes of the central states.

What is the present condition of the route between Chicago and South Haven, Mich.? Is it a portion of any particular highway, and what resorts would one pass through on the way? MRS. H. L. W., Chicago.

The roads are in good condition at the present time, although there are some short stretches that are only fair. Go through South Chicago, Hammond, East Chicago, Calumet, Gary, East Gary, Porter, Michigan City, 62.7 miles; New Buffalo, Three Oaks, Sawyer, St. Joseph, 45.5 miles; Benton Harbor, Riverside, Coloma, Watervliet, Covert, South Haven. From Michigan City on the route follows the West Michigan pike.

Owing to the large volume of inquiries for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Only routes and answers to questions of general interest will be published.

I woud like to know the best route from Chicago to Jackson, Minn., and if it is not expecting too much would appreciate its publication in one of your Sunday issues. C. P. M., Chicago.

Maywood, Lombard, North Glen Ellyn, West Chicago, Geneva. At this point you will take the Lincoln highway to Clinton, passing through De Kalb, Rochelle, Dixon, Sterling, and Fulton. The distance to Clinton is 148 miles. Then go through Elvira, Lowden, Marion, Cedar Rapids, 92.6 miles; Belle Plaine, Tama, Marshalltown, 77.3 miles; Albion, Iowa Falls, 50.2 miles; Alden, Wilkie, Webster City, Fort Dodge, 53.6 miles; Humboldt, Algona, Elmore, Blue Earth, 89.2 miles; Guckeen, Imogene, Sherburn, Jackson, 45.2 miles. You will find most of these roads of natural dirt, which are kept well dragged. They are good in dry weather, but rather muddy and slippery after a rain.

Please publish the most advisable route to take for an automobile trip from Mexico, Mo., to Chicago. MRS H. B. M., Mexico, Mo.

Perry, Hannibal, 63 miles; Shepard, Marblehead, Quincy, 19.4 miles; Fowler, Paloma, Camp Point, Augusta, Plymouth, Colmar, Macomb, Prairie City, Abingdon, Galesburg, 117.9 miles; Watago, Oneida, Galva, Kewanee, Princeton, Mendota, Sandwich, Plano, Aurora, Naperville, Chicago, 184.3 miles.

How should one proceed in driving from Chicago to Decatur, Mich.? Will look for the answer in your interesting Sunday column. W. M. A., Chicago.

South Chicago, Hammond, Highland, South Gary, Hobart, Wheeler, Valparaiso, Westville, Laporte to South Bend, 101 miles; Niles, Pokagon, Dowagiac, 25.3 miles.

FOR THE past eight years the demand for Westcott Motor Cars has exceeded the production, although the Westcott price has advanced year by year.

Seventy per cent of all Westcott Cars have been purchased by persons who have previously owned automobiles and who presumably knew values. During recent years an ever-increasing proportion of our output has been claimed by owners of Westcotts of earlier models.

This discriminating recognition of basic motor car values has been the inspiration in creating the new Westcott of the Seventeen Series—a car of light-weight tendency that embodies every essential of efficiency and refinement without the costly non-essentials that increase first cost and impose a constant overload of operating expense.

Although the new Westcott does, as a matter of course, every "stunt" that any "sensational" car is advertised to do, it is not a freakish car but a practical, serviceable, road-worthy automobile of superb proportions and with endurance built into every part. In beauty, in refinement, in luxury, in spaciousness, comfort, convenience, safety and distinctive personality, the new Westcott leaves nothing to be desired.

In these cars not one little detail has been sacrificed on the altar of frenzied manufacturing. More has been put into them than has been saved by overhead economies resulting from greatly increased production.

It is for these reasons that we are able confidently to invite the prospective purchaser to compare the new Westcott, point by point, not only with cars similarly priced, but more particularly with automobiles that are universally accepted as standards of design, engineering and construction.

Let us give you a demonstration.

RESORTS AND HOTELS RESORTS AND HOTELS

Evanston Hotel

Among Chicago's prominent hotels Evanston Hotel is unique. It appeals to a special clientele. It appeals to men and women who prefer the clean, clear air of the suburbs to the dust and grime of the congested districts. It appeals to those who prefer quiet elegance to artificial glitter and show. Its furnishings are rich, its chambers commodious. Though just outside Chicago's boundary, in the choicest section of beautiful Evanston, the fast express trains of the Elevated and the C. & N. W. Railway bring you to the loop as quickly if you lived in Chicago's best residence sections. Club breakfasts, club luncheons, table d'hote dinners and a la carte service. DINNER DANCES on Tuesdays and Fridays. Choice rooms, beautifully furnished, with bath, $1.50 to $5.00 per day, $10 to $30 per week. WRITE FOR BOOKLET.

THE MORAINE
OPEN ALL THE YEAR

The Cuisine at the Moraine Hotel Is Noted for Its Perfection

Hotel men who have visited the Moraine declare there is not another American plan hotel in the country that sets such a wonderful table. We take pride in this reputation and live up to it always. You will enjoy every meal here, you will enjoy the direct-from-the-fire plan of serving. Food here is cooked and served, it is not kept for hours on a steam table to lose flavor and crisp freshness.

Large, Airy, Luxuriously Appointed Rooms at Most Reasonable Rates

The genial, homelike atmosphere of this hotel makes it an ideal place for winter residence. Let us send a representative to tell you about it. Low winter rates in effect October 1st. Good motoring road all the way from Chicago.

Handsome descriptive booklet mailed on request.

34 Minutes to Chicago on de Luxe Trains

It isn't far to the Moraine, if you figure time. Most people in Chicago spend longer than this in dirty, crowded street cars or "L" trains and have to stand all the way home. Plenty of luxurious C. & N. W. R. R. trains, seats for all, and just long enough to read your paper in comfort. Good theatre trains at night.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

ADAM SCHAAF

REMOVAL SALE.

On Sept. 1 we move into our new building, now nearing completion. Every instrument in our temporary store at 337 S. Wabash-av. will be marked at a very great reduction to insure immediate sale.

In this sale are included upright, grand and player pianos of such makes as Steinway, Mason & Hamlin, Chickering, A. B. Chase, and our own celebrated Adam Schaaf pianos.

On Your Own Terms.

We can't afford to move a single piano. We must sell every instrument at once. We therefore offer you the most wonderful opportunity you ever had to get the greatest piano value.

ADAM SCHAAF,
Established 1873.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

SALESMEN—
WHO CAN SELL
STOCKS, BONDS, AND LAND—

How would you like to belong to a sales organization where your efforts will be building up an independent and permanent business of your own?

Are you not tired of jumping from one proposition to another every year or so, losing the accumulative effect of your hard work every time you make a change?

Some successful business men are organizing a company which will combine the land business with an industrial and manufacturing enterprise. This business should continue to grow in volume each year, and its profits should eventually enable us to retire from this eternal hustle.

We have room for two or three additional live wire salesmen, to whom we can offer a very attractive proposition.

Although we do not require an investment in our company, we can show the man with a little capital an opportunity to join us on an equal basis in the organization of an enterprise that has tremendous possibilities. Address X E 571, Tribune.

Employment Agencies.

MEN! MEN! MEN!
DO YOU KNOW

That fixing the responsibility for your future lies entirely with you. This we can prove in a five minute interview by going over the number and kind of positions we have open for high grade office and technical men.

To ignore service we are in position to render every kind of CLERK, EXECUTIVE or TECHNICAL man is certainly loading yourself down with responsibility. You can't know what we can do for you until you get in touch with us, hence our appeal to every clean cut, "red blooded," ambitious fellow to take heed and at least come up and talk it over.

Don't "clutter" up an organization with your presence just because the "boss" feels sorry for you. Your position may hold somebody else's opportunity and it certainly can't benefit you any to stick around in the boss' way.

OUR SERVICE IS THE ANSWER.

$75,000 spent in advertising to give you this service. Over 200,000 men placed in our thirteen years at it in the loop constitutes a worth while proposition to any man who is at all dissatisfied with his present working environment.

FOR SALE—

A gentleman picked a fine lot with great care within 200 feet of the lake and has just built for himself a high grade 3 apartment building as a combined home and investment. On account of an unexpected change in his plans he now desires to sell at his actual cost or even a little lower.

The building represents the highest class of construction, the appointments are in excellent taste to command a total rental of about $6,000 per year.

It will appeal to a genuine buyer to whom full details will be outlined at an interview.

HOGENSON'S MODEL BUNGALOWS AT MEDIUM COST

To appreciate the many features both in the exterior and the interior of these beautiful homes, a visit should be made to inspect them.

The hundreds of homes built by us completing Long, Lorel, and Lockwood-avs. south of Division-st. puts this home property really in a class by itself.

We are now working on Latrobe and Laramie-av., between Division and Augusta-sts., where 5 to 8 room bungalows in brick, stucco, or California Redwood can be seen in completion or under construction, or will take orders for a limited number to be built to suit purchaser on Latrobe-av. on 33 1-3 or 40 ft. lots, asphalt paving and street otherwise beautified.

On terms to suit or cash.

Homes open for inspection every day and on Sunday afternoons, when agent will be on the ground to show the property.

Take a Chicago-av. car to Latrobe or Lockwood and walk north 3 blocks.

The Division st. car also passes this property, which connects with Grand, Crawford, or Cicero-av. cars.

THIS IS MORE ABOUT
Midlothian Gardens.

Things have been happening there. Lots have been purchased and houses are being built. The community plan is now a reality. The co-operative store is open and doing business. One of the men who answered our ad was a careful man, who trusted in his own good judgment. He answered other ads. He visited our property and other property. We told him our land was perfectly drained by an underground tile system. He took a spade and dug down and saw the tile. He went to the catch basin, raised the cover, and saw that the drainage system was working. We told him that for three years our soil had been managed to secure high fertility. He took samples of it and of other property and sent them to the State Department of Agriculture to determine which was best. The answer was in our favor. He saw shade trees growing, rolled crushed stone sidewalks made, and streets laid out, saw the park of 5 acres and the clubhouse for the use of the community. He saw the co-operative store, where he can buy his supplies at wholesale prices and market his surplus products. He concluded that Midlothian Gardens offered good location, good transportation, good soil, refined environment, ready markets, and future values. He made the same searching investigation of other properties, and then purchased 8 of our lots, each and is now building his home, where he can live in the country and during spare hours produce fruits, flowers, vegetables, eggs, and poultry, and have them marketed. Five other men are also building. Trust your own good judgment. Investigate and satisfy yourself that the value you get cannot be duplicated elsewhere. The prices and terms are reasonable. MIDLOTHIAN GARDENS is on the Rock Island R. R., only 40 min. to the loop. The fare on a monthly ticket is 10 cents.

Florida.

FOR SALE—FLORIDA HOME SITES IN PROSPEROUS LOCALITY.
Because of the wonderful development of our 2,000 Acre Camphor Farm at Camphor City, we are likewise developing an exceptional locality and making it possible to offer an opportunity to people seeking an excellent home; a few tracts of land which are highly productive and will prove exceptional investments.
The tracts consist of 40 acres or more, which is just adjoining our large camphor farm, and we offer them at exceedingly low prices.
The land is high, well drained, free from waste, intersected by a railroad, and adapted to citrus culture as well as general farming.
We expect to realize big profits raising camphor, which we are positive will prove a winner, and you can join us in the raising of this product or you can hold the land until we expand beyond our original farm, at which time this land will be exceptionally valuable.
If you are considering the purchase of Florida land be sure to investigate this, as it will easily prove where your money can be invested with the best advantage. Address X E 5[illegible], Tribune.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Strike or No Strike

DOES YOUR MONEY COME from what you earn each day? And stop coming the minute you stop working? This is what keeps a man dependent for his livelihood upon other people and conditions he cannot control. A piece of farm land in the Swigart Tract would make you independent sooner than anything in which you could put your savings and here are the reasons:

OWNING LAND gives a man a dozen chances for getting ahead that he does not otherwise have. Good farm land is the safest and best thing in the world in which to put your money. No property has more staple value nor has increased more steadily in value during the past twenty years. The land produces for you while it is increasing in value. Its double usefulness as a home and a money making business is what insures your independence.

THE FARMER MAKES MONEY whether or not the railroad employees of the country go on strike. This is particularly true in the Swigart Tract of Manistee, Mason, Lake, and Wexford Counties, where diversified farming and a large variety of crops are the farmers' guarantee of good average yearly returns. Ours is a splendid live stock country with its nutritious native grasses, bountiful supply of purest water for man and beast, and crops that make the best of feed and ensilage. Our district is often referred to as a paradise for sheep. Pigs thrive in our clover. There is no place in Michigan or elsewhere better suited to poultry raising and egg production, which combine so well with fruit growing, located as we are in the center of Michigan's Fruit and Clover Belt only 170 miles by lake steamship from Chicago. Come into our offices and see samples of our rye, wheat, oats, vetch, clover, alfalfa, timothy, millet, 90 day and fodder corn, peas, beans, potatoes, and all vegetables, as well as apples, peaches, pears, plums, cherries, and berries, in which our counties equal or excel any fruit district in America.

WHEN YOU CALL we will be pleased to give you literature which is filled with photographic pictures of the lands, settlers' homes, and farms, the good roads, schools, and all points of interest in our district, including progress being made in the construction of one of a series of seven Dams in our Tract, employing hundreds of men. Let us also show you many stereopticon views. You will be interested in learning of the co-operative features of our proposition, privilege to exchange, insuring you for the unpaid balance on the land, which protects your family, and the low terms of $10 to $50 down and $5 to $10 per month on 40 acres; at $10 to $25 per acre, thus putting a farm home easily within range of any man who has saved a little or is able to save something from his wages. If you cannot call, then drop a postal today for this free literature. You will find that for your own advantage there is a special reason why you should act promptly on the selection we are giving and the offer we are making at this time.

STRIKE OR NO STRIKE, we will run an excursion to our lands next Tuesday, September 5th. We enjoy the great advantage of water transportation between our lands and Chicago, and in case of a strike on the P. M. R. R. we will go by lake steamer instead. Therefore, all those who join us on the excursion of Tuesday, September 5th, are to be at our Chicago Offices, ready to take either route, at 11:30 A. M. The usual fare of $12.50 for the round trip, including hotel bill, will apply whether we go by rail or boat. We furnish automobiles and guides free to see the lands. At this time of year you will find that you are better able to judge the lands and the district and the trip will be a most enjoyable one. We have promises for fifty people thus far, but we want to make it one hundred and we have ample accommodations for both men and women. Offices remain open Monday evening and Saturday afternoon.

DON'TS

FOR FARM BUYERS.

DON'T buy land without seeing it.
DON'T think farming is a snap. It takes mighty hard work, long hours, intelligent planning, and careful thought to make a success.
DON'T buy a farm and go on it empty handed. Farming is a business; it requires capital to get started right and buy the proper equipment.
DON'T think you are a judge of soils. You may be, but chances are you're not. Write to the State Immigration Commissioner for information, and get a soil survey, information about crops, etc.
DON'T hurry. Take your time. In the long run it pays to lose a few days' work and make a careful selection.
DON'T think you can trade for a farm as cheaply as you can buy it for cash. MONEY TALKS. Traded in property must be sold and expense incurred in selling it.
DON'T be afraid to go to the bank and ask the banker to look up the reputation of the company or people you're dealing with. It pays to deal with responsible concerns.
DON'T fail to have the abstract examined by a lawyer.

That's all we think of just now.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

MEN OF CHARACTER AND ABILITY.

Every day 179 people move into Detroit—1,250 arrive every week—5,417 each month.

Detroit is growing faster than any other city in the United States. The net increase in population last year was over 65,000. More than 2,600 acres of new land must be opened up for these people every year.

The H. A. Jones Real Estate Co. conducts by far the largest general brokerage and subdivision business in Detroit.

So great is the growth of Detroit in population and wealth and so active is the real estate market that we are unable to train competent salesmen as fast as opportunities for them develop.

Nearly every one of our salesmen has been in some other work before joining this company. All of them have been successful. One was a bookkeeper, another a clerk in a supply house, one an insurance man, two were newspaper men, one was a chemical engineer, one a photographer—our salesmen represent nearly every occupation there is.

Every one of them who is studying his work and applying the principles he is taught is making several times as much money as he ever did before.

We ned more salesmen.

We want men of ability and good standing, regardless of their occupation before—men who want to establish themselves with an active, aggressive firm permanently.

Previous experience in the real estate business is unnecessary. We have opportunities both for men familiar with real estate and for men who have done well in other lines of business. Our educational methods enable any man who has it in him at all to make good, to succeed in this office in a larger measure than in any other place we know.

Pleasant work and congenial surroundings, close co-operative methods developed to a point unknown in any other institution of which we have heard, and the possibilities for profit in Detroit's phenomenal growth and prosperity—these and many other considerations make this a distinctly unparalleled opportunity for the man who can make our opportunities his own.

We should like to correspond with any one to whom this prospect appeals and explain to him the methods we employ, the possibilities and opportunities available, and to show exactly what each man in our organization—not a few sucessful ones, but all of them—are doing.

H. A. JONES REAL ESTATE CO.,
70 Washington-blvd., Detroit.

COLE
SEPTEMBER CLEARANCE SALE USED CARS

Starting Sept. 1st, we are going to place on sale every used car in our store at prices far below their actual value. One of the principal reasons for this sale is the fact that we already find ourselves cramped for space on our fall and winter models, and with the orders already on hand, we find it necessary to move these cars at unusual prices.

The following list of used cars can be seen at our Used Car Show Room:

A REBUILT CADILLAC
It's a Safe Used Car to Buy

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined and, if necessary replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory, the entire car repainted and refinished like new, all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is good as new in every detail.

We are as interested in the performance of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service value these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.

BIG RESERVE OF CITIZEN FLIERS

Army School at Cicero to Train Midwest Young Men for Service.

300 OFFICERS, 2,700 MEN.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—[Special.]—Plans for a nation-wide system of instruction in aviation, the creation not only of a larger flying corps, but a reserve of 300 flying officers and 2,700 enlisted men, and the placing of sufficient orders for aeroplanes to keep all the responsible factories in the country busy for a year became known today.

Part of the general plan is already being put in execution. The rest will be well started as soon as the president signs the army appropriation and makes available the biggest aviation fund ever given the army.

Lieut. J. C. Morrow has been assigned to Chicago, headquarters of the northern department of the army. He is to be department aviation officer, and also commanding officer of the new United States army aviation school at Cicero, for which Theodore E. Macauley has been engaged as flying instructor. Lieut. J. E. Carberry has been assigned to Mineola, Long Island, there to command the new aviation school of the east.

Big Field for School Here.

The Chicago school will be fed from both the northern and southern departments, taking in the great belt of the country from Mexico and the gulf to Canada and the great lakes. The western department will feed the school at San Diego, Cal.

The department hopes to train as a part of the reserve young business and professional men of Chicago who have no idea of taking up aviation as a vocation, but want training for possible use in war time. With this in view, the accepted candidates for training will be enabled to continue their regular office life, taking an afternoon off once or twice a week to go to the flying field. This does not mean that every one can obtain government instruction, for it is extended only to candidates who can pass stiff requirements.

Schools at Private Plants.

In addition to the students who will be trained at the regular army schools, there will be instruction in flying, in other schools to be established by manufacturers and others and supervised by the government. These will complete the primary flying instruction.

Supplementing the primary flying school will be the elementary training of from 200 to 500 young men for the active or the reserve service. The officers will be instructed in technical schools. The enlisted men will be given places in industrial plants, notably in aeroplane factories, and from them will emerge after the required time thoroughly fitted to take their place in the trained reserve.

The aviation section of the army has been entirely reorganized since the fiasco in the early days of the Mexican campaign. It is now accomplishing something. A few months ago it faced a discouraging prospect.

Little Money from Congress.

Congress had granted almost no money for the work, there were no aeroplane factories in the country comparable to those in Europe, there were not a dozen flyers in the country outside the small army corps at San Antonio, there was no comprehensive army plan, and there was no coöperation from civil life.

The section now has every man available at work in school or factory or in the flying field, and is waiting to get more men. It is preparing twenty young engineers from civil life to enter the army service when congress permits. It has created an advisory board on which are Henry Southern, Howard Coffin, S. G. Averill, and other experts, and is developing a new type of motor and propeller.

The section chief is Lieut. Col. George Squier, who has seen more flying along the western European battle front, probably, than any other American.

COUNTRY CLUB FAIR SEPT. 20

The proclamation for the second annual South Shore Country club charity fair has been issued. The fair will be held Sept. 20 to 23 on the grounds of the club, and will include everything from Olympian games to exhibits of garden vegetables and house pets; from a zone of joy to a zoo with dozens of live and incredible monsters. Lawrence Heyworth is the general chairman of the fair, which is for the benefit of several prominent charities.

CHURCHES PICKED FOR ROCK RIVER M. E. CONFERENCE

Three Chicago Edifices Thrown Open to District Meeting Oct. 5 to 12.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Plans are nearly complete for the meeting of the seventy-second annual session of the Rock River conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which will be held in Chicago Oct. 5-12.

Three churches will be open for the accommodation of the 350 ministers of the conference and the many visiting ministers and laymen. The daily conference sessions will be held in the Olivet Methodist Episcopal church, Adams street and Keeler avenue. The other churches which will be open for banquets, the meeting of the laymen's association, the various women's societies, and the ministers' wives will be the Calvary Presbyterian church and the Garfield Baptist church, which are located near the Olivet church.

The Rev. Charles A. Gage, pastor of Olivet church, will be in charge of the entertainment of the conference. Noonday and evening lunches will be served in the church.

Bishop Nicholson to Preside.

Bishop Thomas Nicholson will preside. It will be the third conference over which he will have presided since his election to the Episcopacy, the others being the Central Swedish at Peoria, Ill., beginning Sept. 20, and the Northwest Indiana at Greencastle, beginning Sept. 27.

Bishop Nicholson will deliver a series of addresses each morning from 8:30 o'clock. He will speak at the anniversary of the retired ministers, preach Sunday morning, and speak at the consecration of elders and deacons Sunday afternoon. He will address the young men, who will unite with the conference Friday morning. Every afternoon he will meet with the district superintendents to assign the ministers to the various churches for another year. The cabinet meetings will be held at the home of Dr. Frank W. Allin, 4403 Washington boulevard.

Buenos Aires Bishop Here.

Bishop W. F. Oldham, Buenos Aires, South America, will deliver a series of lectures at 4 o'clock on "The World Situation as Seen By Christian Eyes."

The address of welcome will be given by the Rev. Ralph D. Kearns, pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian church.

Special features by members of the conference will be the missionary sermon by the Rev. J. Hastie Odgers of the Rogers Park church; the report of the committee on public policy by the chairman, the Rev. T. P. Frost of Evanston; the report of delegates to the last general conference, the memorial address by the Rev. A. D. Thibodeau of the Cuyler Avenue church, Oak Park; the sermon Sunday evening by the Rev. E. W. Oneal of Joliet, and the address on social service by the Rev. Harry F. Ward of Boston.

Others Who Will Speak.

Others who will address the conference will be the Rev. D. D. Forsyth, Philadelphia; A. W. Harris, New York, former president of Northwestern university; I. Garland Penn, Cincinnati, and the Rev. George Elliott of Mount Clemens, O., formerly of Chicago. Dr. Elliott will speak on the subject "What the World Owes the Minister."

Bishop W. F. McDowell, for twelve years the resident bishop of the Chicago area, has been invited, but it is not yet known whether his health will permit of his coming. He is at present in a mountain resort in Pennsylvania.

The laymen's association will meet on Friday in the Calvary Presbyterian church under the presidency of Edwin S. Munroe of Joliet.

On Saturday afternoon the visitors are to be given a tour of the parks by the Olivet maennerchor.

Two Pulpits Vacant.

Two churches looking for pastors are the St. James church, Ellis avenue and Forty-sixth street, from which the former pastor, Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell, was elected a bishop, and Broadway church, Broadway and Buckingham place, which was left vacant by the retirement of the former pastor, the Rev. Stuart B. Edmondson, who went into business.

The Rev. Joshua O. Randall, former pastor of the Sheridan road church, will return to the conference. The Rev. Robert H. Pooley of Princeton, Ill., formerly a district superintendent, will retire, it is said, because of ill health.

CLUB DIDN'T DISTURB RALLY?

President of Ragen Athletic Organization Denies Political Meeting Charges.

James J. O'Brien, president of the Ragen Athletic club, has entered a general denial of the statement that the club was concerned in any way with the disturbance in a south side political meeting.

According to Mr. O'Brien, the disturbance was caused by a candidate who was denied a chance to speak.

"The club has a membership of 1,500," he said, "and it is not impossible that some members might attend any meeting. The club cannot be responsible for the acts of individuals."

Sylpho-Nathol is so effective that a tablespoonful to a pail of water is enough for any ordinary cleaning.

Fight disease as they do in hospitals

Disease can scarcely exist in a house which is hygienically clean.

But soap and water alone do not mean real cleanliness; a good disinfectant is absolutely essential to make your home safely clean. Guard it with

CABOT'S
Sylpho-Nathol
None genuine without this signature

Every few days put a tablespoonful of Sylpho-Nathol (formerly Sulpho-Napthol) in the bathroom closet to purify it and cleanse the pipes. Use it in the wash bowl and in the kitchen sink.

Put a tablespoonful in a quart of water to clean out the garbage pail; it destroys odors and drives away flies.

Put it in your pail of water for mopping the floors and woodwork; it will prevent any germs from lingering in the crevices and corners.

Many disinfectants valueless

Very economical. Safe and easy to use. Approved by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley and Prof. L. B. Allyn. The United States Government has pointed out that many so-called disinfectants have no more germ-killing value than water. Be safe—ask for Sylpho-Nathol and see that you get it.

In bottles of four sizes—10c, 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sent prepaid on receipt of price if your druggist hasn't it.

Trial Size FREE

For 30 days only we will send trial size free, with booklet showing uses and directions. We make this unusual offer so you may try Sylpho-Nathol. Write us today.
